My next opponent was J. J. McWinty, who later became a New York policeman. This fight Mitchell again called a draw and I had to go an extra round. Madden finally interfered and said I was too light to be doing so much slugging with the big fellows and he gave us both a medal.

At this time the New York A.C. and the Pastime A.C., two of the leading amateur clubs in the city, got into a big war over the conduct of the different amateur tournaments.

The amateur tournaments I fought in were considered legitimate as no money was paid the boxers and the price of a schooner of beer was the only admission.

But soon they began charging admissions to cover expenses and the war broke out again and out of this fight was born the present A.A.U.

NOTE: In the next chapter McAuliffe tells how he beat up a vicious opponent so bad a conductor would not let him ride on the car, fearing he might claim he was injured in a railroad accident, and how McAuliffe whipped the first boxer he ever saw wearing silk tights.

COLTS WIN OVER WARSAW

FEW PENALTIES

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 12.—Colts came out first in an exceptionally close game of hockey over Warsaw in the Lakefield District League at Lakefield rink last night. Only one goal was scored in the first period, Finson slipping the lone tally over for the Colts fifteen minutes after the opening. In the second Rusaw tied the lead by scoring for Warsaw, but Jack Redpath, assisted by Louis Sabatino, scored the last goal of the game for the Colts, and with no goals scored in the third the game ended 2-1 in favor of the Colts. Both goalies were good, stopping many seemingly impossible shots and while checking was of the best, the shooting was wild in some case owing to inexperience on part of some of the players.

So far there has only been a small attendance at these games and as the boys are depending on local support to keep the league going it is only fair that these games should be better patronized. Few penalties were given by Referee Mackenzie, five being total for both teams.

The first game of O.H.A. series wil be played on Friday when the Juniors will meet "Grove" at the Lakefield rink. Game will start sharp at 8 o'clock.

Line up:

Every time we pick up a paper we read that Charlie Rosenberg, the bantamweight champion, has been barred for no fighting. In view of kind of a fighter he is, we wonder what sort of punishment he would draw if he ever fought.

TWEED LOSES GAME AT HOME

GERALDI HURT.

TWEED, Jan. 12.—One of the fastest games of hockey of the Hastings County League was played here last night when the homesters met the Marmora boys. Both teams appeared to be evenly matched. Despite the cold night a good crowd of rooters were on hand. The first period opened with a considerable number of shots on each goalie. Max Geraldi made several shots, but failed to get them past Marmora's goalie. Both teams worked very hard, but this period went through without any scoring.

During the second period very fast hockey was played. In the first few minutes the puck was played close in front of Marmora's net but Tweed failed to score.

Max Geraldi, the snappy wing player ,became injured and was carried off the ice, which weakened the Tweed team considerably. A little hard luck came to Tweed in the last five minutes of this period when Wagar mistook a Marmora boy for one of his mates and drifted the puck to him. They took advantage of it and scored. This put the home boys working harder and then Houston ,the Tweed centre, who is always in his place, put a nice one in Marmora's net.

The third period opened very fast, while McWilliams, Marmora's centre, tried some rough work. The spectators were becoming noisy and kept the boys going. During the last five minutes of this period Max Geraldi was on the ice again and going fast. Alex Geraldi and Ray Quinn made several rushes but failed to score. Marmora scored again, making it 2-1 in favor of Marmora. Referee Bill Green, of Belleville, handled the game. Line-up:

Marmora		Tweed
	Left Defence
Brady		A. Geraldi

ST. PATS LOSE ON COMBINATION

OTHER N.H.L. GAMES.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12. — A hard-driven combination attack that wore down all opposition gave the international circuit leading Ottawa Senators a 4 to 1 victory over the Toronto Green Shirts in a National Hockey League fixture here last night. Although the Senators netted themselves a one-goal lead in the opening period, the Irish were equally sturdy on the attack during this frame, and it took all the wizardry of Alex. ("Shutout") Connell to keep the St. Pats from scoring. But the pace the locals set was bodily weakening, and the Toronto team which came out for the second period appeared a worn lot. They drove hard in the closing frame, however, and it was here that Leo Bourgeault saved what appeared was to be a shut-out when he rammed in Toronto's lone tally.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—New York Rangers beat the Montreal Maroons here last night in a game which started with a flash as the New Yorkers rammed home three quick goals, went through a period of lethargic hockey and ended on a high key with a Maroon sub. forward line counting two goa's and battling like mad in the final four minutes for the tying tally that would not come.

Montreal were caught early in the game with players in the penalty bench and New York, directed by Dr. Stan. Brown, made the advantage to the Rangers' count in the score. Brown shot two clever goals and Bill Cook a third, to spot the Rangers three in the first period. Thereafter, they let Montreal do the work while they held their lead. In the last period Bill Phillips twice counted for Montreal, but the tying goal would not come.

Brown and the two Cooks starred for New York, the former being particularly effective. New York skated rings around the Maroon regulars, though the Montreal Cubs held them closer. Phillips and Munro were best for Montreal.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 12.—The Boston Bruins went into a tie with Chicago for second place in the American division of the National Hockey League by defeating the Black Hawks, 6 to 3, in a fast and rugged encounter here last night. Both teams flashed powerful offensives, but Boston's better defence spelled the ultimate margin of victory. Oliver, of Boston, was the individual star of the game, accounting for four of his team's goals. The teams:

Boston—Goal, Stewart; defence, Hitchman and Cleghorn; centre, Herberts; wings, Galbraith and Cooper; subs., Stuart, Frederickson, Meeking, Oliver, Shore and Couru.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—New York Americans went down to the unexpected defeat in an overtime National League hockey match against the Detroit Cougars here last night, 1 to 0. A goal by Duke Keats on a pass from Art Duncan settled the battle after three minutes 46 seconds of play in the added period. The teams:

Detroit—Goal, Holmes; defence, Loughlin and Duncan; centre, Foyston; wings, Walker and Arbour; subs., Keats, Halderson, Brideh, Gordon, Sheppard.

Referee—Dr. W. J. Laflamme, Toronto.

PENALTIES COST CLERKS GAME

Have Edge on Menie Until Last Period, But Lose 4 To 3.

TIGERS, 3, ELKS, 1.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 12—More outlucked than outplayed the Clerks lost their second game in the Town Hockey league at Covert's Arena last night. Menie was the team that got the last minute verdict over the red, white and blue, and the score was 4 to 3.

The Clerks had the better of the first period and Labrasn gave them a two goal lead. The speedy Clerk right wing was playing the best hockey of his career in this period, and had a decided edge on Kerr the Menie flash in their battle along the north rail. Labrash was in for close shots several times and he passed the puck more frequently than usual and seldom did Kerr get to the Clerk blue line with the puck in his possession. The Clerks worked the better combination of the two teams, getting in close time after time but lacked the finish to bulge the twine McArthur and Wood both went great guns on the forward line in this period and seldom did Menie threaten the Clerk goal.

In the second period the Clerks began to tire under the handicap of playing without substitution. 'Doug' Runions for Labrash, for a few minutes, was the only change they made throughout the game. They also suffered heavily from penalties and were playing one and sometimes two men short the better part of the second and third periods and the extra effort had its effect on their playing.

Lynn reduced the margin against Menie to one when he shot from the corner. The puck went in the net behind Fox's back. The Clerk goalie never saw it and nobody was more surprised than he, when the goal umpire raised his hand.

The Clerks got their only lucky break of the game when Wood sent a high one from the Menie blue line and Shillinglaw just touched it enough to spoil Owens' chance of getting in front of the rubber. That made it 3 to 2 for the Clerks and the second edition of the New York Americans didn't seem to be worrying about the outcome at the second rest.

The third period was hardly under way when penalties to the Clerks began and one man was hardly out of the custody of the penalty timer before another took his place and Menie had an edge on the play.

Fox was given a penalty for tripping Rannie when the Menie centre crossed in front of his cage. Labrash went between the posts and saved a couple of dangerous shots and his team mates resorted to shooting the puck down the ice and Fox was back before any damage had been done. With two thirds of the period gone Kerr got away alone, shot when he hit the defence and slipped through to bat in the rebound with three minutes stopped the shot but lost track of to go. Kerr shot from the side. Fox the puck and it lay loose in front of his net and Rannie beat the Clerk defence to it and shoved it in the net for the winning goal. The Clerks tried hard to work down for a shot on Owens but Menie checked the puck carrier close and they didn't get close enough to be dangerous in the remaining three minutes. The Clerks outplayed the Menie gang when they were at full strength, and one might sum it all up by saying penalties cost them the game.

In the Midget game the Elks appeared with only five men and they put up a gallant, if fruitless, struggle against the Tigers at full strength and were only beaten 3 to 1. This ties the Midget race up tight, each team having a win and a loss.

George Runions scored all the Tiger goals, two alone and the other on a pass from Blute. Lambert for the Elks was the best youngster out there, and got the Elks' only goal, but the odds against him were too great. Dooher and Hendy showed improvement over their first game, and Hepstonstall performed in fine style in the nets for the losers. Stocker, Runions and Blute showed up well for the Tigers.

Pianist—Sister Myrtle Wyatt.

The work was put on in a very creditable manner. After Lodge dainty refreshments were served and an enjoyable social hour spent.

25 REBELS KILLED.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press) — Special despatches from Guadala Jara state that twenty five rebels were killed when Federal troops captured the towns of Cocula, Aranden and Totolan in the state of Jalisco, a few days ago.

In a statement issued today by the office of President Calles, the Mexican Catholic episcopate is accused of responsibility for the recent Catholic uprisings under the banner "Long live Christ, the King."

LASHES AND JAIL.

Former Police Officer Sentenced On Degrading Offense.

WELLAND, Ont., Jan. 12 (Canadian Press)—Three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary with twenty lashes, ten on entering the institution and ten three months later, was the sentence imposed upon Robert Watt by Magistrate John Goodwin at the Welland Police court after Watt had pleaded guilty to a most degrading offence.

The accused on hearing the sentence broke down. He was formerly a member of the Welland and Crowland police forces, later a member of the C.N.R. special force.

PLOT FRUSTRATED.

Russian Paper Says Plan To Ruin Miners Hase Been Defeated.

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—The Workers' Gazette says that the authorities have frustrated a daring plan devised by "evil elements" among the workmen, to blow up the Soviet mines, power houses, and equipment in the Donets Coal Basin.

Puts Mortgage On Hearse To Pay Wife's Alimony

NEWARK, N.J., Jan. 12 (United Press) — Harry E. Hunt, Rutherford undertaker, was forced to mortgage a new hearse to pay his divorced wife alimony he complained when called into court for failing to pay three installments.

Hiram Walker Is Active But Nickel Loses Point

TORONTO, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—After a steady opening, a number of issues sagged on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, and at the noon close several losses were recorded, none of them large. Hiram Walker, still an active leader, held steady at 31 7-8, but International Nickle softened a point. Brazilian eased a half at 106⅛, and Smelters lost 1½ at 248½, while Canadian Canners Preferred was 1¼ lower at 78½. Seagrams firmed 3-8 at 16 3-4, and Hollinger advanced 30 to 20.80.

Laval Quebec Leads Hectic Toronto Session

TORONTO, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press) — The volume of sales amounted to more than million and a quarter shares in this morning's hectic session of the Standard Mining Exchange. Laval Quebec, the outstanding leader was dealt in to the extent of four hundred thousand shares and several other issues had turn overs of well over a hundred thousand shares. Prices generally were maintained but occasional sharp recessions were shown. Laval Quebec closed at noon unchanged at 49 but Consolidated West Dome lost 2 3-4 at 13 1-2. Area sagged 18 cents at 140. Nipissing eased 20 at 8.95 and Duprat lost one at 32. Amulet softened nine at 250. Kirkland Hunton firmed one at 31 and Corona one at 31. Teck Hughes climbed to 6.50, 15 cents higher.

New York Market Turns After Morning Losses

NEW YORK, aJn. 12 (Canadian Press).—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling down rather sharply during the morning, but turning upward again in the early afternoon. Early losses in the active issues ran from one to three points, but most of these were substantially reduced or wiped out in the afternoon rally.

The placing of Woolworth stock on $5 annual basis, following recent declaration of stock dividend, was regarded as a bullish factor, both the "old" and "new" stocks moving up over two points.

Atcheson was again the rail leader, selling close to 168, while Wheeling and Lake Trie Pfd. moved up 2 1-2 points to 51 3-4, the highest price since 1925, Hudson and Manhattan Common and Preferred, touched 43 1-4 and 80 1-2, respectively, highest prices since they were listed in October, 1924.

Heavy trading in Anaconda Copper was one of the few features of the industrial list. Heavy liquidation of motors was believed to have been inspired by the fear of further price cuts.

Scant Stocks Of Wheat Bring Upturn At Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (Canadian Stocks).—With only scant stocks in Chicago and the amount steadily decreasing, wheat showed an early upward trend today. Predictions were current that less than 500,000 bushels of contract wheat would be on hand here by the end of May.

Opening unchanged to 1-4 cent higher, wheat soon made material gains all around. Corn and oats also developed firmness, corn starting at 1-4 cent off to 1-8 cent up and substantially scoring a general advance.

TWENTY CHILDREN ARE BURIED TO-DAY

Masses For Victims of Montreal Fire Said in Three Churches.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press).—While not on so great a scale as the general mass for thirty-nine victims of the Laurier Palace moving picture holocaust on Sunday which was held in the Church of the Nativity yesterday, not less poignantly touching were the funerals of twenty-one more of the children to-day. The masses for them were sung in three churches, St. Redempter, St. Aloysius and the Church of the Nativity, all near the Laurier Theatre.

WEDDING BELLS.

OSBORNE—WILLIAMSON.

On Wednesday morning, December 22nd, a pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. T. E. Holling, of the First United Church, Lindsay, (owing to illness in the home of Rev. E. Rowland), of Verna Priscilla Wiliamson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wiliamson, and Thomas William Osborne, formerly of Lindsay.

The bride was gowned in rosewood crepe satin, black picture hat and satin slippers. Her coat was of rose wood with mandel fur trimming.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Oborne left for Toronto, where they spent a short honeymoon. On their return to Omemee on Christmas day a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

EATS EVERYTHING, NOTHING BOTHERS HIM

"In my opinion," said Mr. J. N. Meagher, 39 Primrose Ave., Ottawa, "there is nothing like MILLER'S HERB JUICE. Before using this product I was always constipated, my liver was inactive, my food would not digest, I had terrible gas pains and my nerves were completely unstrung. HERB JUICE is certainly a remarkable remedy. It relieved all of my troubles. I now eat everything I want and nothing bothers me whatsoever. HERB JUICE is the greatest medicine I ever used."

THAT COLD!

To successfully combat a cold, it is necessary to speed up the elimination of poisons and accumulated waste from the body. The best way to do this is by restoring normal nerve energy to the liver, kidneys, bowels, lungs and skin by releasing constriction from spinal nerves. CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS PROVE EFFECTIVE in warding off a cold or in breaking up a cold which has become either acute or chronic.

LAWYERS CLAIM PURVIANCE IS STAR TOO LONG

Edna of Screen Fame Takes Role in Chaplin Dispute.

$250 A WEEK.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 13. — Canadian Press. — Edna Purviance, formerly starred by Charlie Chaplin, to-day was cast for a role in the marital drama of the multi-millionaire film actor and producer, following the disclosure by counsel for Lita Grey Chaplin, that they are investigating the status of the actress on the Chaplin Studio payroll.

"We have been informed that Miss Purviance has been on the Studio payroll at $250 a week for some years," Edward T. McMurray, Mrs. Chaplin's uncle and chief counsel in her action for divorce, declared yesterday. 'We are informed that during these years she has not been working for Chaplin. If these facts are borne out we will recommend to the receivers that this salary be stopped. This money should go to the Chaplin children, for whom Chaplin has made no provision, instead of to some actress in France."

FIRST MAN OUT CLAIMED REFUND STATES CASHIER

Tickets Freely Sold To Children Under Age Without Adults.

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press)—Tickets were freely sold to children under age and without adult escort at Laurier Palace theatre on Sunday afternoon for the show which ended in a fire, panic and death of 78 children, according to testimony of Annette Bordua, cashier of the theatre, at the resumption of the coroner's inquest into tragedy to-day. She told the coroner she had never received orders not to sell tickets to unaccompanied children and had not refused to sell tickets to any children.

The first adult, Auditor, to leave the theatre, Miss Bordua stated, far from worrying about the safety of children, approached the ticket office and demanded refund of fifteen cents he had paid for his ticket, because fire had prevented him from getting his money's worth of entertainment. The cashier, however, was too busy getting out herself and Auditor had to go without.

The cashier saw two attendants at a stairway on which there was no trouble, but none near the fatal outlet.

STEAL WAR TROPHIES.

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.— Numerous thefts from the War Trophies Branch of the Dominion Government archives, which have puzzled the authorities for some time, have been solved, authorities say, by the quick thinking and prompt action of a prominent Ottawa business man. Elbert N. Soper. Noticing a man loitering in a suspicious manner around a vacant house belonging to his late father's estate. Mr. Soper with his chauffeur effected the man's capture. At the police station stolen goods were found on the prisoner, Gaston Roeque, who implicated two others, Lucien Morin and Lucien Marion, both of whom were later arrested. All three, police say, admitted stealing from the war trophies exhibits, they having at various times gained admission by means of a key. A large quanity of stolen goods, including revolvers, bayonets, field glasses, etc., relics of the Great War, have been recovered.

Mr. Soper, who is given much credit for an important capture, is a son of the late Warren Y. Soper, former millionaire citizen of Ottawa and Vice-President of the Ottawa Electric Railway Company.

Real Knock-Out Planned For Girl Meeting Masher

BERLIN, Jan. 13. — An electrical contrivance that is little but mighty is being recommended by German police-women for the protection of girls against mashers. It has the appearance and size of a wrist watch and is connected by tiny wires to a little battery and induction coil carried in an inside pocket of a dress or coat. It generates a low amperage shock of 1,000 volts, sufficient to knock out an ordinary man, although it would not cause permanent injury. When the wearer touches it to any part of the body of a would-be bad man, the fight is over.

CANADA IS ON THE UP GRADE

Dominion Has Defintely Emerged From Post War Depression.

HOLT DECLARES.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Discussing business conditions in general to-day at a meeting of the shareholders of the Royal Bank of Canada, Sir Herbert Holt, chairman of the board of directors, remarked that Canada had definitely emerged from the discouraging conditions of the post-war period. The year just closed had been one of steady and substantial improvement in almost every department of Canada's business life, and it was gratifying to know that the Dominion's greater prosperity was well grounded on the solid foundation of expanding production and commerce.

Canada, he continued, had attained the position of the world's leading producer of newsprint; coal production in the Maritimes had been the heaviest on record; manufacturing plants were active; the volume of employment was impressive; the net earnings of Canada's two great railways had shown a marked gain, and there had been a record volume of building and construction.

Shareholders of the bank approved a resolution increasing the authorized capital from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000.

FIRE DESTROYS BELMONT HOME

NO INSURANCE.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 13.—The home of Mrs. German Varty, in the 7th Concession of Belmont, was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday afternoon about five o'clock. The contents with the exception of a cream separator, sewing machine, two chairs, sideboard, dresser, washstand and some clothing were also burned. The loss is a very serious one to Mrs. Varty, as there is no insurance and she had the misfortune to fall and break her hip while trying to save some of the furniture and as a result she will be confined to her bed until the last of March. The house was of frame and log construction, and the fire started upstairs, spreading through the partitions. Mrs. Varty and her daughter, Miss Gladys, and Mrs. Stewart Varty were in the house at the time, and were unaware of the fire until notified by Mr. Isaac Anderson, who happened to be passing. It was then beyond control.

RELIGIOUS UPRISINGS BREAKING OVER VARIOUS PARTS OF MEXICO

DESTROY PROPERTY.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—After smouldering for six months, the fires of controversy between the Mexican Government and the Roman Catholic Church is flaming up in various parts of the republic concurrently with the troubled relations between Mexico and the United States over the petroleum and alien land laws and the Nicaraguan question.

Long existing economic and business depression and a certain amount of general political unrest add potential fuel to the blaze, which may die down or may spread into a conflagration.

Catholics in numerous states are, the Mexican Government declares in an official statement, in armed revolt and are fighting uder the battle cry of "Long live Christ the King."

Other groups, described as bandits, are burning bridges, attempting to wreck railroad trains, holding up residents and tourists alike and looting small villages. The distinction between bandits and revolutionists is often merely theoretical in Mexico, but, whatever they may be called, the war department persists in its declaration that the Federal soldiers are suppressing the disturbances.

The newspaper Excelsior editorially criticizes President Coolidge's recent message to Congress on Nicaragua. It speaks of "the hypocritical mask of puritanical rectitude with which Mr. Coolidge attempts to disguise his policy, "and says, even if Mexico has sent arms to Nicaragua (which the editorial does not admit) why should it be wrong for Mexico to do so, but all right for the United States to do so.

The newspapers feature extensive Washington and New York dispatches giving much greater prominence to the foreign angles of the Nicaraguan situation than to the disturbances within Mexico. This results in the prevalence in Mexico City of rumors that in addition to what the newspapers print or the government announces, numerous other disturbances are occurring throughout the country. Many of the rumors cannot be verified.

The Government asserts that not more than 1,000 revolutionists are in the field in all Mexico, including rebel Yaqui Indians in the State of Sonora. The Government makes the direct statement that the intellectual leaders of the revolution are Bishop Pascual Diaz of Tobasco, Secretary of the Catholic Episcopate, whose whereabouts are not known except by officials since his arrest on Monday for deportation, and Rene Capistran Garza, leader of the Society for the Defence of Religious Liberty, which opposed the Government's new religious regulations last summer. Garza is said to have been proclaimed by his followers provisional president of Mexico.

The other members of the Episcopate who were arrested along with Bishop Diaz continue at liberty upon the condition that they report and register daily with the Ministry of the Interior. This they are doing. They refuse to discuss the situation for publication, but previous to their arrest, the Episcopate has consistently avowed that the Episcopate as such or Catholics in authorized ca-

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM EXISTS IN OUTBREAKS OF INFLUENZA

Canadian Quarantine Officers Keep Strict Outlook For Bearers.

ONLY A RUMOR.

Dr. Amyot Declares Reports Show No Serious Spread.

OTTAWA, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—"We see no cause for alarm," said Dr. J. A. Amyot, Deputy Minister of Public Health, in commenting on the report of influenza outbreaks throughout the world. The Deputy Minister explained that the Federal Department of Health received weekly reports on outbreaks of the disease from all parts of the world and that there was no official recognition of any serious spread of influenza.

He was of the opinion that the rumor was without foundation. While quarantine officers of Canada were not empowered to hold anyone entering the country with influenza, they kept a strict watch and check-up on the disease whenever possible.

SHANGHAI CONSULARS PREPARE DEFENSE AGAINST MOB VIOLENCE

Are Decided To Put Down Any Forms of Undue Action.

CHEN IS "FRIENDLY."

Nationalist Government Guarantees Protection For Foreigners' Lives and Property.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 13.—The Consular body met yesterday and decided to defend Shanghai against mob violence, no matter what form the attack takes.

Preparations are being made to maintain order. Whereas in other places it is possible to divorce the protection of life from protection of the concessions, here the size and importance of the settlement makes such a distinction impossible.

Knowledge of the Consular body's attitude is spreading among Chinese, who realize that the Hankow incident may turn world opinion against them.

Professes Friendship

SHANGHAI, Jan. 13. — Eugene Chen, Foreign Minister of the Cantonese Nationalist Government, issued a statement yesterday with reference to the reported American plan to participate in the defence of the Shanghai International Settlement, in which he declared that the Nationalist Government's attitude toward America is most friendly, despite the fact that America is a party to the treaties.

Chen stated that despite America's good intentions toward China, American authorities often were misled into action inconsistent with the real interest of American nationals in China. With reference particularly to the Nationalist's designs respecting the Shanghai international settlement, Chen claimed that an extension of Chinese authority here will not take place as an outright capture, but as the inevitable result of the advance of the Chinese Nationalist movement, and when the Nationalist victory comes the Cantonese will enter Shanghai, not as conquerors, but as conservers of the work done by the foreigners through the last century.

Nearly 500 British and American women and children refugees from Hankow, Kiaukiang and other Yangtse ports are comfortably housed here as a result of the untiring efforts of the American and British Women's Clubs, which are supplying clothing and other necessities. Many of the refugees are still in an hysterical condition.

Guarantee Protection

HANKOW, Jan. 13.—A proclamation headed "A urgent notification from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Nationalist Government" was issued last night, as follows:

"A new situation has arisen since the Nationalists entered the British concesstion. The British delegate is on his way from Peking in order to arrange relations between the two parties.

"We have repeatedly declared that the lives and property of foreign immigrants shall really be protected, and such protection must be given in order that diplomacy may be helped and facilitated in its work. It is hereby announced to the world that such protection will be afforded by the Nationalist Government.

"You are hereby requested to inform the population that they must assist, and therefore stop all anti-British and anti-Christian movements during the time the negotiations are being carried out with Britain.'

TRAMP DOG SAVES LIVES OF FAMILY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 13.— A tramp dog who followed Edward Tucker home saved the life of the Tucker family. Tucker fed the dog and it stayed around the home. The other night fire broke out, the day ran to Tucker's room and awakened him, and the family got out just in time.

FACES UNIQUE CHARGE

Above are E. V. Sterry, aged 55, street orator and publicist, who has been arrested, charged with issuing blasphemous, indecent and profane libel of and concerning the Holy Scriptures, the first charge of its kind in Canada and the second in the annals of British law. With him in lawyer's robe is his counsel, E. L. Cross, brilliant colored barrister, educated at Dalhousie University, Halifax, N.S., and member of the Rationalist Society. The trial, which will take place in Toronto, where the alleged libel was uttered, is likely to cause an international sensation, perhaps equalling the famous Dayton evolution trial in interest.

BURNS TO DEATH IN APARTMENT

Fire Swept From Ground To Fourth Floor, Cutting Off Escape.

ORIGIN UNKNOWN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. Canadian Press. — Arnold Daly, actor and theatrical manager, was burned to death in a fire in his apartment on the 4th floor at 28 West 51st street to-day. The fire, the origin of which is not known, swept from the ground floor up the stairway, cutting off the only avenue of escape.

DETROIT, Jan. 13. — While all the talk in the $30,000,000 tax suit in progress at Hotel Statler before the United States court of Tax Appeals, has been of millions, the attorneys dropped their figures to $100 yesterday and unfolded a story which probably will find no equal in all of the court records of the world. It was the tale of a girl, who in 1903 loaned her brother $100 and how that investment brought her a return of almost $1,000,000.

Now Mrs. Rosetta Hauss.

The girl who trusted her brother is now Mrs. Rosetta V. Hauss. The brother is United States Senator Jas. Couzens. In the years that followed Mrs. Hauss received $47,000 in dividends from the Ford Motor Co. and when it was recapitalized in 1915 she received $50,000 in stock. She saw that $50,000 worth of stock grow to $260,000 four years later, and in the meantime her dividendshad reached $460,000.

Clarence E. Wilcox, attorney for Mrs. Hauss, read into the record the story of Mrs. Hauss's fortune. Many of the spectators gasped, but the attorneys, who have become so accustomed to discussing millions, evidently failed to see romance in the investment.

Couzens had but $900 of his own at the time and wanted $100 more to buy $1000 worth of stock. Stock dividends piled this one share up to twenty in 1919, when Mrs. Hauss received $13,000 a share. Senator Couzens was the only stockholder to receive more per share than his sister. He sold each of his shares for $13,444.42.

DISMISSES MOTION.

TORONTO, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Mr. Justice Wright to-day dismissed with costs the motion to [illegible] of E. W. J. Owens, K.C., off the roll of solicitors. The matter was settled out of court. It was claimed Mrs. Mary Greentree had given Mr. Owens money to invest in mortgages, but this had not been done.

Italian Scientist Predicts Earthquake

FAENZA, Itatly, Jan. 13.— (Canadian Press.) — Raphael Bendandi, head of the Telluric Observatory here and well known for his predictions of earthquakes, to-day said he foresaw a period of violent seismic commotions, beginning to-mororw, which would be especially severe in the Balkans, Algeria and Morocco. He predicted heavier shocks on the 15th and 16th.

EPISCOPATE DENIES REBELLION CHARGES

Make Public Complaint Against Acts Committed On Catholic Priests.

MEXICO CITY, Mex., Jan. 13.— (United Press.) — A blessing by Pope Pius XI at the beginning of the revolution in Mexico was rumored in Mexico City to-day, while the Catholic Episcopate was denying charges that it had stimulated rebellion. The Episcopate also protested the arrest of its members and threatened the exile of its secretary, Bishop Diaz. Specific objection was made to charges against the Episcopate by President Calles to the American Good Will Mission, headed by Hubert Herring, of Boston, and by General Valvarez of staff to Calles.

We refute publicly and solemnly the accusation that we have opposed government authority or have been guilty of sedition or conspiracy to foment rebellion. The government has no proof of such acts on our part and if it had this proof would have been used before to discredit the Episcopate.

"We take advantage of this occasion to make public complaint against arbitrary and vexatious acts committed in recent days against bishops, priests, Catholic faithful and in particular against the person of the Illustrious Monsignor Dr. Pascal Diaz, Secretary of the Episcopate."

The whereabouts of Bishop Diaz remains a mystery, although it is the understanding of the Episcopate that he is in Vera Cruz or already en route to Havana, where he was expected to be exiled.

Toronto's Birth Rate Smallest On Record

TORONTO, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Toronto's birth-rate last year was the smallest on record, Dr. Charles J. Hastings, medical officer of health, says in his annual report presented to the Board of Health to-day. Births were 11,880 in 1926, an average of 21.3. The rate for births, the report says, has been steadily decreasing since 1922, when the rate was 26.6. The death-rate was slightly increased.

Scientists Risk Death To Help Heal Humanity

LONDON, Jan. 13. (By NEA Service).—To verify conclusions he had reached in his study of cancer, Doctor Kurtzahn of Koenigsberg grafted a living cancer into his own flesh, performing the operation himself. No ill effects resulted, which strengthened his theory that the disease cannot be induced into a body which is not in a pre-cancerous state. An equally daring experiment was performed by Doctor Pettenkofer of Munich, who, during a lecture, drank a glass of water into which he had introduced millions of cholera germs. He believed that he was immune to the disease, and the experiment proved him right.

U. S. WORRIED ABOUT MEXICO

Anti-American Sentiment Displayed as Public Recognizes Gravity.

MILITARY ACTION.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Anti-American sentiment is being displayed as the general public becomes cognizant of the gravity of the international situation augmented by the concern of the United States Department of State over the spectre of Bolshevism here.

The National Students' Congress voted yesterday to support the attitude of President Calles in the international crisis, denouncing at the same time the 'Northern Colossus,' while newspapers, particularly The Universal, are charging domination of Mexico on the part of the United States at the behest of "exploiters who have invested money in Mexico."

At the Soviet Legation it was declared that the Moscow Government was not connected with the Communist International and that the Soviet Government could not be held responsible for the activities of that body.

PEKING GOVERNMENT ASKS CONCESSIONS

SHANGHAI, Jan. 13 (United Press).—A report received here to-day said representatives of the Peking Government called on certain legations at Tientsin yesterday and "suggested" that foreign concessions there be handed over to the Chinese.

Tientsin is the principal sea outlet and the commercial capital of North China.

This move is not considered surprising as the recent case at Hankow, where the Southern Government took over the British concession after an uprising among coolies and caused the evacuation of the British and United States residents, is considered a precedent which Chinese leaders intend to follow elsewhere.

Addressing a public gathering in Wuchang last night, General Chang Kai Shek, military leader of Cantonese, declared he was "pleased to see the Chinese people had taken over the British concession" at Hankow.

CANADIAN SEAMAN SUCCUMBS TO EXPOSURE AFTER WRECK

Five Men Have Terrible Experience in British Channel.

SUDDEN STORM.

Row Boat Drifted Several Hours Before Striking Rocks.

LONDON, Jan. 13 (Canadan Press).—Raymond Trounch, Johannesburg, South Africa, member of the crew of the Canadian steamer Novadoc, died of exposure on the rocks near Clevedon, in the Bristol Channel, last night, and four other members of the crew had a terrifying experience during a storm.

The Novadoc, bound from Montreal to Sharpness, was anchored near Clevedon, and five members of the crew were returning to the ship after purchasing provisions, when the storm broke. The oars of their row boat were swept away and the little craft drifted for several hours before huge waves hurled it on the rocks. The occupants scrambled ashore exhausted. Trounch died of exposure.

SOVIET READY FOR NEW WARS SAYS BUCHARIN

WATCHFUL PEACE.

Communist Party Prepared To Defend Interests of Oppressed.

MOSCOW, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Confessing that the world revolution had failed, but insisting it would come sooner or later, Nicolai Bucharin, praesidium of the Communist party of Soviet Russia and a potent figure in the Communist regime, speaking before the Moscow Communist National party, reiterated the Bolshevik fear that the European countries, inspired by Britain, were preparing a war against the Soviet.

Such a conflict, he said, might begin in the spring, and although the Government's policy was peaceful, he exhorted the people to gird themselves for an attack.

The Communist party and the Soviet, he continued, always would defend the interests of the oppressed Nationals even if they lived in bourgeois countries, oppressed by imperialistic government.

JURY SELECTION STILL CONTINUES

Nine Chosen, So Far, For Trial of Preacher.

FOUR EXCUSED.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Nine jurors had been selected before noon to-day to try Dr. J. Frank Norris, Baptist Fundamentalist, for the slaying of Dexter E. Chipps of Forth Worth. Counsel believed they would have the jury completed by early afternoon. Thus far, three veniremen who said they had been members of the Ku Klux Klan and one Catholic have been excused.

Counsel believed testimony would start not later than to-morrow, and that the prosecution preliminary evidence would be brief.

CHAPLIN LEAVES CITY WHILE WIFE TIES UP FORTUNE

GONE FOR GOOD.

London's New Law Restricts Publishing News of Divorce.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13 (United Press).—Lita Gray Chaplin's battle for a share in the millions of Charles Chaplin, her husband, went on yesterday with the comedian himself missing from the scene of action.

Mrs. Chaplin, suing for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty, has tied up his entire fortune—estimated at $16,000,000—by court proceedings. She claims $10,000,000 of it comes under California's communal property law, giving the wife a joint interest in it with the husband.

While receivers appointed Tuesday by the court prepared to take over the Chaplin assets, his wife apparently sat in the saddle and Chaplin had made no move to fight back yesterday. He was variously reported on his way to New York, in hiding here or somewhere in California.

Attorneys for Mrs. Chaplin, in asking the receivership, told the court they believed the comedian had left the city for good.

London Stories Brief

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The effect of the recent law restricting the reporting of divorce cases is notably shown in the manner in which the London papers treat the action brought by Lita Grey Chaplin against the film comedian. It is the first case of great interest since the law was passed, in December.

In former times many papers would have spread the details, as Chaplin was born in England, and is as well known here through his films as he is in the United States, but fearing the penalties, they severely limit their stories. The law provides four months' imprisonment and $2,500 fine for the proprietor, editor, master printer or published of any paper carrying the details of a divorce action.

Common Sense Used

The Daily Mail, calling attention to the wide scope of the law, points out that the papers risk criminal prosecution if they publish a photograph of Chalin in conjunction with their report of the suit.

The Westminster Gazette, under a three-inch account of the wife's petition, prints a note assuming that it thereby has committeed a breach of the law. It was decided, however, to "apply the rule of common sense" to the act, which has been severely criticised by eminent lawyers for the vagueness and looseness of its terms.

Government officials take occasion to point out that not a single general or officer of consequence in the Federal Army has revolted, which they declare is positive proof to anybody familiar with Mexican conditions that the revolution is not serious. It is admitted in government circles, however, that some former officials of the army are in revolt, but at the same time it is asserted that the army is solidly loyal to the government and that, therefore, the Federals can easily control the marauders, whether bandits or revolutionists.

Says Shylock Was Not Jew Writer Spreading Scandal

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(A.P.)—"Shylock was not a Jew, and Shakespeare was instrumental in spreading a gross slander on the Jewish race," said Myer Landa, Jewish author, lecturing yesterday before the Jewish Historical Society.

Mr. Landa declared he had traced Shylock's origin to a figure in the anonymous thirteenth century English religious poem, "Cursor Mundi." This poem he described as portraying the insistence of the "pound of flesh," a horrible mutilation which Mr. Landa contended was unknown in Jewish law or tradition, but practiced under early English law.

DEATH PENALTY ASKED BY CROWN

Request For Two Weeks' Adjournment Granted in St. Catharines Case.

SENTENCE LENIENT.

TORONTO, Jan. 13.—The appeal, taken by the attorney general from the sentence of 15 years' imprisonment imposed by Justice Rose on Frank de Young, Richard Darling and Walter Liddiard, the three men convicted of a most serious criminal assault on a girl at St. Catharines, came before the second divisional court yesterday, and the hearing was adjourned for two weeks. In this appeal the crown asserts that the death penalty ought to have been imposed on the accused, or, in the alternative, that they ought to have been whipped in addition to the prison term. The application for adjournment was made by counsel on behalf of the prisoners to convenience A. R. Hassard, counsel for one of the prisoners. He asked for one week's adjournment.

Ed. Bayley, K.C., for the crown, thought the adjournment, if granted, should be for two weeks, and the court fixed the hearing of the appeal for January 26.

REFUSE REQUEST.

Bail Not Allowed Brockville Man Charged With Arson.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 13 (Canadian Press). — An application for bail for Albert De Bruge, charged with arson following the destruction by fire of his home here Saturday, was made yesterday, but met opposion from Crown Attorney Brown, who expressed his intention of laying another charge under which bail is not granted. Considering this statement, Magistrate Page refused the request.

Early yesterday morning a Coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Mary Jane Lameront, De Bruge's common-law wife, who was burned to deat in the fire which destroyed their home, returned a verdict declaring that in their opinion her death was accidental.

Former Welland Policeman Also To Get Twenty Lashes.

WELLAND, Ont., Jan. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—Three years in Kingston penitentiary with twenty lashes, ten on entering the institution and ten three months later, was the sentence imposed upon Robert Watt by Magistrate John Goodwin at the Welland police court after Watt had pleaded guilty to a most degrading offense. The accused, on hearing the sentence, broke down. He was formerly a member of the Welland-Crowland police forces, later a member of the C.N.R. special force.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

ELEVEN O'CLOCK

Eleven o'clock, and so little done!
One hour of the morning, only one.
To do the things that I meant to do.
And here is the morning nearly through.
Well, I might sit down, and I might complain,
But counting your losses you little gain.
And no ship yet ever reached the dock
That ran aground at eleven o'clock.

Eleven o'clock, but the fellow fails
Who drops his anchor and reefs his sails
Because there's only an hour, at that,
Only an hour, but a man can go
A long, long way in an hour or so.
But many a man the fates will mock
Who quits because it's eleven o'clock.

Eleven o'clock. Luck won't come soon
To the fellow who thinks he'll loaf till noon
And start at once. Oh, an hour of day
Is a thing too precious to throw away.
For you may be late, but you won't be last
When the race is won, when the line is passed.
In fact, the fleet often gets a shock
From a ship behind at eleven o'clock!

PICTURES BAVIN AS HOBO "HERO"

C. N. R. Trainmen Says He Braved Death To Save His Life.

FOUND GUILTY.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 13 Canadian Press)—William Bavin, alias "Billy the Bum," an international wanderer, yesterday afternoon was pictured in the role of a hero by Stanley Woollatt, Canadian National Railway trainman, giving character evidence for Bavin, after the "King of the hoboes" was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury at Sandwich. Woollatt informed Mr. Justice Grand and the jury, that Bavin the world traveller by side door pullmans, "flop guest" at police stations, and Hoboe de Luxe, several years ago, had saved his (Woollatt's) life at the risk of losing his own. The railway trainman said that when he fell stunned in front of a car that was being switched, Bavin, who was riding the bumpers, of the freight train, saw his predicament and jumped to his rescue. "It was a brave thing to do," Woollatt said, "Because had Billy missed catching hold of me when he jumped square in the centre of the tracks, both of us must have been run over. Chief Constable Thompson of Windsor and Adjutant Buntin, recently in charge of the Toronto Temple Corps of the Salvation Army, both said that "Billy" loved liquor, but always could be depended upon to tell the truth and be honest. He is a victim of rubbing alcohol, the Salvation Army officer asserted. The trial was finished shortly after 4 o'clock and two hours later the jury returned to the courtroom with a verdict of guilty. "Billy" snapped his black eyes for a moment and hung his head; but resumed his cool demeanor when Adjutant Buntin gave him an encouraging look. The bravado which had been an outstanding feature of Billy's demeanor in his previous appearance on the border was missing yesterday. Some times leaning back in his seat, some times crouching forward to follow witnesses word by word, he demonstrated if only by absence of his usual gay insouciance, that he was temporarily no longer "Billy the bum" but William Bavin, charged with the manslaughter of Peter Isidore Busette, former Italian army officer and fully cognizant of his position. Evidence regarding the assault on Busette on the early morning of December 18, at the Junction of Pitt Street and Ouelette Ave., in Windsor, was given by witnesses for the crown.

The blow, all witnesses agreed, was responsible for Busette's head striking the pavement with such force as to fracture the skull.

MILLBROOK COUNCIL INAUGURAL MEETING

Officials Appointed and Preparations Made For Year's Work.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 13.—The inaugural meeting of the Municipal Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, Reeve W. T. Wood presiding. Councillors present were: J. R. Eakins, P. Stinson, T. J. Lang. Councillor G. W. Sayles absent.

On motion, the communication from the Canadian National Railways regarding the closing of the old road was received, and no present action taken.

Statements of grants paid by the Counties Council included the following: September 25, 1926, Public School, $935.50; December 11, Public School, $39.07; December 11, street grant, $174.91.

Lang-Eakins, that Clerk be instructed to subscribe for six copies of The Municipal World for 1927.

Stinson-Lang, that time for Collector's roll be extended one month and every effort be made to clean-up arrears, totalling $275.90, and the taxes $22.00—$297.90.

The following accounts were read, and on motion of Lang-Eakins ordered paid:

S. Donnelly, $6.50; W. G. Russell & Sons, $16.00; Hydro-electric, $9.02; W. G. Hetherington, $2.00; S. Carveth, $2.00; W. Morton, $13.00; Rural Telephone Company, $4.65; L. J. Russell, Registrar, including 76 births, 10 deaths, 11 marriages, $11.75; H. Nattrass, $26.85; H. Lunn, $2.50.

The account from the Peterboro Clinic was held over for further consideration.

Bylaws were passed appointing D. Hampton on the Public Library Board; G. A. Duncan on the Board of Health; A. Hunter and W. G. Pendrie, fence-viewers; J. W. Hutchison and H. Skitch, poundkeepers; J. J. Clarke, assessor.

A money bylaw was passed authorizing the Reeve to borrow from the Bank of Toronto an amount not exceeding $10,000 for current expenses.

In view of the fact that Reeve W. T. Wood is running for Warden of the United Counties this year, the Council gave some time to a discussion of the personnel of the new Counties' Council, which will be in session this month, and each member extended to the Reeve heartiest best wishes for uccess in his campaign.

New War Gas Would Put Whole Armies To Sleep French Are Watching Test Of German Invention

PARIS, Jan. 13 — French Army officers are anxiously awaiting the reports on final tests of two new German gases, one of which is said to render harmless all known forms of poison gas, and the other having the effect of putting whole armies to sleep for four hours.

It is just such new gases toward which the chemical warfare and defensive branches of European armies have been earnestly working since the terrible ravages of poison gas in the late war, and if Germany's claims prove correct it is probable that the existing military establishments of the world will be radically altered. Such is the opinion of both French and foreign military experts here.

Whether the Germans claims are actually based on facts remains to be seen, but it is understood that the French military officials have information which warrants close investigation of the final tests. It is no secret that the intelligence services of European armies are bending their efforts to obtain detailed knowledge of the new gases.

KELLOGG ISSUES STATEMENT ON U. S. POLICY

Gives Detailed Explanation of Administration's Policy Regarding Nicaragua.

ACTING WISELY.

Claims Mexico To Be Basis For "Red" Attack Against States.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 13.—(Canadian Press). — Documentary evidence of why the Government is concerned with the spectre of a Mexican-fostered bolshevist hegemony intervening between the United States and the Pan-American Canal was laid before the public yesterday by Secretary of State Kellogg through the medium of a statement to the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate.

Extensive quotations from declarations by Soviet leaders in Russia; resolutions adopted by the Communist party in Russia, the United States and Mexico; proceedings of the Executive Committee of the Communist International and the Red International, all proclaiming that Mexico and Latin America are to be bases from which an attack is to be led on the "Imperialistic" United States, composed the principal part of Secretary Kellogg's statement.

The statement was presented to the committee in the course of a detailed explanation of the administration's policy regarding Nicaragua. Reading portions of the document, Mr. Kellogg emphasized that the concern of the United States Government over conditions in Central America was not confined to the situation in Nicaragua.

After a session of the Foreign Relations Committee that was also prolonged that it necessitated a recess, and after having heard the Secretary's statement, the only comment by Chairman Borah, who has taken issue with the Government's policy, was that nothing had been presented with which he was not already familiar. Senator Shipstead, Farmer Labor of Minnesota, declared he had heard nothing which in his opinion justified the Government's course in Nicaragua. Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, said few members of the committee had not been impressed by Secretary Kellogg's statement, and Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, said it had confirmed his belief that the Government was acting "wisely and consistently in the Nicaraguan matter."

Senator Johnson, Republican, California, not often counted among administration supporters, announced that he would support President Coolidge's Nicaraguan policy.

"The activities and plans of the American Communists as regards the organization of opposition to the United States in Mexico and Latin America," Secretary Kellogg told the senators, "are summed up admirably in a resolution passed by the Central Legislative Committee of the Workers' (Communist) Party on November 12, 1926. This resolution reads as follows:

"'The tasks of our party at the present time are those presented by the conditions of Imperialism. Recent months have furnished striking evidence of the widespread movement for Latin American unity against Wall Street. We cite particularly the present attitude of the Calles Government in Mexico—its general Latin Americanism, its policy in Central America, its tendency toward co-operation with the all-American anti-Imperialist League.'

"The Bolshevik leaders have had very definite ideas with respect to the role which Mexico and Latin America are to play in their general programme of world revolution," Secretary Kellogg told the senators at the outset of his statement. "Thus," he added, "Latin America and Mexico are conceived as a base for activity against the United States.

First, Secretary Kellogg quoted from a resolution of the third congress of the Red International of Trade Unions in July, 1924, saying:

"'Mexico is a natural connecting link between the movement of the United States of North America and Latin America; therefore Mexico must be the centre of union.'"

From a United States representative speaking at the Executive Committee of the Communist International in February, 1926, Secretary Kellogg quoted: "The time is not long distant when Latin America will become the China of the Far West and Mexico the Canton of Latin America."

From a thesis approved at the seventh session of the Executive Committee of the Communist International, Secretary Kellogg quoted:

"Latin America can and must become a basis of support of the liberation movement against Imperialism. In the present state of things nations living in Latin America sooner or later will be down into the struggle against the Imperialism of the United States."

From a resolution of the same committee, Secretary Kellogg quoted statements that the working classes of Latin America would play a "tremendous role" in the overthrow of the "Yoke of the Bourgeoise of the United States."

Specifically, as to relations between Moscow and Mexico, Secretary Kellogg quoted from a declaration by Tchicherin, the Bolshevik Foreign Minister, who said on the establishment of diplomatic relations between Mexico and the Soviet States:

"The Mexican Government is based on the right trade unions and the radical small bourgeoise. Mexico gives us thus a very convenient political base in America for the development of our further ties."

Miss Paquette of Sarnia, who spent a couple of months here two years ago the guest of Miss Margaret McMurray, also made her reception on Monday. Miss Emma McMurray, R.N., also attended the ceremony en route to resume her duties at Windsor.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, Mrs. Joseph Cavanagh, Miss Isabel Thompson and Mr. J. Gillespie of Peterborough were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Devlin of Otonabee were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. A. Carveth.

Mr. Joseph Garvey left on Friday for Malone, Ont., where he has purchased a small timber limit and where he will be engaged in getting out timber.

Miss Margaret Whibbs won the special prize of $3 offered at the time of the Douro School Fair for the pupil winning the most points. Miss Whibbs also won the certificate of honor for the most prizes in her own school, S.S. No. 4.

BRETTON WOODS, N.H., Jan. 13.—The average New Englander regards his homeland as a well-populated and industrialized corner of the world. But 28,000,000 of New England's 39,500,000 acres are still forest. Lumber continues to be the biggest resource of New England, geographically.

NEW ZEALAND WANTS FURTHER TRADE RELATION

Rt. Hon. J. C. Coates Gives Address To Members of Canadian Club.

"WITHIN FAMILY."

MONTREAL, Jan. 13 Canadian Press. — Within a day or two the Right. Hon. J. C. Coates, Prime Minister of New Zealand, will approach the Canadian government to discuss still further legislation to bring the two dominions closer in trade relations, but the antipodean prime minister warned members of the Canadian club yesterday the development of inter-empire trade in the final analysis is a job for the business man.

An impressive attendance of club members was on hand when Mr. Coates made his address. The speaker dealt with political and commercial aspects of Empire activities. In the former category, he expressed the view that the work of the recent Imperial Conference will insure solidarity of Empire, and he stressed the fact that there can be no danger in self-government by dominions that is real. On a plane of importance with the political side, he placed trade, and pleaded for more business "within the Empire." One point he emphasized was the desire of New Zealand to see more Canadian business men in person.

The Imperial Conference, said, the Prime Minister, had been interesting in that it united premiers and ministers of various stock all inspired with the idea of aiding the Empire along the way of progress. To the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, he paid a graceful tribute for the work the Canadian premier had done in contributing to the accomplishments of the conference. There had been a real effort on the part of the conference to understand each other's problems and to solve them.

'In the past," the speaker went on, "there has undoubtedly been misunderstanding because government has been attempted thousands of miles away. I believe that the British stock have a gift, the gift of government, and it is perfectly fitted to leave it to them on the spot to use their judgment as to what is necessary, not only in regard to themselves but in time of trial or crisis. You will find that the institutions—the principles—for which we all stand are of such value that they will be maintained and protected by the peoples of our Empire for generations and centuries to come."

"We must trade with all nations," the premier proceeded, as he touched on the question of inter-empire trade. "But it does seem to me that a task rests upon the shoulders of everybody within the empire, and that, if we value our institutions, we should endeavor, wherever posible, to do business with our own people, and among our own family."

So far as world trade was concerned, the speaker thought it impossible for normal conditions to return within a short time after such a devasting war ,but some effort should be made by all nations to review the situation, find the facts, and ascertain just what is necessary to hasten rehabilitation.

"It is New Zealand's desire," Mr. Coates declared, on the specific ubject of inter-Empire trade, "to do business with our own people. We are anxious to do business with Canada, and we are already doing good business, but, from our point of view, the scales are weighted against us. I think last year we did five times more business with you than you did with us. The year before, I think it was six times, and the year before that, it was about 50-50. We are ness we can do with you, and how much more you can do with us. It is our hope in the course of a day or two to discuss several questions with the gentlemen who are responsible for the government of Canada, in order that we may possibly open avenues by which even better and closer trade relations may be brought about between Canada and New Dealand.

'I do not attach so much importance to the legislative or government side of business. I believe it rests principally with the men—the merchants and the industrialists of each country. It is for them to find out where the trade differs, and to develop it. I believe history will repeat itself, and that you will find the people of New Zealand are out after business."

New Zealand, the Premier pointed out, is anxious to see Canadian business men. Many Canadians seem to say that they know Australia. 'But," said the speaker,New Zealand is not a portion of Australia, nor is it one of the Australian colonies."

The future, Mr. Coates thought, was in the realm of supposition. But he saw a very definite field for the English speaking peoples: that was to put forward every effort for the return of normal world conditions. Empire affairs must hold prominent place, but there was the duty to the world at large, and the English-speaking people could do much to aid the world.

Bandits Get Policemen's Cash, Shields and Guns

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(United Press.) — Three bandits, having been unable to find any one else to rob, came upon two policemen in a delicatessen store.

The officers yielded $50, service revolvers and shields and the bandit trio joined a confederate in a nearby automobile and escaped.

London "Americanized" Smokers Get Matches Free

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(A.P.)—The so-called "Americanization" of London, which was commented on recently hrough the introduction of the "hot dog" at British football matches, appears to have been brought nearer by the tobacconists, who now give a packet of matches with each purchase.

This is a radical departure from custom, as from the time matches were introduced dealers here have always charged a penny or two a box, much to the annoyance of many American smokers.

CONTINUE HEARINGS OF FREIGHT CASE

Expect Arguments in Case Would Continue For Several Weeks.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—The taking of evidence before the Railway Commission in the general freight rates case continued yesterday. British Columbia and Alberta have now put in their evidence, and late yesterday afternoon W. H. McEwen, counsel for Saskatchewan, commenced his examination of A. G. McDonald, traffic advisor of the Province, on a statistical exhibit which he had prepared showing rate increases since 1912 and Western rates which were in excess of Eastern.

Some indication of the probable length of the hearing was given yesterday. Manitoba and Winnipeg interests have filed exhibits and will not examine their own witnesses. Ontario and Quebec will have witnesses before the Board next week; and perhaps the Maritime Provinces. It will not be until late next week at the earliest before the railways will examine their witnesses. With the evidence all in, argument will commence and last for several weeks.

E. P. Flintoft yesterday intimated that the Canadian Pacific Railway in its case would oppose the making of the coast rate a maximum.

WEDDING BELLS.

O'CONNOR—FORESTELL.

MADOC, Jan. 12.—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in the Sacred Heart Church on Monday morning by Rev. — Father O'Rriordan, when Myrtle Forestell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Forestell of Madoc was united in marriage to William O'Connor of Wainwright, son of Mrs. Thompson of Eldorado.

The bride was prettily attired in a gray georgette dress, taupe brocaded plush coat, trimmed with fur, gray shoes and stockings, and a close-fitting hat of old rose. She was given away by her father. The bridesmaid, Miss Luella Forestell, younger sister of the bride, wore a gray and silver hat and gray shoes and stockings. Mr. E. Donnelly of Marmora attended the groom. The Wedding March was played by Miss Frances O'Riordan.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will reside in Wainwright, Alberta.

OLD MASTERS

My little Son, who look'd from thoughtful eyes
And moved and spoke in quiet grown-up wise,
Having my law the seventh time disobeyed,
I struck him, and dismiss'd
With hard words and unkiss'd,
His Mother, who was patient, being dead.
Then, fearing lest his grief should hinder sleep,
I visited his bed,
But found him slumbering deep,
With darken'd eyelids, and their lashes yet
From his late sobbing wet.
And I, with moan,
Kissing away his tears, left others of my own;
For, on a table drawn beside his head,
He had put, within his reach,
A box of counters and a red-vein'd stone,
A piece of glass abraded by the beach,
And six or seven shells,
A bottle with blue bells,
And two French copper coins ranged there with careful art,
To comfort his sad heart.
So when that night I prayed
To God, I wept, and said:
Ah, when at last we lie, with tranced breath,
Not vexing Thee in death,
And Thou rememberest of what toys
We made our joys,
How weakly understood
Thy great commanded good,
Then, fatherly not less
Than I whom Thou hast molded from the clay,
Thou'lt leave Thy wrath, and say,
"I will be sorry for their childishness."

PLEADS GUILTY

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Thomas Thompson, 73 years old, homeless and the carrier of a "toy revolver," appeared in court yesterday and pleaded guilty to stealing $8 from a woman who had befriended him. He will be sentenced next Monday. He had pointed the toy revolver at the woman while committing the robbery.

SAYS PRESENT CHINESE CRISIS IS NOT PAST

Sir Austen Chamberlain's Report on Chinese Situation To Cabinet.

HANKOW QUIET.

Great Britain's Policy of Reconciliation Has Been Dramatic Success.

LONDON, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, in a lengthy report on the situation in China to a special meeting of the Cabinet yesterday, is understood to have announced that the Chinese crisis by no means is past, but that for the present Great Britain's policy of conciliation, as proclaimed in the recent memorandum to the powers "has had an unexpected, dramatic success."

At the same time word has come from Hankow of growing confidence in British circles there that the events in that British concession growing out of the anti-British situation, are not likely to be repeated at Shanghai, where, it is pointed out, the international settlement is better able to protect itself. It is declared that the economic re-action against the Chinese at Hankow, which practically resulted in a British boycott of Chinese trade, has strengthened the hands of the sanest elements among the Nationalists. These elements have been able to convince the more violent of the inadvisability of a policy of aggression against foreigners.

The Foreign Office, from reports out of China yesterday, was able to state that Hankow and Shanghai were quiet. It was reported also that negotiations were going on between the Cantonese Foreign Minister, Engene Chen, and the British Charge d'Affairs, O'Malley, who had arrived on the scene from Peking. As the British desire to avoid appearance of recognition of the Cantonese regime, it was emphasized that Mr. O'Malley was not acting as direct envoy of the British Government.

Great Britain's attitude toward China is considered to have been fully demonstrated during the tense days at Hankow. The first objective of the memorandum to the powers, it is commented, has been achieved, but not without great risks to and sacrifices on the part of the local British community.

But, those versed in Chinese affairs declare, the second objective of the memorandum seems doomed to failure, due to the attitude of Japan, which continue to withhold support of the British policy.

For the first time since abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, Great Britain and Japan are openly in disagreement on Far Eastern questions. Japan maintains that the granting of the Washington surtaxes means only an added revenue for the Chinese war lords and also that the levying of surtaxes by the Cantonese and by the Peking Government, as announced yesterday, is not accompanied by abolition of the likin, or internal duties.

STERN WITH REDS.

Life Imprisonment Sentence Imposed on Nine Communists in Poland.

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press). — Polish courts are dealing severely with Communists. At the completion of the trial of 151 Ukrainians Communists at Vladimir Volynski, 118 of them were condemned. Nine of them were sentenced to life imprisonment, the others to various terms.

The trial of 108 Communists will take place at an early date at Luckud.

OBITUARY.

DAVID BATTEER

The funeral of the late David Batteer was held from his late residence, 3 McGill street, yesterday afternoon with the Rev. William Allan officiating and Rev. A. H. McConnachie assisting. Interment was in Little Lake cemetery. The funeral was very large which showed the high esteem the deceased was held in the community. The floral tributes were many and beautiful especially that from the Post Office employees.

The pallbearers were three of the post office staff, C. Lacheour, H. White and George Lynch, and three old friends of the deceased, Edward Sargeant, T. M. Hunter and James

THIEVES HOLD UP THEATRE CASHIER

Take Pantages Cash Box From Ticket Office on Yonge Street.

TORONTO, Jan. 13.—Pantages Theatre, Yonge Street, was the scene of a daring hold-up about 9.30 last night, when two unidentified men walked up to the Yonge Street ticket office and carried away the cash-box, containing, according to N. K. Miller, the manager, approximately $1,477.20. The thieves escaped in what is thought to have been a Hudson brougham, bearing a license number beginning with "158—." The stolen cash includes $750 in five-dollar bills, $30 in silver, and bills of smaller denominations. As far as police records show, the automobile used by the thugs was not a stolen one.

Mrs. McArthur, 2148 Gerrard Street East, is the cashier at the Young Street entrance. Last night, at the time mentioned, she said, she was in her usual place in the ticket office, when a large motor car drove up to the front of the theatre and halted at the curb. Two men alighted. One of the men approached the office and asked for a ticket. As she was tendering the slip of pasteboard, the other man had crept around to the partially-open door which is situated at the back of the office, entered, and before she was aware of it, had picked up the cash-box, just made up for the night, containing the money. She swung around as the man was disappearing through the doorway.

Escape in Motor Car

While his confederate was stealing the box, the other man had run from the office, taken his place at the steering wheel of the motor car, and was waiting, with the car door open for the arrival of the robber with the box. The thief jumped in, and the car started north on Yonge Street.

Recovering from her amazement, Mrs. McArthur ran from the office on to Yonge Street, screaming to the passing pedestrians that she had been robbed. P. C. Hamilton, of West Dundas Division, was only a few yards away at the time, on his way to Dundas Street. To him Mrs. McArthur told her story.

Hamilton called Detective-Sergts. Johns and Williams to the scene. Mrs. McArthur related to them substantially the story she had told Hamilton. She said that she could not see if the two men were armed owing to her limited vision through the window. In any event, no weapon was presented at her.

Though there were hundreds of people in the vicinity of the front entrance of the theatre at the time of th depredation, not a single one would swear that thy had witnessed the robbery. One or two did say that they had seen a motor car drive up to the front of the place, but they could not describe it, nor could they see if any men alighted from it. It was Mrs. McArthur's screams which attracted their attention.

Manager Miller said last night that the stolen money was insured.

JUROR IS FINED; ABSENT TWO DAYS

Acquittals Recorded in Connection With Poison Alcohol Charges.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 13.—Harry Sullivan, the second man to face a manslaughter charge in the Assize Court over which Justice Logie is presiding, was acquitted by a jury yesterday afternoon. Miller was freed yesterday. Both cases had to do with the alleged distribution of poison alcohol.

Justice Logie had occasion again yesterday to censure a juryman for absenting himself without proper leave and a $50 fine was imposed. Charles A. Lowe, who was called upon to pay this amount, or go to jail until the court session closes, was away two full days and yesterday morning he did not answer to his name. His Lordship requested that a warrant be issued at noon, but at 10.45 o'clock Lowe appeared. He said he asked the sheriff to allow him to go on Monday. He did not finish his business so remained out of the city Tuesday and as he did not think he would be needed yesterday morning, he had intended to wait until after lunch. Justice Logie informed him that the sheriff had no business to give him permission to go away. Sheriff Regan denied that he gave his consent and when the juror applied he told him to get permission of the presiding judge, he said.

Two days ago a $10 fine was imposed upon W. Lunn, juror, who was also absent. Business detained him, he said.

Sullivan, who was acquitted yesterday, was alleged to be in the employ of Miller, who faced trial yesterday. The two cases were practically the same and the same evidence was offered, with nothing new or nothing of an unexpected nature introduced. MeGregor Young, K.C., Toronto, acted as Crown Prosecutor and M. J. O'Reilly, K.C., appeared for the accused. In all 33 men were called before a jury of 12 was selected.

Discharging Sullivan, His Lordship gave him a little good advice. "I have no doubt, although it was not proven in this case, that you heretofore lived by breaking the law. You must remember that the public is stronger than any criminal and if you continue to pursue the course which the evidence discloses you have been following, then you will land in the penitentiary," said Justice Logie.

. . . VOICE OF THE LOWLY AND OPPRESSED . . . ADVOCATE OF THE FRIENDLESS . . . RIGHTER OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE WRONGS.

THE INCOME TAX.

It is announced that Canadians paid $56,000,000 in income tax last year.

The question naturally arises as to what would have been the general result if this large sum, instead of being turned over to the Dominion Treasury, could have been applied to productive industry.

There are many people who are confident that the prosperity of Canada would have been greatly increased, and that there would have been greater general tax-paying ability.

It is notable that Secretary Mellon of the United States Treasury has expressed the view that lowering the income tax in the United States has resulted in increased revenues from all other sources.

In Canada the pressure for further reduction in the income levy or its elimination completely is becoming more acute, in spite of the fact that Progressive members, representing constituents who do not have to pay income tax, are, of course, staunch defenders of that method of raising revenue.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

The regulation in regard to the admittance of children to moving picture theatres seems to have been entirely disregarded in the case of the Laurier Palace, where 77 children lost their lives on Sunday.

The law is a wise piece of legislation, but because infractions of the regulation had been frequent without any serious consequences the enforcement of the measure grew slack.

There is a similar difficulty with many regulations designed for the safety of the public.

Our own "stop" street plan of regulating motor traffic, for example.

It is being observed to the letter by many drivers, it is true, but others half-heartedly carry out the rules, and some pay no attention to the stop signs.

Unless those who do not choose to obey the law are taught that it is cheaper in the long run to do so, the disregard of the "stop" plan is likely to grow more flagrant, and as in the Montreal case, the measure will be disregarded until tragedy steps in and compels a more rigid enforcement.

PROSPEROUS QUEBEC.

Opinions may vary as to the soundness of Quebec's liquor policy in so far as the promotion of temperance is concerned, but there can only be one mind in regard to its effectiveness from a financial standpoint.

The Province is in such splendid condition financially that it not only closed its last fiscal year with a considerable surplus, but it paid off $1,000,000 of debt out of ordinary revenue.

So prosperous is Quebec that many important measures are announced in the Speech from the Throne, among them a decision on the part of the Government to maintain all the improved roads of the Province.

Revenues from the Government sale of liquor are given official credit for this arrangement by which the Government will not only assume the entire maintenance of all improved roads but also the cost of other roads after they have been improved.

"Thanks to the alcoholic regulation, the condition of our finances permits that, after a number of years of experience, we can adopt a still more generous road policy," is a quotation from the Speech from the Throne.

THE NEW SPEED LIMIT.

Although there has been here and there a criticism of the proposal to increase the speed limit on Ontario's highways to 35 miles an hour, the majority of newspapers have expressed themselves as favouring the change.

If the 35-mile limit is adopted the official rate in Ontario will be higher than that of any other Province, although in several Western Provinces no speed limit is named, motorists being expected to drive at a reasonable rate under all circumstances.

The proposed limit, in view of the improved condition of Ontario's highways, is regarded by most motorists as reasonable and sensible; they do not consider that a speed of 35 miles an hour on good wide, smooth-surfaced roads is dangerous under ordinary traffic conditions.

Nearly every driver on the Provincial highways has been exceeding the 25-mile limit; the change will relieve them of the feeling that they are law-breakers, and at the same time will not increase the hazards of motoring to any appreciable extent.

When the new limit is authorized, however, the authorities should see to it that motorists adhere to it.

Anything above 35 miles an hour approaches a dangerous rate of speed, and the same latitude cannot be given under the new law without speeding becoming a menace.

ECONOMICS OF DOMESTIC SERVICE.

It is quite a respectable time since people learned to talk cautiously about economic "tendencies" where they had formerly spoken valiantly of economic laws. There are so many things which can influence such a tendency, although theoretically the rule may still be valid. Why, for instance, is our domestic service so bad and so expensive at a time when the whole of Europe, more or less, is in the desperate poverty which automatically follows a world war? That sort of labor is not unionized. It is provided with board and lodging so that it is to a large extent, unaffected by the cost of living. There are more jobs than servants, and in no calling is a little expert knowledge more handsomely paid. It is said that God sends food and the Devil sends cooks, but, bad as they are, they command wages of a hundred dollars a month and upwards, with "all found." Obviously the answer is that our immigration laws have exercised a damaging influence on that kind of labor supply. In this way restricted immigration has unquestionably added to the cost of living.

This applies to the humble households where the wife herself does the house work. The prices of things she buys at the stores are practically made by the people who can afford to keep domestic help. There is another reason, however, why such help is both dear and inferior. It is that people do not keep house in the way they did a quarter of a century ago. In the first-rate residential sections of Boston or New York the summer vacation for the family was not more than a few weeks. Nowadays it starts with the first warm weather. In New York it lasts beyond the date of registration in October, thereby neutralizing that national humbug, the woman vote. Domestic servants, therefore, can for the most part depend upon steady employment without change of employer for only about six months of the year. We have convinced ourselves that a great many things are necessary to our comfort with which our forefathers easily dispensed. They never even heard of most of them. It almost looks as if Providence were testing us out to find if we can really stand prosperity without deteriorating. One acid test is the ability to get and keep servants.—Barron's.

INTEREST IN ELECTIONS.

Complaint is fairly general in Ontario dailies that the interest taken in the recent municipal elections was much too small for the public good. Meetings were poorly attended, and only a small proportion of the voters marked their ballots on election day. It is considered by some newspapers a dangerous condition, which indicates absence of civic patriotism.

Any lack of interest in elections is not healthy, but it is a condition far from local in its existence. A few days ago the National Civic Federation of the United States, in which Mr. John Hays Hammond is Chairman of the Department of Political Education, reported in a similar discouraged vein. The report on the November elections, when one-third of the Senate, all of the House of Representatives, practically all of the State legislators, thirty-four Governors and thousands of officials were elected, showed that only 22,000,000, or one-third of the electors, came out to vote.

Ontario cities appear to have taken all reasonable precautions to ensure public interest. The Peterboro Examiner points out:

> "Using the schools so that the election is held at the same places every year and notifying the voters by mail are helpful steps. The press has done its part by stressing almost to the point of boredom the desirability of voting, but there is little improvement shown."

It is no better in Kingseton, where, The Whig-Standard says: "It is indeed hard to understand why the people do not take more interest in the selection of the men who are to conduct their business." The Montreal Gazette observes that public spirit in Toronto civic elections is about as low as that of Montreal, and says: "The suggestion that the non-voter be specially taxed may yet become a concrete proposal." The Chatham News exults over conditions in its city, where a City Manager has been introduced, and says the business of the community is being conducted economically and efficiently. It quotes The Stratford Beacon-Herald is yearning for the same system. At the same time The News makes no claim for increased public interest. It is merely satisfied with results.

One of the newspapers claims that the annual meetings of great business concerns are well attended, and that citizens, as shareholders in the community, should display the same interest. It is too sweeping to say that business corporations always draw large assemblies of shareholders. On the contrary, some of the most important bodies attract but a handful of men and women. It is almost an axiom among financiers that if the company is getting on well, and there is no friction between rival groups, the meetings are slimly attended.

Does not the same principle largely apply to government? If a community has safe and unruffled government, the interest in elections declines. It is not perhaps an entirely safe or commendable attitude, but it seems to be human. The Fergus News-Record notes exceptions. The nomination meetings in the Townships of Garafraxa and Albemarle were stirring, and many electors heard the eloquent speeches and heckling of the day. Perhaps the cities could learn from Garafraxa, where "every candidate took the shots and the slams in good humor and came back for more."

There is room for some satisfaction at the vote in Toronto. The totals of ballots cast for Mayoralty candidates in the last four years were as follows: 1927, 87,238; 1926, 86,866; 1925, 67,838; 1924, 82,551. Voting has not yet caught up with the great increase in the number of electors caused by giving the franchise to women. Time may effect that change. Meantime the polled votes are not decreasing.

The public is not easily aroused over a municipal fight. Usually the candidates are less spectacular in their campaign than those contesting in the wider fields, and the issues often are economic and not readily understood by all voters. Toronto citizens maintain a fair interest in civic affairs all round through the full reports in the newspapers, and the voting probably is representative of city opinion.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The announcement from Premier Coates that New Zealand plans a larger contribution to Empire defense will be interesting to Mr. Woodsworth.

Toronto's Union Station is to open in June, according to a report from the Queen City, which does not, however, state in what year the opening is to take place.

With Mr. Raney again leading the Progressives, the satisfaction of Government members of the Legislature will be complete. Without Mr. Raney to battle with much of the joy of life would be missing.

Peterboro's inaugural Council meeting was opened without much ceremony, but so long as the year doesn't close with a deficit the citizens won't worry very much about that fact.

Seeing that the Government control legislation has been described as a wet polley, it is remarkable that few of its details have as yet leaked out.

It was on this landing on stairs leading down from the balcony of the Laurier Palace movie theater in Montreal that scores of the 77 young victims of the fire panic lost their lives. Five steps below was the street and safety. So tightly were the bodies of the dead wedged in the pasageway that firemen had to cut through the walls on either side to extricate them.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Jan. 13.—There was a slackening in the demand for butcher cattle in yesterday's market. Packers are evidently well supplied, especially with medium rough butcher stuff. There were too many cattle still unsold at midday and prospects looked like a 25c reduction all round to effect a clean-up for the week end.

Choice baby beeves sold up to $9.50. A few extra choice heavy beef steers sold at $7.50; choice heavyweight heifers, $6.50 to $7.

Choice butcher steers and heifers a little easier at $6.75 to $7. Good heavyweight beef steers, $7.25 to $7.50. Choice fat cows, $5 to $5.25.

Export trade quiet. A few heavy bulls taken at $4.50 to $5.25. Export buyers expect to be in the market next week for about 500 steers.

Lambs steady.

Hogs steady at $10.50 f.o.b. and $11.40 of fcars. Bidding 25c lower for today's loadings.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 13 (Canadian Press)—The only export business transacted on the Montreal grain market yesterday was the sale of a few loads of wheat and barley. There was some business done in ocean grain freights and the tone of the market was steady. The local trade on oats was rather more active and sales of quite a few cars were made for all-rail shipment from Fort William. On spot prices were firm:

The demand for spring wheat grades of flour was again of a very limited character but prices were firm. The trade in winter wheat flour was also slow and prices were unchanged.

The millfeed market continued active and the undertone was steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fair and values ruled firm.

Prices for all grades of eggs were well maintained under a fair demand. The receipts were 1,109 cases.

A fair trade was done in potatoes and prices were unchanged. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.85 to $1.90 per bag of ninety pounds, and Quebec White stock at $1.50 per bag of ninety pounds, in bulk, ex-track.

The trade in butter was again quiet, the demand being only for odd lots but the undertone was firm. The receipts were 29 packages.

A moderate amount of business was done in cheese with foreign buyers. The local trade was quiet but firm. The receipts were 29 boxes.

W. R. Fansher of Saskatchewan, and B. W. Fansher of Ontario. The 16th parliament of Canada brings together after many years, two brothers, both farmers, and both elected as Progressives. W. R. Fansher left the home farm in Eastern Canada twenty two years ago and joined the western trek of young Ontarions to the new land. He took up a homestead in Saskatchewan and is now a prosperous farmer at Govan. He was elected to parliament in 1925, and re-elected this year. His brother remained in the east when W. R. went west, becoming interested in the U.F.O. and being elected in the general election of 1921. He was defeated in 1925 but returned once more in 1926 to find his western brother also wending his way to Parliament Hill. The brothers who are of United Empire Loyalist stock are now sharing the same ofice in the parliament buildings and the same desk in the House of Commons. "And we are both Progressives," they declared in unison.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ill, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press)—Decided upturns in wheat yesterday resulted largely from scantiness of Chicago stocks and from buying for big traders short of supplies to fill future contracts. Wheat closed unsettled, 1 1-2c to 2c higher; corn 3-8c to 3-4c up, oats at 1-4c decline to 3-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to 30c off.

Corn and oats were governed mostly by the action of wheat and rye. Colder weather was forecast for the main corn belt, preceded by snow over a wide area.

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(Copyright 1927 McClure Syndicate)

A POORLY CONSTRUCTED SENTENCE.

"Henry Thompson was twice divorced before he married the wife who is seeking a separation in 1906."

From the context it is clear that "Henry Thompson was twice divorced before he married, in 1906, the wife who is seeking a separation"—that is, who is seeking a separation now, years after 1906.

Errors such as this are common in the works of careless writers, and are an evidence of slipshod work. No man or woman who is proud of the output of his or her pen would be guilty of such carelessness and no editor with a proper sense of what is due his readers, in the matter of good workmanship, would permit such "English" to pass into print. In speaking, of course, errors are not so apparent, since the ear does not have the time for analysis that is afforded the eye.

SALT A HARMFUL MINERAL

Salt is a condiment which pleases the palate of every race of mankind, and of many other animals. Although savage races have lived without it, whenever it has been obtainable to any great extent, human beings have fought and killed each other for it. This craving for salt is wholly because of its agreeable taste, and not because the system requires it in any way.

Common table salt is composed mostly of sodium chloride, but of course many incidental impurities have not been extracted. It is as much a mineral as lead, and cannot become a part of the cell structure of the body.

Organic sodium chloride is found in nearly all of the plants, and in meat and similar protein foods, and although it resembles the mineral sodium chloride as far as chemical tests are concerned, its effect on the body is entirely different.

Many people claim that this salt is natural to the body and point out the fact that animals use it at every opportunity. This, of course, is no argument that the salt is good for animals or for humans. Salt is exciting to the taste buds; every animal including man, who is dumb enough to use it must suffer the consequences.

There is absolutely no necessity for either man or animal to use salt, and the irritating effect upon the mucous membranes of the body is very destructive to the animal organism.

If food is improperly cooked its taste will be improved by the addition of salt, but the first thing to learn is to prepare foods properly so that the natural salts are retained in sufficient quantities for the food to retain a desirable taste. It is the height of folly to put salt on any uncooked vegetable.

All foods including meat and vegetables should be cooked without the addition of any salt, and if they are cooked properly the flavor will be more delicate and desirable than if salt is added.

The use of excess quantities of salt is very injurious to the kidneys and liver, and as these organs are unable to eliminate a large amount of salt, and other toxins of the body are retained because of this. Such diseases as brights' disease, cirrhosis of the liver, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure can be encouraged and developed through the use of an excess of salt.

If the ordinary salted butter is used in flavoring vegetables and meat, it will be found that the salt contained in the butter will be sufficient for all requirements of the taste.

Salted meat and fish are not desirable foods because the action of the salt upon them, is to toughen the protein particles and to make them indigestible.

They are profitable articles for commercial purposes, and are therefore good for the packer but not for the patient or user.

One danger in using salt is that it over-excites the flow of saliva and digestive juices, and increases the papetite for food for which the body has no real hunger. Thus the use of salt adds to the danger of overeating, which is one of our greatest national offenses. Large quantities of liquid must be taken in order to dilute the salt in the body. The old time saloon-keeper who put pretzels on the free lunch counter knew his business.

Prohibitionists take note of this!

THE PART OF THE BLANKET THAT KEEPS YOU WARM

By Dr. Frank Crane.

It is the part of the blanket that hangs over the edge that keeps you warm.

If you crawled into bed on a cold winter's night and found yourself lying like a hot dog between the two halves of the bun, with your covers extending flat and rigid and unbending above and below, you would freeze to death.

It is because the soft woolen covers snuggle close to your body and hang down over the edge that they keep you warm.

There is an A No. 1 lesson to be seen in the part of the covers that hang over the edge.

To a practical, economical, ignorant eye that part seems to be a total loss.

Only the part over the top of the sleeper seems to be doing much to keep him warm.

So in life some of the best investments seem total wastes to economical, practical and ignorant eyes.

Spending money upon self-improvement is a coverlet hanging over the edge. The same money put into bonds or real estate might bring in quicker, more easily recognized returns, but the final results invariably demonstrate the wisdom of investing in sincere attempts in self-development.

Buying books seems to be something that can be dispensed with in cutting down expenses, but they are often the source of growth that leads to increased earning capacity.

Taking a vacation may seem like a waste of opportunity and money, but time has demonstrated that it is a sound investment. Likewise, joining a Y.M.C.A. gymnasium class or a similar aid to physical well-being.

Trying to save by eating second-rate food may seem a saving at the time, but it is cutting off the valuable part of the quilt that hangs over, and time (bringing cold weather—in the form of ill health) will demonstrate the blunder.

Charity seems to an economical, practical and ignorant eye a part of the cover of life that can be dispensed with. Dispensing with it always means in the end a shallowing of character and a saving that is unwarranted.

Cutting off the coverlet many times seems to be a wise step in economy for the moment.

Time always demonstrates the fallacy.

TORONTO WORKMAN INSTANTLY KILLED

Falls Distance of 30 Feet Down Temporary Elevator Shaft.

TORONTO, Jan. 13. — Hurled from a height of thirty feet down a temporary elevator shaft at the New Brown's Bakery addition, Eastern and Booth Avenues, yesterday afternoon, Fred Irwin, aged 45, of 48 Seaton Street, an employee of the Paige Construction Company, was instantly killed. His back was broken. An inquest will be held. It is thought that Irwin stepped on a loose plank and was thus precipitated to his death. There was only one witness of the tragedy, E. Goss, aged 30, of 10 Jesmond Street. The two men were engaged in the process of dismantling the hoist. Goss was just descending the latter, when he heard a cry. An instant later a plank came hurtling past him, and fell with a thud at the bottom of the shaft. Almost simultaneously with its fall came the sound of Irwin's body striking the ground below.

Goss hurried to the main floor. There he found his fellow-workman lying in a huddled heap. He called for assistance. A doctor was summoney, and after an examination, pronounced Irwin dead.

Irwin leaves a widow and six children.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. PAUL'S LADIES

Reports Indicate Most Successful Year in History of Society.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul' church, was held recently, when reports were presented and officers elected for the coming year. The reports presented by the secretary, Mrs. J. Garbutt and the treasurer, Mrs. H. Morgan, showed a very busy year, and one of the most successful periods in the history of the Society. Especially good work was attributed to the Flower Committee, with Mrs. H. Gilgour as convenor.

The officers were elected as follows: Honorary Presidents, Mrs. Robert Hall and Mrs. E. F. Mason; President Mrs. D. Jordan, Vice-Presidents, Mrs. J. J. Hall, Mrs. C. Blewett and Mrs. C. A. White; secretary, Mrs. J. Garbutt; Treasurer, Mrs. H. Morgan; convenor of Music Committee, Mrs. R. W. Davidson; Executive, Mrs. F. Taylor, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. T. Gilmour, Mrs. A. McLeish, Mrs. J. Skinner, Mrs. F. White, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. W. Burrell, Miss E. Montgomery and Miss Simpson.

At the conclusion of the business session, refreshment were served.

COURT STANLEY HOLDS CEREMONY

Installation of Officers Drew Large Attendance on Tuesday.

The installation of the officers elected for 1927 was held Tuesday evening, Jan. 11, before a very large attendance. Bro. T. Hendry, P.D.C.R., assisted by Bro. E. Parks, P.C.R., carried through the ceremony in first-class style. The following were installed:

C.R.—Bro. E. Ray.
S.W.—Bro. A. Pink.
J.W.—Bro. T. Davis.
S.B.—Bro. J. C. Hamilton.
J.B.—Bro. Chesney.
Treasurer—H. McWha.
Sec.—A. Day.
Medical Officer—Dr. D. C. King.

After the installation all sat down to do full justice to a most excellent "Jiggs supper," which was arranged by Bros. T. Hendry, S. Wittaker and A. Pink. A toast-list and musical programme followed, under the able chairmanship of Bro. G. Record, P.C.R., who spoke on the aims and objects of the Order.

Toast—"The King," responded to by the singing of the National Anthem.

"The A.O.F.," responded to by Bro. A. Day, H.C.J.B.

Song—Bro. A. Pink.

Quartette—Bros. Hendry, Parks, Pink and Day.

"Court Stanley," responded to by Bro. McWha, who gave a brief history of the Court from its start.

Selection by L.O.L. 50 Band.

Song—Bro. E. Parks.

"Canada," proposed by Bro. S. Wittaker, P.C.R.

Song—Bro. Day.

Selections by L.O.L. 50 Band.

Song—Bro. A. Pink.

"Medical Officer," responded to by Bro. D. C. King.

Pianist—Mr. Taylor.

Bro. Ray, C.R., in a few well-chosen words, expressed the thanks of the members to one and all who helped to make the evening such a success, especially the L.O.L. 50 Band, whose kindness the committee greatly appreciated.

The evening was brought to a close by forming the "Foresters' Circle" and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

The enthusiasm shown by those present is a happy augur for the future. The members are urged to attend the meetings and take part in future social nights which it is hoped will be held.

FAMILIAR TO MILLIONS. A LANDMARK OF THE YEARS.

Millions who have never visited England could recognize at a glance the Houses of Parliament standing stately at the Thames-side. The Mother of Parliaments is known affectionately by people the world over.

The trapper in his hut and the lady in her limousine; the lumberman of the forests and the jewelled darling of fashion think of her as a bulwark, never changing, always steadfast.

So it is with H.P. Sauce to which the Houses gave their name. It is found on the table in palaces and humble dwellings. It is used in the East and the West, the North and the South, and wherever H.P. is seen, there on the bottle is the Mother of Parliaments. Changes occur and old landmarks go, but H.P. Sauce remains high in popularity, and the reason for this is the universal knowledge that it is absolutely pure and guaranteed free from preservatives.

Whenever you go into a store or grocer's shop, you see H.P. Sauce, and you are reminded of the Houses of Parliament. H.P. symbolizes them, unvarying and dependable always.

35,000 RAILWAYMEN GET WAGE INCREASE

Grant of Two Cents Per Hour Made To Maintenance Men.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—A settlement of the wage dispute between 35,000 maintenance of way men, members of railway unions, employed on Canadian railways and the companies, was announced here yesterday by the Railway Association of Canada. The settlement was effected on a basis of an increase of two cents an hour.

The negotiations which led to the settlement opened here on Jan. 5 after adjournment from a previous date. The men asked for an increase of ten cents an hour. Three representatives of the men met with the Wage Committee of the Railway Association of Canada. Certain working conditions were also discussed.

MAN LOSES HIS "GROUCH," WIFE HAPPY

"There is nothing I haven't tried for constipation, but until I heard of Adlerika, nothing would help me. Now, I can eat and sleep and have got rid of the grouchy feeling I used to have."—Jack Ryder.

Because Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, it gives the system a REAL cleansing, and clears out old poisons which usually cause sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have long caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury, and other druggists.

FAMOUS RUG HERE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The Emperor's 'Rug,' woven in Persia in 1550, and known as one of the five most valuable rugs in the world, was brought to New York recently by Victor Behar, Glasgow art dealer, and placed on display at the Metropolitan Museum. English experts, according to published reports, value the piece at $1,000,000.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

SYNOPSIS

Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves another man, Abner Gratman. Stivner, lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic business deal, wagers fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Victory will mean business good will. Ranny learns that the wager is with—Abner Gratman! Abner flirts with Joan as the game progresses. This unnerves Ranny, and he loses the game for the Americans. Vengeful, he drives the ball over the sidelines at Abner, but hits Stivner! After the game, when he goes to take Joan home, he finds her gone—apparently with Abner.

CHAPTER VI.

The dried-blood red of the October twilight glowed dully behind a stark bank of tall locust trees to the west of the exclusive club's grounds. It stained the landscape near and far with a spectral russet tinge. A sombre, melancholy color. A shadowy color that matched the depression in Ranny's heart; the loneliness, the sere bleakness of autumnal night and fading love.

Had he come to the autumn of his married life with Joan? Were the withering leaves dropping in the once bright garden of their love, to bloom no more?

Would the frost of love's winter soon tighten its white fingers around Joan's heart and freeze hard the remembrance of spring-time's eager fires? Hide forever under the snow and ice of indifference the picture of the dashing knight of polo field and battlefield who had ridden, redolent with high romance, into the hitherto, unbreached fortress of her heart in the warm May of new love?

His pained, puzzled eyes staring at the emptiness of his car, Ranny stood as one in a trance, saying nothing, thinking everything. He gulped hard once or twice. That was the only outward revelation of his hurt.

Then he felt a friendly, sympathizing grip upon his arm.

It was Clay, who had also remained silent up to this, under the spell of his chum's gloomy mood. Now he said gruffly:

"Where shall I go?" bitterly. "Home to an empty house? To sit and twiddle my thumbs until my wife feels she can suffer along for a while without the enchanting company of her—lover?"

"Ranny!"

"Oh, I'm sorry!" cynically. "I suppose I am a bit of a cad. It isn't that I mistrust Joan's virtue. I hope, please God, that it hasn't gone that far—yet. But with a woman of Joan's decided will and strong passions—"

"Yes, I understand. It will be one way or the other, very positively. There's no compromise in her make-up. She'll be flamingly loyal to you until you actually give her a divorce. She's that rare sort of a woman who can be proud of her virtue without posing as a martyr."

Ranny nodded. It was good to hear Clay speak well of Joan. But then—the fly in the ointment buzzed up under the nose of his consciousness:

"True enough—until she's convinced that I won't give her a divorce! Then, because she's too firm to compromise, she'll just coolly and deliberately, as one might come to any ordinary social or business decision, let herself go!"

Ranny paused, wistfully contemplating the space where Abner's roadster had been parked, and the road where patently it had sped away with the precious freight of his staunch affection.

"Lord, it hurts to think of so fine a woman as Joan throwing herself away on so worthless a lounger as Gratman. Gosh, I wouldn't mind half so much if it were some worthwhile blighter who had vamped her, some chap with at least one or two redeeming traits—like you, for instance!"

"Thanks!" Clay hastily shoved Ranny into the sedan and got in beside him. "But let's be rolling. Drive to town. To the club. We'll have dinner there and talk over what's to be done. Maybe it will be just as well if Joan doesn't find patient little hubby toasting his toes by the fireside and sniffling over her empty slippers and negligee when she tiptoes in!"

The vast field was practically deserted now as they slipped along a poplar lined gravel driveway toward the main road outside. A strange contrast to the vivid scene of the afternoon—the interplay of flashing mallets and brilliant hued jerseys and sleek ponies against a base of rich green and a background of social splendor on the sidelines. The elite crowd had melted away in its numerous fleet of costly equipages. Far across the bare field, single file in the dusk and silhouetted against the after-glow, grooms were leading the tired little polo ponies to hard earned rest and oats in their distant stables.

Only two or three cars remained still parked. They belonged to those of the players who lingered jovially over the "ninth" chukker in the clubhouse.

Usually the life of such a party, Ranny would have been sorely out of place in there at present.

He swung the big car out upon the smooth concrete of the Jericho Turnpike and morosely headed city-ward, into the dying light of the day.

"I appreciate your coming with sour me, Clay, old rowdy, when you might just as well have stayed in there"—indicating the clubhouse with a jerk of his thumb back over his shoulder—"with more cheerful company."

"Bother your appreciation, old son. If there's anyone who understands you it's I. Come, now, tell papa—what's it all about anyway?"

"Oh, you must know that Joan and I haven't been getting along since a month or two after our elopement. Simply couldn't seem to get our tempers to dovetail. The old, old story of two decided personalities clashing—and with all of give and none of tak on both sides!"

"You admit, then, a certain culpability?"

"Yes, certainly, up to the time I first began to suspect that another man had entered the case. Since then I've had little spirit to fight much. But before that—well, I'm no sweet angel child, you know. We were, neither of us, chickens of a tender age when we married. Joan was going on for thirty, and right at the full swing of a successful career as an interior decorator—"

"Yes," chuckled Clay, "with all her family's tons of money and no end of swank and pride, she had too much gumption to be an idle society belle. To tell the truth, Ranny, I was surprised when she gave up, even for you, her work as an interior decorator —"

"Huh!" interrupting with a wry grunt, "merely a change in designation! She's been an exterior decorator ever since—decorating me with wrinkles and grey hairs!"

"It was just Joan's nature to elope once she did fall in love. She has positive passions! For ten years every other eligible bachelor in the Register had bees setting his chops for her, but she would have none of them. I wonder what fatal attraction you had that you were able to sweep her off her feet—"

"Whatever it was, I've lost it evidently. And Abner Gratman has found it," bitterly.

Ranny started visibly. "You knew? Well, I was beside myself—"

"—and trying to pick up spilt milk with a pitchfork! It can't be done. Now I know that a dessicated and encrusted woman hater like me can't give you remarkably sage advice concerning how to manage a wife, but it seems to me that with a little diligent self-study you might be able to discover what quality it was that you had, but haven't now, that made you interesting to a woman like Joan. Then recapture it."

"I wonder—"

"That's just the trouble! You wonder too much—and do too little. Your conjectures roam afield when doubtless the solution is nearer home. It was something in the essential pattern of your personality that she liked. Perhaps you've grown too domesticated—and she liked you wild."

"Then"—protestingly.

"Patient, my child! Don't combat truth. Before you eat your heart out ascertain if they have really stepped over the bounds. Set a trap for Joan and Abner. If they're living in shame catch them with the proof!"

Although condemned by doctors, when 14 years old, to a life of physical disability, the Rev. Frederick Hastings, an English clergyman and traveller of note, has just married at the age of 88. Last year he made a bicycle tour over a large part of Europe.

THEATRE

AT THE REGENT

'POKER FACES' HIS FUNNIEST SAYS POLLARD.

Regent Feature, With Horton and Laura La Plante, Has Record Laughs.

Not only Pollard, but Laura La Plante and Edward Everett Horton, who co-stars in the picture, admit it is the best picture they have ever played in—has more laughs and funny situations than anything they have heretofore done.

If anybody ought to be able to give an unbiased opinion it is a cast that has played in dozens of feature comedies in the past few years. That they are right in their declaration is borne out of the crowd who are filling the theatre at every performance.

"I think this is the mst successful picture I have ever directed," said Pollard. "I had a highly intelligent cast who get every idea I gave them and also contributed their own share of 'gags'."

Horton had a novel reason for reaching a similar conclusion. "Before starting the picture I was given a copy of the script," he said. "While reading it I laughed. I think the situations are the funniest of any picture I have played in to date."

"If the fun we had making the picture has anything to do with the result I am sure this is the best picture I have been in," said Miss LaPlante. "I never had such a jolly time. Even when we weren't working we pretended we were the characters in the play and had a lot of fun on the set."

A fine supporting cast consists of George Siegmann, Tom Ricketts, Tom O'Brien, Dorothy Revier and Leon Holmes.

FIGHT LOCUSTS

ODESSA, Jan. 13.—Airplanes, artillery, cavalry and motor equipment were used in South Russia's recent war on locusts which threatened to destroy the crops for hundreds of square miles. Airplanes were used in locating the insects, and the troops built great rings of fire nightly around the sleeping pests.

GRAND JURY REPORT SAYS JAIL OBSOLETE

Claims Appliances Are Jokes and Gallows Are Out of Date.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 13.—(Canadian Press.) — The Grand Jury at the Winter Assizes in its presentment to Justice Logie today recommended the building of a new jail here. The present jail is described as obsolete and not worth remodelling. The appliances are referred to as "jokes," sleeping quarters unsanitary, corridors stuffy and ill ventilated and the gallows out of date, clumsy and not in proper location. The jurors also complained of the odor in the building and said the cooking utensils were obsolete.

LADIES' AUXILIARY ELECTS OFFICERS

Canadian Legion Is Represented at Annual Meeting of Society.

The annual meeting and supper of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion was held in the Auxiliary rooms at the Legion Hall on Monday evening. Thirty-nine members sat down to supper at half-past six o'clock, when Dr. N. H. Sutton, representing the Canadian Legion, was guest of the ladies.

esrheaCnteigTtnnklim TA 12 , al

The toast to "Our Guest" was proposed by Mrs. W. R. Morris, and responded to by Dr. Sutton, who said that although the name of the Great War Veterans Association had been changed to that of the Canadian Legion, he could see a bright future ahead of the society. The men were securing new members daily. The boys who went overseas saw more than war during their experience, he said. Their eyes were opened to many things and, as far as politics were concerned, they were in a good position to know the best for their country. Dr. Sutton expressed his pleasure over the ladies joining in with the men, and hoped that through co-operating and working together, they would be like a happy family.

Mrs. E. Tamblin proposed the toast to "The Legion," and Mrs. E. McKinstry the toast to "The King." A brief address was given by Mrs. W. R. Morris, hoping for co-operation at all times and the adjustment satisfactorily of minor difficulties that might crop up from time to time. The best wishes of the ladies for success in future work were sent to the men by the president, Mrs. J. Mills, who also moved the vote of thanks to the ladies responsible for the fine supper: Mesdames Devall, Clark, Dormer and Chambers.

After supper, the annual meeting was held, when satisfactory reports on the year's work were given by the Secretary, Mrs. R. Bugg; the Treasurer, Mrs. R. Patterson, by Mrs. W. Hughes, who reported many sick people visited and cases in distress looked after, with the giving out of much clothing boots, food and fuel, by Mrs. J. Devall, convenor of the Social Committee, and by Mrs. E. Houghton, convenor of the Sewing Committee.

The following officers were then elected for the new year: Honorary President, Mrs. W. R. Morris; President, Mrs. J. Mills; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. E. McKinstry; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. E. Tamlin; Secretary, Mrs. R. Bugg; Treasurer, Mrs. R. Paterson; Visiting Committee, Mrs. J. Black (convenor), Mesdames Houghton, Clark, Mackness and Downer; Social Committee, Mrs. J. Devall (convenor) and ladies to be appointed later; Representatives to Local Council of Women, Mesdames Budd and Chambers.

Mrs. W. R. Morris gave a very interesting talk on her recent visit to the Old Country, when she visited many places of interest. Mrs. Morris spoke particularly of the great impression made upon her by the cenotaphs erected to deceased soldiers, mentioning especially the cenotaph at Rome, which is wonderfully carved and composed of vari-colored marbles. Perpetual lights are kept burning at these cenotaphs. Mrs. Morris also visited graves of our soldiers in France, and noted the care with which each is marked with a headstone inscribed with a name, these being in strong contrast to the little wooden crosses on the German graves. Mrs. Morris placed a flower and said a prayer beside the grave of each soldier boy whose mother or wife was known to her here. At the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Westminster Abbey in London, Mrs. Morris was impressed by the wonderful respect shown by those who visited it.

Mrs. Mills voiced a hearty appreciation of Mrs. Morris' talk.

W.M.S. MEETING

Joint Meeting Cavan Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. Held on Thursday.

CAVAN,, Jan. 13. — On Thursday afternoon the Cavan Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. held their monthly meeting at the home of Mr. J. W. Perrin.

The president, Mrs. Staples, conducted the meeting. After the business meeting a missionary program was given. The W.M.S. has only recently been organized and this was the first meeting.

It was decided to send for the W. M. S. Study Book, and Mrs. R. Matchett will take up the last chapter at the next meeting.

After the meeting adjourned the lunch committee for the day, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Miss Hunter and Mrs. F. M. Staples, assisted the hostess to serve lunch and the usual social hour was enjoyed.

Farewell Party.

On Friday evening about 30 friends and neighbors of Mr and Mrs. Tolbert Kellett, gathered at "Cherry Hill," the home of Mr. Edwin Moore, 8th line, to pend a social evening with them, and present them with a gift before their removal from the neighborhood.

Mr. James Paul read the address, and they were presented with a Coleman lamp and Mr. Kellett with a couple of pipes, as a token of friendship and appreciation of their good qualities as neighbors, during their residence in Cavan. Mr. Kellett made a suitable reply, thanking their friends on behalf of himself and Mrs. Kellett for their expressions of kindness, and the useful gifts.

A bountiful and appetizing lunch was served by the ladies and the evening was pleasantly spent in games and dancing.

Mr. Kellett went on Saturday to their new home at Manvers station, and Mrs. Kellett on Monday, having spent the week end with the Misses Moore.

Miss Ruth Keegan spent a few days of last week in Peterboro, going on Wednesday and returning on Saturday.

Mrs. Mulligan motored to Peterboro on Saturday.

The roads are in excellent condition for sleighs and cars.

Miss Bertha Touchbourn returned on Friday from a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. (Dr. Woodhall, at Hamilton.

Mr. Robert Howden has been ill, but is improving.

On Sunday evening the Rev. J. O. Totten commenced a series of sermons on the parables of our Lord, which will be continued for several Sundays.

Miss Hazel Hunter, R. N., returned to oronto on Monday evening after a pleasant vacation with Mr. and Mrs. J. Hunter and other Cavan friends.

Miss Muriel Matchett is suppiying for a month in Beechwood school, owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss McCullough.

On Friday evening, Jan. 21, the Cavan Sunday school intend having a basket social in Cavan community hall. Owing to illness in the family of one of the officers of the school they did not hold their annual Christmas tree.

REFUSE COMMENT.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Premier W. L. Mackenzie King declined last night to make any comment on a newspaper report suggesting that Canada, as a result of the last Imperial Conference, might be committed to a five-year naval building programme. The suggestion was that such naval programme would involve the addition of several of the new type of powerful fast cruisers, air craft carriers and other units.

The Prime Minister intimated that he would not make any statement merely on a published rumor of this nature, unless the authority for the report was first given.

Dr. W. H. and Mrs. Grenfell, the famous explorer, missionary doctor to this continent and legislator of Labrador, returned from Europe on the Olympic to resume his work among the fisher folk and Esquimaux on the bleak shores where he has already spent thirty years of self-imposed exile. Dr. and Mrs. Grenfell were among the Canadians who were detained at New York on board the Olympic on the liner's arrival and in connection with which a protest is being lodged in official circles.

SNUFF SPURS LAWYER TO BEST EFFORTS

By ALAN RANEY.

He performed the action with precision and with grace.

From his innermost pocket he drew with care a round, black box, which he held dexterously with the thumb and forefinger of his left hand. From the box he extracted a pinch of the black tobacco which he conveyed to his nostrils. If he enjoyed the snuff he betrayed no satisfaction.

The counsel who took that pinch of snuff was R. H. Greer, K.C.

Across the barristers' table there was being played a legal game of cards. The stake was a man's life. Each card was played with care. The crown held some big cards. The counsel for the accused played his game shrewdly. Every trick counted.

When after five hours of deliberation the jury came in a pin could have been heard to drop in the room. The clerk of the court rose to ask the jury their finding. The foreman of the jury rose to his feet to reply. The ensuing few seconds were interminable.

"Not guilty, my lord."

There was an uproar in the court.

The counsel for the accused took a pinch of snuff—reflectively. He performed the action with precision and grace. But if he felt elation as the result, he concealed his feelings well.

Mr. Greer is a habitual user of snuff. He is willing to admit that he always keeps a supply on hand in the waistcoat he wears in court.

It clears his head. It is an incentive to thought. It makes him feel more capable of cold reasoning. In court he would never be without a pinch of snuff.

Used Snuff Like Artist.

In this habit Mr. Greer may be unique in the ranks of Canadian professional men, but he has at least one distinguished colleague in the old country. The other devotee is T. P. O'Connor, veteran Anglo-Irish parliamentarian and journalist.

The closing of a snuff-manufacturing mill on the Wandle recently led that other publicist, A. G. Gardiner, to comment on this rapidly disappearing rite.

"I know of only one person in all London," he said, "who follows the old fashion. I need not say that it is our dear old friend 'Tay Pay.' And now that the Wandle mill is closed, I fear that the last of the heroic snuff-takers will find his solace gone, unless, indeed, he grinds his own snuff, just as he carries his own bread roll in the tail of his pocket, bringing it out (as I have seen him do) even at a Guildhall banquet, to be sure that he gets at least one bit of honest food.

"Why did the fashion arise and why has it gone? I think it probably arose from the idea that it was a defense against infection. Everybody used to be in dread of infection in the old days of smallpox and the plague, and, if they did not inhale snuff, they inhaled the perfume of herbs.

"No one who ever saw the great Sir Charles Russell in court can know what an eloquent thing a pinch of snuff could be when manipulated by an artist. He was, I think, the last of the artists of the snuff-box, for, if 'Tay Pay' will forgive me, I do not think he is an artist.

"But Sir Charles used his box as a swordsman uses his sword. When he tapped it, the witness knew something awful was coming and trembled. Each stage in the ritual bore its dreadful significance, and when the arm flashed out with the pinch between finger and thumb, the lightning broke. And when the witness collapsed, the operation was completed with a triumphant application of the snuff to the nose."

But to return to Canada's most illustrious snuff-taker, it should be noted that Mr. Greer's claim to fame rests on a much more solid basis than this one idiosyncrasy.

Drawing close in years to the half-century mark, twenty-five years of his life have been spent either in the prosecution or the defence of the criminal.

Every criminal case is an adventure. The study of criminals and crime invites and intrigues a desire for deeper knowledge of the psychology of the criminal mind.

"Hard luck!" That is the main appeal that the criminal makes to this counsel.

Mr. Greer will admit that he is sorry for the man or woman who has chosen the wrong path. But he believes in the strict punishment of the criminal.

But when Dick Greer's sympathies are moved he can plead with eloquence that justice should be tempered with mercy. Thus a story is told of how in a recent case which he handled down east his address on behalf of the accused was so fervent and moving an appeal that two of the jurymen were reduced to open tears.

He began his legal career when he started to read law with the firm of Smith, Rae and Greer, of which his uncle was then a member. He has been connected with the firm ever since. He became a full-fledged lawyer in June, 1901, when he was called to the Ontario Bar. He continued his practice with the firm.

His early education was received at the Rose Avenue and Dufferin Street Public Schools, and from thence he went to the Jarvis Street Collegiate and to the University of Toronto. At the early age of seventeen he graduated from the university as a full-fledged bachelor of arts with the class of 1898.

He was appointed crown attorney for York County in 1915. He was then 33 years of age, the youngest official in Toronto. From that post he did not resign until the year 1920, having completed five years in office and having established for himself a name as an able and just prosecuting attorney.

When he resigned this post he went into civil practice and from section with court trials. Much of his work has been of a sensational nature.

His early training was not all in school. He was a professional ball player at the age of seventeen, having signed on a team playing in the old Ontario bush league in the year he graduated. While a student at varsity he was considered the best ball player that Canada ever turned out.

For a whole season he played professional ball. And then his parents decided that he would make a far better player at professional law than he would at professional baseball.

Took Battalion Overseas.

During the war he organized, recruited and trained the 180th Sportsmen Battalion, C.E.F.

He enlisted on February 14, 1916. He qualified as a lieutenant in April of the same year and as a captain in May. In June he was made a field officer and in August he was a musketry instructor at Rockliffe. In July he left for overseas, where the battalion was absorbed with the 3rd Reserve Battalion at West Sandling Camp in January of 1917.

Following that he made every effort to get to France. He was then 34 years of age, but he reverted in rank to lieutenant in order to achieve his aim. He demanded to be sent to France or to be sent home. Action was what he wanted and not an alibi.

The upshot of the matter was a difference of opinion with headquarters that resulted in his landing home again in April, 1917, when he resumed his gown again and the office of crown attorney.

MUFFETS

The New Toasted Whole Wheat Cereal

Muffets are cooked whole grains of sun-ripened wheat woven into a crisp, golden ribbon, rolled into dainty shape and toasted on both sides. Complete natural nourishment. Substantial. Full of flavor. Appealing to the most exacting appetite. More than a breakfast cereal, too. Hollowed out and filled with fruit they're delicious desserts. Delectable patties, also, for fish, meats and vegetables.

SHORT STORY

"You poor, miserable little thing!" Beth said with smiling eyes. "I have a gorgeous plan for you. Now you shut up your little Puritan self in a handy closet and listen to me!"

Alice smiled faintly at her roommate, but it surely was a faint smile. A long month at a great city hospital that leaves one weary of life, without a position, and with savings gone does not make happy smiles; and Alice had reached that point, in spite of her cheery roommate, who never let life get the best of her, where she was letting go.

"Ted's folks invited me to their place—after he died. He was a blak sheep, you know, and when he married me, an omery city girl with wild habits, that finished the both of us for them. So I never visited them. They never saw me and they never will, and I'm going to send you to them—under my name. In other words, you are to be for two precious weeks—Mrs. Edward B. Hale!"

Chronic constipation conquered by Nujol treatment, said doctors

WE asked leading doctors all over the country how they treated chronic cases of constipation. 80.7% said they recommended the Nujol type of treatment.

Here is a typical answer taken at random from hundreds of interviews: "Where hard, dry impacted conditions are present as in chronic constipation Nujol type of treatment is especially successful. Laxatives and cathartics do not tend to correct the causes of constipation. In their place I recommend an intestinal lubricant in all obstinate cases."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Nine doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons: 1. Nujol is not habit-forming; 2. A more natural method; 3. A lubricant is better than a laxative; 4. Does not gripe; 5. Is not irritating; and 6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it!

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

Nujol TRADE MARK

For Constipation

"Oh! I never—it would be——" Alice objected.

"Listen! They never did a thing for Ted and me. They seemed to be sorry afterwards, but I don't forgive them. Then, you can't get me out among the cows and the crossroads. It's just right for you. You should never have come to the city, anyway." Beth rattled on. "I'll never go to see them. And you're just plain going to die, little one. You've got no choice!"

Too weak to argue, too weary to care much about the deception, dominated by the gay girl who took every challenge that life offered, at the end of the week Alice found herself speeding on the southern train to the home of the people to whom she was to be Mrs. Hale—the girl they had refused to accept, to whom now they would make redress.

More than once, Alice was in a panic of shame and doubt as she thought of the deception. The keenest moment of anguish came when, as she stepped from the train at the village station, a tall, smiling man of about her own age stepped up.

"Mrs. Hale? I am Alfred—Ted's brother. I'm to drive you home—and tell you that we are mighty glad to have you come," he said.

His smiling, friendly face stilled her fears, and before she knew it she was in his car, sweeping away into the country. She was silent, but he chatted along in his cheerful way, explaining gently how sorry his father had been for his sternness toward her and Ted, and added:

"Mother has been strong for you all the time, but Dad rules the roost, and he's one of the old-fashioned, stiff-backed kind—up on his uppers one moment, then the next sorry clean through. He'll try to make it up to you—and so will the rest of us!"

They did, without question, and Alice had reason to grieve over the deception many nights thereafter as she lay in the cozy upstairs best room with the wide peace of the country night about her.

One day Alfred looked at her oddly:

"Beth, you were a little white ghost when you came, but you begin to look—well, you look mighty good to me," he suggested, his eyes merry.

Then he began to take her to happy times in the village and at different farms—dances, suppers, picnics—and after each came the long drives home through the fragrant, singing southern night; and a little slow ache began to form in her heart—she did not want to go back to the great city.

Then, one night, as he went to the house with her after a joyous evening, he paused in the kitchen and pointed to a calendar.

"Beth, you see those little checks? I have been marking off the days you have left—and I—I wish I could get you to stay here always. I shall miss you," he said simply.

She trembled at the deep undertone of emotion in his voice, and her lips parted to form the words, "Oh I wish I could"—then she remembered, and fled to her room.

The next morning, as she went down stairs, Alfred caught her arm, and his eyes were so tender and gentle, the tears almost came, but she said firmly: "Alfred, I want to tell you something—and your mother and father—I—I wasn't Ted's wife!"

He slipped an arm around her and, somehow, the touch of the firm arm was comforting.

"Little one, we have known it all along, for the real Beth wrote just after you came, the whole story. We didn't want to tell you we knew, and Beth didn't want to tell you she had written—and then Mother and Dad fell in love with you; then seeing that I did at the start, it seemed as if——" words eluded him, and he paused for a moment. "All I know or care is—I love you, and if you think you could be happy with me, I don't want you to go back—ever!"

A sweet sense of happiness closed about her, and out of it she spoke in a whisper: "And I don't want to go back ever—for I love you!"

Hiram Walker Gains On Stronger Market

TORONTO, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Hiram Walker's clear gain of a point at 33 was the feature of a stronger market on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. A firmer tendency was in evidence, though no large gains were recorded. Hiram Walker was the active leader, and it touched a high of 33 1-8. Brazilian advanced five-eighths at 106⅝, and Canadian Canners Common was 3-4 higher at 28¼. Industrial Alcohol firmed a half at 22, and Imperial Oil, active in the industrial section, firmed a half at 39 5-8. Nipissing, the mines leader, climbed 50 at 930. Abitibi was the soft spot, easing 1 3-4 at 86. 3-4. International was also easier, receding 3-8 at 41 3-4.

Wheat Averages Lower On Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Faced by prospective big shipments from Argentina, wheat averaged lower early to-day. Forecast indicated 2,072,000 bushels would be exported from Argentina this week, compared with 750,000 bushels last week.

Opening unchanged to ¼ cent off, wheat rallied little, and then sagged all around to below yesterday's finish. Corn and oats were firm, corn starting at 1-8 cent to ½ cent advance, and subsequently showing further gains. Provisions tended downgrade.

Trading Decreases But Remains Heavy

TORONTO, an. 13. Canadian Press. — Nipissing's strength was the bright spot in the weaker market on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, when the volume of business although considerably decreased from yesterday remained exceptionally heavy. Nipissing climbed up36c to $9.26; Argonaut was about only other issue showing advance, being 2 higher at 52. Teck-Hughes lost 15 at 6.50 and Amulet 4 at 239. Laval, Quebec, still the leader, eased 1 1-2 at 46, but Area, the other active Quebec leader, was steady at 135. Duprat was one lower at 30 and Grover Daly down half at 29.

HARDWARE PLANT DAMAGED BY FIRE

Supposed To Have Been Caused By Spark From Welding Machine.

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 13 (Canadian Press).—Fire caused heavy damage to the Taylor Forbes hardware plant here shortly before closing time last night. A spark from one of the welding machines is supposed to have struck some inflammable material, and in a moment the room was ablaze. The firm's own fire brigade was hard at work before the city firemen arrived, and managed to confine the flames to the hardware plant. After half an hour's burning the roof collapsed, and tons of water flooded the machine rooms. One fireman was hurt in falling from the roof, which had a covering of ice. About one hundred men were employed in the department, who will be kept at work cleaning up the debris. Before the fire was extinguished, Mr. J. M. Taylor had contracted for the rehabilitation of the plant, and work started on this to-day. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

ELECT OFFICERS.

Young People's League Organized For St. Andrew's Church at Warkworth.

WARKWORTH, Jan. 13. — On Wednesday evening, Jan. 5 a number gathered in the Sunday School room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for the purpose of organizing a Young People's Society. Rev. Grier of Campbellford was chairman for the evening. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Carman Carlaw; Vice President, Gordon McCubbin; Secretary, Ivan Duncan; Treasurer, Nina Boyce; Organist, Clara Cockburn; Assistant, Everett Maycock; Convenor Devotional Committee, Mrs. C. C. Armstrong; Convenor, Missionary Committee, Allie Mowat; Convenor Membership Committee, Carman Carlaw; Convenor Social Committee, Mrs. Robert Walker and Mrs. Clara Richards.

The first meeting of this society was held on Monday evening, Jan. 10th. Already there are fifty members. The meeting opened with Hymn 483, followed by prayer by Mrs. Carman Carlaw. Hymn 560.

The first Bible reading, Roman 10, 1-10, was taken by Gordon McCubbin, and the second Bible reading, Luke 12, 6-12 ,was taken by Annie McKenzie. Following this was the minutes and business, after which Mrs. C. C. Armstrong and James Bamber gave interesting papers on "What the Confession of Christ Means."

Misses Mazie and Heather Grant sang a duet. After collection and Hymn 399 the meeting was dimissed with the Mizpah Beendiction.

A social half hour was spent and dainty refreshments were served.

Dramatic Club.

An entertainment under the auspices of the Dartford Dramatic Club is being presented in the church on January 21st. The play is taken from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Vanice." The ever-popular elocutionist, Mrs. McClelland of Peterborough is assisting together with the Davey Orchestra and church choir.

Miss Helen Darling is President of the Dartford Dramatic Club and Miss Mildred Nelson is secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Moore entertained a number of friends on Monday evening.

Mr. Abe Phillips, while working in the woods on Monday, received a bad cut in the head when a tree fell on him.

Mrs. W. J. Baker has returned after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Baker, Campbellford.

SUCCESS ATTENDS BRITAIN'S POLICY

Situation Tense, But Conditions Quiet in Hankow and Shanghai.

LONDON, Jan. 13. (Associated Press. — Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary ,in a lengthy report on the situation in China to a special meeting of the Cabinet yesterday, is understood to have announced that the Chinese crisis by no means is past, but that for the present Great Britain's policy of conciliation, as proclaimed in the recent memorandum to the powers, has had an unexpected, dramatic success. At the same time word has come from Hankow of growing confidence in British circles there that the events in that British concession growing out of the anti-British agitation are not likely to be repeated at Shanghai, where it is pointed out, the International settlement is available to protect itself. It is declared that the economic reaction against the Chinese at Hankow which practically resulted in a British boycott of Chinese trade, has strengthened the hands of the sanest elements among the nationalists. These elements have been able to convince the more violent of the inadvisability of a policy of aggression against foreigners.

Hankow and Shanghai Quiet.

The Foreign Office from reports out of China yesterday was able to state that Hankow and Shanghai were quiet. It was reported also that negotiations were going on between the Cantonese Foreign Minister, Eugene Chen, and the British charge d'afaires O'Malley, who had arrived on the scene from Pekin. As the British desire to avoid the appearance of the recognition of the Cantonese regime, it was emphasized that Mr. O'Malley was not acting as direct envoy of the British government.

Great Britain's attitude toward China is considered to have fully demonstrated during the tense day at Hankow. The first objective of the memorandum to the powers, it is commented, has been achieved but not without great risks to and sacrifices on the part of the local British community.

But, those versed in Chinese affairs declare, the second objective of the memorandum seems doomed to failure, due to the attitude of Japan, which continues to withhold support of the British policy.

For the first time since the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, Great Britain and Japan are openly in disagreement on far eastern questions. Japan maintains that the granting of the "Washington surtaxes" means only added revenues for the Chinese war lords and also that the levying of surtaxes by the Cantonese and by the Pekin government, as announced yesterday, is not accompanied by abolition of the Likin or internal duties.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY RE-ELECTS OFFICERS

Dr. Blagrave Conducts Devotional Exercises at Annual Meeting.

Forty-six members were present on Tuesday afternoon at the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church, when officers were elected for the coming year. The president, Mrs. A. W. Turner, occupied the chair, and devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave.

The annual reports were most encouraging, showing a successful year just ended. The president's address inspired the members to go forward during 1927 to greater achievements —the opportunities are many and the possibilities greater still. Special mention was made of sick members, with particular reference to two or three who had met with accidents during the past few weeks, and members were requested to visit those confined to their homes.

At the conclusion of the business session, refreshments were served by the committee, in charge of the new convenor, Mrs. Lemmings.

The officers for the new year, all returned by acclamation, are as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. R. C. Blagrave; President, Mrs. A. W. Turner; Vice Presidents, Mrs. D. Mulholland and Mrs. Arthur Amys;

MAN IS INJURED IN MOTOR SMASH

Driver Becomes Blinded By Sun and Runs Into Team of Horses.

WOOLER, Jan. 13.—While driving his car towards Trenton on Saturday Verne Jones met with a very painful accident. He became blinded with the bright sun which he was driving against and he ran into a team of horses which were being driven by a lumberman going to the woods.

The impact of the car threw the horses to the ground and the sleigh tongue struck Mr. Jones, breaking his collar bone, and badly damaging his car.

After a Good Cry, Use Murine
When Eyes are Red and Swollen from Weeping, apply Murine. The Redness and Puffiness will Quickly Go. Harmless!

When Kruschen's taken every day

How did you get up this morning?

Did you wake up fresh, brisk, bright-eyed, "hungry as a bear"—or did you yawn and growl, grumble because you had to go to work and spread ill-humour all over the house?"

If it is a struggle for you to get up, there is a reason for it and the reason is, that your system is tired and sluggish. You are not getting enough fresh air and physical exercise. The little walking you do now is not enough. Your liver and kidneys become inactive. Impurities creep into the blood which would never get there if you were leading an active, outdoor life. The presence of these impurities causes constipation, depression, headache, make you hate to get up.

There's no need to feel like this. There's no need to envy those jolly, cheerful people you meet every morning. Just take a pinch of Kruschen Salts in your breakfast cup of tea or coffee every morning until the bottle's finished — and then get another bottle.

Just a pinch — remember — only as much as will cover a 10-cent piece. There's no taste. You won't know you are taking salts — but you will soon notice a difference in the way you feel.

Kruschen Salts restore the liver and kidneys to healthy activity so that they perform their natural functions thoroughly. Fresh, clear blood circulates all over the system bringing tingling health to every fibre of the body. You awake cheerful, full of energy, ready for breakfast and a good day's work.

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea
Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Kruschen Salts

The dose to cover a 10-cent piece taken every morning is found in practice just the right amount for a most invigorating daily tonic. The medicinal dose for persons suffering from pains of rheumatism, gout, lumbago, or sciatica, or habitual constipation, with inactive liver, etc., is half to one teaspoonful in a tumbler of hot water before breakfast. Every druggist sells Kruschen A 75c. bottle lasts three months. This works out at half a cent a day for health and happiness. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day and start to-morrow. It's the little daily dimeful that does it!

HAVELOCK COUNCIL INAUGURAL MEETING

Appointments Are Made To Various Municipal Offices.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 12.—The inaugural meeting of the Town Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening with all members present. Reeve Curtis, in addressing the Council, said he was pleased to welcome back the two old members and extended a hearty welcome to the new ones. He was glad to see younger blood in the Council and expressed the hope that as in the past they would be able to carry on the business of the village with a spirit of good will toward each other. The last two or three years he had spent around the Council board had been most harmonious, and he hoped this year would prove the same.

On motion of Councillors Spencer and Gordon the following accounts were passed:

C. Dewey, $8.00; H. F. McNicol, 9.00; Ed. M. Elliott, $2,536.09; ...k of Toronto, $3.53; Earl Wil... $5.00; W. Stevenson, $2.50; T. ...ancaster, $28.00; E. Pomeroy, ...; Havelock Standard, $57.05; ...er Davies, $12.50; Jos. Newton, ...; E. Pomeroy, $4.50; John Ru... $7.00; W. H. Stevenson, $2.50.

Moved by Councillors Leeson and Spencer, that Clerk be authorized to order six copies of The Municipal W...d.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Gordon and Haig, that the Clerk be authorized to order a copy of the Blue Book for municipal purposes cost $1.00—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Spencer and Gordon, that a grant of $10.00 be given the Sick Children's Hospital.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Leeson and Spencer, that the Reeve purchase two loads of dry hardwood at $10.00 a cord, and eight loads of green hard wood at $8.00 a cord for the Town Hall.—Carried.

On motion of Councillors Spencer and Gordon, the tax collector's time was extended one month as $1,500.00 is outstanding in uncollected taxes.

Application was made by the Havelock Electric Light Co. for the lease of Margaret Street for piling wood.

Moved by Councillors Leeson and Spencer that the Clerk be authorized to lease it to them, as long as it did not conflict with Mr. C. W. Coon, who has wool piled there, but whose term has expired.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Spencer and Leeson, that the Clerk be authorized to order seventy-five dog tags and supplies for Clerk and Assessor.—Carried.

Mr. E. Spinks addressed the Council re adjustment in his assessment of $700.00; his schedule calling for only $650.000.

The following applications were received for municipal offices:

Assessor, from F. H. Falkner and J. W. Holcombe.

Bylaw 351 was given its several readings. This bylaw provides for the appointment of municipal officers:

Moved by Councillors Spencer and Leeson, that Mr. J. W. Holcombe be appointed Assessor.

Moved by Councillors Haig and Gordon, that Mr. F. H. Falkner be appointed assessor.

The Reeve gave the casting vote in favor of Mr. Holcombe, and declared him appointed to the office of Assessor for 1927, at a salary of $100.00.

Moved by Councillors Haig and Gordon, that Messrs. H. Wing and Rae Williams be appointed Auditors. Salary $20.00 each. Carried.

Moved by Councillors Haig and Leeson, that Charles Dewey be appointed Sanitary Inspector. Salary $15,00.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Haig and Spencer, that H. Wing be re-appointed as member of the Board of Health.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Spencer and Haig, that Messrs. Alex. Plunkett and P. Pincombe be appointed as members of the Park Board for the term of three years.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Leeson and Gordon, that Charles Dewey be appointed Caretaker of Town Hall and fire engines. Salary $2.00 for every time he officiates, and $2.00 a month for caring for fire engines.—Carried.

A bylaw was given its first reading, which provided for dog tags to be delivered free to dog owners by Assessor. Assessor to make a record of dog owners and serial number of tag given to each. This bylaw also authorized the Assessor to collect dog tax from tenants at time of delivery.

The matter was left over until next meeting to have bylaw redrafted, to authorize Assessor to distribute tags free to those paying tax at the time of delivery and making a charge of twenty-five cents for tag in cases where tax is not paid until later.

A communication was received from the Cockshutt Banquet Committee at Toronto, re sending delegates from each municipality to the banquet in Toronto on January 18, in honor of Lieut.-Governor Cockshutt. The Council took no action in the matter.

WHERE DEATH STILLED CHILDISH GAYETY

This is the Laurier Palace moving picture theater at Montreal where 77 children died in fire panic. Flames still raged and firemen continued their hunt for the victims' bodies at the time this picture was made for NEA Service and The Examiner. The fire started in the projection room and the alarmed cry which was immediately raised sent the audience scurrying for exit. Those in the orchestra and on one side of the balcony reached the street unharmed, but a jam of young bodies on the other balcony stairway blocked it five steps from safety and here struggling, suffocation and smoke caused the casualties.

PERCY COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

Reeve Nelson Urges Practice of Economy During Coming Year.

OFFICERS APPOINTED.

NORHAM, Jan. 13.—With all the ceremony attendant thereon, the Percy Township Council for 1927 met in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall, Warkworth, on Monday mroning at ten o'clock. Two new faces appeared at the table to fill the vacancies consequent upon the retirement of Reeve John McCubbin and Councillor George Poole. Reeve W. Herbert Nelson in his opening address urged the members to co-operate in the practice of economy, and the more so because the expenses of the past year had been unexpectedly heavy.

Thomas McMillan, the Tax Collector, and Charles J. Boyce, the Township Treasurer, were present and presented reports which showed that there was about $2,500 of the $41,623.84 still unpaid. The Collector's time was extended until February 1.

W. Herbert Nelson and Oscar F. Laver were appointed from the Council as members of the Community Hall Board.

Peter S. Ewing, whose name stands for efficiency, now enters upon his twentieth year as Clerk of Percy Township.

Three bylaws were passed, one to appoint township officers, one to appoint a local Board of Health and a third authorizing the Reeve and Treasurer to borrow money from the Royal Bank and settle all township accounts.

Walter H. Smith and George Poole interviewed the Council re the use of the Council Chamber for short course in agriculture, to be held from Jan. 18 until Feb. 11. The members of the Council conceded the request.

INAUGURAL MEETING OF SMITH'S COUNCIL

Reeve and Clerk Authorized To Borrow Necessary Money For Year From Royal Bank.

The inaugural meeting of the municipal council of the township of Smith was held in the County Council chamber, Peterboro, on Monday, Jan. 10, at 11 a.m., all the members being present.

Reeve—J. A. Middleton.

Deputy-Reeve—Geo. H. Simpson.

Councillors— Henry D. Coons, Gordon Fitzgerald, Allan B. Mann.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and disposed of.

By-laws appointing a road superintendent, a local board of health, auditors, medical health officer, collector, sanitary inspector, school attendance officer, relief officer, sheep valuators and fence viewers received their various reading and were passed.

By resolution the clerk was instructed to send for six copies of the "Municipal World" and four hundred dog tags.

On motion of Concillors Fitzgerald and Mann the time for returning the collector's role was extended until Feb. 5, 1927.

Moved by Councillor H. D. Coons and seconded by Councillor Mann, that the reeve and clerk be authorized to sign Royal Bank printed forms re borrowing of money and regulations of other financial transactions between the township of Smith and the Royal Bank of Canada, Peterboro, such motion to take effect as if passed on Jan. 1, 1927. Carried.

The clerk was advised to procure a sufficient number of pay sheets for the year 1927 for the use of the township road superintendent.

A resolution was passed asking the clerk to write a letter of condolence to Mrs. C. O. Northey and family expressing to them council's sincere sympathy in their great bereavement in the death of Mr. Northey. Mr. Northey held the position of township assessor for some years, and by his capability for the office and by his geniality, he won very many friends even among strangers.

Moved by Deputy Reeve Simpson and seconded by Councilor Fitzgerald, that the clerk have a notice printed in the Peterboro Examiner for three consecutive issues asking for applicants for the position of assessor for the township of Smith for the year 1927. Carried.

By resolution the following accounts were ordered to be paid:

S. J. Dickson, rebate of dog tax, wrongly assessed, $4; Bruce Snelgrove, rebate of dog tax, wrongly assessed, $2; E. A. Peck, M.P., township solicitor's account 1925 and 1926, $72; Wm. Steinkrauss, planking well, and work, $2; P. T. Council adjourned to meet Feb. 5, 1927, at 10 a.m.

MONAGHAN COUNCIL INAUGURAL MEETING

Accounts Passed and Officials Appointed at First Gathering.

The inaugural meeting of the 1927 North Monaghan Township Council was held at the Court House, Peterboro, on Monday last. The following members were present: Reeve R. T. Lillico, Deputy-Reeve R. A. Dobbin, Councillors T. M. Hunter, W. G. Waterman and Andrew Kent.

Each member took the declaration of office and regular business was proceeded with. M. S. Woodcock came before the Council in connection with a bill of $6.75 he presented for repairs to his cutter. Mr. Woodcock lives on Giles' Hill and he stated there was no proper roadway maintained over this hill, and he broke his cutter going over the large stones on the road. The Clerk was instructed to refer this claim to the local agent of the Globe Indemnity Company for settlement.

Frank Pratt, Sanitary Inspector, presented his account re taking a patient to Whitby Hospital on December 23. Mr. Pratt's bills amounted to $14.50. There was a balance of $2.65 from cheque issued Mr. Pratt at that time.

A number of indigent cases were reported to the Council by Mr. Pratt; also by H. B. Rye, past Reeve, who was present and explained to the new Council the action he had taken in regard to these cases up to the present.

The Tax Collector reported that he had collected $160 poll tax for the year 1926. A resolution was passed that John Whitfield be paid $25.00 for collecting the poll tax for the past year.

J. M. Hunter brought up the question of fire protection for the suburban area and a committee was named, consisting of Reeve Lillico, Deputy-Reeve Dobbin, ex-Reeve Rye, Councillor Kent and the Clerk, to arrange for an inspection of the Lakefield fire apparatus and report at the next meeting.

The following applications for the position of Assessor were received: John McIntosh and M. H. Johnston, 225.

A resolution was passed that John McIntosh be appointed Assessor for year 1927 at a salary of $225.

Bylaw 893 was introduced and passed authorizing the Reeve and Treasurer to enter into an agreement with the Bank of Nova Scotia to borrow $10,000 to meet current expenditure for year 1927.

Bylaw 894 was introduced and passed appointing E. B. Fowler Township Auditor at a salary of $50.

Bertram Pitchford, $3; Lillian Holyman, $3; Herbert Bourne, $3; Abram Davidson, $3; W. B. Anderson, $3; Hazel Henry, $3; R. M. Denoon, $3; Ernest Adamson, $3; John F. Clark, $3; Oscar Dunford, $3; George Campbell, $4; Abram Davidson, $4; Mrs. Emily Kelly, $4; Treasurer of S. S. No. 2, $4; Treasurer of S. S. No. 3, $4.

Bylaw 895 was passed appointing John McIntosh Assessor at a salary of $225.

The following charity bills were passed for payment:

Cooney & Jopling, coal, $7.90; W. J. Fitzgerald, wood, $8.50; W. J. Grady, groceries, $5.02; W. J. Byers, groceries, $5.12.

General accounts passed for payment:

Dr. C. H. Hammond, $5; J. N. Gilroy, balance due, $10.80; Bruce Johnston, postage, etc., $6.85; Municipal World, supplies, $1.09; Municipal World, 88c; Dawe & Pearson, $10.65.

SEYMOUR COUNCIL OPENING MEETING

Officials Appointed and Accounts Passed at First Session.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 13.—The inaugural meeting of the Seymour Council was held in the Council Chamber, Ferris block, on Monday.

Reeve Grills in his address to the council impressed upon the members the necessity of economy during the coming year. He explained the county rate would necessarily have to be raised.

W. M. Stephens was appointed school trustee for S.S. No. 3 for the year 1927-28.

W. A. Wynn was appointed sheep valuator.

George Anderson will again be school attendance officer and J. W. Johnston health inspector for the township.

The important position of building and maintaining the roads of the township will again be entrusted to Earnest Brunton as superintendent.

Percy Oddie addressed Council and asked for a grant on Road No. 4. The Reeve was instructed to make inspection of the road and if advisable to fix amount of grant.

Superintendent Brunton was instructed to have brush cut along the side of the road on the 9th Concession opposite Nathan Atkinson's and on Concession 10 opposite Lots 7 and 8.

The clerk was instructed to purchase 600 dog tags, also to ask the clerk of Rawdon township for a detailed statement of the work done on the Rawdon boundary during the years 1925-26, and to advertise in the Campbellford Herald for 75 pieces of cedar.

The following accounts were presented and the reeve instructed to sign orders on treasurer for the same:

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

As soon as the waiter had left them, Faith handed to Bob across the table the sheet of carbon paper she had found in Lola Gonzales' desk, and reached into her handbag for a small mirror.

"Here, Bob, read the line in the middle of that sheet of carbon paper. I believe you will find it is an exact duplicate of the fourth message Cherry has received.

"Part of it's written over," he said, sliding the mirror back and forth over the purple sheet. "But, by heaven, you're right, Faith. I don't know what to say or think—Lola Gonzales!"

Then she told him the whole story, to the certainty with which Cherry from the receipt of the first letter had expounded her suspicion of him, or his stenographer, as the source of the letters. She produced the rest of her proof—the similarity between the envelopes addressed to Cherry and the one addressed to her father; the sheet of paper and the envelope, which proved, on comparison before his eyes, to be of exactly the same stock and water markings.

"And so I went to your office to face you with it," she concluded. "I knew in my heart that there was some other explanation, that you couldn't have done it, but Cherry believes you did. I took these things from Miss Gonzales' desk while she was out of the room. I don't know how I was lucky enough to get that particular piece of carbon paper, when she must have written lots of letters since then—"

"I think I know," Bob said slowly, his face very serious. "The drawer in which you found the plain paper and envelopes doesn't contain the regular engraved letterheads that I use for business correspondence. Of course we use plain white paper for the second sheet of a long letter—to save the engraved paper, you know. It happens that when she wrote this letter to your father we were out of the engraved envelopes with return address, and she typed it in.

"The new batch came from the printers yesterday. That explains the similarity of the envelopes sent to Cherry and the one which contained your father's letters. She had evidently taken a piece of carbon on which a business letter had been written to write this last letter to Cherry, and dropped it, after using it, into the drawer which she had opened—to get the plain paper, you know."

Faith had been following his reasoning intently, and nodded with complete understanding when he had finished. "But why did she keep a carbon copy of these letters to Cherry? You would think she wouldn't want any trace of her guilt to be in existence."

"There are two possible explanations," Bob Hathaway had assumed a grave, slightly legal, impersonal air. "A stenographer automatically makes a carbon of every letter she writes—second nature, you know. Possibly she destroyed the carbon copies. But more than likely she made duplicates for—well, for the information of the person for whom she is working."

"Who is that person?" Faith cried, pressing her fingers into her temples as if her head ached. "Of course I can see no reason why Lola Gonzales should want to blackmail Cherry!—"

"Wait!" Bob Hathaway stretched out a hand and gripped hers hard. "I told you that Uncle Ralph had discharged her, didn't I? That in itself might be motive enough for a girl with hot, revengeful Mexican blood in her veins, but I know one other reason—she used to be seen everywhere with Chris Wiley, and it was just last week that I saw her and Chris dancing together at 'Ye Olde Logge Cabin'—the very place where last night—" He stopped abruptly, bit back the words he was about to say.

"Where last night you saw Cherry and Chris Wiley dancing," Faith finished his sentence for him. "She told me about it. Chris tried to abduct her again, and turned his car over on that hairpin curve between the Cabin and Marlboro. Bill Warren picked her up and brought her home. They were both unhurt, but Cherry ran away and left Chris with the wreck of the car."

"I didn't want to give her away, if she hadn't told you," Bob Hathaway smiled at her.

"She also told me," Faith's voice was suddenly sharp, her eyes bent piercingly on his, "that she was shadowed all evening, had been followed by the same man for days, everywhere she went, and—" she paused, searching his blank, guiltless, unsuspecting eyes, "that Chris saw the detective, who was shadowing Cherry speak to you, pass you a piece of paper—his report, she thought it was—while you were under the veranda with him."

For a moment Bob stared incredulously at her, then a light broke over his face and he laughed aloud, with joyous relief. "This is getting good! A regular ten-twent-thirt melodrama. So that's why you and Cherry were so sure that it was Bob Hathaway who was blackmailing her! I wonder what motive she thought I could possibly have! Why, my dear Faith, that was no detective! That was Pete Gonzales—"

"Pete Gonzales!" Faith echoed.—"Your stenographer's father? That makes it more damning, doesn't it?"

"Not her father, her brother," the laughter went out of Bob's eyes as suddenly as it had come. "By George! That does put a new light on it, doesn't it? So he's been following Cherry about, has he? Reporting on all her doings to Lola, I suppose."

"But how did you happen to meet him under the veranda?" Faith persisted, sorely puzzled, but staunch in her loyalty to the man who sat opposite to her.

"Purely by accident," Bob told her. "Miss Gonzales had told me about her brother, how much trouble they had with him, and asked me to give him some work on one of my jobs, if I could. I had told him just two days ago to get busy on that Enfield job your father's in charge of, and last night he saw me in the driveway of the Cabin, in my car. When he came out to join me, to report on his new work, he found me under the veranda, looking for a jack the manager keeps there. I had a flat and had to fix it before I left the roadhouse. I had just dropped in for a sandwich—alone," he added, with a deep smile into her eyes. "Pete wrote the names of two of his friends that I can get to work on the Enfield addition—thawed laborers, for grading up a terrace. That was the mysterious apper that passed between us, dear."

"I see," a shy, glad light flooded her eyes, "But Bob, why is Pete Gonzales shadowing Cherry and why is Lola Gonzales writing her blackmailing letters?"

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

A gray fox scarf is here effectively worn with a mannish suit of black velvet.

When Queen Marie of Roumania went home she had stowed somewhere within her many trunks two perfect silver fox scarfs—that is, two that had not been part of her wardrobe when she came to this country. One was presented to her in Canada and the other by the directors of a fox farm in this country. Ermine and sable may once have been considered the regal furs, but those who know and appreciate furs nowadays seem to feel that there is no pelt more queenly than a perfect silver fox.

Oddly enough in this country where some of the finest of fox pelts are obtained, the fox scarf is not so generally worn as in Europe. The one or two-piece fox neck scarf is an essential of every well-dressed French woman's wardrobe. Just why we have been so slow to revive this fashion it is rather hard to see. Perhaps it is our lack of interest in the two-piece suit—which is so much more popular abroad than here.

Silver fox which is regarded as the finest sort of fox and is certainly the most expensive is hardly within the reach of most women. Furriers sometimes dye red fox in a way that makes it closely resemble real silver fox. But since other sorts of fox have come into favor in France this deception is really not necessary. A good blue fox comes next to silver fox in price and some women consider it more youthful. White fox, which was very popular some years ago, is seldom seen save when dyed to some soft gray or beige tone—and is usually sold by the better sort of furriers as dyed white fox.

A single fox pelt is enough to make a substantial sort of scarf but in at present many women are wearing the two-skin scarfs, which are long enough to be draped gracefully around the body.

The very fact that fox scarfs have not been so generally worn in this country as abroad gives the fashion much distinction. There is little demand for the cheap sort—the fox scarfs made of rabbits and wolves and other commoner skins.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1927

This should be rather a fortunate day after the early morning hours, according to astrology, which finds strong benefic aspects dominating.

Women are well directed today, which is helpful to all their social as well as their professional or commercial ambitions.

This should be a lucky day for weddings since it makes for rise in station and increase in fortune.

This is a lucky day for promoters or for those who seek capital for business or influence for political preferment.

Again decided changes in fashion are forecast and there is to be a turning away from simplicity, it is prophesied, since clothes reflect something of world thought.

Beauty is to be as much a matter of supreme interest in 1927 as in recent years, but it must not be enhanced by cosmetics.

As the new Moon this month was an eclipse of the Sun with Mars near the Meridian. Ireland will probably feel the ill effects of the aspects.

Great hardships may be experienced by dwellers in certain parts of England as well as Ireland, the seers foretell.

This recent eclipse is read, also, as presaging increase of robberies and other crimes in a winter that will be marked by extremes of human conducta as well as extremes of weather.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid too much ambition in the coming year and make the best of things as they are.

Children born on this day probably will be even-tempered and amusing, but unfortunate about finding the right niche in life until after certain disappointments.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, crecsote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The savory served sometimes in England as a last course for luncheon or dinner is seldom encountered in this country. The English idea seems to be that such dishes are very nice for those who do not care for sweets. The idea is one worth adopting by those who for one reason or another do not care to eat much sweets. Salted nuts are included among the savories in English cook books. Deviled chestnuts are also suggested. To make them remove the outside shells and after boiling five minutes peel off the inside skin. Put them in a frying pan with enough good olive oil to cover the bottom of the pan. Fry for a few minutes, adding a little salt and just a dash of cayenne pepper if desired. Drain and serve quite hot.

A delicious prune savory is made by removing the pits from very good prunes that have been soaked and stewed in the usual manner without any sugar. Fill the pit cavities with this mixture. Grate some cheese and moisten it with a little mayonnaise. Place these stuffed prunes on little beds of crisp lettuce leaves and add a little mayonnaise.

A savory of cream cheese and hard-boiled egg yolks is delicious. To make it, cream about four ounces of the cream cheese with the yolks of two hard-boiled eggs rubbed through a sieve, add a teaspoon of mushroom ketchup and a little salt and pepper. Make some long strips of toast, and butter, and while still hot spread with this mixture, and serve at once.

Cheese biscuits are easy to make. Spread some water biscuits—any round unsweetened hard crackers will do. Have ready a little grated cheese and mix it with a little butter and spread on the crackers or biscuits. Add a dash of paprika and put on a pan and place in the oven until the cheese melts. Then serve at once.

NEW WAYS WITH OLD POTATOES

Potato Snow.—Boil some potatoes in their skins until tender. Drain and dry by the stove and then peel them. Put a hot dish near the stove and rub the potatoes through a coarse sieve on to the dish. Do not touch them after they have been rubbed through.

FOOD AND HEALTH

FAIR FAT AND FIT

(By Winifred Stuart Gibbs; Food Specialist.)

A recent newspaper writer, speaking of the long prevalent craze for "reducing" notes that "fatness and fitness" are good team mates! Dr. Thurman B. Rice points out that the tuberculosis death rate is in both sexes declining, in all groups save one. This group might be called the most important of all, for it is made up of adolescent girls and young women. The same writer goes on to show how it is comparatively easy to find the reason for this and his conclusion is that, to be entirely fit, one must have approximately the number of pounds planned for him by nature.

Numerous aspects of the weight problem have been discussed. First we read of the relation of weight to fashion, then to health, and then to the popular style of dressing. Be that as it may, it is time and labor well spent to discuss the relation of normal weight to what this writer calls fitness.

Even if the flapper does crave to be as her sisters in slimness she also, if she is to be counted modern, must be fit. The girl or young woman who is "delicate" stamps herself at once as at least late Victorian. Basket-ball and tennis, running and rowing, have all played their part in making sports smart. The only pity is that with one sensible fashion so firmly rooted in the minds of our young folk, they should allow themselves to offset much of the good accomplished by a foolish fashion.

Remembering that mere discussion for the sake of discussion is usually futile, why not hammer away at the advantages of fitness? This is positive to a degree. It will be the exceptional girl who does not respond to such discussion, for the average girl loves an active life. Our modern girls are sensible along so many lines that if we approach them with skill, we should be able to so emphasize the relation of normal weight to fitness that they will forget in part at least their longings for slim silhouettes.

As for the good such reform will do to the coming generation, the children of these future mothers, it is incalculable. If it be the truth, as some authorities aver, that parents are responsible for the lack of moral steadiness in our young people, it is even more certain that the girls of to-day, that is, the mothers of to-morrow will be responsible if their children are puny.

Probably this may not be the strongest talking point when discussing the matter with the girls themselves, that is, at first. On the other hand, the average girl is serious in her heart about her responsibilities to life and an occasional and judicious allusion to what she may accomplish for the good of her future children is not likely to fall on deaf ears.

Then let us emphasize fitness rather than fashion. Let us be positive rather than negative. Let us teach our women that they may be fair if reasonably fed. That they will be fit if well fed whether their years number twenty or forty.

TROUBLE SIGNS FOR THOSE PAST 40

Bladder Weakness, Nervousness, Headaches, Frequent, Painful, Scanty Urination, Getting-up Nights

The embarrasing annoyance and genuine misery of Bladder Weakness, often brings "discomforts of old age" to those who really ought to be in the very prime of life.

Countless thousands, perhaps seven out of ten, of folks near middle life are pitiful victims of Headaches, Nervousness, Pains in back and down through groins, frequent but scanty and painful urination—Getting-up-nights.

While serious, if neglected—it is ordinarily a simple matter to relieve these troubles by the pleasant home use of Dr. Southworth's URATABS, which have been victorious in thousands of cases, after other treatments have failed.

No matter how serious or of how long standing your condition may be, you can quickly prove the value of URATABS without risk of cost—for any good druggist will supply you on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back. If URATABS bring you quick and certain comfort, you will be greatly pleased. If they do not fully satisfy, their use will cost you nothing. Try URATABS today, and see what a difference they make.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND UM'S PIE

(By Howard R. Garis.)

One day, when Uncle Wiggily had helped his wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy get all the little bunny rabbits ready for school, and when Mr. Longears had finished his breakfast, he peered out of the window of his bungalow across the snow-covered ground and said:

"I think I shall go look for an adventure."

"It is rather cold to-day," squeaked Nurse Jane.

Then he put on his snowshoes and slid across the garden toward the Bungleump, or little house, partly a stump, where Boppy, Um and the six little Wogglejigs lived.

What's that! You never heard of Wogglejigs? I'm surprised at you! Why, Wogglejigs are little wooden creatures who live in the Bungleump with Boppy and Um. And do I hear you asking who are Boppy and Um?

Why, I told you, in the story last night, how Boppy moved his Bungle-ump over next door to Uncle Wiggily, and how the bunny uncle saved Boppy's red painted nose from being licked off by the rough tongue of the Fuzzy Fox. Boppy and Um were cute little wooden creatures, and Boppy, being a man, was twice as large as Um. Boppy and Um had no arms nor legs but, being round, they could roll over and over like a barrel to get where they wanted to go.

So Uncle Wiggily, on his snowshoes, hopped over toward the Bungleump, and coming from it he heard a sad voice saying:

"Oh, dear!"

"Ha! That sounds like trouble," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he twinkled his pink nose. "And where there is trouble there may be an adventure. I shall look into this."

So he looked into the Bungleump and there he saw Um, the little wooden lady, standing near a kitchen table on which were pots and pans and dishes and flour and apples and the like of that.

"What's the matter, Um?" asked Mr. Longears kindly. "Is the Woozie Wolf going to lick your painted nose off with his rough tongue?"

"No, there is no Wolf here," sighed the little wooden lady. "But I can't make a pie. That's why I'm so sad! I can't make a pie!"

"Ho! Ho! Why should you be sad about that?" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "I'll get Nurse Jane to give you one of her pies," and he started back toward his bungalow.

"No! No, if you please!" exclaimed Um. "That would never do! You see I promised Boppy, when he left this morning to take Mazie, Dazie, Bumple and the other Wogglejigs to school—I promised him when he came back I would have an apple pie for him. Now I have the flour, lard, milk, apples, cinnamon and everything else that goes into an apple pie, but I can't make it. Oh, dear!"

"Is it because you have no hands and arms, Um, that you can't make the pie?" asked the rabbit. "If that's it, I'll mix up the dough for you. Please let me. I know how."

"Oh, it isn't that," said Um. "I have the dough all mixed. I mixed it by jumping up and down in it, for I can do that without hands or legs. But I can't roll out the pie crust to spread over the apples in the pie tin. I never had a rolling pin. This is the first pie I ever tried to make, and if I don't get it finished Boppy will be so disappointed! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

Then Uncle Wiggily had a bright idea. He looked at the little wooden lady and laughed as he said:

"Why, Um, you are just like a rolling pin yourself! Even your wooden head is round. Now, if you put the lump of dough on the table, and roll yourself backward and forward over it, you will flatten it out as nicely as if you had used a rolling pin. Try it!"

So Um jumped up on the table where the lump of dough was, and she rolled back and forth on it until it was flattened out into a big, thin sheet. Then Um flipped it and flopped it by jumping up and down, and tipping it, until she had put it over the cut-up apples in the tin and then it was ready to pop into the oven.

"Now Boppy will be happy!" said Um with a smile, and the rabbit gentleman was glad he had helped her and it made an adventure for him.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

SARTORIALLY SPEAKING

By Alma Whitaker.

Let's be a bit frivolous today. The new fashions are getting interesting. I am afraid legs are going out. Oh, well, it will be easier on the stocking bill.

I have just been to two very stylish parties at which lovely picture actresses were as common as blackberries. In fact, the only ordinary females were the wives of bankers and producers and persons like me. So you will see for yourself I had some marvelous opportunities to note what is being worn just now.

And the most dashing and radiant beauties were nearly all wearing long, full skiets, reaching right down to their ankles! Their bodices were plain, tight fitting, with very long basques, and the skirts were gathered on to this basque with liberal fullness. The old Bertha collar has been revived and it droops to form something of a sleeve reaching half-way to the elbow.

And, on these beauties, anyway, this costume looks perfectly adorable with bobbed hair. There wasn't a sign of returning coiffures or the monstrous wigs we read about. In the few rare cases where wigs were worn, they were cut white-blond wigs of short wavy hair.

Amongst the most lovely of the long, full-gowned damsels were Dolores de Rio, whose rich red gown was all filmy tulle in layers. The effect was that of an ankle-length ballet skirt. Bebe Daniels looked utterly lovely in a pale maize taffeta, very long at the back, slightly shorter in front, and opening to reveal some handsome lace drapery beneath. Dorothy Farnum, who wrote the scenarios for "Bardelys the Magnificent," "The Temptress" and several other highly successful pictures, was in rich, soft black velvet, which, with her lovely jewels, her string of gorgeous pearls and her fair bobbed blonde head, looked utterly enchanting.

But the other extreme is also de rigeur. Norma Talmadge was wearing a short, very skimpy jeweled georgette gown. So was Irene Rich. Mildred Davis (Mrs. Harold Lloyd) who danced with her husband more than anyone else, is a tiny bit of a girl and wore a very tiny bit of exquisite white beaded gown, fitting closely to her figure and stopping at the knee. Norma Shearer has one of each style, so that I saw her both ways on two successive nights—and I wouldn't care which one I looked like!

Although every female everywhere seems to have broken out into a Spanish shawl and these delectable things can cost anywhere from $500.00 to $5.95 in the bargainbasement, there is no sign of their waning glory. Mine was the only cheap one at those two grand parties, however, and one does have to learn how to manage the things. Perhaps the cheap ones don't custer so successfully as the expensive ones, but I certainly can't seem to grab mine in just the entrancing, provocative way that those accomplished beauties grab theirs. There seems to be so much dependent upon the right grab! But they do look extra adorable over the long full skirts.

Shoes—oh, dear, I never saw so many dazzling, piquant shoes in my life before. Jewel-studded heels flashed around the floor during the dancing, or glimmered under tables during the meal—and they did, oh yes, they did seem more effective when they peeped out from beneath those long full skirts. I love the feet of the short skirts. I hope they will remain for practical outdoor purposes, but the longs were the belles of the balls at those parties.

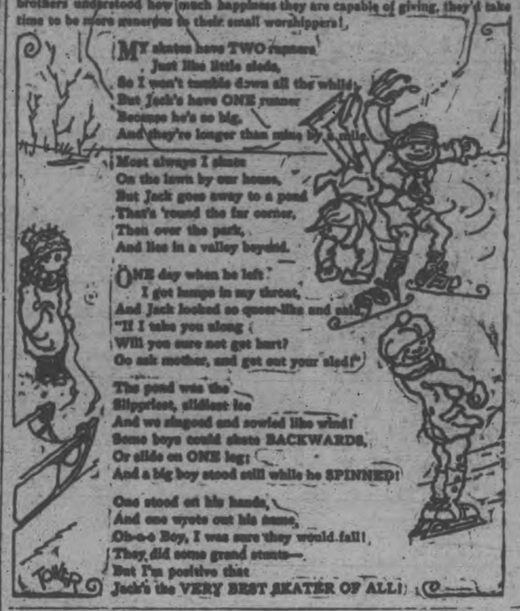
The Best Skater

By SHIRLEY ROUMAN WILLIAMS

JUST as the older boys admire athletes and base ball players, so the wee chaps worship big brothers. Big brothers are creatures specially favored by the gods. They can do wondrous things. They stay up late nights! They bestow their favors in kingly manner, demanding homage as their due. If only big brothers understood how much happiness they are capable of giving, they'd take time to be more generous in their small worshippers!



MY skates have TWO runners
Just like little sleds,
So I won't tumble down all the while,
But Jack's have ONE runner
Because he's so big,
And they're longer than mine by a mile.

Most always I skate
On the lawn by our house,
But Jack goes away to a pond
That's 'round the far corner,
Then over the park,
And lies in a valley beyond.

ONE day when he left
I got lumps in my throat,
And Jack looked so queer-like and said,
"If I take you along
Will you sure not get hurt?
Go ask mother, and get out your sled!"

The pond was the
Slipperiest, slickest ice
And we zinged and sowled like wind!
Some boys could skate BACKWARDS,
Or slide on ONE leg;
And a big boy stood still while he SPINNED!

One stood on his hands,
And one wrote out his name,
Oh-o-o Boy, I was sure they would fall!
They did some grand stunts—
But I'm positive that
Jack's the VERY BEST SKATER OF ALL!

PRINCESS ILEANA ADOPTS NEW DRESS

Trip To America Results in Accepting Our Forms of Costumes.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 13 (United Press).—Princess Ileana has shocked Bucharest by her adoption of American dress, the result of her trip to America with Queen Marie. The Princess bought a number of sports costumes in New York, and she has been wearing them in turn on her walks along the Boulevard Kisoloff, the Fifth Avenue of the Roumanian capital.

If she had the normal feminine desire to make an impression she was successful. Her abbreviated skirts, and in one case her knickerbockers, caused wide-eyed amazement in the streets, and narrow eyes take on what young people are coming to in aristocratic salons and plebian parlors.

THIS CANADA OF OURS

JESUIT FATHERS.

Q—Who were the Jesuit Fathers?

A—The Jesuits are a religious order connected with the Roman Catholic Church. It was founded by Ignatius Loyola in France. The first Jesuit missionaries arrived in Canada in 1611 at Port Royal, Acadia. A Mission was later established among the Indians and the "Jesuit Relations" were the annual reports written by them in the seventeenth century.

BRISTLING BATTLES of BARE FIST DAYS

(MY LIFE STORY)

By Jack McAuliffe

CHAPTER SEVEN

(Copyright 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

"He's broken one of poor Johnny's ribs—I see it sticking through his jersey!"

Can you imagine how it felt to have a big, dynamite-punching fellow paste you with terrific force right over your short ribs, hear someone yell the above cry of alarm, imagine your side has been blown away and then reach down with your glover and FEEL the protuberance!

I was ready to drop from sheer fright when this incident occurred in my memorable fight at the Evergreen Cemetery at dawn one Sunday with Jake Karcher, who used to work at the same cooper shop with Jack Dempsey, and who challenged me to my first secret fight.

That day I had forgotten I had two plasters on my back over my kidneys. Karcher lammed me with a couple of stiff body punches. One of the plasters loosened at the corner and rolled up like a ball.

I was sure relieved after that round to find this terrific poke to the ribs had busted only the kidney plaster instead of a bone.

We battled on and on and I began to cut his face unmercifully. We were using kid gloves and with kid gloves you can sure clench your fist tighter than bare knuckles and deliver a killing blow. In the seventeenth round I smashed him one on the thin and he sank like a rock.

Well, sir, the funniest thing happened after the fight. Everyone left in the customary threes and fours and finally only Karcher and myself were there. We walked out together and Karcher's face was a mess. He looked as if he'd been run over by a steam roller.

We walked up to a car. The conductor took one look at Karcher and wouldn't let him on.

I fought in a number of amateur tournaments after this and later became acquainted with a nice young chap named Arthur Brisbane, who was writing space on the Sun. He attended quite a few of my shows.

I worked my way up to the finals for the amateur lightweight title and met and walloped Bill Ellingsworth for the crown. Then I followed Jack Dempsey's advice and quit the amateurs.

NOTE: In the next chapter McAuliffe gives you the authentic story of how the original Jack Dempsey went into the middleweight class and handed over the world's lightweight title to his pal, McAuliffe, and how McAuliffe defended it and retired undefeated.

WILL SHULTE EXPLODE OR DELIVER

By Billy Evans

What will be the fate of Fred Shulte, outfield star of the Milwaukee club of the American Association, who joins the St. Louis Browns next spring?

Will he blossom out as an overnight star; will he have to go through a couple of years of schooling before he delivers, or will he explode with a loud bang, as have so many other highly-touted stars?

The major league scouts I have talked with, perhaps a dozen, are agreed that Schulte is a great player who will win an immediate berth in the St. Louis outfield.

So far Shulte has escaped a lot of publicity that usually goes with any player costing in the neighborhood of $100,000. That should help him, for it will keep the St. Louis fans from having an exaggerated idea of his greatness.

A half dozen major league clubs were angling for Shulte last summer but the St. Louis Browns got him because of their ability to immediately deliver players to Milwaukee, who were much needed at the time.

In addition to a large wad of cold cash, St. Louis handed over three mighty good ball players to the Brewers in the person of Shortstop Bob Lamotte and Pitchers Claude Jonnard and Charley Robertson.

When spring tra-la arrives and the players depart for the south to make ready for the race, no doubt we will hear much more about the great Mr. Shulte. A second Ty Cobb, will be a mild way of press-agenting the youngster.

Shulte is a right-handed batsman who hit close to .400 last season, in a league that boasts mighty good pitching. He is said to be just as good an outfielder as Johnny Mostil, who steps into Speaker's shoes, now that the briliant Texan has quit the game for good. If he is as good a fielder as Mostil, he is made. Very fast, he is said to be a mighty good baserunner, also.

A jinx has pursued a majority of the costly recruits who have come to the majors in recent years. Shulte hopes to be an exception to this rule, and even the most skeptical of the scouts believe that he will.

FORT WILLIAM LEADS THUNDER BAY GROUP

Leaders Break Tie By Defeating Port Arthur 8 To 4.

FORT WILLIAM, Jan. 13—The Fort William team broke up the all round tie for leadership of the Thunder Bay senior series last night when they won from Port Arthur by 8 to 4.

The game was full of action all the way, the aggressive tactics of Fort William completely breaking up the famous Port Arthur system and at the same time carrying their own forwards right in through the defence and on top of the goaltender for the biggest count that has been piled up against a Port Arthur team in years. On the other hand the close defence work of Tuckwell and Davis kept the Ports pretty well out of the danger zone.

Fort William were winners all the way, with the exception of a few minutes in the second period, when Port Arthur pulled out of a 2—2 hole to tie the score, only to fall back and trail in the count for the remainder of the contest.

Chas. Gorman, famous speed skater of St. John, N.B., who is going strong again this winter.

PRESBYTERIANS TAKE OPENER

Overcome Early Lead of Independents For 4-1 Victory.

MILLBROOK LEAGUE.

MILLBROOK, Jan 13. — The first hockey match in the local league series, took place on the Cosmos rink on Tuesday evening, the Independents and the Presbyterians lining up as opposing teams, at 7.30 p.m.

There was some good hockey with the Independents scoring one goal in the first period, the Presbyterians scoring two goals in the second period, and doubled this in the third, so the final score stood 4-1 in favor of the team from Grace church.

K. Donnelly, E. Nattrass and C. Ingram were the stars of the game. A. McCorry gave entire satisfaction as umpire. The players were:

The next game will be on Thursday evening, between the Anglicans and the United Church. The league game will continue on Tuesday and Thursday evenings during the season.

"Slim" Halderson, the long-geared defence player Toronto St. Pats have acquired from Detroit Cougars, Halderson, who is over six feet tall and has a boarding house reach, sprang into fame at right wing for the famous Winnipeg Falcon team which won the Olympic hockey championship in 1920 at Antwerp.

ENDORSE CHANGES IN BASEBALL RULES

Says Rules For Betterment of Game Not Always Acted On.

(By Billy Evans)

Baseball is not without its faults. Every now and then it is apparent certain changes in the rules would better the game, but the suggestions are not always acted upon.

When the football rulemakers believe some reform will work for good, it is incorporated in the rules and given a thorough trial. If it fails of its objective, then the following years the solons go back to the old interpretation.

In that sense football is more progressive, despite the fact it has no opportunity to try out suggested reforms before actual play.

Experimental Stations.

I would like to see the major leagues' training camps in the south used as experimental stations for some of the reforms that it is believed would help the sport.

The spring games are under the supervision of competent major league umpires. These officials would be in a position to form a definite opinion of the various reforms after seeing them executed in actual competition.

Incidentally the managers and players would have an opportunity to judge the merits of any suggested change, also the newspapermen following the teams.

This would eliminate the necessity of changing a rule in midseason, as was the case several years ago relative to what constituted a home run.

Mid-Season Shift.

Back in 1920 the rulemakers decided that after a batted ball passed out of the playing field, the jurisdiction of the umpire over it immediately ended.

If the ball was fair, in the opinion of the umpire, when it passed out of the playing field, it was a home run, even though it finally curved foul before passing out of his sight.

The rule seemed fair enough and I am still rather partial to it, but the consensus of a majority of the umpires and managers was that it was more accurate for the umpire to render a decision of fair or foul as to where the ball was when it passed out of his view.

This decision was reached after about two months of play, so that part of the season was played under one rule and the rest under just the opposite.

Babe Ruth profited to the extent of six home runs that spring and lost perhaps a dozen others as a result of the change.

Intentional Pass.

The first experiment I would like to see the teams make in the south would have to do with the intentional pass. Probably there is no solution of this play that would satisfy, yet an experiment would be well worth while.

The other day I received the following suggestion from a California fan, Albert Lengel. While it is not an exactly new idea, it is one that I have always believed worth experimenting with. Here is his proposed rule.

"It shall be optional with the batter to accept a base on balls after receiving four legal balls and before receiving three strikes." Here is the way such a rule would be interpreted:

Concrete Example.

Babe Ruth is at bat. He is pitched four balls but refuses to take his base. He finally gets two balls good enough to swing at and fouls off both, making the count three balls and two strikes. Then Ruth, if he desired, could continue to hit until he had his third strike or, if he preferred, he could walk, provided there had been four wide ones prior to the second strike.

Off hand, as I see it, one greatest flaw to such a rule would be that it would tend to greatly dealy the game, which is always objectionable.

NURSES ARRIVE AT APSLEY OUTPOST

APSLEY, Jan. 12—On Tuesday last Miss Hamilton, who is head of the Field Nursing Department of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society came to Apsley bringing with her Miss Ottaway, the nurse who has been appointed to the Outpost here, and Miss Howie who will act as housekeeper. Miss Hamilton went on to Bancroft on Thursday to attend the opening of the Outpost Hospital there, which took place on Friday. Miss Ottaway and Miss Howie are already in residence at the Hospital here, which is not quite completely equipped. A considerable sum is required to meet the balance of the purchase price of the Hospital.

Further subscriptions to the Red Cross Hospital at Apsley have been received by the treasurer, Mrs. J. Downing as follows: A friend $25, Peterborough Lumber Co. $10; Miss Mildred Hales $5, Mr. Richard Lees, Peterboro, $5; Herb Tucker, $5; Lasswade St. Paul's Christmas tree collection $3.50, Bert Lean $2, Jim Lean $1, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Woodbeck $1, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Johnston $2; total to date $806.50.

At the annual meeting of the Apsley Consolidated School Board three new members were elected to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Rev. C. Spence, Mr. S. Windsor and Mrs. A. Wood. The new members are Messrs. Tom Tanner, Neil Whitmore and Wm. Johnston.

A meeting of the ratepayers will be held on Saturday, January 15th, to vote on the question of consolidation.

DIAMOND JUBILEE ENGAGES CABINET

Will Appoint Inter-Department Committee To Make Preliminary Preparations.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 13 (Canadian Press). — Canada's Diamond Jubilee celebration, to be held in July next has been engaging the attention of the Cabinet, and an inter-departmental committee is being appointed to make preliminary preparations for the event. Announcement to this effect was made by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, at the conclusion of yesterday's meeting of Council.

The Prime Minister intimated that he favored the selection of a national committee to make full preparations for the celebration, such as the Canadian Patriotic Fund which functioned during the Great War. The likelihood is that at a later date a committee of this nature will be named.

The Cabinet was in session for nearly four hours yesterday; but Premier King stated that no appointments had been made to any of the existing vacancies.

ORGANIZE LEAGUE

Whites Take Opening Game From Reds in Deloro League.

MARMORA, Jan. 13.—A plant hockey league has again been organized at Deloro, four teams in all competing, wearing the different colors of red, white, blue and grey by which names they are known.

The opening fixture was played on the new Deloro rink on Saturday evening between the Reds and Whites. In the first period, Bennett scored for the Whites on a lone rush. In the second period, Leal evened the score for the Reds. In the third period during a melee in front of the Reds goal Leal, their left defence, put the puck through his own goal. Matthews on scored another for the Whites who won by 3-1.

Mr. H. A. McNally refereed the game. The Blues and Greys clash next Wednesday evening.

(By F. D. C.)

The Petes had not a great deal of difficulty in disposing of the North Toronto team in last night's senior O.H.A. fixture in the Toronto arena, winning from the Jack Cain-Tracey Shaw outfit by 5 goals to 3.

The victory, the first of the season for the Petes on Toronto ice, sent the blue and white up into second place in the group race, and they can tighten their hold on that position by beating the Marlboros here on Monday night.

Neither team was at full strength in last night's fixture, Frankie Collins being an absentee from the Peterboro line up on account of an attack of "flu", while North Toronto could only muster up one sub.

On the play the Petes should have won by a larger margin. They had more speed and much better team work than North Toronto and worked themselves into a scoring position much more often than the losers. That they did not run up a bigger score is to be explained partly by their usual ineffectiveness at the goal mouth and party by a fine performance in the nets by McAllister, who made a lot of clever saves. The former Sarnia and Parkdale goaler was playing his first game for North Toronto and he was a tower of strength to them.

Eddie Wright's team never appeared to be in any danger of suffering defeat although the score was tied at the end of the first period and at one stage the North Toronto squad was leading 2 to 1. The Petes should have been three or four goals in front at the first rest period and it was evident that they would eventually flash in front. Two counters early in the second period, both from the stick of Bert McLeod, settled the argument and after that it was just a case of playing out the string.

The blue and white had the edge all the way and although North Toronto tried hard their attack lacked system while the stickhandling and passing of the Petes' attackers carried them repeatedly in on top of McAllister.

Outstanding in the Peterboro victory was the successful work of Bert McLeod, the smart playing of Babe Bogardis at centre, and a fine exhibition of puck-carrying by Ranger. McLeod scored three of his team's five goals, two of them on rink length dashes through the whole opposing team and the third on a rebound and his work on the attack was the best of the season. Bogardis was the other Peterboro scorer, getting a pair of clever counters, while he engineered a number of fine plays that deserved more goals. Ranger, by reason of his great stickhandling, was always prominent. The Petes' left winger could do everything but score, missing some great chances.

While Bogardis and Ranger stood out, Ken Kane gave his best performance since joining the Petes, and Eddie Williams was always useful.

McAllister, Jack Cain and Tracey Shaw were North Toronto's best. McAllister's work kept the losers in the game while Cain checked and rushed well. Shaw moved up to the forward line in the second period and the North Toronto attacks became noticeably more effective, Shaw getting a nice goal on an individual effort and staging several other raids that came close. McCaffrey was probably the best of the forwards who were outplayed all through by the Petes' attacking brigade.

The best of good feeling was shown and there were only three penalties for minor offences, North Toronto drawing two of them.

Tied In the First.

The Petes had a good margin on the play in the early stages, but it took them some time to beat McAllister. Ranger worked right inside but the goalie dived into the shot, and right after this play blocked a hot one from Bogardis and the rebound slammed back at him by Williams. Shaw staged a pretty rush for North Toronto, but Dwyer was in the way. Kane and Ranger combined, and with the defence beat, Ranger's drive was inside of the nets. The Petes' left wing stickhandled inside again and McFinally Bert McLeod decided that it Allister flopped to avert a counter, was up to him to show the forwards how to score and the big defence man carried the rubber the length of the rink through the whole North Toronto team to drive a terrific shot into the top corner of the nets.

The Petes stayed in front just 30 seconds for North Toronto broke away from the face off and Fleming standing unchecked in front of the Petes' net took a pass from the cornet and scored easily.

North Toronto flashed in front shortly after on a fine play by Tracey Shaw. He poke-checked the rubber away from Parker at centre and sailed in with only McLeod to beat, stick-handling around the Petes' defence man to fool Dwyer at close range.

Sixty seconds after the Petes tied it up. Williams, Bogardis and Ranger combined to make it possible, Bogardis slipping in the rebound off Ranger's side shot. The Petes had several other good chances before the period ended but could not turn the trick.

Second Period.

Two smart goals by Bert McLeod inside the first five minutes of the second period put the Petes in the lead. McLeod got the first two and a half minutes after the start, when he skated through the North Toronto team and slid the puck into the corner of the net well out of McAllister's reach.

Two minutes after he broke away with Ranger, and when the left winger's shot was intercepted by McAllister, McLeod was on the job to slam the rebound back into the net.

With the Petes two goals up, the pace slackened, and the remainder of the period was without sensational features. North Toronto's attacks were seldom dangerous, and while the Petes had much better success in working in close, they could not add to their score, McAllister making one particularly fine stop when Ranger stick-handled in on top of him.

The Final "Twenty."

The Petes continued to do the bulk of the successful offensive work in the last period—that is, it was successful until the scoring zone was reached, when the blue and white attackers were beaten by McAllister or threw away the chance on their own account by inaccurate shooting. With Bogardis leading the way and Ranger showing some fine stick-handling, they had plenty of chances to score, but it was not until nearly sixteen minutes had passed that they finally succeeded in adding to their lead. Bogardis broke away with Ranger, and when the North Toronto defence played for a pass, Bogardis outguessed them by slipping through alone and ripping a fast one past McAllister.

North Toronto, whose attacks had not been particularly dangerous for some time, got that one back on a play on which the Petes were decidedly careless. While they were fooling round in the corner with Graham, McCaffrey, the North Toronto left winger, slipped over in front of the net, called for a pass, got it, and registered the last goal of the night from close in. The last counle of minutes of the period were featureless.

DINNER AND PRESENTATION TO HIS HONOR, THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF ONTARIO, COL. HENRY COCKSHUTT, TORONTO, JANUARY 18TH.

A rousing interest is being taken by the people of Ontario in the banquet and presentation to be tendered on January 18th to Col. Henry Cockshutt, retiring Lieut.-Governor of the Province.

The banquet committee, under the able chairmanship of Mr. George Wilson and the secretaryship of Mr. N. M. McIntosh of Toronto, is working indefatigably to obtain as large a representation of the citizens of the Province as may be possible, and all public bodies and organizations in the various municipalities are putting forth every effort toward assisting in attaining the objective. The co-operation of the Railway Companies follows as a matter of course, and the question of transportation of the guests is receving every attention.

A special train has been announced by Canadian National Railways as operating between Windsor and Toronto, thereby serving the territory from which the attendance is expected to be particularly heavy. From other districts transportation requirements will be protected adequately by the furnishing of extra coaches or parlor cars as may be necessary on regular trains.

The banquet committee have urged those at outlying points to form parties of ten or more, so that advantage may be taken of the special party fare, and this means of reduced transportation will at once recommend itself. Canadian National Agents and representatives at all points are keenly alive of the importance of handling the traffic originating in their areas with comfort and despatch, and will be glad to give complete information and to help in organizing special fare parties for the benefit of those who desire to participate in what will be an outstanding event for many years to come in the history of the Province of Ontario. 8-15

To Jim Maloney, the Boston heavyweight, appears to have been assigned the task of repalling the foreign invasion. Having disposed of Franz Diener, the German heavy, the Boston battler will next tackle Harry Persson, the Swede, in a contest to be held in Madison Square Garden at an early date.

An English artist is now completing a gigantic picture that will include the portrait of all the players who have taken part in the finals for the Football Association Cup since 1888. Eighthy-six teams, as well as the directors and officials of the Football Association—more than 1,100 portraits in all— are included in the picture.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mr. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried. m-th-31-442

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

"One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."

Lately, I was forcibly impressed with the significance of the words contained in Zech. 14:6 to 7, "And it shall come to pass in that day (1,000 year day now dawning) that the light shall not be bright nor dark, but it shall come to pass at evening time (the closing of the day) there shall be light."

This goes to show that during the millennial day, when the world shall be judged, we shall not have a complete transition from darkness and error to full light and truth, until the close of the 1,000 year day.

Wonderful things will be enacted during that day. Ps. 9.8, Isa. 35.5, Isa. 12.9, Isa, 29.18.

BEAVER SHORTAGE.

Dynamiting, Not Trapping, Causes This Condition, Says Indian.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 13.—A number of Indians of the Sault are taking exception to a statement recently made by Game Warden Garnet Magill to the effect that Indians are, to a large extent, responsible for the easy evasion of the law in regard to the trapping of beaver. One very prominent Indian said: "More often it is the white man who breaks the law and the Indians are blamed for it. When there were only Indians trapping there was no such thing as a shortage of beaver. If the general public had trapped with Indian methods we would not have the present conditions that have been complained of concerning beaver and other fur-bearing animals. When the Indian goes trapping he doesn't go dynamiting. Dynamiting is the main cause of the beaver shortage. Trapping is all the Indians have left of the many promises that were made in their treaties."

CARD OF THANKS.

IN MEMORIAM.

BEATTY.—In ever loving memory of our dear daughter, Doris, who passed away January 13, 1926:

Only to us a short time lent,
Was our baby, sweet and dear,
God soon recalled the gift He sent
And left us weeping here.

An angel took our flower away,
But I will not repine,
Since Jesus in His bosom wears
That flower that once was mine.

"Criminally Responsible" Jury's Verdict in Montreal Fire

SOVIET ADVISOR OF NATIONALISTS CALLS THEM POWER TO RELIEVE ALL OPPRESSED PEOPLE OF EARTH

EVACUATION GOES ON.

HANKOW, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Kuomintang, or Nationalist party, backing the Cantonese in their fight to put China under unified control, was set forth by J. Borodin, Soviet political advisor to the Nationalists, as a power which "will eventually relieve all the oppressed peoples of the earth." He made the statement in addressing a mass meeting last night, and warned the throng against the possibility of a counter revolution against the Nationalists.

Although the evacuation of foreigners from Hankow, Kiukiang and other points down the river from here was carried out with a minimum of delay, British authorities yesterday were confronted with a difficult problem in connection with the general evacuation order issued in respect of all British subjects in the interior of Szechwan, Hupeh, and Honan Provinces.

Many refugees in the three interior states have to journey hundreds of miles by the slowest forms of transportation in order to reach the river, where they are being put aboard ships.

In addition to natural difficulties, the British are being hindered by the obstructive tactics by some of the labor unions up river.

Prepare to Fight.

CANTON Jan. 14 (Canadian Press)—British and foreign authorities last night started preparing elaborate defences for Shameen, the foreign settlement, fearing a threatened attack. Nationalists were closing many unauthorized unions and instituting arbitrary regulations for strike settlements.

Messages Altered.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—A wireless message from Hankow to-day asserted news despatches were being altered there before transmission by local authorities to "convey a totally wrong impression." It was added that the situation was quiet.

American-Born Minister.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 14 (United Press). — The Cantonese Government to-day announced that Frank Lee, an American-born Chinese, has been appointed Vice Foreign Minister under Eugene Chen.

Lee, who was formerly secretary to Sun Yat Sen, for the past three years has been professor at the American Missionary Institution and Shanghai Baptist College.

Stomachs Unnecessary, And It's Proved By Dog

CHICAGO, Jan 14 (A.P.).—Stomachs are stupid and rather unnecessary Dr. A. C. Ivy, professor of physiology at Northwestern University, said yesterday in reporting a series of experiments.

Stomachs, he said, went through all the motions of digesting food when there was nothing to digest.

He has a dog that has lived well enough for a couple of years without a stomach establishing that they were not essential.

The stomach might be removed in case of cancer and the patient continue to live, he said, but added that experiments with the stomachless dog showed that it required about 12 hours for him to eat a full meal although he digested it perfectly.

ECONOMY ISSUE.

TOKIO, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Political parties in Japan are building the fences in perparation for the greatest election ever held in the empire—an election wherein more than 9,000,000 new voters will have the privilege of casting their ballots for the first time uner the manhood suffrage law passed by the Diet in 1924.

If the election takes place—and it apparently s a foregone conclusn that Premer Wakatsuk will dissolve the coming Diet for that purpose—it is expected to be preceded by an old-fashioned spell-binding campaign similar to those which have characterized many American presidential contests. Japanese party leaders are emulating in numerous ways the American political tactics.

No Other Course Seen

Premier Waktsuki, who succeeded the late Premier Kato last spring as head of the government, is the leader of the Kenseikai, the minority party in the Diet. The Kenseikia government was able to survive the last session because of a semi-coalition with the Seiyuhonto party. The Seiyoukai, presided over by Gen. Baron Tanaka, was the actual majority party in the lower house, but was effectually defeated through the Kenseikai-Seiyuhonto combination.

The coalition is declared to have ended, the Seiyouhonto demanding what was considered too great a political price for its adherence to the Kenseikai standards. Consequently, there apparently is nothing for Wakatsuki to do but decree a dissolution and go before the country. At the same time, a general election is the last thing desired by any party. The cost is expected to be tremendous and the attitude of the millions of new voters towards parties and politicans is a mystery.

For several months various combinations have attempted to cause the fall of the Wakatsuki cabinet, hoping that a new cabinet would be appointed which would weather the next Diet and, consequently, avoid a national election. The premier has been accused in the newspapers of all sorts of things ranging from lese majeste to perjury with the expectation that he would resign. But the premier has stood his ground and refused to pay any attention to his accusers. Some politicians expect the Seiyoukai to introduce a bill of impeachment in the Diet whereupon it will be the premier's cue to announce dissolution.

The Kenseikai would go before the country on a platform of rigid governmental economy, reduction of taxes, further international disarmament, encouragement of industrial enterprises and the reclamation and improvement of lands in Hokkaido, Formosa and Korea where some portion of the excess Japanese population can be taken care of.

The Seiyoukai is expected to seek election on the ground that the Kenseikai has not done anything toward the improvement of economic conditions but, on the contrary, recently approved a national budget for 1927 many millions in advance of the one this year. It also would accuse the government of harboring and instigating several scandals during its administration.

Attempts have been made recently to organize a Farmer-Labor or Agrarian party, but they have not progressed far.

Noise Of Rushing Traffic Surrounds Royal Palace

LONDON, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Buckingham Palace is rapidly becoming a social oasis in a commercial desert.

Grosvenor Palace, once the envied home of people who liked to have the privilege of overlooking the palace grounds, appear to have lost its attractiveness.

"Mayfair and Belgravia are being ruined for residential purposes by the tremendous noise of traffic which never stops," said an agent of the crown lands. "Omnibuses and heavy wagons keep up the clamour during the day. All through the night there is an endless procession of taxicabs and motor cars."

The outstanding example of loyalty to the old traditions is the Duke of York's moving to 145 Piccadilly. It remains to be seen whether this will induce others to remain near the palace or if the king and his sons are to be left isolated from neighbors.

MOTHER AWAY; TWO CHILDREN BURNED IN HOME

Little Ones Under Two Years Old Die in New Ontario.

MOTHER NEXT DOOR.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 14. Canadian Press. — The two infant children of Mr. and Mrs. LaFleur, were burned to death at Pucksaw 140 miles from here several days ago, according to word reaching the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Company, here to-day. LaFleur, who came from Quebec, is an employee of the company.

The children, one twenty-one months old, and the other only three weeks old, were alone in their home, a frame house lined with building paper, their mother being at the house of a relative a short distance away, when the fire broke out.

It is b lieved an over-heated stove set fire to the building paper.

The bodies were recovered and the matter has been reported to the authorities here.

HELP REQUESTED

TWO NEEDY CASES.

No. 1: A family consisting of father and mother with 5 small children who occupy one camp bed set up on wooden boxes. One heater and one cook stove, kitchen table is all the furniture in the home. What is urgently needed is a bed and bedding for the children, some chairs, clothing for the children, and blinds for three windows. The husband is unable to get steady work and can do no more than supply food for the family. Anyone who can assist this family please 'phone 421.

No. 2: Is a case of a young man, his wife and two small children, who I believe are really deserving of help. The husband is out of work, has no money and his landlord has ordered him out of his house. Where can he go? He has a job of cutting wood but has no buck-saw and cannot procure one.

Will some kind friends help by supplying a buck-saw, food and enough money to pay his rent, and help him over his present difficulty.

I have personally inspected both of these cases and commend them to the generosity of the Christian community.

FARMER SHOT.

CHIPMAN, Alta., Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—Mike Tomashewski, a farmer near here, was shot and killed here yesterday morning, and his alleged assailant was captured by Mrs. Tomashewski and the children, according to word reaching police headquarters here late yesterday. An Alberta Provincial Police constable is on his way to the farm.

According to police reports, the shooting occurred following the dismissal of an employee Mr. Tomashewski moved to the farm only last spring, and was a prosperous and well-known farmer of the district. He leaves a wife and nine children.

THEATRE OWNER AND ASSISTANTS FOUND CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DEATH OF PANIC VICITIMS

Coroner's Jury Verdict After Inquest Into Montreal Movie Palace Fire—Warrants Issued Authorizing Police To Hold Lawand, Aric and Bazzy As Prisoners.

TWO FACTS OUTSTANDING AT INQUEST.

MONTREAL, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press)—Ameen Lawand, owner of the Laurier Palace theatre, where 78 children lost their lives as the result of a stampede following a panic of fire on Sunday; Michel Arie, assistant manager, and Camil Bazzy, head usher of the same theatre, were found criminally responsible for the death of the 78 children and for that of "all other persons who may die from any cause attributable to this panic," by a coroner's jury here last evening.

A warrant was at once issued by Coroner McMahon, authorizing the police to hold Lawand, Arie and Bazzy as prisoners.

The jury's verdict was rendered following a long inquest which was resumed here yesterday morning. Out of the great amount of detail produced in the evidence, two facts were outstanding:

1—That Annette Bordua, cashier at the theatre, had never received instructions to withhold the sale of tickets from children under 16 years—and

2—That Alex Bazzy, brother of Camil Bazzy, acting as ticket-taker, has lived in Canada for 10 years, has been employed at other theatres, but has never heard of the existing law prohibiting the admission of minors under 16 years of age.

Annette Bordua had been cashier at the Laurier Palace for 16 months. She admitted that she had sold tickets to unaccompanied children under 16 years. She did not know how many balcony tickets she had sold.

Nor had she ever been in the balcony of the Laurier Palace. Asked by Antoine Chauvin, assistant crown prosecutor, if it was her custom to sell tickets to children under the legal age, she replied that she had received no instructions not to do so.

She knew nothing about 50 children being admitted gratis. She could give no estimate of the number of minors admitted, but thought it had been quite large.

Miss Bordua declared that she had been in conference with Lawand on Wednesday afternoon, in company with other employees. The conversation had been carried on in Syrian and was not understood by her but she was firm in her declaration that Lawand had told her to tell the truth.

Alex Bazzy, in the course of his evidence, admitted that he did not know of the existence of the provincial law and also said that he had not refused admission to any children on Sunday. He denied that he himself had bought a ticket for Albert Homillard, a boy of seven.

Princess and Coster Dance At Carnival

LONDON, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—The dancing of Princess Marie Louise, cousin of King George, with a costermonger featured the carnival for the benefit of the Street Traders' Association here last night. The Princess was the guest of honor, and she invited Don Marriatt, whose suit glittered with thousands of pearl buttons, shared her hand throughout and beamed proudly when the Princess complimented him on his dancing.

SNOW STORMS BLOCKADE CITY

Communication Cut Off at Vancouver in Storm Along Coast.

TRAINS DELAYED.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press)—Delaying street car service, hampering traffic generally, and cutting Vancouver off from direct wire service to the south, one of the heaviest snow storms of the winter season fell over the lower mainland and a considerable part of the coast during Wednesday night. Up to noon yesterday it was estimated almost eight inches of snow had fallen in Vancouver. East of Vancouver, heavy snow fell in the mountains, and it was expected it would delay trains both east and west.

WITNESSES SAY HOUSE MANAGER BLOCKED STAIRS FROM GALLERY

Told Them To Go Back To Seats As There Was No Danger.

ONE OBEYED,

One Witness Says One of Victims Went Back When Told.

MONTREAL, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press)—Roger Arpin, a witness before the coroner's jury, which last evening held Ameen Lawand, owner of the Laurier Palace theatre, Camil Bazzy, an employee, and Michel Arie, house manager, "criminally responsible" for the deaths of seventy-eight children in Sunday's tragedy, declared that at the first cry of fire he rushed for the stairs and had descended only three steps when a man stretched out his arms and blocked the way, at the same time yelling to the children to go back, that there was nothing to fear.

Arpin succeeded in passing the man, who, he said, nearly choked him.

Romeo Collin identified Michael Arie as the man who blocked the stairway. He also declared that Rene Champagne, one of the victims, had been sent back by Arie after starting to descend the stairway.

Manslaughter Charge Laid

Ameen Lawand, proprietor of the Laurier Palace theatre, Camille Bazzy, ticket taker, and Michael Arie, house manager, were arraigned on a charge of manslaughter in police court here to-day, in connection with the fire and panic in their establishment last Sunday which resulted in the death of 78 children. A coroner's jury held them criminally responsible for the tragedy yesterday. Preliminary inquiry was set for January 21 and bail was allowed at $5,000 for Lawand and $3,000 each for the other two. They were released at noon and will appear before the Fire Commissioners' inquiry which will be resumed this afternoon.

Radiophone Used To Make Engagement For Luncheon

YONKERS, N.Y., Jan. 14 (United News). — Sir Thomas Lipton made an appointment yesterday over the radio-telephone to have luncheon next month with Captain T. A Brady, retired. Brady called the noted English yatchsman and asked him when he was coming to America again.

"I am coming to America in a month's time," said Sir Tom, "and will come to Yonkers and have luncheon with you."

WINDOWS RATTLE IN NAPANEE STORES

Heavy Rumble Heard, Believed To Have Been Earthquake.

KINGSTON, Jan. 14.—The residents of Napanee believe that they had an earthquake Wednesday night. A heavy rumble was heard and plate glass in some of the stores rattled very plainly although no damage is reported. The affair caused great excitement in the town.

Collecting walking sticks is a hobby of one New York man. He has 380 sticks of different woods or different colors or markings.

All Eggs In One Basket; City Faces Bankruptcy

NEVADA, Iowa, Jan. 14. — (United Press).—Two bank failures within the last few days have brought the city of Nevada to a state of near bankruptcy, according to Mayor C. N. Lockingbill. The city funds are locked behind the door of the defunct People's Savings Bank and the funds of the city library, sufficient to run the town for a month, are in the same bank.

LOCAL THEATRES WELL EQUIPPED FOR PROTECTION

Both Projection Booths Constructed of Steel and Concrete.

MANY EXITS.

Special Precautions Taken During Matinees For Children.

"The Capitol Theatre complies with the law in every respect, the exits being so arranged that a capacity house can be emptied on to the street in three minutes," declared J. D. Fletcher, manager of the theatre, to The Exminer to-day. "As far as this theatre is concerned, he continued, "it is fireproof in every respect, being constructed entirely of cement, steel, and brick."

This theatre has always made it a practice to keep the children on the ground floor during the Saturday matinees, the balcony being reserved for adults.

The staff is fully trained for every emergency that might arise, each member being detailed to a special post.

The projection booth is built of steel and concrete and is fitted with automatic fire shutters on all outlets that lead into the theatre. If a fire should occur these shutters close in the fraction of a second.

Fire Chief George Gimblett and an inspector inspected the theatre from top to bottom less than a week ago, he said, both of these gentlemen expressing themselves as being completely satisfied with the arrangements.

The Capitol Theatre is as near fireproof as it is possible to build and all wiring conforms to the most stringent government regulations, he said in conclusion.

Regent Theatre.

"As far as exits are concerned, there is not a theatre in the country better equipped than we are," declared G. F. Schneider, owner of the Regent Theatre. "We have one exit for every 50 people."

The ushers are all trained and in cases of emergency are detailed for special points of vantage so that no panic may result. The projection booth is constructed of concrete and steel and is fitted with fireproof shutters, rendering a fire impossible.

Special precautions have always been taken in regard to matinees for children, several adults always being on hand and interspersed at different points throughout the building.

KINGSTON WANTS GRAIN TERMINAL

ESTIMATED COST.

KINGSTON, Jan. 14.—The local harbor committee has been notified that the Board of Engineers that was to visit this city in connection with the location of the grain terminal will not be able to do so. It was expected that the Board of Enginers would visit here this weekend. No explanation is given for the change in plans, but it is presumed that the Commission will come at a later dat. The Harbor Committee applied for the government estimates on the cost of the work of dredging in the harbor and the estimates are very much in favor of Kingston. The total cost of the dredging is estimated at $836,000. A deputation will wait on the government at Ottawa and press Kingston's claim for the establishmen of the grain terminal here.

SAWS WOOD AT 80.

WELLESLEY, Mass., Jan. 14 — When John Hastings "gets so's" he can't work, he doesn't want to live any more, he says. Every day the 80-year-old man takes a buck-saw and saws up firewood. He is the grandson of a Revolutionary soldier.

RUSSIAN ARMY CHIEF WARNS PEOPLE THAT ALL COUNTRIES ARE PREPARING FOR ATTACK

Says England Is Behind Move For War On Russia.

URGES PREPARATION.

Says Whole Population, Especially Workers, Must Be Militarized.

MOSCOW, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—Clemeny Voroshiloff, successor to Leon Trotsky as head of the Red Army, has joined the chorus of "war criers" in Soviet Russia. Echoing the gloomy forebodings of Nikolai Buchiarin, of the Communist Executive, Voroshiloff said to-day that Soviet Russia must prepare vigorously for possible war.

"All countries surrounding us, backed by England, are energetically preparing to attack us," he said. "We must militarize our whole population, especially the working classes, and we must conduct an active campaign in our newspapers to prepare our people for the struggle."

While the war scare is found mostly among the masses, important Communist officials do not hesitate to express their anxiety over Europe's intentions, while the Soviet press is inclined to see bellicose tendencies everywhere.

Watchman Warms Feet; World 'Phones Go Dead

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (A.P.). —Radio-phone messages from London to New York were "detoured" Wednesday because a watchman let his salamander—used to toast his shins—became overheated.

Debris in a subway excavation was ignited Monday night by the overheated salamander and 17 telephone cables—among them the one used for trans-Atlantic radiophone messages — were damaged beyond present use. Linemen quickly rigged up another and re-established communication with Houlton, Me. where calls from Houtlon, Me., ceived. The emergency line was established before 8.30 a.m., and trans-Atlantic service was not interrupted.

Six New York exchanges were "dead" for many hours while linemen installed new cables to care for local service.

COL. J. W. MILLER JOINS KIWANIS

Peterborough Veteran Is Heartily Received as Honorary Member.

E. A. PECK SPEAKS.

Today's luncheon of Kiwanis Club was featured by the introduction of Colonel J. W. Miller as an honorary member in recognition of his long service to city and country. The introduction was made by John J. Turner, and President Isaac P. McNabb welcomed him to the Club.

Stanley Willis of Knox Church was the soloist of the day, presenting two numbers that were received with great appreciation. The booster was Arthur Blade, Imperial Oil representative, and the prize winners were John I. Ailen, Arthur Moffatt, and Roy Irwin.

Opportunity was given Past President Craig and Past District Trustee Allen to thank those who supported the Club last year.

E. A. Peck, M.P.

E. A. Peck, M.P., declared his pleasure in visiting Kiwanis Club and expressed appreciation of what the organization has done in the way of helping those who need assistance. The example of Kiwanians is an inspiration to others, he said.

Referring to federal matters, Mr. Peck told of two new problems which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the people. They are questions that should be dealt with free from party.

This Canada of ours, the speaker recalled, began in a small way sixty years ago. The lower provinces entered into a covenant to get together and build up a great dominion. Later the other provinces were drawn into the confederation. We have made progress westerly and not easterly. Our eyes are centred on the west, with the danger of being unfair to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. These provinces claim that we have been unfair in the way of freight rates and in trade intercourse, and they have come to Parliament to have adiustments made.

The report of the investigators finds that the complaints of the Maritime provinces are well founded.

We all must agree that the eastern provinces are entitled to consideration and that action will be taken to bind the provinces of this confederation closer together.

Imperial Relations

Every three or four years deputations from the countries in the British Empire meet in London. Last fall such a gathering convened, and the discussions were varied and long. Many subjects were discussed. One committee made a report which was adopted by the conference as a whole. This report dealt particularly with the seeking of a definition of the relations of the government's of the dominions with the British government.

Are we to look at our continued association with Great Britain or are we going to take a new view of the liberty given us definitely in the definition handed down by the Imperial Conference? This question, Mr. Peck said, should engage the serious consideration of every citizen.

FIVE ACTRESSES MAY BE NAMED

Mrs. Chaplin Said To Be Prepared To Draw Them Into Case.

BOOKLET SOLD.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 14. — Canadian Press. — The possibility that they may be drawn into the Charles Chaplin divorce case, hung over the heads of "five prominent motion picture actresses," to-day.

It is stated Mrs. Chaplin is prepared to furnish the names of the five women she referred to in her divorce petition as "publicly and privately" associated with Chaplin.

Thus far the names have not come out, but they will be produced it is said, if they are demanded either by the court or by Chaplin's counsel.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles warmed up to the case by showing such a liking for its details that a booklet in which Mrs. Chaplin's petition was given in its entirety, has been sold. The copies brought 25 cents each.

The County Clerk's office has been so besieged with requests to see the petition that it has been sequestered from the file.

Chaplin Ridicules Charges

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press)—Arriving here today from Chicago, Charlie Chaplin characterized the charges made by his wife in her suit for divorce as "ridiculous."

The whole affair was instigated by his wife's family, according to the film comedian, who said they were after his money and not the children. Chaplin declared he would fight to the bitter end for his children, whom he had seen once in the past five months. He intimated he had "plenty of grounds" on which he thought the court would award him custody of the babies.

He laughed at reports that his fortune was estimated at sixteen millions. "I would be well pleased if I had three or four millions," he said.

ELECTED MAYOR.

E. J. Roy, Formerly of Peterborough, Mayor of Napanee.

Mr. E. J. Roy, son of the late R. M. Roy and brother of Mrs. Roland Denne, has been elected Mayor of Napanee.

THE WEATHER.

For a change, Nature has supplied us with about six inches of freshly-fallen snow. This will give men (and in some cases women) an opportunity for the development of muscle, and the elements with an abundant supply of the material for some heavy drifting. It was remarked by many, that until a day or so ago the roads were never in better shape for both sleighs and wheels. Lowest temperature last night 9 degrees above.—W. P.

EVACUATION OF RHINELAND MAY GO TO LEAGUE

Von Pawels Has Offered No Concrete Plan To Ambassadors.

BRIAND PREPARES.

Sees New Hostility To His Peace Policy With Berlin.

PARIS, Jan. 14. — There seems little likelihood that any satisfactory arrangement will come between now and the end of January on the question of fulfilment of the disarmament conditions by Germany. General von Pawels, who returned to Paris a few days ago from Berlin, has as yet submitted to the French military experts no concrete plans on behalf of the German Government which would permit the Conference of Ambassadors to conclude that the fortifications on the eastern frontier are exclusively defensive in character, and it is evident that Germany intends to base its case on the interpretation of the Allied concessions at the time of the Bolshevist menace, so as to secure an arrangement decision.

If before the end of the month no settlement has been reached, the whole case will be laid before the Council of the League of Nations and arbitration may be resorted to.

The fact that a new Government has not yet been formed in Germany has strengthened the hands of the German military authorities against making any concessions, even of form, and their attitude and its results seem not unlikely to have considerable influence both in the organization of the new German Cabinet and in French internal affairs.

Briand Foresees Test of Policy.

During the past two days Foreign Minister Briand has been the most active person in French political life and round his activities many legends are growing. It is openly stated that he foresees an early test of strength within the Cabinet and in the Chamber, and he is getting ready for it.

In the whole of the Right press during the past two weeks, a vigorous campaign has been conducted against any suggestion for hastening the evacuation of the Rhineland, and it is this campaign which M. Briand is credited with being out to meet.

If he were in the opposition, his position and tactics would be easy, but as a member of the Government his situation is enormously more delicate. He is in no way anxious to upset the present administration as long as the financial situation is not settled. His interest is only to secure that there will be no interference with his Locarno policy and all its consequences, and it is for that end that he took a fairly active part in Tuesday's election of a President of the Chamber other than the Nationalist, M. Maginot, and he has been busy canvassing his supporters among all parties.

Evacuation and Debts Linked.

It is in the Senate that he will probably make his first move, for he is under a promise to make a statement of his peace policy there soon. In the Chamber it is felt that public debate on foreign affairs would be too risky for the Government as a whole.

The situation is to be allowed to evolve and will not be forced. Just how it evolves will be dependent on many things. Von Pawels's attitude will be one determining factor, but even more important will be the financial situation of the Government.

In unmistakable fashion, there has recently been linked to the question of foreign credits the evacuation of the Rhineland, as well as ratification of the American and English debt settlements. It is there, perhaps, that the decisive factor lies in a situation which is still nebulous and uncertain, but to meet which when it arises the Foreign Minister is at least preparing all his ammunition.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press)—Increasing shipments from Argentina and liberal moisture for the domestic winter crop gave wheat a downward slant yesterday. Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to half cent lower, corn at 1-8¢ to ¼c advanced, oats unchanged to 1c off, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 25c.

Wintry conditions in the corn belt put strength into corn. The crop movement is expected to fall off because of heavy snowfalls. Oats were steadied by corn.

Mussolini's Work Idea Too Much For Musician

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (A.P.). —Arturo Toscanini, Italian conductor, a disciple of the strenuous life of Mussolini, is ill with bronchitis. Two concerts scheduled for this week have been cancelled. At 59, he has been working much harder than in his younger days and frends fear he has overtaxed his strength.

KILLS TO SAVE WIFE MAN FREED BY JURY

Husband's Attorney Asks For Arrest of State Witness.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 14. —Demand for the arrest of Earl G. Tennis, one of the material witnesses for the State in the trial of Anthony Disabatini, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death September 18 of Peter Finnegan was made in Superior Court by Fred P. Geib, counsel for Disabatini, immediately after the respondent was acquitted.

Disabatini maintained he struck Finnegan and Tennis with the handle of his automobile jack after they had insulted and attempted to assault his wife on the street near their home. He chanced upon the scene just as the two men approached Mrs. Disabatini. The jury agreed with his contention he possessed an inherent right to protect his wife and unborn child.

"Decent law abiding citizens should not be content to sit by and forget what has happened in this case," Geib told Superior Judge Leonard D. Verdier, who said he would confer with the prosecuting attorney regarding Tennis.

CAVAN PERSONALS

CAVAN, Jan. 14.—Master Kelly and Master Joe Munroe went in to Peterboro on Monday evening. They were accompanied by their aunt, Miss Kelly. From Peterboro they returned to the Grove school, Lakefield, which opened on last Wednesday.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of Cavan Rural Telephone Co., will be held in Cavan Community Hall, on Tuesday, Jan. 18 at 8 p.m.

The Cavan Women's Institute will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Loyd Sutton, 8th line on Thursday afternoon.

OLD MASTERS

Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes,
In looking on the happy autumn fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.

That brings our friends up from the underworld,
Sad as the last which reddens over one
That sinks with all we love below the verge;
So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns
The earliest pipe of half-awaken'd birds
To dying ears, when unto dying eyes
The casement slowly grows a glimmering square;
So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remember'd kisses after death
And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feign'd
On lips that are for others; deep as love,
Deep as first love, and wild with all regret;
O Death in Life, the days that are no more.

—A. Lord Tennyson (untitled).

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

WHILE WE MAY

We think they always will be ours,
Children and leaves and birds and flow'rs,
Yet blossoms bud, and bloom, and blow
Away before we fairly know,
And leaves that once made green the trees
Are borne away upon the breeze,
And birds fly south in autumn days,
And children grow, and go their ways.

The garden's rose, the singer's song,
Are never given us for long.
And yet I would not make you sad,
Would only have you be as glad
As glad you may, and while you can.
The child so soon becomes the man.
Let us take time, and join the play
Of little children, while we may.

GREAT BRITAIN STRIVING FOR TRADE RECOVERY

Seek Meeting With French Magnates To Consider Customs Formalities.

EUROPEAN PACTS.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—While industrialists of Great Britain are lamenting the worst trade year ever experienced, the Federation of British Industries is planning far-reaching schemes for the development of international co-operation in industry throughout Europe.

The latest step in this direction is the projected conference between British and French industrial magnates, who have summoned an important gathering, which will meet in London in the near future, ostensibly to consider customs formalities, but also to explore the possibilities for joint action by certain leading industries, with a view to equalizing wages, costs and selling prices in both countries.

While it is asserted that it is not intended to form a new international cartel, it is pointed out that during 1926, steel, aluminum and copper cartels were formed in Western Europe as well as an international rails convention.

Trade Balance.

Industrialists consider such plans the best means of reviving British trade, the adverse balance of which last year amounted to £465,000,000, being the worst ever known. Even including "invisible" exports, it is estimated that Great Britain's margin for investment abroad has almost disappeared. This state of affairs is explained by the coal stoppage, but the consequences are felt to be so grave that Right Hon. Arthur Henderson's scheme for an industrial peace conference is regarded with much favor, particularly as it is expected to indicate the lines upon which a future agreement with labor may be built.

Important employers, however, are not enthusiastic over this plan, as they feel that labor is too much involved in politics to desire peace on a purely industrial basis. Other critics point out that the suggested industrial conference will afford labor a means of "saving its face" after involving the country in a grave loss of trade.

Foreign Trade Falls.

LONDON, Jan. 14—Great Britain had the huge adverse trade balance, allowing for re-exports, of more than £465,000,000, in 1926, the biggest since 1919, when, in consequence of the war, it was £662,000,000.

This serious position is revealed in the Board of Trade figures, just issued, which also show that the total foreign trade, that is, imports and exports combined, fell £228,000,000, as compared with 1925.

The situation is ascribed largely to the coal strike, but for which, it is calculated, the adverse balance would not have been worse than in 1925, when it was £393,000,000.

DOURO COUNCIL

The inaugural meeting of the members of the Muncipal Council of the Township of Douro was held at the Town Hall, Douro, on Monday, Jan. 10th.

After subscribing to the declaration of office, the members took their seats as follows: Mr. J. J. Leahy, Reeve, in the chair, and Councillors J. A. Crowe, J. D. O'Shea, Arthur Carveth and Thomas J. Fitzgerald.

On motion, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The following municipal bylaws were passed, viz; Bylaw No. 962 appointing Maurice Condon and Oliver Douglas, auditors, at a salary of $12.50 each.

Bylaw No. 963 appointing Thomas E. Whibbs, sanitary inspector; P. McMurray, member of board of health; William Hayes, school attendance officer; William Frankish, M. Ryan, George Hamilton and William McKeever, sheep valuers; Stephen Scott, Jos. P. Leahy, Herb. Abbott, William Hayes and Fred Walsh, pound-keepers; Patrick O'Grady, Frank O'Connor, Joseph Coughlin, Bart Leahy, Charles Frankish, George Garbutt, William Garvey and Frank Heffernan, fence viewers.

Bylaw No. 964, authorizing the Reeve and Treasurer to borrow certain sums of money as required, not to exceed $5,000.00 for current expenditure and $4,000.00 for school purposes.

Moved by A. Carveth, seconded by Thomas J. Fitzgerald, that the collector be authorized to collect balance of 1926 taxes forthwith and have roll returned by February 1st.

Orders on the treasurer were passed as follows: Hilliard Reid, charity, on account of loss by fire, $22.44; William Frankish, valuing sheep, $6.00; Examiner, priinting 177 nomination notices, $4.73; detailed statements, $26.37; Municipal World, supplies, $3.47; P. G. Towns, salary as treasurer, $125.00, making out financial statement, $8.00.

Council adjourned to met Feb. 2, at 10.00 o'clock a.m.

LEIPZIG, Jan. 14.—A new opera, entitled "Jonny Spielt Auf," was scheduled for its debut here toward the end of January. The work is by Ernst Krenek.

ELECTED SECRETARY

J. I. Adams, Campbellford, appointed Recording Secretary of Percy district of the Loyal Orange Association.

POLICE ARREST "FAMOUS TRIO"

Were Wanted in Half Dozen Different Countries For Confidence Working.

MANY ALIASES.

PARIS, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press) —A straight orthodox confidence game caused the arrest yesterday of three persons variously described as Canadians, Americans and Australians. The police gave their names as Edward Charles Stanley, Claire Morgan Stanley, his wife, and Dudley Sohn, the authorities alleging they are wanted in half a dozen countries including the United States.

The old stunt of "trust me and I'll trust you" which invegled a wealthy Dutchman into placing £14,000 in the hands of the trio, acording to the police, led to their arrest.

Although no complaint has been filed against those arrested, except by a hotel keeper at Nice — that they failed to pay their bill—the authorities assert that Stanley is wanted in New York, San Francisco, Zurich, Amsterdam, London and many French cities where the band is charged with having committed daring robberies.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley and Sohn are said by the police to have more aliases than victims. Stanley, they say, has been travelling under a supposedly false United States passport bearing the name of William Taylor, San Francisco.

SLAYER HOLDS POLICE AT BAY ELEVEN HOURS

Finally Shot in the Head After Long Battle With Possee.

KILLED TWO.

During Battle One of Attackers Shot By Stray Bullet.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 14. — (United Press).—After holding a sheriff's posse at bay for eleven hours, W. B. Johnson, of Jefferson City, was shot in the head and brought to a hospital here early yesterday, suffering from a wound which it is believed will be fatal.

Johnson killed Mrs. Nip Howard and Mrs. Jessie Bishop after they had argued in Mrs. Howard's home. He fled to his own home, forced his family out of the house, and for eleven hours held off some 30 police who attempted to take him into custody.

During the battle at Johnson's home a stray bullet struck "Dibbs" Hicks, Carson and Newman football star, killing him.

Officers finally forced Johnson into the cellar with dynamite bombs, then rushed the half-crazed man and shot him in the head. He was brought to the local hospital, and doctors say he has little chance of recovery.

Late Wednesday Johnson visited the Bishop home, where an argument is said to have started over Johnson's attention to Mrs. Bishop. The former deputy sheriff is said to have shot both women and then to have dashed down side streets to his home.

Tear Bombs Fail.

He took a post in the upper stories of the house and sniped at the sheriff's force which came to capture him. Crowds gathered about the house, but soon were dispersed as the elderly farmer turned his gun fire into their ranks — one bullet striking Howard, the young collegian, who recently was voted the most popular man at his college. Howard died a few minutes later. Several coups were attempted by the sheriff's forces to rout the infuriated murderer, but they failed, and finally bombs were used.

Tear bombs were first tossed into the upper stories of the house, but this failed to stop the sniping. Then after almost ten hours of shooting the officers started using dynamite bombs.

Officers, with drawn guns, for the first time then entered the building. The first floors were lighted, but Johnson was not there.

Deputy Sheriff Ford led a party into the darkened cellar chambers and was met by an immediate fire from one corner, where the murderer crouched and continued his sniping. The battle in the cellar lasted only a few minutes.

It was found he had been wounded in the legs and had been shot through the right eye.

COMMEMORATE PARK ANNIVERSARY MARK

Hon. Charles Murphy's Suggestion as Fitting Tribute to Confederation.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 14.—(Canadian Press.) — To commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of Canadian Nationhood which is to be marked by a Diamond Jubilee celebration this summer, Senator, the Hon. Charles Murphy has suggested to the Federal Government and the Capital's Improvement Commission, that a park be constructed here to be known as "Confederation Park." In making this announcement yesterday Senator Murphy expressed the opinion that the most suitable site for the park would be bordering along the Ottawa river and running from "Barnscliffe," the former residence of Sir John A. Macdonald, a distance of about half a mile in the direction of Rideau Hall, the home of the Governor-General.

BAILIEBORO NEWS

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 14.—Mr. D. Fisher is hauling gravel and brick, preparing to commence his new house in the spring.

Herbert Dean and Karl Long are attending the winter school at Cobourg as delegates from the Y.P.S. of the United church.

Mr. Jos. Lang, who fell on ice last week and broke several ribs, is recovering favorably.

Mr. Wm. Lucas, M.P. of Alberta is the guest of his father and sister.

Rev. H. W. Foley and C. Barnard attended the winter fair at Cobourg on Thursday and Friday.

Miss Edna Dawson, formerly of this district, has entered Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, where she intends training for a nurse.

It May Be a Joke, But Mae Murray Denies It

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (A.P.). —Mae Murray is furiously angry over a joke which she cannot see. It was about her nose. A telegram sent by another woman to her husband and signed with Mae's name led to the inference that Mae's face had been improved but she is quite satisfied with her profile as it is naturally.

COMMITTED TO JAIL LAWYER STILL FREE

WINDSOR, Jan. 14.—Although W. C. Inch, prominent barrister of Amherstburg and former Reeve of that town, was committed to jail for ten days by Judge George Smith yesterday, he was still eating and sleeping at his home to-day. The commiitment was made when the Judge found Mr. Inch guilty of contempt of court.

The big mystery now is where the commitment papers have gone. They were made out by the Judge and given to J. Martin, bailiff at Amherstburg, for service. Mr. Martin says he served them. Mr. Inch would not say what became of them. All he would say was that no more papers would be made out.

The whole trouble started during the argument of a small case before Judge Smith in Division Court at Amherstburg. Mr. Inch asked for an adjournment. The Judge refused it. Mr. Inch then asked for a new trial. The Judge refused it. Then a heated argument ensued.

"The sixth of March can't come too soon to suit me," was Mr. Inch's last shot in the barrage of words. March 6, be it known, is the day on which Judge Smith is to be superannuated.

This angered Judge Smith, who declared it was contempt of court, pure and simple. He informed the lawyer that he would make out papers committing him to jail for ten days.

"Your Honor, you might as well make them out for 20 or 30 days," replied Mr. Inch, "for I am not going to jail, anyway."

CANADIAN GOLD SENT TO NEW YORK

Total Movement Since First of the Year Reaches $19,500,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Bank of Montreal here has received another consignment of Canadian gold amounting to $2,500,000, and the Canadian Bank of Commerce, $3,000,000. This brings the total movement of the metal to this city from Canada since the first of the year to $19,500,000.

TESTS FOR CAREERS.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—If poets are born and not made then the same rule must apply to the candlestick makers, is the belief of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology which recently examined several thousand London school children. Experiments supported by the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust are given with the aim to apply practical psychology to the problem of deciding the future careers of school children.

... KICKS WOLF TO DEATH.

HIBBING, Minn., Jan. 14.—When a female timber wolf invaded the chicken yard of Frank Ashley, former mayor of Hibbing, the world's richest village, Ashley attacked the animal with his feet. He kicked it to death in spite of the fact that it showed fight when cornered. Ashley ruled the town in the heydey of the iron ore influx when it was necessary to battle with every human element.

DEFENCE FUND FOR RATIONALIST BEING LAUNCHED

Aim To Raise $10,000 To Fight Against Organized Religion.

HOLD MEETINGS.

Will Seek Help From the English and German Societies.

TORONTO, Jan. 14. — At a meeting of the directors of the Rationalist Society of Canada, Inc., the question of the defence of Ernest Victor Sterry was fully considered. Sterry, as editor of the Christian Inquirer, is charged with publishing blasphemous libel, and is now out on $1000 bail.

William H. Styles presided at the meeting and it was decided to launch a Sterry Defence Fund.

Offers of unlimited financial aid have come to hand from several secular societies in London, England as well as from prominent individuals there. From New York City several messages containing similar offers have been received.

Public to Judge.

Owen Griffith, organizer of the Publicity and Sales Promotion Department of "The Christian Inquirer," the publication containing the alleged blasphemy, states that he and Sterry are now arranging for a motor truck from which they intend to sell the paper at 25 cents a copy in the downtown area until Sterry's next appearance in court. This will be done "to give the public an opportunity of judging for themselves whether we are right or wrong."

Sterry is also billed to speak at several street corner meetings.

DETROIT, Jan. 14.—Great interest is being shown here in the Sterry blasphemy case of Toronto as there is in Detroit a flourishing branch of the American Rationalist Society.

This branch has numerous associations with the Rationalist of Toronto, interchange of speakers having taken place in the past.

To aid E. V. Sterry, a "Toronto Defence Fund", is being opened and all branches of the American Rationalist Association are to be invited to contribute. The sum of $10,000 is being aimed at and it is expected that in Detroit alone $2000 will be raised.

Embrace the World.

Rationalist officials here are of the opinion that an international defence fund should be raised to aid Sterry, and a proposal is on foot to enlist free thought sympathies in England and Germany. One leading official of the American Rationalist Association here says that the Sterry case is more than an action for blasphemous libel. "We regard it as a test case between the forces of free thought and organized religion," he said.

"It is of far more importance even than the 'evolution case' at Dayton. It involves more than a philosophical theory. It is a fight for the free exposition of what a large body of the public regards as Truth and will be fought by a larger body of the public, namely organized religion."

This official added that whatever the outcome might be the Sterry case could not fail to focus the attention of the whole world on the vital principle of free speech and a free press. "If only to contest the right of organized religion to dictate to the community, the Sterry case will be fought, and fought hard," he said.

SINGLE CONTROL.

English-Speaking Section of Ottawa Separate School Abolished.

OTTAWA, Jan. 14. — Canadion Press. — The English speaking section of the capital's Separate school board, after seven years in existence, was abolished yesterday by a majority vote of the board. J. Genest, board chairman, declared that the four English speaking trustees had not had a meeting of their section since last August with the result that school matters had to be dealt with by the trustees as a whole. The board will now consist of a finance, management and buildings committees.

ANNUAL MEETING PERCY DISTRICT ORANGE LODGES

Largest Attendance in Number of Years at Campbellford.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 14. — With the largest attendance in a number of years, Percy District Orange Lodges met here Tuesday, with representatives from Castleton, Warkworth, Polmont, Petherick's Corners and the local lodge. More enthusiasm in the event was shown than has been manifest in the district for some time.

After a lengthy discussion in the interests of the primary lodge and the transacting of general business, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

District Master—Wm. Melville, No. 36.
District Deputy-Master — Fred. Grills, No. 108.
District Chaplain—J. B. Stillman, No. 36.
Recording Secretary—J. I. Adams, No. 36.
Financial Secretary—R. A. Linn, No. 2322.
Treasurer—Alfred A. Barnum, No. 2322.
Lecturer—O. Watters, No. 108.
Deputy-Lecturer — W. Spencer, No. 2322.
Director of Ceremonies—R. J. Bibby, No. 36.

After the close of the meeting the members proceeded to do justice to a full course banquet served in the restaurant of L. J. Elliott, after which the impromptu programme was opened by proposing the toast to "King and Empire," responded to by singing God Save the King. The toast, "Grand Lodge," proposed by Alfred A. Barnum, was responded to by Past District Master Robert Innes. "District Lodge," proposed by J. I. Adams, responded to by Fred. Grills, District Deputy-Master, and J. L. Irwin, Past District Master.

The proceedings of the day were brought to a close by the National Anthem.

DUMMER COUNCIL

The inaugural meeting of the Township Council of Dummer was held in the Town Hall, Warsaw, on Monday, Jan. 10, when the elected members filed their declarations and were organized as the Township Council for the year 1927, as follows: Reeve, Jas. A WINTER RESORT.

The establishment of a winter resort at Muskoka Beach, near Gravenhurst, is a progressive step upon which the promoters are to be congratulated, and out of which they deserve to get a worth-while return from their investment.

The Examiner has always maintained that there was capital to be made out of the Canadian winter, and that instead of regarding the bright, cold sunshiny winter months as a liability, they should be looked upon as an asset.

There are thousands of people in the United States who would find a winter holiday in Canada a constant series of new sensations and enjoyments.

As a contemporary puts it, "The outdoor delights of the skates, the ski, the toboggan, the snowshoes, the tramp through the woods, all prepare the Canadian for the indoor pleasures of the blazing fire, good meals, comfortable beds and other attractions of a winter home in the woods."

Ontario's new winter resort should prosper—and if it does it may lead to the development of a winter tourist traffic of considerable proportions that will be of material advantage to this Province.

THE INCOME TAX.

Figures just issued by the Dominion Government in regard to the income tax throw some light upon the eagerness with which Western Progressive members of Parliament urge that this form of levy should be retained.

The records show that the three Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta paid only $5,741,459 in income tax last year, or about a tenth of the total for the Dominion.

But that is not all.

Of this income tax collected in the three Provinces $2,371,362 was obtained from the citizens of Winnipeg and $1,189,610 from Calgary, and it is estimated that the Western farmers paid roughly only two per cent. of the Dominion's income tax.

Under such conditions it is not surprising that the Progressive members of Parliament oppose any income tax reductions.

Their constituents do not have to pay the tax and therefore they are not anxious to see the levy cut off.

LEVEL CROSSING ACCIDENTS.

Level crossing fatalities in Canada last year reached a new high mark of 127, the record of more than two people killed each week throughout 1926 being the greatest in the country's history.

The injured numbered 367 people.

Altogether there were 297 level crossing accidents, and motor cars were involved in 229 cases.

The figures are arresting.

However dangerous the conditions may be at some crossings, the fact remains that the vast majority of these accidents could have been averted if ordinary care had been exercised.

Forgetfulness, carelessness or a recklessness that led to unnecessary chances being taken was the chief cause of the greater number of these level crossing smash-ups.

In many cases crossings could be made safer by signs that could not fail to attract attention, and by the removal of some of the natural hazards that exist at some points, but in the final analysis the whole problem hinges upon the human factor.

The responsibility is on the driver.

He must treat every crossing as a death-trap to be approached cautiously if the casualty list is to be reduced during the present year.

CIRCUS FEES.

Peterboro City Council, eager as the aldermen may be to find new sources of revenue that do not press too heavily upon the taxpayers, are not likely to follow the example of Kitchener in the matter of license fees for circuses.

Kitchener has decided to increase the license fee for a circus with thirty cars or less to $300 and in the case of one with more than thirty cars, to $500.

Now all that remains to be done is to coax a half a dozen or more circus organizations to visit Kitchener this summer and the thirsty city council can proceed to pay off some of their debenture debt.

The only flaw in this scheme is that circus managements, as a rule, are inclined to look with some suspicion upon municipalities that want to grab all the gate receipts for civic purposes.

The chances are that if the good burghers of Kitchener want to see any elephants or snake charmers this summer they'll have to make the pilgrimage to some other centre where the city fathers do not regard a circus as a gold mine.

THE MONTREAL THEATRE TRAGEDY.

The pathetic futility of human effort to avert desolating calamities is illustrated by the Montreal theatre holocaust. In the face of official regulation and instruction, and despite the efforts made everywhere to train school children in presence of mind and consideration for others, blind panic followed an outbreak of fire and an exit stairway piled high with the pitiful dead. The news stories indicate that every person in the theatre might have departed in safety if there had been no panic.

It is difficult to see how the possibility of such tragedies can be averted entirely. Young children cannot be expected to have the coolness and calmness which is supposed to possess adults in time of danger—and which too often is found wanting when the test comes. The terrible recklessness of a terrified crowd of children takes no heed of consequences, nor has it any regard for perils in front in seeking to escape known or imagined perils elsewhere.

The most generous possible provision of exits does not solve the whole problem. There might be an added factor of safety in the attendance at theatres at times when they are largely frequented by children of a fireman or a policeman on duty. The reassurance of the friendly and familiar uniform often might quell the incipient panic and ease the unwonted nervous strain.

For a time now there will be stern vigilance everywhere in checking theatre exits and formulating measures to prevent a repetition of the Montreal disaster. But the pity of it is that the lesson even of such a wholesale slaughter of the innocents endures for so brief a period, save in the memories of those who have been bereaved.

The Province of Quebec has a law that children under 16 years may not attend moving picture performances unless they are accompanied by "father, mother, tutor or teacher, or by a guardian specially authorized by the father or mother." In the case of the Laurier Palace Theatre on Sunday this very proper provision was almost totally disregarded. The coroner whose duty it was to interview the parents of the dead said that not more than three or four out of the total of 77 boys and girls suffocated and trampled to death within a few feet of safety had any legal right on the premises. The great majority of the victims were under twelve years. The responsibility of government does not end with the enactment of wise legislation. No less important is its enforcement, during long years when time and continued safety dim the circumstances which were its origin.—Ottawa Journal.

BRITAIN'S DEAD CIRCLE THE GLOBE

The sixth annual report of the Imperial War Graves Commission, which tells of the care and diligence shown to beautify the thousands of soldiers' resting places is in reality a striking testimony to the heroic sacrificial part played in the Great War by the British race and allied peoples. In our humble way in St. Catharines, we will honor the memory of the dead, but look across the world horizon, if the reader will, and grasp the significance of the British effort and the price paid in the flower of manhood, the like of which was never before witnessed on this earth.

In larger and smaller cemeteries lie the 1,109,832 registered dead of the British Empire. Across France and Belgium they stretch, a thousand war cemeteries with nearly fifteen hundred French and Belgian communal cemeteries and churchyards. There is a prisoners-of-war cemetery at Vevey in Switzerland. There are 93 cemeteries in Italy. The chain stretches across Macedonia, the Balkans, and the Greek Islands, and down the Gallipoli Peninsula, where there are 31, to Smyrna, and so through Syria and Palestine, passing over the Mount of Olives itself, to Egypt, to East Africa, and Iraq. Then the chain extends north of India to China, and so to Australia and New Zealand, and half across the world to Canada and back to the British Isles. The graves of an Empire cover a world, and no more impressive sentence distinguishes them than that so frequent identification of the unknown soldier, "Known unto God." So no cemeteries carry more poignant messages than such as that now building at the Menin Gate, Ypres, to 60,000 missing who fell in the Salient but have no known graves; or that impressive monument, visible to all ships passing in or out of the Dardanelles, which rises a hundred feet against the sky on the highest ground above Cape Helles and has carven on walls around its base the names of thousand of other unknown warriors of the Empire.—St. Catharines Standard.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 14 (Canadian Press) — Extreme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday, there being little demand from foreign buyers. The domestic trade was also quiet, the demand being only for odd cars to meet actual wants, but as the offerings were not large, the tone of the market was steady.

The demand for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour was quiet but values ruled firm.

Prices for all grades of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

A feature of the local egg trade yesterday was the announcement of an advance of two cents per dozen three to four cents per dozen for the price for fresh eggs and storage eggs. This was attributed to the fact that the Dominion government had increased the duty on all imported eggs from the United States seven to eight cents per dozen. The demand was fair and the market was moderately active. The receipts were 249 cases.

The trade in potatoes was quiet and price were unchanged. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.35 to $1.90 per bag of ninety pounds, and Quebec white stock at $1.50 per bag of ninety pounds, in bulk, ex-track.

A weaker feeling prevailed in the butter market and prices were reduced 1-2c to 3-4c per pound, which was attributed to the dull demand. The receipts were 52 packages.

The cheese market was quiet but firm. The receipts were 38 boxes.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

BY "SHALL" OR "SHOULD" BE MADE?

Several years ago a correspondent of a New York newspaper put the following question to the editor:

"Which is preferable: 'We prefer that all payments should be made in thirty days,' or 'We prefer that all payments should be made in thirty days'?"

To which the editor replied:

"To use the form 'should be paid' implies 'If it be convenient,' or 'if you have the money.' To say, 'We prefer that all payments shall be made in thirty days,' suggests a somewhat peremptory demand for payment."

In other words, in the opinion of the editor, the form, "We prefer that all payments should be made in thirty days," is a much softer wording of a request or demand for payment.

A Thought For To-day

RICHES AND POSSESSIONS.

E. M. Statler, one of the most successful of American hotel men, harassed by the work of supervising his various interests, remarks:

"When I first started to work I was given my meals and a place to sleep, and that's all I am getting today."

Many a big captain of industry feels the same way about it. The more successful a man is the more the job tends to become his boss. Added possessions may mean little. A millionaire can eat only one meal at a time and wear one suit of clothes at a time and sleep in one bed at a time, and a poor man can do the same thing.

Wealth does, not doubt, bring a greater sense of power; and strong men like to wield power. But there is something terrible about the power which a great fortune nowadays wields over its owner. Often it is the fortune that owns the man.

The fundamentals of life are about the same to everybody. It is men's imaginations that make a great gap between high and low, rich and poor.—Cleveland Times.

HEALTH AND DIET ADVICE

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. McCOY WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER

© 1926 MC. COY HEALTH SERVICE, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

AGE MEASURED BY HEALTH

It is a significant fact that health officers do not allow physicians to use the word "old age," as the cause of death on a death certificate. Such words as apoplexy, myocharditis, paralysis, bright's disease, diabetes, etc., must be used to describe the condition of the patient at death, and the health officer does not recognize the word "age," as a sufficient cause for death.

While no one dies of old age, they do die of dissipation. We all desire to live long, but none of us want to be old.

While it is probably not possible to live forever in the Springtime of Youth, the seasons of life can be certainly lengthened, and we can through the Summer, Autumn, and Winter of age, learn to grow old gracefully.

It is said that Methuselah lived to be 969 years old, but there is no record in recorded history of anyone having lived to that age. At the present time there is a man living in England at the age of 153 years. I noticed in the papers the other day that he said that at he was feeling rather poorly, and attributed it to the change of the weather. Whether or not the weather will be his downfall remains to be seen, but he has so far been able to weather many storms of life through more than 100 years longer than the average life at the present time. You can rest assured that this man, who I have never seen is not over-weight, neither has he been a hard worker during his life. He may have used tobacco and liquor every day of his adult life, but he could not have reached such an advanced age if he had been a glutton.

Over-eating of even the best food must be cited as the principal cause of growing old too quickly. Those who wish to grow into the glorious maturity of age can never do so if they make the great error of gormandizing, and making an idol of their stomach.

Dietitians too often make the mistake of urging people to use a larger quantity of food, than that to which they have been accustomed, under the mistaken idea that gaining weight will also make them gain in strength, and increase their health; whereas, the truth is that if you wish to stay young longer you must stop doing those things which interfere with health, and in this regard it is usually necessary for you to cut down your food supply to one-third or one-half of what you have been using.

If you desire to stay a longer time in the prime of life, you must speedily develop mental poise and avoid worry, anxiety and all irritating emotions.

Age cannot be measured by years any more than health can be measured on the scales. There are many men in the old soldiers home who in spite of their misfortunes seem to never grow old, because they eat very little and worry even less. These thin men of 75 to 80 years of age have been burying the fat ones for the past 40 years and have remained quite well in spite of the fact that they have seemed underweight.

While you are dieting carefully to see that your bones do not grow too hard, remember to control your mind to such an extent that your opinions and emotions do not become ossified.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE PENALTY OF PROMINENCE

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Prominence has its danger.

Many of us are more or less anxious to be famous. We would like to be gazed at and crowded after like "Doug" and Mary or like the late Mr. Valentino. Many of us lament the fact that our days must be spent in some lowly valley where we are practically unknown.

We might get some comfort from what "Doug" said the other day when he remarked that he had to pay five or six times as much in tips as the ordinary person. When a man is reputed to be making a lot of money or have a lot of money every conceivable kind of attack is made upon him to get some of it away from him. And there seems to be something in human nature that enjoys taking a whack at a prominent man. Nobody is safe. You would think that the the American people would have undying and universal gratitude for such a hero as Admiral Dewey, and yet when he came home and married a wife of a different religious faith and gave her his house public opinion was up in arms, although what Admiral Dewey did with his own property was none of its business.

You speedily discover that when you're president or senator or governor or some such thing, whatever you do is the public's business.

Little acts or peccadillos that would pass unnoticed in an ordinary man are played up when they are yours, in the yellow newspapers. You have to be careful about your walk and about your dress. About where you spit and whom you speak to. The eyes of humanity are all upon you, and living so, with everybody watching you, is something like being a gold fish. It is not so pleasant.

There is a childish element in humanity which cannot resist throwing stones at anything that is up high on the wall.

Publicity is a great thing and doubtless makes some people a vast deal of money, but it is a dangerous thing and, on the whole, a man is safer when he doesn't fool with it.

SEA BEASTS?

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14. — Capt. John Peterson, veteran Sandy Hook pilot, tells this one: Once while his pilot ship was cruising about waiting for inbound liners, lions were reported off the port bow. Then tigers! Then giraffes and hippos! Captain Johnny saw it with his own eyes, and so did the rest of the pot-pourri crew. Next day Johnny read in the paper of a merry-go-round being washed away to sea by a storm on the Jersey coast.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

SYNOPSIS

Ranny Forbes star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves Abner Gratman. Stivner, lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic deal, wagers fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Gratman is the taker. Victory will mean business good will. Abner flirts with Joan. This unnerves Ranny, and he loses the game for the Americans. Vengeful, he drives the ball at Abner, but hits Stivner! When he goes to take Joan home, he finds she has gone with Abner. Lacking proof that Joan has taken a "fatal step" with Abner, Ranny is advised by Clay to attempt to trap them.

Ranny drove on in thoughtful silence for awhile after that. Presently he asked Clay:

"If, as you say, Joan fell in love with me because I was wild, because she knew that I had lived through an adventurous and—er—somewhat stormy youth, why in tarnation does she now turn to a dead cipher like Abner Gratman?"

"Because if she has to be content with a dead one, he's more successfully lifeless than you are!" Clay retorted instantly. "She wants to dominate altogether or not at all. Your occasional relapses into old time sparks show that there's life in the old man yet. She doesn't like you intermittently savage. She will like you as a wholly barbaric caveman or not at all!"

"Ya-a-aah! You demonstrated it this afternoon by playing polo like someone dug up after six months underground in a coffin."

"You know why that was," quietly.

"Joan doesn't. She sees it as evidence of your slipping powers." Clay's tone changed suddenly. "But, first of all, it seems to me you must learn, as I said a moment ago, just where you stand. Just how far they've gone. Are you quite sure that she is in love with Abner?"

"Quite—to the extent of writing letters to him every day and receiving inflammatory replies, and giggling and cooing to him over the phone, and blushing like a silly schoolgirl when he's talking to her, and—"

"Help! That's enough. But when did you begin to suspect, and how come?"

"Hints my faithful servants have dropped to me. Little telltales that I found. Her growing nervousness when I mention him. His visits, which were honestly open at first, quickly becoming secretive, and, I've good reason to believe, chancing mostly when I'm not at home. Both of them self conscious—guilty like. Oh, the whole story is unbelieveably clear! You can appreciate the mess our household has been in for well nigh two years when I remind you of the old fable of the duck and the rabbit who were married. I'm the duck."

"Quack! Quack!"

"When I want to go out she wants to stay at home. When I want to go to bed she wants to stay up. And then onto the stage trips a stupid dandy—Abner, no other! Embellished with all that oily blather of the lounge lizard which causes women to make such monumental asses of themselves. You know the stuff: 'Ah, how nice looking he is! How polite, how thoughtful!' You can imagine what a sorry figure I cut in a drawing room matched up to that sofa-riding model of impeccable fashion and manners! The worst of it, the most insulting—part is that Joan thinks I'm so dumb that I don't suspect her interest in him!"

"Then what makes you sure of what you said a while back—that she hasn't yet—well, surrendered to his charms?"

"Because Joan as yet always maintains a dogged, stubborn disposition when she is in my company and insists on dilating upon the incompatibility of our match, and tries to shame me into agreeing to give her a divorce. The fact that she wants a divorce shows me, at least until I get other proof, that her feeling for him is still clean. She still looks me straight in the eye. When she no longer does that—and when she begins to be charming toward me—then I'll know I'm a—"

—"deceived husband!" prompted Clay seriously. After a while he added: "I think you're right about the psychology of Joan's attitude. If she had cheated once, the devil a bit she'd care whether or not she ever got a divorce."

Now the two friends lapsed into another period of deep silence, while the night came on apace.

"I do love her," said Ranny, suddenly, softly. "And if I thought that cur had taken advantage of her—I'd—"

"There are only two courses open to you, old son. Either give up the fight right now, and give Joan a divorce and let Abner have her, or seek to catch Abner at his home wrecking and discredit him in her eyes. After that's done you can devise ways and means of winning back Joan's love."

"But how can I trap him?"

"To a man with your flair for adventure, your mechanical ingenuity, that feat should not present many difficulties."

"But when and where and how?"

"On the week-end cruise on Stivner's yacht, old chap. We'll all be thrown together in comparatively cramped quarters. One can't very well get away with much, at least without his shipmates being wholly cognizant of his rascality. It's an ideal opportunity."

"It might have been, you mean. Livingstone Stivner is through with me after today," bitterly. "A profitable afternoon's sport it was for me, to be sure. Ever since I married Joan I've been trying to give over my wandering propensities and engage in useful business. But no one took my efforts seriously. That's the curse of money. Once a rich loafer—even one who worked pretty hard at such loafing as chopping jungle trails in Nicaragua, driving ambulances in France, digging ditches in Flanders, flying aeroplanes in the Riff—always a loafer. Then I met Stivner, and things seemed about to mend. My career threatened to burst forth in bloom. I had a chance at last to go into business in a big way. And then muffed it by nicking my associate's wallet for fifty thousand and his stomach for a goal!"

"Stivner invited you. He liked Joan. He's a thoroughbred and isn't going to let a little mishap like this afternoon's interfere with his business and social plans."

"Wait and see! I shouldn't wonder if he'd burn up all his forests and sink his blooming yacht rather than have any more to do with me!"

"Nonsense! You'll be on the cruise. He won't revoke the invitation. And whilst he may not exactly greet you as a long lost brother, he'll be cordial enough."

Ranny shrugged. Plainly he was not at all confident of the accuracy of Clay's forecast. And plainly, too, he could not discern that it would make much difference even if it should turn out that the cruise invitation still stood.

"Then what?" he grunted.

"And you're a wild man? A soldier of fortune? And yet you let me do all your thinking for you—me, who has never fought any harder or more dangerous battle than a pinochle game at the Racquet and Riding Club? Well, little boy, it so happens that there's the germ of an idea floating around in my brain. And all for your benefit. Now listen to this—".

Thereupon Clay Varick proceeded to unfold his plan, piece by piece, elaborating and improving upon it as he talked, the while Ranny Forbes drove steadily through the darkling Long Island countryside—through Mineola, and East Williston, and Floral Park, and Jamaica, towards the lights of old Fifth avenue.

As Clay talked Ranny's sombreness dropped away gradually. He chuckled. He smiled. Finally he actually laughed.

And when Clay, with a verbal flourish, concluded the description of his scheme Ranny guffawed and slapped him on the back.

"You 're not such a useless old buzzard after all," he chortled, affectionately and admiringly. Then one last clinging doubt assailed him and was broached:

"But suppose Joan doesn't come home before Friday? Suppose she has run off for good with Abner?"

"In that case go a-gunning, son! But if we do go on that yachting trip all you will need," Clay preened, with a mystical grin, "is a bicycle bell and a box of hard crackers!"

SHORT STORY

TWO IN ONE PLOT

(By Duford Jenne.)

He had been serious of mood during most of the evening, but she did not mind under even his dark moods ran a golden undercurrent of fun that broke through once in awhile; and, at all times she had a quiet feeling of happiness and contentment when she was with him.

He bent his dark, curly head forward. "Helen, I have a chance to buy that new corner store—first payment $1,500. If I could get it, and it went, it would mean making our dream come true. But where to get the $1,500 is the trouble."

"I know, Phil, of course. There is the $2,000 father left me," she said, eagerly. "You take it, do!"

His eyes were sober. "Sweetheart, I knew you would say that, and I love you for it. But if I should put it in the business and then lose it, I should never forgive myself."

"I would not care—and besides you wouldn't lose it."

He laughed. "I am a pretty good clerk, but when it comes to running a business, I don't know and besides no one knows whether the store will work out in that neighborhood or not. I've tried in a number of places to borrow the money, but that's what each chap says—it's too much of a gamble, and, of course, I have no security."

After he had gone that evening, she lingered in the room where he had been, musing and dreaming and planning and finally, after some doubting and hesitating, she made up her mind what to do.

The next day, she sought the office of the old lawyer who, in days gone by, had been friendly with her father. He listened to her plan, and then shook his head.

"Hal is a mighty fine chap, but he's got a stiff proposition making that store go. People have been buying elsewhere, and it's hard to make folks change," he said, doubtfully.

"I love him enough to lose the money gladly," she replied quietly. "All you have to do is to advance it to him and say nothing."

He mused a moment. "I will do it, then. I rather like the idea of being a party to this little love plot. And I hope Hal wins out."

That night Hal was jubilant.

"Brown Eyes, what do you think? Old Cressley came in, smoothed his whiskers two or three times, hemmed and hawed, and offered me enough to purchase the store!" he exclaimed. "So it is all fixed—and watch me work! It's a golden chance! And now where are those house plans—let's talk them over!"

She kissed him when she brought them. That was her and his dream—a house of their own and now, perhaps, it might come true.

He drew her close to him as he sifted the plans in his strong, capable-looking fingers.

"It may never come, Honey, but I've got the habit of dreaming about you and for you, and I like it!" His eyes twinkled. "And if the business pays—and it will either be a big success or a failure just as big—the first thing we will have is a real honest-to-goodness home of our own!"

The store was opened and, to Hal's astonishment and her's, business mounted the first day. At the end of the week, the success of the store was assured. Coming once, perhaps out of mere curiosity, customers came again.

Hal was surprised at his success, but she knew one of the reasons: his cheery, happy personality that radiated an atmosphere inviting to customers and largely absent in the old store that was his nearest competitor.

Then a little shadow gathered on the horizon of her happiness and began to spread. His visits became few, and he seemed to be preoccupied and absent-minded. Then the old lawyer, three months later, called her into his office, and told her that Hal had asked for an extension of time on the loan, although he offered to pay the loan then if he had to.

Mr. Cressley suddenly paused and looked out of the window. "I don't know just what is wrong, for he has been doing a thriving business. He wants the money for something else. I might as well tell you: a very attractively dressed young woman has been taking him out in her car. There she is now."

Helene went to the window, something cold creeping about her heart. She saw Hal come from the store and drive off with the girl. When she turned from the window, however, she was calm, and while the veteran lawyer looked at her sadly, she quietly directed him to advance Hal all the time he wanted.

It was when she was in the silence of her own room that she surrendered to her fear. He was so attractive—how well she knew! And he had found excuses for not coming to see her.

A motor horn sounded outside. She looked out and saw Hal in his delivery truck. He beckoned, and she went down, to find him excited over something. He drew her into the truck seat beside him.

"I've got to get back to the store—but I must show you something!" he said as the car shot away.

They drove through the streets toward the more open sections. He stopped and pointed to a little house that smiled down cheerily at them.

"There she is, sweetheart. You see, I know what you wanted, and I had a woman decorator come from the city. It isn't paid for, but, believe me, it's going to be. Let's go up for a second! Why—Honey, what's the trouble?"

"I'll tell you up there," she whispered. "But it isn't trouble—it's happiness!"

MANY FEEBLE MINDED.

Of 4,000 in Montreal, 1,200 Are Under Age of 16.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—It is estimated by the Mental Hygiene committee of the Social Agencies that there are four thousand feeble-minded people in Montreal of whom approximately 1,200 are under the age of 16. Special instruction, the report contended, was necessary in order to enable those below normal even to obtain the main necessities of life. The old idea that subnormal children benefit by association in class with normal children has been proved a fallacy, it was argued. They were apt to become discouraged, troublesome and finally truants, and the normal of supernormal child suffered from the drag.

INSIDE STORY FORD COMPANY

History of Expansion Related as Result of Government Suit.

OLD MACHINERY.

DETROIT, Jan. 14 (AP)—The inside story of the expansion of the Ford Motor Company from a $100,000 corporation to one with the earnings of $375,927,275 was told yesterday at the hearing of the Government's suit to recover $34,000,000 in taxes from former stockholders of the company.

It was brought out that the original company, organized late in 1903 although capitalized at $100,000 had only $28,000 in actual cash. Henry Ford himself put in $10,000 worth of old machinery, by which he obtained control of the company with 51 per cent. of the stock.

Patents, contracts and notes and Patents, contracts and notes and accounts receivable accounted for the rest of the capitalization.

Sixteen years later the concern Ford organized had paid out $96,000,000 in dividends and had net earnings of more than a third of a billion dollars to its credit.

The story of the Ford profits went into the record at the tax hearing in the Hotel Statler over the objections of Alexander W. Gregg, chief counsel for the Government. Gregg objected to any evidence concerning Ford earnings after 1913. Attorneys for the former stockholders wanted the entire story told to strengthen their claim that the Ford stock in 1913 was worth the $9,400 valuation set on it by the Government.

Ralph Stone Testifies

The evidence concerning the Ford profits was introduced in a general stipulation, which was read just after the first witness, Ralph Stone, President of the Detroit Trust Company, completed his testimony. The second witness was Percy S. Talbert, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who was sent to Detroit with a large staff in 1919 to determine the value of the Ford stock in 1913.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE COUNTRY BEYOND."

One of James Oliver Curwood's widely read novels is the subject of the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre this week, in "The Country Beyond." It has a very good cast and some exceptionally interesting scenes in the setting, which has been filmed in the northern country, "The Country Beyond," of the title. The exterior scenes were shot in Jasper National Park, Alberta, mainly on the shores of Lake Maligne, and Mount Edith Carvell. This is the feature in which this picturesque region is shown on the films.

The story deals with the adventures of Roger McKay and Valencia and Terence Cassidy, main actors in the drama of the north country, and of New York, to which city the scene shifts in its latter episodes. Rogers confesses that he has killed Jed Hawkins, the villain of the piece, in the mistaken notion that the man has been murdered by Valencia instead of by a half breed, and is then taken away and tried. Later the truth comes out, but Valencia, in the meantime, has gone to New York, and become a stage success as "Valencia," of "The Country Beyond." This is the type of picture that subordinates probability at all moments to the demands of the romantic drama, and one does not expect it to be too true to life as long as it is interesting.

AT THE REGENT

"POKER FACES" IS FUNNY AS FUNNY CAN BE.

E. E. Horton and Laura La Plant Make them Shriek at Regent.

Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Pictures Corp., is one, however, who first calculates, and then makes his pictures. For this reason he has ordered his directors to concentrate on comedy.

"There is little good in emphasizing the unhappy moments of life," he said. "Give them good, clever, clean comedy."

"Poker Faces," the feature at the Regent Theatre bears out this edict, and proves that Harry Pollard is an apt soldier. He has directed in this one of the fastest and most amusing comedies of the season.

Laura La Plante and Edward Everett Horton co-star in this and the combination of the Pollard-La Plante Horton, touches (each a master in comedy) gives a delightful comedy on the joys (?) of married life.

The business angle enters in and Horton's wife leaves him and works under an assumed name for his employer, who has Horton pose as his partner to help induce the propective customer to sign a contract through the entertainment offered by Horton and his wife. For this purpose Horton finds himself forced to hire an actress for the evening to pose as his wife. Her pugilistic husband is a green eyed monster and things happen with an amazing rapidity, with all the characters gathered under the roof of the genial employer's home.

They're Here

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE LXXVII—Military Science Marches Forward by MAX HAHN

THE GREEKS PERFECTED THE PHALANX. THIS USUALLY CONSISTED OF 64 PICKED AND HEAVILY ARMED SOLDIERS, FACING THE ENEMY IN CLOSELY LOCKED FORMATION.

THERE WAS NO PLACE IN A PHALANX FOR A COWARD. AFTER EVERY BATTLE EACH FIGHTER HAD TO DISPLAY HIS SHIELD TO PROVE HIS VALOR.

LEGEND TELLS A STORY OF A GREEK ARMY ORDERED TO ATTACK THE ENEMY ON A MOUNTAIN TOP. THE TASK WAS DANGEROUS BECAUSE THE FOES HAD CHARIOTS READY TO ROLL DOWN ON THE ATTACKERS.

TRADITION SAYS THE GREEKS WON BY MAKING A BRIDGE WITH THEIR SHIELDS FOR THE CHARIOTS TO ROLL OVER. WHEN THE LAST CHARIOT HAD PASSED THE GREEKS AROSE AND CONQUERED THE ENEMY.

DELORO COMPANY HOSTS AT BANQUET

Members of Safety Committee Are Guests of Management at Annual Affair.

MARMORA, Jan. 14.—Encouraging reports containing interesting figures engaged the attention of the forty-five who attended the second annual banquet tendered by the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company to its Safety First Committee on the occasion of its annual meeting on Monday evening. The Hub Dining Hall was hte venue again where Chef Arthur Hart, who boasts of 22 years experience, spread another of those inviting repasts for which he is famous. Tables having been cleared, event took on the nature of a smoker. Business of the regular monthly meeting was proceeded with. The flag was awarded the Silver Plant for the month on a numerical basis. Mr. J. Hemphill gave his report on the proposed St John's Ambulance venture. He pointed out that as many as 95 of the employees had indicated their willingness to join the class. This number being too great to be instructed in one class, a class of 35 had been arranged to commence next week with two other classes to follow on its completion. The chairman, R. A. Elliott intimated that the Safety First Committee which was 33 strong would be practically the first class to be taken by the plant doctor, Dr Crawford and that Dr. Thomson would be the examining doctor. In giving the report of the Competitice and Publicity Committee, Mr. H. A. McNally mentioned that the month just expired was the first since April 1925 that could be called a "no lost time" month. Mr. C. H. Buskard, member of the Benevolent Relief Fund told of assistance given in the past month to deserving cases, with a surplus fund still remaining of $1,100.10.

The meeting then adjourned and the annual meeting was proceeded with, R. A. Elliott occupying the chair. Following the reading of minutes by Secretary F. Paquet the chairman presented his report. He submitted comparisons of the past four years, remarking that the total lost time days through accidents for that period was 1,592. Figures for each year were:

1924	519
1925	246

The number of men employed each year of the four was approximately the same. After supplying other interesting figures, he emphasized the fact that it was not the number of accidents which count the most but rather the severity of them. He was pleased to say they had passed through nine months without a major accident and he hoped they would at least complete the year. In 1926, 126 meetings were held, 11 of which were regular monthly meetings and the remainder departmental and sub committees. The three foremen to earn the awards for best records from June 1926 to December 1926 were W. R. Reynolds, E. Hewitt and A. Kennery. The Benevolent Fund had issued relief to 16 cases during the year.

T. Paquet, in submitting the secretary's report, alluded to the fact that of the safety suggestions received, 95 per cent had been put into efect. 2 1-2 per cent were not completed and 2 1-2 per cent had been found impractical. The next item of business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

Chairman—R. A. Elliott.
Vice Chairman—J. Hempaill.
Secretary—T. Paquet.
Assistant Secretary—W. R. Reynolds.
Inspection Committee — Messrs. R. Parker, W. L. Rigg, J. Judge, F. Gray, W. Williams and R. Scott.
Competitive and Publicity Committee—Messrs. W. R. Reynolds, H. A. McNally, A. V. Yates, R. Hunter and R. Parker.
Complaints Committee—Messrs. J. Judge, W. Williams, H. F. Berry, W. R. Reynolds, C. H. Buskard.
Benevolent Relief Fund (re-elected)—Messrs. R. A. Elliott, C. H. Buskard and R. Scott.

The chairman then called upon S. B. Wright to speak, who declared that Safety First should be considered from every one's point of view as a purely humanitarian work. He added that the Company proposed to continue their support and could be counted on to do so whole heartedly. F. A. Bapty, secretary treasurer of the company who followed, complimented the committee on the good work it had achieved. Part of the reason, he said, for heavy accidents occuring in the past was the greater turnover in labour in those days. A greater steadiness of employment had been shown in the last two years. With more confident and careful work and with good suggestions being given the plant was getting more perfect all the time. H. L. Sabine, Dr. D. Thomson and H. R. Pearce having lauded the movement, after a short discussion on different features, the meeting adjourned with the National Anthem.

ZION CHURCH HOLDS SPECIAL SERVICES

Rev. C. D. Daniel Preaches Series of Sermons—Draws Large Crowds.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Jan. 14.—The series of special services conducted by Rev. C. D. Daniel at Zion church was brought to a close on Sunday evening, when a large crowd was present. Ideal weather favored good attendance at the four meetings, and a worth-while message drew many who otherwise would not have come.

In this, his first attempt at anything bordering on the evangelical, Mr Daniel was very successful. His messages touched various phases of Christian fellowship and the Christian's relationship to God, and were inspiring and helpful, not only to the older members of his congregation, but also to the younger people, a number of whom have already signified their intention of joining the church. His Sunday evening subject, 'Borrowed Religion' was an exceptionally well prepared address, and a fitting climax to the series of meetings. His remarks were based on the Bible story of the wise and foolish Virgins, and he showed how some people, appearing to be good Christians on the outside failed when the testing time came as did the foolish Virgins in the story. The choir rendered special music at this service, as well as assiting with the others. Special song service, led by Fred Barnum, opened each of the meetings and contributed in a large measure to their success.

Piles
QUICKLY BANISHED

"I suffered years of agony through blind itching piles," says Mrs. W. Hughes, of Hochelaga St., Montreal. "Pain, loss of strength, complete misery, was my daily lot until I came across Zam-Buk. I know now that there is nothing on earth to equal this grand herbal healer. Since it lifted me from misery my earnest wish is to make Zam-Buk known to all sufferers." Adv. Bem.

ONTARIO TOWNS ASK CHANGES IN MUNICIPAL ACT

Deputation From Municipal Association Waits on Cabinet To-day.

MANY SUGGESTIONS.

Changes in Safety and Marriage License Laws Among Proposals.

TORONTO, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—Representatives of the Ontario Municipal Association presented a series of resolution to the Ontario Cabinet this morning, suggesting amendments to municipal legislation, which, it was claimed, would aid considerably in adminstration. The deputaton requested a further appointment with the Cabinet to discuss the proposal to increas exemption under the Municipal income tax law. Premier Ferguson granted the request, and it was agreed that Assessment Commission Forman of Toronto arrange the meeting.

Among the requests presented to the Premier and Cabinet were the standardization of safety signals at railroad crossings, amendment of the marriage law to permit the issuance of marriage licenses to applicants in cases where one of the contracting parties lives at a distant point from the Province and is unable to immediately obtain proof of age, and that an affidavit be accepted; that the same exemption from distress for debt be adopted for non-payment of taxes, and that the amusement tax be abolished on all social events held by churches, fraternal orders, etc., where receipts did not exceed $200.

The following civic representatives were present: Robert Preston, Oshawa; W. L. Wilkinson, Niagara Falls; B. C. Parkr, Woodstock; William H. Nugent and W. M. Snyder, North Bay; W. R. Allely, Lindsay; C. J. Tulley, Ottawa; N. B. Holme, Athens; William Jelly, Brockville; M. Huenergard, Kitchener; A. K. Bunnell, Brantford; William Stewart, Sarnia; W. C. Mikel, Belleville; George W. Riseborough, Harry James, K. W. McKay, St. Thomas, and Col. Montieth, Paris.

NEW TOWNS ARISE.

Latest in Rouyn Mining District Named For Lands Minister.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 14—(By Canadian Press).—New towns are springing up almost monthly in the Rouyn mining district of Quebec. The latest will be called Mercier, after the provincial minister of lands and forests. Application for its charter will be made at the next meeting of the Quebec legislature.

The site for the proposed town is located several miles from Rouyn Landing, at which point a wharf is located for the accommodation of canoes and power boats carrying goods by water to the new mineral district of the provinces. Some 500 lots have been laid out within the bounds of the municipality and as those behind the application seek to found a model town, special administrative powers will be sought from the legislature.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN.

To Attend Cobalt Movie Shows Until Further Orders.

COBALT, Jan. 14. — Volunteer firemen in uniform will attend every performance in the local moving picture theatres until further notice. Members of the brigade, meeting in session last night, accepted a proposal to this effect made by Fire Chief Mathieson to the Mayor and endorsed by the Town Council. The Mayor and the Chief to-day made an inspection of both theatres, paying particular attention to the provision for an emergency exit for the audiences, and found conditions reasonably satisfactory. The managers will co-operate with the firemen, they said.

Brewery's Liquid Dividend Causes Demand For Stock

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (United Press.)—The demand for stock in the Feiganspan Brewery is decidedly bullish.

Announcement recently by Christian W. Feiganspan, President, that the brewery would cease to operate next week and that 4,000 barrels of Old India, Burton's, and stock ale, in the brewary since before prohibition, will be distributed to stockholders as a liquid dividend, has started a stampede to buy stock. There are fifteen stock-holders.

Feiganspan is being besieged with all sorts of offers and reasons why he should sell some of the stock. One would-be purchaser wants just one share of the liquid dividend to save his dying mother. An unnamed banker has offered to buy any or all the stock.

REBEL PRIESTS TO BE DEPORTED

Mexican Government Orders All Captured Brought To Capital.

YOUTHS KILLED.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Pursuant to its belief that priests are inciting the Roman Catholics to rebellion, the government has decided to deport all priests captured heading rebels.

The war department is instructing all military commanders to send arrested priests to the capital, whence they will be sent abroad. It is reported that several priests, captured in the States of Jalisco and Coahuila, are en route to Mexico City. Four priests were placed aboard a steamer bound for New Orleans yesterday.

Charges of anti-Catholic persecutions are made by the newspaper Excelaior, which says it has reliable authority for the statement that five youths, none more than 20, were shot and killed at Leon last Monday.

SUNDAY SKATING RAISES FURORE

Ministers and Citizens of Hamilton Protest Parks Board Action.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—Ministers and other citzens of this city are raising objection to Sunday skating having been approved by the park board of that city. Regret is expressed that official sanction has been given, although it is agreed that as long as Sunday golf is permitted it would be unfair to ban Sunday skating. There is no law against it and the Lord's Day Alliance has not taken steps to prevent it. But you could not skate at a rink where admission fee is charged, for such a rink would not be allowed to open—that would be business.

REESOR WINS FLAVELLE CUP

O'CONNOR IS WINNER.

LNDSAY, Ont., Feb. 14.—Walter Reesor's rink won the J. D. Flavelle Memorial Cup at Lindsay's jubilee bonspiel, defeating Best of Peterboro and Carley of Lindsay in the finals. Larry O'Connor won the Lindsay Cup, defeating Reesor and Carew in the finals. T. Massaw of Lindsay defeated Carlisle of Lindsay for the Victoria Trust Consolation Cup.

Thirty-three rinks entered the bonspiel, fifteen being from out of town. Ellis of Toronto Oakwoods and Best of Peterboro, as well as Thomson of Agincourt reached the fours.

Brazilian and Nickel Lead Featureless Toronto Session

TORONTO, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—Brazilian and International Nickel were active leaders in this morning's featureless session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Brazilian was strong, on yesterday's dividend increase, but Nickel and Hiram Walker, another active issue, were both easier. Nickel eased another half point at 41, and Hiram Walker lost a half at 32 1-2. Brazilian touched a high of 108 and at the noon close of 10 1-4 was five-eighths higher than yesterday. British American Oil was firm, gaining 3-8 at 82 7-8 and Seagrams was steady at 17. Industrial Alcohol eased a half point at 21 1-2. City Dairy was slightly lower at 85. Trading was moderately heavy, but scattered over a wide list, the majority of issues showing little change.

Area Leads Rapid Drop In Quebec Mining Stocks

TORONTO, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—Area, which lost 45 cents on the Standard Mining Exchange yesterday, sold down another 18 cents on the Exchange in this morning's wild session, finishing at noon at 95, a dollar lower than it was a few days ago. The stock touched a low of 80 this morning. Practically all the Quebec stocks and some others lost in the wave of selling during the million share session. Laval Quebec sold down six to 40, and Grover Daly dropped down to 33 1-2, later recovering to 28, half a point lower. Noranda and Amulet each lost 25 cents, at 22.45 and 205; Teck ment in August.

Hughes eased nine cents at 6.46, and Wright Hargraves lost 20 at 9.40. Duprat was an exception, firming a point at 29.

Raise In Call Money Causes New York Drop

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Stock Market experienced a sinking spell this afternoon when call money was marked up from four to 4½ per cent. Early declines ran from 1 to 5 points.

United States Cast-Iron Pipe sold down four points, South Porto Rican Sugar three, and Woolworth, Kinney Company, Case Threshing, Atlantic Coast Line and several others two points or more.

The market steadied during the fourth hour when recoveries in several issues ran from one to two points. Tobacco Products was in brisk demand during the afternoon.

Wheat Prices Drop; No Selling Pressure

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—With Liverpool quotations lower than looked for and with shipments big from south of the equator, wheat turned downward early to-day. Pressure to sell on the decline, however, was light.

Opening unchanged to 3-8 cent off, wheat soon underwent a moderate general set-back. Corn, oats and provisions were firm, corn starting unchanged to ¼ cent up and later gaining slightly.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 139¾; July 130½. Corn, May 81 3-4; July 84 7-8. Oats, May 49 7-8; July 47 3-8.

WOMEN'S PAGE

SOCIETY

Miss Camilla Kearney returned to Toronto yesterday after spending the Christmas holidays with her parents in the city.

• • •

Mr. Leo Murphy, Aberdeen avenue, is visiting friends and relatives in Montreal and Ottawa.

• • •

The party of local people who are going to Toronto to-day in connection with the visit of the Peterborough Women's Music Club, to hear Roland Hayes, the celebrated colored lyric tenor, sing in Massey Hall this evening, include the following: Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, Dr. and Mrs. F. P. McNulty, Mr. and Mrs. Ford Turner, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, Mrs. J. Forbes Allan, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. R. Gliddon, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, Mrs. H. G. Park, Mrs. H. F. Doig, Mrs. A. Mowat, Mrs. W. J. Kent, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, Mrs. H. Wightman, Mrs. Homer Meyers, Mrs. N. D. Seaton, Mrs. J. F. H. Wallace, Mrs. A. M. Weldon, Mrs. W. A. Logan, Mrs. J. E. L. Goodwill, Mrs. A. J. Reynolds, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, Mrs. D. N. Carmichael, Miss May Jory, Miss Mabel Clarry, Miss Alice Ryley, Miss Alice Price, Miss M. Foote, Miss A. L. Wood, Miss E. A. Wood, Miss Mary Harstone, Miss Laura Belleghem, Miss Andrews, Miss Mather, Miss E. Scott, and Miss May Needham of Millbrook. The party, who will have dinner in Toronto at the Elliott Hotel, will be joined by several Toronto people, including Mrs. Carmichael, Miss Muriel Park, Mrs. Sutherland and Mr. Wm. Mowat.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Blacklock, Grafton, Ont., announce the engagement of their daughter, Elsie Mae, to Mr. Morgan Andrew Hewson, son of Mr. A. J. Hewson and the late Mrs. Hewson of Cobourg, Ont. The marriage will take place the latter part of January.—Toronto Globe.

• • •

At a social hour held by St. Andrew's Church choir, following the weekly rehearsal last night, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, who recently retired as soloist of the church, was presented with a silver entree dish, in token of the high regard felt for her by the choir. Mr. John Crane, who made the resentation, stated that on account of a large number of the choir members being absent from the city during the holidays, it was not possible to make the presentation earlier, since all the members wished to be present to do honor to the occasion. Mrs. Park, replying in appreciative terms, spoke of her pleasant connection with the choir and wished the members every success.

• • •

Mrs. Donnelly and Miss Donnelly of Kingston, sister and sister-in-law respectively of Mrs. H. H. Dinsdale, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dinsdale, Park Street.

• • •

Mr. F. L. Roy, accompanied by the Marquis Henri de Guiliana, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rockwell, Elias Avenue, have gone into Northern Ontario for a month's trip. Going two hundred and fifty miles north of Sudbury, they proceed by dog team for a further distance covering from three to six days, there to camp and take pictures. Mr. Roy has a moving picture outfit with him and expects to return with a wonderful series of scenes of the North Country.

• • •

Mrs. W. G. Henderson, Tractor Farm, Otonabee, entertained a number of young people from the city at an enjoyable dance held at her home on Wednesday evening.

• • •

The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church held a jolly skating party at the Brock Street Rink on Wednesday evening, later adjourning to the parish hall, where refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed.

• • •

The members of the Liberal Ladies' Association were at home to their friends last evening in the auditorium of the Duffus Recreation Academy, when about one hundred and fifty people enjoyed an evening of cards, following by dancing and the service of dainty refreshments. Mrs. B. F. McNeely acted as general convenor, with Mrs. Wm. Stevens in charge of refreshments and Miss Clara Fontaine of the card tables.

• • •

Tea and bridge hostesses of the week include Mrs. R. C. Blagrave, Mrs. H. H. Dinsdale, Park Street, and Mrs. A. W. Turner, Weller Street.

• • •

The first meeting for this year of the Arts and Crafts Guild, of which Mrs. J. E. R. Munro is convenor, was held last evening at the home of Mrs. V. Foster, 510 Gilmour Street, when an interesting paper on "China, Porcelain and Earthenware" was given by Mrs. P. L. Allison.

• • •

Out of town relatives and friends present this morning at the funeral of the late Mrs. John McCabe included her son, Thomas McCabe, of North Pines, Ontario, her daughter, Sister M. Kathleen of the Sisterhood of St. Joseph in North Bay, her sister, Mrs. Frank McFadden, of Lindsay, her brother, Thomas J. Begley, editor of The Lindsay Post, and Robert Begley of Oshawa, Mrs. Robert Begley of Oshawa, Mrs. Thomas Heenan of Grafton, Miss Mary Tunney of Grafton, Miss Patrenella Mulhall of Cobourg, Miss Margaret McCabe of Rochester, N.Y., Mr. Patrick McCabe of Rochester, N.Y., Mr. T. Horn of Perth, Mr. G. Williams of Perth, Mr. Roy Maher of Cobourg, Mr. Edward Begley of Lindsay, and Mr. V. Milloy of Toronto.

Evening Examiner "Ideal Fashions" by Jean Bell Hamilton

Bordered Materials Are Smart Features of The New Mode

The mode for bordered fabrics finds expression in this simply designed one-piece frock of kasha flannel. The new wide belt favors double buckles for fastening, and is worn at the top of the hips. The convertible collar is fashioned of the border, as is also the tiny vestee, pocket and narrow cuffs, to which are gathered full sleeves. NO. 1301 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 2½ yards 54-inch bordered material; or 3¾ yards 39-inch if made of plain material. 20 cents.

SAINT and SINNER

"Let's eat," Bob grinned at Faith with that winning boyishness she loved so tenderly. "There's no use in sending back this delicious honey dew melon, untasted, and we've got filet of sole coming up any minute now. I'm sure we will function more brilliantly as amateur detectives after we've eaten."

Oddly enough, Faith found that she was keenly hungry. It was heavenly to eat delicate foods that she herself had not prepared.

"Tell me what you've been doing with yourself," he suggested eagerly. "Let Cherry wait a bit until after we've finished our luncheon. I have skads of time—can take a couple of hours as easy as not."

She told him the most interesting details of the last three weeks—the interminable three weeks since she had seen him, since that dreadful scene over Cherry's attempt to force him into an engagement, as a means of escape from her impending marriage with Bob's uncle.

"Cherry has simply gone money-mad," she concluded. "Mr. Cluny has apparently given her carte blanche on charge accounts, and the house is simply stacked ceiling-high with her purchases. Frances Warren, Selma Pruitt and I are to be bridesmaids, and Joy, though she's a bit leggy for the role, is to be a flower girl. Frances' little nephew, Ned Warren, is going to be ring-bearer. Oh, it's going to be a very swank wedding—and I'm scared to death."

"You don't look it," he smiled back at her. "You look as if a high church Episcopalian wedding were a mere incident in the gay social whirl of your days. Uncle Ralph certainly tumbled hard, didn't he? I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the black-eyed Lola hadn't tried the same thing—and failed. That would explain a lot, wouldn't it? But we promised not to talk mystery until we have finished with our luncheon."

There was a raspberry parfait, with tiny, nut-sprinkled cakes, for dessert, followed by a demi tasse. Bob's eyes were very tender as he watched her eat with shy, keen enjoyment.

"I want to take you out oftener, Faith. You need a taste of gayety. Too much kitchen police will take the starch out of any girl."

"You—you haven't seemed especially eager the last three weeks," Faith could not help pointing out, though disgust with herself made her cheeks hot.

The red crept slowly up his own cheeks, but his eyes were steady and honest as they gazed into hers. "It wasn't that I didn't want to see you, dear. I think you know that. But—well, can you blame me—after that Saturday night at the Marlboro Country Club?"

"After all, Mr. Cluny is my own uncle. It put me in a terribly embarrassing position. Cousin Alice came over to see me and gave me hail Columbia, tried to make me admit that I cared for Cherry, and would marry her. Uncle Ralph had me out to his house for dinner and asked me, as a favor to him, to let Cherry alone.

"For his own sake, and for hers, I couldn't tell him the truth about that night. I had to promise. I told him it wasn't Cherry that I—loved, that it was—you. He wouldn't believe me, asked me to stay away from Myrtle Street until after the wedding and I—well, dear, I agreed. Then Selma told me you were going to marry George after a while—"

"Oh, but that's not true!" Faith cried out in dismay. "He asked me again, but I told him I couldn't. Selma had no right—"

"Girls are funny things, aren't they and leaning across the table took both her hands in his. Chivalry forbade his saying that Selma, in a slightly more ladylike way, was using the same tactics to land him as had Cherry. But Faith understood and nodded, her fingers closing with a sudden, firm pressure about his.

"Don't say anything more—now," she breathed. "I—I didn't hunt you up to—to scold you for neglecting me. We must do something to help Cherry. I'm afraid she'll have nervous prostration before the wedding if this thing keeps up."

"Tell you what," Bob withdrew his hands and beckoned for the waiter. "We'll go back and confront Miss Lola Gonzales with the proofs of her pretty little scheme, and see if we can't get to the bottom of this."

"Do you think any of the Cluny relatives is behind her, using her, because of her double motive for hating Cherry?"

"I'd hate like the devil to think so," Bob shook his head, but his mouth was sterner than she had ever seen it. "I've talked with Alexander Cluny, Uncle Ralph's son, you know and young Ralph came to see me, too. They're all frightfully upset about it, not only because of the money, but because they think it will be a dis—" he recovered himself quickly—"a foolhardy marriage, doomed to failure, because of the difference in their ages, and—"

"And in their social standing," Faith finished bravely. "Don't be afraid to call a spade a spade, dear." She dropped the last word shyly, on a lower, more tender note. And she reflected that it was the first time in her life she had called any man "dear." Oh, dear Bob, darling Bob!

"There's talk among the Allbrights and the Alexander Clunys of having Uncle Ralph adjudged mentally incompetent," Bob admitted soberly. "I don't think they can get very far with that line, though. The old boy's too popular as a big criminal lawyer—the most famous in the state, you know—and there's no doubt that he's capable of handling his own affairs. If every man who planned an unwise marriage could be jerked up in court and adjudged mentally incompetent, there wouldn't be many of us allowed to go free. Except me, of course." He laughed a tender, exultant laugh, that made her heart beat wildly with joy.

When they reached his offices, they found that Lola Gonzales had fled, leaving a note for Bob:

"Have been called home on account of the serious illness of my mother. I don't know when I can return. You had better get someone else in my place. L. Gonzales."

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

• • •

We hear that "everyone" in Paris is carrying an umbrella. This is especially interesting when you realize how much less inclined the Parisian usually is to appear with an umbrella than his neighbors across the channel. This interest in umbrellas in Paris was started by the Prince of Wales.

When he arrived in Paris lately for a short stay he was carrying an umbrella, and during his entire visit he never went out without an umbrella even on a clear day when he went to visit the President of the French Republic.

Umbrellas have been out of fashion in Paris—as much as anything so necessary could be out of fashion. Thousands of English tourists might be seen there hugging their umbrellas—but it has taken the Prince of Wales to make umbrellas fashionable.

There really is no hardship in having to carry one of the new umbrellas, which are offered in such wide variety. To go with the new calfskin wraps and accessories there are umbrellas with handles covered with brown and white or black and white calfskin. While the majority of women still carry the extremely short umbrella, long slender umbrellas have been carried recently by a number of the best-dressed Parisians. Crook-handled long umbrellas have been noted at outdoor gatherings of women whose example is followed in matters of dress.

In the meantime the fashion for ornate and elaborate and bizarre umbrella handles increases. Some women are content with nothing less precious than gold and jade or carved ivory—and umbrella handles of a more or less precious sort are sometimes bought separately and adjusted to the desired umbrella.

Gingerbread Fairy House Had Nothing On This One

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 14.—Miss Helen Campbell, of the Dominion Government's Dairy Department, has been playing architect and builder. Her materials have been all sorts of good foods and she has made them a little house that children think is the most wonderful thing in the world and before which the grown-ups stand fascinated. It is of "stucco" rolled oats—sprinkled smoothly over a glue-smeared foundation; the opened shutters are of brown bread, and the window sills of dates. The house is shingled with Graham wafers, and the chimneys that rise at either end are bottles of good milk; the path to the hall door is of unpolished rice, bordered with nuts of various kinds; the pillars that uphold the porch are of macaroni, and the steps are of cheese. Curtains are made of lettuce leaves.

WIDOW-THIEF JAILED.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—In a case that has just been before the courts, Judge Enright made good his threat to reject sex and motherhood pleas advanced by woman caught shoplifting, as he jailed for six days a widow, the mother of three children, who slipped a pair of overshoes into her shopping bag in a department store.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

We go to considerable pains nowadays to have our houses built with attractive fireplaces in the living-rooms and city folk frequently pay outrageously high rents for apartments that boast of open fires. Yet often we stop there, and forget that the really attractive fireside needs more than this. There must be chairs of the sort that are comfortably drawn up before the cheering blaze or a long divan where several may sit and enjoy the fire at the same time. The fireside rug is also something that many women consider important. At a recent home wedding the young bride stood during the ceremony on a small rug that she had bought for that purpose which was later to be used as her fireside rug. A low bench with an upholstered top is a useful bit of fireside furniture and there are all sorts of little stools that may be used before the fire. If you use only easy chairs by your hearth they should not be over large or cumbersome—unless you are like the cross patch who was content to sit by her fireside drinking her tea alone.

Some folk are just content to sit by the fire and dream or talk as they watch the flames. You may be one of those who like to read by the fire. In this case you should somehow manage to have a good reading light at hand but one so shaded that it does not detract from the soft, low glow of the fire.

VALUE IS NOT DETERMINED BY THE PRICES PLACED UPON FURS WHERE COMPARATIVE STATEMENTS OF "FORMERLY PRICED AT" AND "REDUCED TO" ARE STRESSED

As they are commonly used, comparative prices are apt to misinform and mislead. It is a recognized fact that their tendency is toward exaggeration. The advertising of a $100.00 value for $50.00 may lead the customer to assume she is saving half the purchase price. This assumption, in the nature of the case, is far from the fact.

Big Promises and Small Performances are the chief causes of the lowered efficiency in service value some people reap, to their hurt, when led to buy through exaggerated value statements.

We Solicit Fur Comparison As to Prices

Especially in comparison of the January Sale offers. You will find out-of-city prices are never lower, and in many instances higher, than with us.

WINNING SAFETY FIRST POSTER

Mr. R. Baker, of Toronto, is the winner in the contest that has just closed for the best Safety First Poster. This competition was open to the artists of Canada and was conducted by the Poster Advertising Association of Canada and displayed on the poster panels of its members all across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver in the early spring when the motor and outdoor season is commencing and when the poster can do the greatest good for the cause of Safety.

All the designs which won prizes and a number of others in addition will be exhibited, probably in the Art Gallery, in Toronto, in Montreal and in other important cities throughout Canada where exhibitions can be arranged. This is being done because the total number of designs submitted was over 300 and these came from every part of Canada so that in every city there will be contestants who will be keenly interested in seeing the prize winners as well as other sketches.

From the long list of entries it is evident that there is in Canada a keen interest in the matter of Safety as well as a great body of promising young artists.

Miss K. Hammond, B. Bowron, K. Tuxford, J. A. Taylor.

The first prize design in the Open Contest, which is reproduced herewith, will be lithographed by the Poster Advertising Association of Canada and displayed on the poster panels of its members all across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver in the early spring when the motor and outdoor season is commencing and when the poster can do the greatest good for the cause of Safety.

The following is a complete list of the prize winners:

MIDDLESEX MEN HUNTING WOLVES

PARKHILL, Jan. 14.—This district is engaged in a wolf hunt as a result of a battle between Edward McPherson's dog and a wolf last week. McPherson heard his dog engaged in conflict in the bush of Henry Belling, and on going to see what was the matter he discovered that the canine was in a death struggle with what at first appeared to be another dog, but which on closer inspection proved to be a wolf. Taking a sturdy stick, he beat off the wolf. Mr. McPherson went to his home to get a gun, and informed the neighbors, who tracked the wolf for miles until it was found that the marauder had entered the "drowned lands," consisting of several thousand acres of trees and water and enormous sand hills, where a traveller may easily get lost.

Children living near the drowned lands, either excited by tales of the wolf or else telling of dangerous experiences, declare that they have seen the beast since. Reports from Greenway, near here, also tell of two wolves that have been seen in the vicinity.

Besides the wolves, several deer have also appeared in this district, according to reports from residents, and have, it seems, come down from the north. The appearance of the wild animals caused farmers to worry for the safety of their stock.

Story Is Not Entertained.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 14.—The story that two wolves are frightening the farmers of the northern townships of Middlesex these days and nights is not entertained by Col. Emmerson, district game warden, of London. He thinks the supposed wolves will be found to be just dogs that have become tramps and are living in the woods.

HORSES AND WAGON SPORT ON TRACKS

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 14.—With a heavy wagon tilting and careening at their heels, nimble-footed team of runaway horses crossed six railway bridges at top speed in the course of a six-mile run down the C.N.R. tracks between Campbellford and Godolphin. At Godolphin they turned from the ties and were stopped, panting but unhurt.

Local train schedules suffered badly by this equine display of temperament. Behind the horses as they galloped down the tracks, a fast freight snorted with impatience, for its driver was unable to pass them, unwilling to run them down.

At the station, passengers on the 7.03 express, unaware of the runaway, fumed impotently at the 15-minute delay dictated by "safety-first" officials.

WINTER'S SEAL SET UPON PORT

Montreal Harbor Plant Will Sleep Until Spring—Boats Hibernate.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—Winter has set its seal on the port of Montreal and the huge plant under the administration of the Montreal Harbor Commission will sleep until spring.

Eighty-seven craft, excluding units of the Harbor Commission fleet, are hibernating in Montreal. This figure, which includes ocean-going steamers, lake boats, river vessels, oil tankers, tugs and barges, is said to constitute a record for the port in point of numbers. Vessels of different types always winter here, but many now in Montreal go to Sorel for the months during which the St. Lawrence is ice-bound. Others have been forced to stay here instead of engaging in ocean or coasting transportation business.

The severity and suddenness with which the winter descended on the St. Lawrence in particular, and Canada in general, resulted in a tie-up of navigation and eventual blockade of the route from Montreal to Sorel and the sea. Up until December 24, it was optimistically but mistakenly held in shipping circles that the ocean-going steamers would be liberated through the efforts of the large Government icebreaker, Mikula, but the other craft surrendered to circumstances some time previously.

SEALS OMITTED.

Error May Give 400 Drunken Drivers Their Liberty.

DETROIT, Jan. 14.—Omission of the seal of the State of Michigan from warrants in drunk motor cases in Recorder's Court may save approximately 400 drunken drivers from serving sentences in the House of Correction, it developed yesterday. These 400, whose sentences have been appealed, will fall into the category of George McCullough, whose attorney yesterday afternoon presented a motion for dismissal of his case because of absence of the seal on the warrant. Judge Jeffries, to whom the motion was made, postponed a ruling until next week.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, Jan. 14.—The "open installation" of the newly elected officers of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, held on Tuesday evening in the I. O. O. F. hall, was attended by over 150 members and guests, and was a very interesting and successful occasion.

This was the first time Golden Sheaf Lodge has featured an open installation at the annual investiture of its officers with the insignia of their various positions, and the work was put on in a most creditable manner by an installation staff from Golden Sheaf Lodge, No. 81, Peterborough.

The visiting officials included: D. D. P. Sister Laura Fuller; D. D. Grand Marshal, Sister M. Martin; D. D. Grand Warden Sister E. Morton; D.D. Grand Secretary Sister E. Sisson; D. D. Grand Financial Secretary Sister C. Reid; D. D. Grand Treasurer Sister M. Collins; D. D. Grand Chaplain Sister G. Londerville; D. D. Grand Inside Guard, Sister M. Freeburn; D. D. Grand Outside Guard, Sister E. Henderson. Sister M. Watt, Past President of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, and Sister A. Worboy, Noble Grand of Golden Link Lodge, were also among the guests of the evening.

The "guard of honor," technically known as "the box," which formed an escort for the Grand Marshal in discharging the duties of her office, were: Sisters Murdoff, Jones, Throop and Morrison; and the pianist was Sister Wyatt.

The uniform white dresses, worn by the installing staff, set off well the colors in collars and jewels belonging to their respective offices, and with the fragrant "arm standards" of pink carnations carried by each member of the "guard of honor," added much to the effectiveness of their appearance while the installing ceremony was in progress.

The list of officers for Golden Sheaf Lodge for 1927 is: P. N. G., Sister C. Harkness; N. G., Sister M. Garside; V. G., Sister R. Thorne; Recording Secretary, Sister M. Armstrong; Financial Secretary, Sister Z. Bentley; Treasurer, Sister J. Henderson; Chaplain, Sister Irene Fallis; Conductor, Sister E. Thorndyke; Warden, Sister Thelma Ball; R. S. N. G., Sister M. Fallis; L. S. N. G., Sister A. Ball; R. S. V. G., Sister P. Burnham; L. S. V. G., Sister I. Syer; I. G., Sister L. Shyte; O. G., Brother H. J. Armstrong.

Following the formal ceremony, a programme was enjoyed, the D. D. President occupying the chair, and speaking briefly, but most appropriately, as the opening number. The other numbers were: Duet, "Sometime, Sweet heart, You'll Come Again," by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston; reading, "Mrs. Smart Learns to Skate," by Mrs. H. Lang; solo, "When Love is Gone," by Miss Kathleen Lancashire; encore, "The Garden of To-morrow"; address by Mrs. Watt, Past President of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario; solo, "Dinah Lee," by Mr. C. Thorndyke; reading, "Bobby Shaftoe," by Miss P. Burnham; selection, "Far Away in the South," by the male quartette, Messrs. W. H. Coombe, H. W. Johnston, M. McDowell, and V. C. Lambert; encore, "My Bow-Wow"; address by Rev. F. H. Howard.

In her address, Sister Watt gave some interesting information regarding the I. O. O. F. Home in Toronto. The accompanists of the evening were Miss E. Elson, Miss May Duncan, and Mrs. H. W. Johnston.

A number of members of the Oddfellows Lodge assisted in serving the lunch, and afterward cards and dancing were enjoyed by those who wished, and a very pleasant social time was spent.

It was long past the midnight hour when the gathering finally broke up, the general verdict being that no more enjoyable evening has been held under Rebekah auspices since the organization of the lodge.

Ice Cutting Starts.

Ice cutting began on Attwool & Sheppard's pond on Tuesday. This is considerably earlier than usual; last winter cutting began the last week in January, and it is frequently the first of February before the ice harvest is started.

The ice is fine and clear, and sixteen inches in thickness, as against ten inches when it was first cut last season.

Engagement.

The engagement is announced of Gertrude Alberta Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Harper, of Toronto, to Rev. John Riddle, of Millbrook, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Riddle, of Chatham, Ontario, the marriage to take place the last of January.

Personals.

Robert Shaw, who has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. Harry Stenson, and his sister, Mrs. E. E. Doxsee, at Kirkland Lake, Northern Ontario, for some weeks, has returned home.

Mrs. J. W. Hamilton spent the week-end with friends in Bowmanville. Mrs. Hamilton's many friends will regret to learn that she has been ill with 'flu since her return home.

LAW STUDENTS TRY MENTAL TELEPATHY

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 14.—Students of the Detroit School of Law pleading a case in the Woodstock Police Court by mental telepathy, with the accused acting as the medium for his legal friends, was the unique episode which occurred yesterday when Lewis Raymond faced Magistrate Ball on a vagrancy charge. Raymond, who said he was 20 years old and had come here from Detroit on his way through to Quebec, was penniless, police said, and, it was claimed, was making his way by riding on freights.

He requested the right to plead his case, saying that his friends of the law school would aid him by means of mental telepathy. However, the results of the experiment proved that either the thought currents were not working well or that his friends had not advanced very far in their legal courses, for the arguments produced were not sufficient to influence the Magistrate to let Raymond go. He was remanded for a week while the police get in touch with his people in Detroit.

YOUNG COMMUNISTS RAISE ENTHUSIASM

Children of Seven To Twelve Are Delegates To Conference.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—Speakers of seven to twelve years of age aroused enthusiastic cheers at the fourth national congress of the Young Communist League, which attracted to Sheffield about 120 young British communists. Most of the delegates were young miners, many fairly well-dressed. Three London typists and several other girl delegates took the keenest interest in the proceedings, sitting through long sessions with cigarettes in front of them and matches at hand. Some of them smoked at least a man's ration of cigarettes.

The congress was flatteringly enthusiastic over the child speakers. The youngest, about six or seven years old, was a delegate from the young comrades' league of Sheffield.

Cliff Robertson, 12, brought fraternal greetings from his schoolboy comrades in a small town of South Wales. On their behalf he protested against the "insults" which he and his colleagues suffered from the fact that their school-master demanded they should pull their communist badges out of their coats.

Does Weakness Detract From Your Good Looks?

Mrs. Thomas Chapman of 3 Somerset Place, Toronto, Ont., whose picture appears here, said: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was very helpful to me and I know it to be the very best medicine a woman can take when nervous and run-down. I had a break-down—my nerves were so upset I could not sleep. I also suffered from nervous indigestion, but after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I did not suffer with indigestion and I could get a natural night's rest, which I could not do before. No woman can appreciate what a wonderful medicine the 'Favorite Prescription' is until she gives it a trial."

WOMEN HONOR MRS. COCKSHUTT

Jewels in Pin Embellish Aims of Province of Ontatrio.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—On behalf of Ontario's women at the Christmas season, a presentation was made to Mrs. Cockshutt of a pin, in which jewels were set to embellish the Arms of the province. Though many people thought that this month's Coliseum banquet to honor Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor would also include the wife who has been so able a partner in his public duties, it now appears that in the year of 1927, Ontario's men citizens are to honor the Lieutenant-Governor, and Toronto women will hold a separate function for Mrs. Cockshutt.

"With all our boasting we women don't seem to have got so far from our grandmothers' days when they sat in the gallery and watched men's public dinners!" declares one Toronto woman.

While one observes:

"When they had much money to collect in wartime the men used to call in the women to their meetings but now they seem inclined to go back to pre-war ways. Some of us smiled at a recent campaign luncheon. The men sat together as if it were a man's luncheon and the women were all put at one table by themselves.

PRESENTATION TO MISS MABEL INKSTER

Efficiency League and Sunday School Pays Tribute To Departing Member.

HAVELOCK, Jan 14.—On Friday evening the members of the Efficiency League and Sunday school of the Trent River United church held a social gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Vanvolkenburg in Seymour to bid farewell to Miss Mabel Inkster, who left on January 11th to train as a nurse in the Royal Victoria Hospital at Montreal and also to present her with a small token of appreciation in a toilet and manicure set. Miss Inkster will be greatly missed in the young people's work where she took an active and cheerful part in every department.

Mr. Bruce Seymour read the following address and Mr. Rufus Redden made the presentation:

Miss Mabel Inkster:

Dear Friend:

We, your friends, neighbors, fellow members of the Efficiency League and of the church and Sunday school of which you have been such an active member are gathered together here to do you honor.

By your kindness, cheerfulness and helpfulness you have endeared yourself to all who know you and we desire at this time to assure you of our love and esteem.

You are going out from home to prepare yourself for a life of ministry in your chosen profession and we desire to wish you God speed and every blessing.

We know that the duties are strenuous where you go and the holidays but few, but we hope that the ties that bind you to your friends here, though elastic enough to permit you to go to take your training, may nevertheless prove strong enough to bring you often back to the river and the friends you leave behind you.

We have ever found you whether as president of the Efficiency League, worker in the church or Sunday school, willing and enthusiastic and you will be greatly missed by your large circle of friends. We would desire ere we part to give you some token of our regard and we would therefore beg you to accept our gift of this toilet and manicure set, not for its intrinsic value, but as a memento, and may its use serve to remind you of our League, of our Sunday school and of all of us.

(Signed) Rufus Redden, Bruce Spencer.

Social Gathering.

On Friday evening Mrs. Earl Williams was the hostess for a delightful progressive five hundred party The prize was won by Mrs. Jean Moore, the consolation award going to Mrs. L. Clarke.

Personals.

Mr. W. Shea of Hastings was the recent guest of his daughter, Mrs. John Moore. Mr. and Mrs. L. Pacey of Toronto were the week end guest of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCracken of Midhurst and Mrs. George Worboy of Peterboro were in town on Friday to attend the funeral of their sister and aunt, the late Mrs. John Timlin, and were the guests of their daughter and sister, Mrs. Jesse Weymark.

EXPRESS SYMPATHY.

Members of Percy District L.O.L. Forward Resolution To W. I. Stillman.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 14.—At the district meeting of Percy District Orange Lodge, a resolution of sympathy was forwarded to Brother W. I. Stillman in the loss of his wife in a motor accident in June last.

Dear Brother—
Your heart is sad and lonely
How you miss her none can tell,
But you know she is free from trouble
And God doeth all things well.

Though her place on earth is empty
As she comes to you no more,
When you meet again
Death and parting will be o'er.

You miss her from your home
You miss her from her place,
A shadow o'er your life is cast
You miss the sunshine of her face.

You miss her kind and loving way
Her fond and earnest call
Your home is dark without her
You miss her everywhere.

Signed on behalf of District Lodge.
W. J. Melville,
District Master.
J. I. Adams,
Dist. Recording Secretary.

ARMY BANDSMEN HAD ANNUAL SOCIAL

Spirit of Co-operation Stressed By Adjutant Ham in Pithy Speech.

The annual band social was held on Tuesday evening when the bandsmen, their wives and families some invited guests who included the members of the boys' band gathered and spent a very enjoyable evening. The supper was heartily enjoyed by everybody and to the "Scotch ladies" of the local corps who were responsible for that important part of the programme thanks were tendered by Adj. Ham. In the course of a pithy speech the Adjutant made refernce to the successful work of 1926 and urged that the spirit of unity and co-operation by everybody was essential to any progress and with genuine confiidence he asserted that 1927 would be in every respect a better year for the Salvation Army corps, the band and all with this pulling together spirit. To the wives of Salvation Army bandsmen the Adjutant paid special tribute and for their sacrifice, entailed by the call on the services of the husbands thanked them very cordially. To the boys' band he offered congratulations and expressed the pleasure afforded the senior band in having the young fellows work with them. Bandmaster Robinson followed with more thanks to the ladies coupled with them the work of Deputy Bandmaster Jack Smith who put in a lot of work tixing up the details of the evening. A pleasing feature was the presentation of prizes to the never-absent never-late boys in the boys' band. The senior band promised these prizes for attendance at band practice and originally three prizes were offered but the Bandmaster was happy to report that five boys, R. Routly, V. Macdonald G. Braund, Garth Braund and M. Parnell had tied for first place. This necessitated some adjustment of the scheme and added to the $10 offered by the senior band, $5 from the boys' band fund he had obtained a silver plated music stand for each of the five boys. In renewing this offer for another year he urged every boy to become a "never-absent never-late" and get in on the prizes. He also supported Adjutant Ham in his thanks to the sacrifice of the wives of the members of the band.

Mrs. Adjutant Ham very fittingly added a few remarks, expressing her appreciation of the opportunity of being present she offered to the wives present the thought that in the sacrifices necessary, and as a Salvation Army officer's wife considerable sacrifices are made she asserted that it had been some consolation to her to know of a surety that God promised "that there would be an equal division of the spoils of war" was sure and that to the wives in their loneliness Mrs. Ham urged them to take consolation in this thought. In offering appreciation of the services of the band to all present she would say that consecrated music and song such as is played and sung by the Temple band which reach hearts of men and women that would never be touched by talking.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and a happy if somewhat tired crowd went home after a real enjoyable time.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 14.—About two hundred friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe, Stanwood, on Tuesday evening to tender Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brunton (nee Mabel Rowe) a shower. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, among them a lovely cabinet of silver from Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McDonald and family. The evening was spent in cards and dancing. Messrs. Ray Archer and Harry Ayrhart provided the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowe served a bountiful lunch to which all did ample justice.

A team, belonging to Mr. Harry Brooks, who resides near Warkworth, became frightened on Tuesday afternoon while in town and ran away. Dragging the sleigh behind, they ran up the railroad track as far as Godolphin and from there took the road for home.

L. O. L. No. 36 will hold a social evening in their lodge rooms in the Turner block on Thursday evening, January 20. Progressive euchre will be played and a special invitation is given all to attend.

Mrs. Ray Phillips, district deputy president of the Rebeka Assembly of Ontario, was in Trenton on Thursday evening at the installation of the Quinte Rebeka Lodge of Trenton. Among those from town who attended were: Mrs. H. Petherick, Misses Helen Jeffs, D. Souther, S. Keir, A. Simpson, M. Shore, R. Cochrane, and Mr. T. Craighead.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S.

St. Andrew's young people spent a most enjoyable evening on Monday night when they entertained the young people of Burnbrae. The evening's programme was opened by a few words of welcome from Miss Watson to the visitors, after which the hymn, "Simply Trusting Each Day," was sung. Rev. Mr. McKenzie was called upon to read Psalm 103, and led the young people in prayer.

Mr. Thain was then called upon to take charge of the meeting, and after speaking a few words on behalf of Burnbrae, the following programme was well rendered: Solo, "The Old Rugged Cross," by Mr. George Donald; instrumental solo, Miss Watson; selection, Burnbrae quartette; monologue, Malcolm Hutcheon (encore); reading, Master Howard Hutcheon (encore); violin selection, Miss F. Wetherall, accompanied on piano by Mrs. Milne (encore); monologue, Miss Helen Oddie; solo, Mrs. C. Milne, "We'd Better Bide a Wee," and encore, "Comin' Thro' the Rye."

Rev. Mr. McKenzie then addressed the meeting, after which Rev. Mr. Grier passed a few remarks.

The National Anthem brought this part of the meeting to a close. Lunch and coffee was then served by St. Andrew's, and the visitors left for home.

HE WOULDN'T have believed so short a time could make such a shocking difference. What had happened to break her health? To steal her glorious vitality?

What a different story if people realized how constipation wrecks health and vigor! Steals charm. Speeds the aging years! For no one need suffer from constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve it.

How ALL-BRAN works

The bulk in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture and carries it through the system. And it gently distends the intestines — cleansing; removing poisonous wastes. ALL-BRAN is all bulk—which is why it produces complete results. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is too small to accomplish more than partial results. That's why, doctors recommend ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Goodbye to dangerous pills

How different from habit-forming pills and drugs that become worthless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Use it in cooking. Mixed with other cereals. In soups. Try the recipes on every package.

Be sure to get genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg of London, Ontario.

Peterboro—Lackey, 1.30 min.

What was really a hard game to lose was lost last night by the Peterboro Intermediate O.H.A. team in Picton, when the Picton-Trenton outfit defeated the Petes five goals to four. It was a great exhibition of good clean hockey by two teams which are well matched.

The defeat of the local boys last night puts them in the cellar position, but if they play the same kind of hockey as was exhibited last night, and "Lady Luck" is not entirely against them, they should soon remedy their standing in the group.

On the night's play the score should have been different for the local blue and white team showed the best team play and checking, but there was a certain finish lacking around the mouth of the goal. Picton had their old stand-by, Croft, in goal, the man who has come between Peterboro and Picton before in winning a game. He is an old hand at the game, and certainly knows how to guard the nets. Time after time the locals had the defence beaten, but Croft stood in the way between them and victory.

The blue and white played an offensive game right from the first face-off. In the first period they outskated the Picton team and outshot them two to one, and when the period was over both teams had a goal under their belt.

They tried hard in the second, and Dundas was awarded with a goal, but through the remainder of the period, no matter how hard they tried, they were unable to beat Croft, and Picton on the other hand scored three goals, one on a long shot and two at close range.

The Picton team outweighed the local boys badly and in size they were much larger in every position. They had two men on the forward line, Shonicher and Shenchell, who could skate, stick handle and backcheck, and these two Trenton players with Croft, were a tower of strength to the Picton team.

On the Peterboro side the work of Maudsley in centre and that of Dundass on right wing, was outstanding. Lambert Collins on the defence played his first game of the season, and the addition of this player to the team has strengthened the defence greatly.

While Maudsley and Dundas stood out Cheu and Cripps turned in a good game. Jack Thornton had his ankle cut early in the game which greatly checked the speed of this player. LeBarr in goal has turned in better games but he made some splendid saves during the game.

Referee Devlin at the end of the game said that it was one of the cleanest games he has had charge of this season and he congratulated both teams on the kind of play used. Six penalties were handed out, and all these were for minor offenees, each team drawing three.

Putting Picton in the group with Peterboro is rather unfair to the players as in winter time it takes so long to get there and get out again. The players left at noon yesterday, and did not get home until eight o'clock this morning, having to travel all night.

Tied in the First.

In the early stages of the game is where the Petes had the margin over the county team, but it took many shots at Croft before he was finally beaten by Maudsley, who went around the defence and shot one into the corner of the net, which Croft never saw. Lackey was then given a penalty but the local boys held their own while he was off. With all men on again during a mix-up in front of the Peterboro net Young sent home a nice goal for Picton's first counter. Bedborough then drew a penalty and the Petes rained in the shots on Croft, who made some wonderful saves. The Petes lost goals at this stage of the game by failing to get in to get the rebounds off Croft's pads.

The Fatal Period.

A smart goal by Dundass after 32 seconds of play put the Petes on their feet and they thought they saw victory ahead. Lambert Collins carried the puck up the ice and beat the defence and passed to Dundas who who saved. The last half of this period saw the game going bad as far as the locals were concerned. Shenchell scored an easy one which bounded over LeBarr's shoulder into the nets. After a few minutes Shenchell went betwen the Peterboro defence and beat LeBarr on a close in shot and near the end of the period Shoniker went down the left boards and put one into the corner of the net. In this period Bedborough and Myatt each drew penalties. The period closed four goals to two for Picton.

Third Period.

Collins started the scoring in this period. Maudsley secured the puck in the Peterboro territory carried it down centre ice and beat the defence. He then passed it out to Collins who steamed the rubber home. Young carried the puck down the ice to LeBarr which whe it hit his stick glanced into the net. With a minute and a half to play Lackey scored the final goal for Peterboro in a scrimmage in front of net. He secured the puck on a rebound and sent it into the goal.

BRISTLING BATTLES of BARE FIST DAYS

(MY LIFE STORY)

by Jack McAuliffe

(Copyright 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

I had the lightweight championship of the world handed to me on a silver platter.

Jack Dempsey heard that I had turned pro. He was so impressed with my showings that when he decided to go into the middleweight class he simply sat down and wrote a declaration handing the title over to me.

I guess it is the only case on record of anything of the sort happening, but I defended it against all comers and retired undefeated. A man can't do any better than that, can he?

Madden then started me on a tour of the country. This Irish manager of mine was a great guy. He managed John L. Sullivan, and the way he put old John L. across was every bit as crafty as the Jack Kearns and Tex Rickards of today.

Paddy Ryan was heavyweight champ, managed by Richard Fox of the Police Gazette. Fox would not consider a challenge unless a $1,000 sidebet was posted. Madden and Sullivan scarcely had $1 between them, let alone $1,000. So Madden started working up publicity for his fighter and arranged a tour something like one he arranged for me later.

He startled the country by announcing John L. Sullivan would fight any man in the county and guarantee to knock him out in four rounds WITH GLOVES.

Up to that time no one believed a man could be knocked out with the gloves. They all thought it had to come from a bare knuckle. In fact, they used to scoff a bit at the "sparrers" who used gloves.

They used to smear shoe blackening on the gloves and two men would spar and at the end of the round the black marks left on the body by the shoe blackening was used to count the points.

This type of sparring brought out types like Young Griffo, who couldn't dent a cup custard but he could stand on his cap, drop his arms and keep his face out o fthe way of the best puncher.

John L. was the first to score a knockout with the gloves, although he seldom used them. He retired unbeaten under the London rules, because the only time he lost was to Jim Corbett and then he was hampered by gloves.

NOTE: In the next chapter McAuliffe tells of the barnstorming tricks used by Madden, blackjacks wielded from behind stage, back heel punches and other jobs pulled on the hicks on their tour.

GAME ENDS IN TIE.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 14.—Campbellford High school held Albert College to a two all score for the regulation playing time in an Interscholastic League game played here last night. The Collegians winning in 10 minutes overtime, 3 to 2.

It was an interesting struggle between two evenly matched teams, each team bulged the twine twice in the first period and there was no score in the second and third period.

HOCKEY MEETING.

The meeting to be held to-night (Friday) at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum Rooms is for the Midget City and District League. The word midget was omitted in last night's issue.

BROOKS AT BLOOMINGTON

BLOOMINGTON, Ill, Jan 14.—Clarence Brooks, veteran catcher, has been signed as manager of the Bloomington team in the Three-I League.

SATURDAY TIES ARE BROKEN IN CUP REPLAYS

Manchester United Divided Two Goals at Reading For Only Exception.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Portsmouth Held Opponents To Whitewash By 4-0 Score.

Three of the four visiting teams in Saturday's Cup ties mat forced a draw on the ground of their opponents with nothing to spare came through the replay ordeals with colors flying. Manchester United, who divided two goals with Reading at "Biscuit Town" were the exception. The end of extra time at Old Traford left United and Reading still in grips, the score being two all. Liverpool, who were hard pushed to force a draw at the Bournemouth ground, won handsomely on their own ground at Anfield, while Portsmouth, who held Bristol Rovers to a three-all draw away from home, "whitewashed" their opopnents to the tune of 4-0.

At half-time Reading were leading by two goals to one. Richardson having scored twice against Spence's one for the United. Sweeney sent in the equalizer late on in the second half. Extra time was played, but the tie could not be broken. Wet weather marked the event.

"Hat Kick" by Chambers.

The Portsmouth-Bristol Rovers game attracted a crowd of 23,000. The Portsmouth team went right out to win, and were two up, through successful shots by Mackie, at half-time. In the second half Portsmouth were put further ahead through Haines and McColgan. The match was played in a downpour of rain.

There was little doubt as to the outcome of the match between Liverpool and Bournemouth after the first 15 minutes. Liverpool had two goals, scored by Hopkins and Chambers, to their credit at the interval. The Lancashire team made it up through Chambers' four tallies in the second half, but Bournemouth reduced the lead near the end, when Eyre neatly netted. Forty thousand people saw the game.

Another runaway affair was the Port Vale players registered three Port aVle players registered three times in the first half. The scorers being Page, Kirkham and Simms. Orient replied with a goal from Dennison. Strange and Kirkham found the net for Port Vale in the second half. The results;

Portsmouth 4, Bristol Rover 0.
Liverpool 4, Bournemouth 1.
Port Vale 5, Clapton Orient 1.
Manchester U. 2, Reading 2.

W. REESOR WINS J. D. FLAVELLE CUP

Defeats Best of Peterborough in Jubilee Bonspiel at Lindsay.

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Walter Reesors rink won the J. D. Flavelle Memorial Cup at Lindsay's Jubilee Bonspiel, defeating Best of Peterboro and Carley of Lindsay in the finals. Larry O'Connor won the Lindsay Club, cup defeating Reesor and Carew of Lindsay in the finals. T. Massaw of Lindsay defeated Carlisle of Lindsay for the Victoria Trust Consolation Cup.

33 rinks entered the bonspiel, 15 being from out of town. Ellis of Toronto Oakwoods and Best of Peterboro, as well as Thompson of Agincourt, reached the fours.

SATURDAY GAMES ARE SCHEDULED

Newcastle United Enters Home Stretch With Slight Lead.

LONDON, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press Cable).—With the fourth round of the Football Association Cup two weeks away, the league team will re-direct their attention to the more prolonged encounter represented by the league, championship and on Saturday all the clubs are back to their scheduled features. The back of the season has been broken with one-half of the forty-two home-and-home games already played, and it is noted that Newcastle United enter the home stretch with a slight lead over all-comers. On Saturday the Northumbrians play at Villa Park, again the team with whom they opened their football year and whom they blanked by four goals. Aston Villa's display has continued mediocre while that of Newcastle United has been gathering strength. The reversion of locale may have some effect on Saturday's engagement, but Newcastle are headed well for the laurels and their supporters are confident that the Villa will present no obstacle to them.

Burnley, who defeated Cardiff City at Burnley in their opener by the odd goal in seven, will have an opportunity to show if they can repeat on the Welshmen's ground. Cardiff continue weak in proportion as Burnley acquires more vigor, and the team from the principality have nothing to hope for in the way of League honors this year at least.

Other scheduled games with the score in the previous meeting of the teams concerned, are:

Birmingham (3) at Blackburn (2); Leeds United (2), Bolton Wanderers (5); Arsenal (2) at Derby County 1); Tottenham (2) at Everton (1); West Hame (3) at Leicester (3); Liverpool (4) at Manchester United (2); Wednesday (2) at Sheffield United (3); West Bromwich (3) at Sunderland (0).

Mr. "Dutch" Leonard writes that he used to cry every time he lost a ball game. Crying at all times seems to be the best thing he does.

MARLBOROS TO MEET PETES ON MONDAY NIGHT

With Second Place at Stake Lively Battle is Certain.

VISITORS FAST.

The Senior O.H.A. game at the Brock street Rink on Monday night, which brings the Marlboros here for the first time this season, promises to be by long odds the best local battle of the year, and indications are that a capacity crowd will see the battle.

The two teams are fighting tooth and nail for second place in the group standing, and Monday night's winner gets a tight grip on the position, so that there is plenty at stake.

The Marlboros are fast, young and clever, with their regular forward line their strongest asset. Joe Primeau at centre ice is the star of the team. He is a speedy, easy skater, a smart stick handler and is a constant threat on the attack, while his two clever wingsmen, Heintzman, and Johnny McPherson, are able assistants. Heintzman skates well and is a fine puck carrier, while McPherson's aggressiveness and his ability to pump in a shot that carries lots of steam, make him decidedly useful.

It is expected that the Petes will be at full strength for Monday's game.

Frank Collins, who was out of the line-up the other night for the first time in many moons is convalescent, and will likely be back on the job against the Dukes.

From every angle this looks like the game of the season and a rush for reserved seats is certain.

NASHUA EMPLOYEES HOLD HOCKEY GAME

Both Teams in Training For Replay as Result of Tie.

The Nashua Paper Company Gummers and Waxers, after a wordy war lasting all winter, finally staged a hockey game at the Brock Street Rink on Wednesdy last from 6 to 7 p.m.

The line-up:

Referee.—Walter Byers.

Goal judges.—R. A. Brown and J. R. Marshall.

Goals as scored:

First Period.—LeBarr, Gummers; P. Vannest, Waxers.

Second Period.—Anderson, Gummers; Graham, Waxers.

The game started very fast, too fast to last, and the players were pretty tired at the end of the first period, but they stuck it out gamely to the end. The goal judges wore red caps and carried tennis rackets; why, no one but themselves knows. Crowe in goal looked just like Joe Dywer in appearance at least, but not in performance. He drew two minutes' penalty for throwing the puck to the other end of the rink, and gave the referee a line of talk that Jim Coursey would envy. Shiner drew four penalties, should have had more. He was not at home on skates; should have had skiis. One penalty was for loafing, another thinking the referee was Umpire Sullivan and telling him off baseball fashion, another for hooking, and another for staging a fight with Graham. This was like a French one—lots of words, no action, but the artful beggars perhaps needed a rest and so got in that way. Graham also got penalties for hooking and saying what he thought of the referee's knowledge of hockey.

Percy Elfison, the sub, was the best performer on the ice when used, and pulled one smart stunt, carrying an extra puck in his pocket, he dropped same when hard pressed and shots were being fired at each goal at the same time. The referee was so surprised that he had to get out his rule book, but not finding any rule to cover the case, accidentally dropped the bell, and the game stopped.

As a hockey game, it was perhaps not up to Senior class, but as Vaudeville it certainly was.

The replay will take place shortly and both teams are going in training, drinking nothing stronger than home brew, so a fast game may be expected, It is hoped that Mike Rodden will be in charge and that Sergt. Jack Deannard will be on hand with a large detail of police to keep Shiner and Co. in order.

During intermission, the referee and the time keeper (Vic. Hamilton) got into an argument regarding the rules and regulations and finally came to blows. The referee "fell hard" and had to be brought around by the nurses-in-attendance (Miss Soohia Sealright and Miss Maggie Sales.

B. D. HALL HEADS LOCAL LAWYERS

Chosen President of Association at Annual Meeting This Week.

OTHER OFFICERS.

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Law Association, held in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms on Wednesday, December 12, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—B. D. Hall.
Vice President—V. J. McElderry.
Treasurer—J. W. Reid.
Secretary—J. W. Stevenson.

Trustees—F. D. Kerr, K.C.; R. R. Hall, K.C.; J. A. O'Brien; W. F. Huycke.

The report of the executive was read by the President and paid tribute to the work of the late D. W. Dumble, K.C., as a member of the Association and of the local Bar. The librarian's report showed a number of valuable additions to the number of the text books in the law library.

A resolution was passed that His Honor Judge Huycke be asked to address the members of the association at a date in the near future on some subject of professional interest, which His Honor consented to do at a time to be arranged. In accepting the invitation of the association, His Honor stated that if under the by-laws of the association he was not by virtue of his office ineligible for membership in the association, he wished to make application to become a member. On references to the bylaws, it was found that His Honor was eligible, and he was, on an unanimous vote, elected a member.

Two Fusion Candidates Say They Will Sit in His Group.

STILL PROGRESSIVES.

TORONTO, Jan. 14 (Canadian Press).—J. H. Mitchell, Liberal-Progressive member of the Ontario Legislature for Simcoe South-West, has decided to follow W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader in the House, because he has always been a Liberal, Mr. Mitchell said in an interview over the long distance telephone to-day. He added that he was in Toronto a few days ago but not for the purpose of attending the Progressive caucus then being held.

William Newman, Liberal-Progressive member for Victoria North, explains his decision to sit behind Mr. Sinclair by the statement that he was told by the Clerk of the Legislature that he must sit behind either one leader or the other. He wanted to remain a member of the Liberal-Progressive group in the House.

WEDDING BELLS.

WINDSOR—COOK.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at All Saints' Church on Thursday at 8 p.m., when Doris, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cook, was united in marriage to D'Arcy Windsor, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Windsor. They were supported by Miss Lillian Garvey and Mr. Austin Gorman. The happy couple left on the C.P.R. train for points east, and upon their return will reside in Peterboro.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN McCABE

The funeral of the late Mrs John McCabe took place this morning from her late residence at 470 Gilmour street to St. Peter's Cathedral, where Requiem High Mass was solemnized at nine o'clock by Rev. P. Costello, assisted by Rev. W. P. Meagher and Rev. Gerard Maher, with Rev. J. Finn as Master of Ceremonies. The Mass was sung by the children's choir of the cathedral. In the sanctuary were His Lordship, Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterborough, who sang the "Libera," Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, Very Rev. Dean F. J. O'Sullivan of Port Hope, and Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church.

The funeral was largely attended and the large number of spiritual and floral tributes received from friends and relatives in the city and in other points testified to the high esteem in which the deceased lady was held. Among those present were sisters-in-law of the deceased: Rev. Mother Loyola of Mount St. Joseph and Sister Mildred of St. Joseph"s Academy, in Lindsay.

His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, at the conclusion of Mass, delivered a very touching and impressive address, based on the 12th chapter of the Gospel of St. Luke. He spoke on the importance of living in such a way as to merit the reward of eternal happiness promised to those who observe the Commandments. He then went on to speak of the exemplary life of the deceased lady, and the sanctity of the home of which she was the head. He said that she had given one of her children to the service of God in the community life, and that she was at all times a woman who had the proper conception of her duties as a Christian mother. Her influence permeated not only her own home but the parish of which she was a member, and she exemplified in her passing all the loss which comes to any household in the taking away of the mother of the family.

Prayers at the cemetery were said by Rev. Gerard Maher.

Pall-bearers were the five sons of the deceased: Vincent M., John P., Leo and Robert P., all of this city, and Thomas J. of North Pines, Ontario, also a brother, Mr Thomas J. Begley, of Lindsay, editor of The Lindsay Post.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by the full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Dropped Cigarette Believed Cause of Montreal Catastrophe

THAT MONTREAL THEATRE BLAZE CAUSED BY A LIGHTED CIGARETTE BROUGHT OUT AT THE FIRE INQUIRY

NEED INSPECTORS.

Further Investigation To Be Made When Inquiry is Resumed Tuesday.

MONTREAL, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press) — Although evidence is incomplete and the inquiry will continue Tuesday afternoon, Fire Commissioner Emmett Quinn declared yesterday he had heard enough to convince him that last Sunday's blaze at the Laurier Palace theatre, with its consequent panic and 78 child deaths, was caused by a lighted cigarette which dropped or rolled through a trap door in the forefront of the balcony floor.

The Commissioner thought one of the children must have taken the cigarette into the theatre; one lawyer present expressed the view that employees of the theatre might have been smoking before the performance started—though he got a strenuous denial from an usher in the witness box. Within the realm of certainty, however, was evidence to the effect that the trap door, some two by three feet, existed; that a small hole, through which fingers could be inserted was cut so that the door could be lifted, that smoke poured from that hole as the blaze was discovered, shot out as though compressed when the door was removed and was followed by flames belching from the same aperture. There was talk of the trap door having been used for the deposition of rubbish swept from the balcony floor, though on that point testimony was indefinite and to clear up the matter "John," a Polish night watchman, is being subpoenaed for the Tuesday hearing.

Coupled with the commissioner's opinion as to fire cause was the dictum that more thorough inspection of the Laurier Palace and other theatres in Montreal would have been possible had action been taken by the city authorities on recommendations by James McIsaac chief inspector of the fire prevention divison of the fire department, for more inspector's to form the prevention forces. Inspector McIsaac was frank in his declaration that he is under-staffed. He has, he said, 21 men all told to make fire prevention inspections in the thousands of churches, apartment buildings, factories, office buildings, theatres, halls—indeed, everything except private residences of the city. Two men are all he can spare for the theatres and the moving picture houses. They visit those places about twice a month; they should inspect each place at least twice a week, he declared. He has asked for more men, he swore, and has made his recommendation to Fire Chief Gauthier, who is in entire sympathy with the work of his division. Queried as to the fate of his recommendations. Inspector McIsaac said he had been informed that his letters had been passed on through the routine appertaining to the City Hall. "Passed on to the waste basket," growled one lawyer representing bereaved families. That the inspector had nothing to say, but he did admit that some people he has met have viewed his division as being worthless and and without use. Asked flatly whether he had ever encountered aldermanic resistance or interference, he said he had not.

Montreal's laws, governing the theatres and moving picture halls, have their anomalies, according to the inspector. Moving pictures, for instance, may be given in halls that are not fireproof, that are under the same building regulations as ordinary halls where simple meetings are held. Under moving picture house permits, vaudeville is not permitted because vaudeville requires movable scenery or accessories. And the witness gave it as his opinion that the law, strictly applied, bars vaudeville from places having moving picture house permits, because, as he said "to go the whole hog, I believe that the law would bar a musician from taking his violin on to the stage with him."

Theatres proper are under stricter laws, the inspector said. He had always considered Laurier Palace as a moving picture house, and only the day after fire did he learn, to his surprise, that vaudeville had been played there.

"Gas Bug" New Discovery Thrives On Gas Drippings

BERLIN, Jan. 15. — Motor traffic has brought in a new microbe. Prof. Carl Neuberg of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute declares. It is a gas eater, he says which lives in and thrives upon the drops of gasoline that fall upon the highways or collect in the garages.

It is quite probable, Prof. Neuberg thinks, that the motor traffic microbe is new only in the sense of its just becoming known to science. He is endeavoring to find out where the little gas-eater lived and by what means he subsisted before the automobile came into existence.

50 BELOW ZERO AT WHITE RIVER

Southern Ontario Has Milder Temperatures—15 Below in Toronto.

22 AT LAKE SIMCOE.

TORONTO, Jan. 15. — (Canadian Press.)— The lake tempered regions of Southern Ontario were comparatively balmy in contrast with the northern frigidness of famous White River, Ontario, where early this morning a temperature of 50 below was unofficially reported. At the same time Toronto and district experienced an unusual drop. Private thermometers indicated from ten to fifteen below zero in various parts of the city. Dilatory housewives found an epidemic of burst milk bottles and garage and motor repair shops were especially busy. Fuel men were swamped with rush orders.

The cold wave came down last night in bitter wind from the north. Outdoor skaters were driven home early. Old Boreas seems to have tired or spent his strength on the way down. At Lake Simcoe it was 22 below, at Richmond Hill 16 below, while at St. Catharines, on the sunnier side of Lake Ontario, one above was reported. Western Ontario offered various temperatures at from two to 12 below zero.

EXPLORER ROBBED ON ENGLISH ROAD

Mitchell Hedges Tells Police He Lost Valuable Document.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (United Press).—F. Mitchell-Hedges, Latin-American explorer, today was held up near Wisley as he was going by automobile from Bournemouth to London. The explorer told the police he had been robbed of a document of great importance.

Six bandits stopped the car and seized Mitchell-Hedges, his chauffeur, and a male companion. The victims were bound with ropes and the bandits ransacked the car.

Eventually Mitchell-Hedges succeeded in releasing himself and returned to London with the chauffeur and his companion. A few hours before the hold-up the explorer had broadcast from a radio station a narration of Central American revolutions. He had attracted considerable attention recently by a speech deploring the disappearance of the adventurous spirit in the youth of England.

THE WEATHER.

The temperature this Saturday morning at daybreak was 19 degrees below zero. No lower during the night. This is the lowest this winter so far.—W. P.

Former Crown Prince To Star In Photoplay

PARIS, Jan. 15 (United Press). — The former Crown Prince of Germany has signed a contract to star in a motion picture to be called "The Prince of Wieringen," according to reports received here today from Wieringen, Holland.

The film is to be produced under the auspices of an American company, it was stated, and the Prince is to be paid a fee of 200,000 marks. The Prince is expected to reach Wieringen, where the film will be made, on Jan. 26th.

Woodsman Lost In City Blazes Trail On Poles

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 15.— (A.P.) — While Little Rock does not claim rivalry with New York and Chicago in size, a stranger here found it necessary to blaze his trail through the city with a hand ax to avoid becoming lost. The woodsman was found by the police hacking a marker on each telephone pole he passed. He was told that this was illegal. "All right," the police were informed, "if you're so particular I'll go back to where I came from," and the stranger did, following his trail of peeled poles.

DISCOVERY HELPS IN CANCER FIGHT

Different Wave Lengths of X-Rays Alter Their Effects.

GREAT IMPORTANCE.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 15.—In connection with the anti-cancer campaign, Prof. F. P. Sanders, director of research, announces that Dr. Warnford Moppett, 28-year-old physician, who has been conducting experiments at Sydney University, has made what will probably turn out to be one of the most helpful discoveries hitherto announced in the treatment of the disease.

Mr. Moppet, according to the announcement, has found that X-ray waves of slightly different lengths have widely divergent effects on living tissues, and it is considered likely that when this fact is generally recognized a considerable improvement in the design of X-ray machines employed for therapeutic purposes will ensue.

CAMPAIGN FUND INQUIRY ASKED

ARISES FROM PROBE.

VICTORIA, B.C., Jan. 15 (Canadian Press)—Demand for an investigation into campaign funds was made in the Legislature yesterday by R. H. Pooley, house leader of the Opposition. While defending such contributions in general, provided no strings were attached to them, the Conservative chief declared there was a suggestion, as revealed at the customs inquiry at Vancouver, that some persons had been influenced by payments of this kind.

"It is suggested people have been bought," he said, "Such being the case, then it is our duty to investigate and find out whether it is so or not."

Mr. Pooley delivered a general attack on the government. Dealing with campaign funds Mr. Pooley said that the attorney general had said that there should be an investigation consequent on the evidence given before the Customs commission.

"The evidence shows that many matters call for investigation," he said.

LEADER GETS PRISON TERM

FINED $10,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. — Emil Wormser, "millionaire resident of Riverside Drive," and convicted head of the Portchester rum ring, was sentenced to two years imprisonment and fined $10,000 yesterday. Three confederates were given lesser sentences.

The rum ring, which was reported to have had assets of approximately $10,000,000, operated vessels landing smuggled liquor at Portchester and nearby points.

ICE FALL IS ATTRACTION.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 15.—Surpassing any waterfall in grandeur, an ice fall is the boast of Mount McKinley. A large glacier, coming down from a height of 18,500 feet to the 15,000 foot level makes a sheer drop of 3,000 feet. The fall is perennial.

CHAPLIN PLANS COUNTER SUIT AGAINST WIFE

Will Fight For Custody of His Children, He Says.

CRUEL ONSLAUGHT.

Movie Star Blames Wife's Family For Her Charges Against Him.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press)—Charles Spencer Chaplin is ready to fight for his children and will answer his wife's charges in a counter suit for divorce, to be filed in California as soon as possible.

The motion picture comedian, who arrived here yesterday from the Pacific coast, placed upon his wife's family the blame for what he termed "viperous, terrible accusations" made against him in the divorce charges filed by his wife, Lita Grey Chaplin.

"It's cruel and unjustified — this onslaught on me," he said, at the home of his attorney, Nathan Burkan, last night "I can't understand all this bitterness, except that I know it has been instigated by my wife's family. She must be devoid of feeling, I guess."

"The unfair, malicious, and wholly untrue statements of Mrs. Chaplin," said Mr. Burkan, "Furnish sufficient grounds for a suit for divorce for cruel and inhuman treatment."

Chaplin intimated he would be here for perhaps two weeks, in which time he would plan his divorce action

Asked if he was still in love with his wife, whom he married four years ago when she was 16, Chaplin replied, "How can one be, after such horrible accusations? I hardly think I can have any sane views on love at this time, when I'm so close to this awful experience.

"I see, all around me, happiness, tenderness, home life, sanity — all the things I love, and I am very much attached to children and home life.

"That's the tragedy of this whole thing — the stigma it has cast on their poor little lives."

He met her allegation that he had boasted of love affairs with five motion picture actresses by stating:

"Do I like five women?" "You bet I do. I like fifty women. If you appreciate beauty you like women, but you don't have to be morally wrong."

He said he had loved his wife before their separation.

The average person is estimated to speak roughly 12,000 words a day.

MEXICANS SEE TROUBLES END

Officials Believe Domestic and Foreign Situations Are Improving.

VERY OPTIMISTIC.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press) — Mexican official circles believe that the situation is improving, both as regards international relations and domestic disturbances. This view, however, is not universally shared. Some observers continue to see dubious, if not dangerous, possibilities.

The view of the Mexican officials is based in part on Senator Borah's speech before the United States Senate's Foreign Relations committee urging te adoption of a new Latin-American policy by the United States and arbitration of the dispute growing out of Mexico's petroleum and land laws, some features of which the United States state department has denounced as retroactive and confiscatory.

Optimism was also aroused among officials by the war department's assurance that Federal troops were in a position to suppress all the bandits and rebels, who have been increasingly active of late.

Notwithstanding this assurance on the part of the military chiefs reports of uprisings in the interior continue to reach the capital and there are additional rumors of anti Government agitation among Roman Catholics because of religious restrictions enforced by the Calles administration.

CLOSING OF BRITISH BANKS RE-ACTS ON CANTONESE ARMY AS NO TAXES CAN BE LEVIED

Soldiers Demanding Arrears In Pay To Settle Personal Debts.

ON NEW YEAR'S DAY.

Closing of Banks Stops Business on Which Tax Was Imposed.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—An uncensored Reuter's despatch from Hankow today indicated that the closing of the British banks and other business institutions there as the result of the anti-foreign riots of Jannuary 3 has placed the Cantonese government in a desperate situation. The ensuing reaction cut off a big source of funds for the Cantonese regime, which collected taxes on business transactions.

With the Chinese New Year, February 2, approaching, when age long custom demands settlement of all debts, Nationalist troops of many provinces were said to be demanding their long standing arrears.

The Cantonese were reported desperately trying to persuade the British to resume business and make possible continuance of Hankow's economic life. The correspondent declares the southerners have found the British concession, which they triumphantly took over, a "white elephant." Closing of the British banks stopped the most promising source of Nationalist income and now there is no business to tax.

The correspondent declared portions of the Cantonese army in Kiangsi province had revolted because of non-payment of wages and that troops from Canton, the cradle of the Nationalist movement, were refusing to advance toward Chekiang province, one of the goals of the southerners, until their arrerars are paid.

Communication Cut Off.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — The Commercial Cable Company to-day was advised that communication with Hankow had been cut off by the interruption of lines on the Yangtse, beyond Kiukiang.

Stand By the Light Grandfathers Used

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 15. — Although a community club offered to pay the cost of installation and maintenance of Hydro service in the schoolhouse of S. S. No. 4, Westminster Township, the trustees and ratepayers refused the proposal, maintaining that oil lamps were good enough years ago and were good enough now. The leader of the opposition is putting Hydro in his own home. The school teacher said that for 25 days a year at least the children could hardly see the blackboard, because the school is so poorly lighted.

VETERAN PASSES TOBACCO OF 1856

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 15.—General M. D. Vance, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, must have his little joke. Recently passed a plug of tobacco among a gathering of his friends. They all took healthy bites. Pretty soon all of them spit it out. It was a plug that was 70 years old, being given to Vance recently while on a visit to Bristol, Tenn., by E. M. Woolsey, Mayor of that town.

SHOE MAKERS ASK INCREASE IN PROTECTION

Application Is Made To Increase Preference Rate To 25 Per Cent.

ON PRODUCTION COST.

Hearing Asked For at February Sitting of Federal Tariff Board.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 15 (Canadian Press)—An application by the Shoe Manufacturing Association of Canada for revision of the tariff on boots and shoes has been added to the agenda for the sittings of the Federal Tariff Board which is to open on February 1. This application, which the Board hopes to reach by February 3, asks in part:

That the British preference on boots, shoes, slippers, etc., be reduced, so as to read, in the tariff schedules, 25 per cent instead of 17 1-2 per cent as at present;

That slipper cloth of camel hair wool and cotton, imported by slipper manufacturers, be admitted free, all tariffs;

That the Customs Act be revised to provide that the value for duty shall be not less than the cost of production of similar goods in the principal markets of the country of export, plus a reasonable profit;

That the present limitation of dumping duty to 15 per cent advalorem be repealed, in order to provide a more effective deterrent.

MISSION POSTS BEING LOOTED

Americans Ordered To Leave Fulsien Because of Lawless Soldiers.

PROPERTY LOOTED.

LONDON, Jan. 15. United Press.—Menaced by lawless soldiers engaged in the systematic destruction of all property owned by foreigners, American missionaries have been ordered to abandon posts at Fukien, China, cablegrams received here from Peking stated.

The missions at Fukien have been occupied by Cantonese soldiers, the cable added, and the local authorities are unable to control the looting and pillaging by the soldiers.

England Wins Rugby.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 15 (Canadian Press Cable). — England defeated Wales in their International Rugby match at Twickenham to-day by eleven poihts to nine. Rugby matches between England and Wales began in 1880, and of the series England has won 20, Wales 16, while two have been drawn.

This Morning

Cross Atlantic Swim; Hoot Mon, How They Fell

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 15.—(A.P.)— Forty thousand Scotchmen were hoaxed by a report that a young woman swimming across the Atlantic was to land in Glasgow harbor yesterday. Dense crowds were thrilled at the sight of a rowboat with a piper at the prow coming up the Clyde, followed by a swimmer with golden curls battling valiantly the choppy water. She landed amid great cheering and then drove away in an automobile.

After a brief time, however, it became known that the stunt was arranged by university students to advertise their charity week."

MUCH PRODUCE OFFERED TO-DAY

Cold Weather, However, Kept Patrons of Market Away.

BUTTER 42 TO 45.

There was a good attendance on the farmers' market this morning, although the severe cold kept most of the patrons in the basket section, where there was plenty of produce on sale. Chickens ranged from 30 to 35 cents a pound and hens were 25 cents. Ducks were 30 cents a pound. Butter was 42 to 45 cents a pound, and eggs 55 to 60 cents a dozen. Clover honey in five-pound pails was priced at 65 cents. Goose down pillows were $5 a pair, and Devonshire cream was 50 cents a bowl. Canned raspberries in quart sealers were 50 cents, and sweet cucumber pickles 45 cents. Home-made bread was 25 cents for a large, round loaf, and huge "King" apples were a nickel apiece. One lady had bouquets of artificial sweet peas and gypsophila at 40 cents, and an energetic salesman was dilating on the merits of a contrivance that separates the yolk from the white of eggs, and sells for 15 cents.

On the open market, little produce was offered. Pork was selling at 18 and 20 cents a pound, in front and hind quarters, and beef at 11 and 13 cents. Good body hardwood was priced at $10 and $11 a load, and mixed wood at prices ranging from $7 to $9.50. Hay was $13 a load.

ALL SAINTS' GUILD ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. N. H. Sutton President and Mrs. P. Fitzgerald Vice-President.

The Women's Guild of All Saints' church held its 19th annual meeting on Thursday afternoon in the parish hall, when reports were presented, showing the period just ended as having been one of the most satisfactory and successful years in the history of the society.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. N. H. Sutton; vice-president, Mrs. P. Fitzgerald; secretary, Mrs. R. Cottrell; treasurer, Mrs. J. Detcher; Dorcas Committee; Mesdames Sabin (convenor), Davidson, Haskill, Henderson, Fitzgerald, Dillon and Crowe; Visiting Committee, Mesdames Haskill (convenor), Clee and Black; Flower Committee, Mrs. A. Moffatt (convenor.)

It was decided to ask Rev. W. M. Loucks, M.A., rector of Holy Trinity Church, Toronto, to give a lecture on "The Parson Abroad," on Monday evening, January 31st.

The meeting concluded with a social hour and the service of refreshments.

Advertising Is Called "Life of the Nation

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (A.P.). —If advertising should stop, slow, decay would follow and, ultimately, the entire world would collapse, William Allen White, Kansas editor, told members of the New York Advertising Club at a meeting yesterday.

"Could I control the advertising pages of this country," he said, "I would have control of the entire country. More has been done by mass production, plus advertising, than all the legislation ever enacted. The wide distribution of wealth in this country is directly due to the efforts of advertising men. All things that are the common lot of Americans are theirs because advertising has aroused their desires to have new things."

MANITOBA LAWS ON LIQUOR SALE MAY BE CHANGED

Attorney-General Would Hear Opinion of People Regarding Matter.

MAY ALTERNATE.

Most of Troubles Believed Due To Illicit Beer Vendors.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Jan. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— "It may be that new legislation suggested from divers quarters materially changing the principles of the present liquor law may be found necessary, but the people having decided on the present law, my personal view is that they should be given an opportunity to express an opinion about any proposed new law of this nature."

A statement to this effect, made by Hon. R. W. Craig, K.C., attorney-general, in concluding an address on the 'liquor situation in Manitoba," before the United Farmers of Manitoba convention here was interpreted as foreshadowing a referendum on the proposed "beer bill," a petition for which is being circulated throughout the province. A further exhortation to "keep the liquor question out of the spheres of political influences" was construed as indicative of the provincial government's intention to forestall possible action by any other political party to adopt a liquor plank in their election platforms, by definitely committing itself to a pledge that the people should decide.

Illicit Sale.

Referring to the beer situation, the attorney-general said that "seventy-five per cent. of the troubles of law enforcement is now due to the illicit sale of beer, and the most of that is due to the brewers who furnish supplies and abuse the privileges granted to them under the Government Liquor Control act."

CANADIAN DINNER.

Well Known Speakers To Address Annual Banquet at New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—The annual dinner of the Canadian Society of New York will be held here this evening. The speakers will be Mr. Justice W. R. Riddell and A. Munro Grier, K.C., of Toronto, and Hon. Charles A. Eaton, former president of the society.

INAUGURATION OF LAKEFIELD TOWN COUNCIL

Held in Council Chamber on Wednesday Evening, Jan. 10.

ACCOUNTS PAID.

Different Committees With Chairmen Appointed For Year 1927.

LAKEFIELD, January 15. — The inaugural meeting of the municipal council of the village of Lakefield, was held in the council chamber on Monday evening last, Jan. 10th

There were present Reeve C. S. Tanner, and Councillors W. Tedford, J. R. Robinson, S. Harrison and J. E. Richardson.

The minutes of the statutory meeting held on Dec. 15th, 1926, were read, and on motion confirmed.

On motion of Councillors Richardson and Harrison, following standing committees were appointed for 1927. The first named to be chairman in each case:

Finance: Councillors Robinson and Tedford.

Roads: Councillors Tedford and Harrison.

Property: Councillors Richardson and the rest of the council.

Charity Committee: Councillors Harrison and Richardson.

On motion of Councillors Robinson and Harrison the following appointments were made:

Library Board: Mr. Lillicrap for the years 1927-28-29.

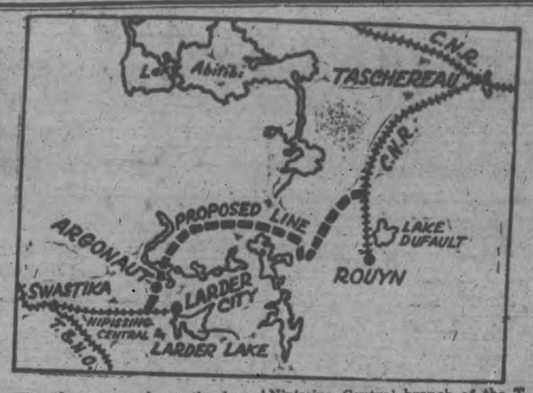
KING IMPROVING

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press)—King Christian of Denmark, who was stricken early this week with a mild attack of influenza, was said to be improving last night but still is confined to his bed. Queen Alexandrina now has a light attack of the disease.



The above map shows the location of a new railway which may link up the T. and N. O. railway and the C.N.R. Rouyn branch. It is stated that this line will run from Nipissing Central branch of the T. and N.O. railway in Gauthier township, and then in a somewhat circuitous route poin the C.N.R. above Lake Dufault. The report has not been confirmed.

Five Children Bit By Rabid Dog At Longueuil

Parents Refuse To Apply Medical Treatment

MONTREAL, Jan. 15—Five children who live south of Longueuil, aeross the St. Lawrence River from Montreal, were bitten by a rabid dog. After the incident the dog was killed and its head sent to the Department of Agriculture for examination Experts there found positive traces of rabies. The case, however, presents, a problem to the authorities. It is reported the parents appear unmoved by suggestions that the children should receive hospital treatment, and there is no law permitting officials to force the parents to action.

Correspondence has been exchanged between the Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments on the matter; steps have been taken to send the children to the hospital for antirabies treatment, but, according to Federal Government inspectors, the danger has not yet been recognized by the parents.

OLD MASTERS

Most sweet it is with unuplifted eyes
To pace the ground, if path be there or none,
While a fair region round the traveler lies
Which he forbears again to look upon;

Pleased rather with some ideal scene,
The work of Fancy, or some happy tone
Of meditation, slipping in between
The beauty coming and the beauty gone.

—If Thought and Love desert us, from that day
Let us break off all commerce with the Muse:
With Thought and Love companions of our way—

Whate'er the senses take or may refuse—
The Mind's internal heaven shall shed her dews
Of inspiration on the humblest lay.
—W. Wordsworth: The Inner Vision.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

SOMEONE IS WONDERING

Someone is wondering tonight
Just where and how you are,
Someone is searching for some light,
The midnight for some star.
While the white fields of Winter glisten
Someone will listen, listen, listen,
Hoping the morn some word will bring
To someone who is wondering.

Perhaps your path's a path of ease,
Your garment rich with gold,
Perhaps among the barren trees
The wind blows bitter cold,
Perhaps your feet in sin are straying,
But someone's praying, praying, praying;
Perhaps to righteousness you cling—
Someone tonight is wondering.

Whatever fortune you have met,
Whatever deeds you do,
It seems the one you most forget
Who most remembers you.
Beyond the silence separating,
Someone is waiting, waiting, waiting.
Oh, will the morn some message bring?
Someone tonight is wondering.

On motion of J. A. Anderson and Glenn Thompson, these reports which were submitted are correct.

Mr. Robert Bell was elected as trustee to take the place of the late C. L. Owen.

Messrs. James Storie, John McGregor and R. N. Morrison were elected to be members of the managing board for the coming year.

Moved by William Anderson and seconded by Dr. O. C. Watson, that Dr. G. A. Hay and Wesley Stephens be the auditors for 1927.

Dr. Watson and R. N. Morrison made the motion that a vote of thanks be made to the auditors for their work of the past year.

A motion was carried that a yearbook should be published for 1926, and the following were chosen as a committee: Rev. James Grier, Glenn Thompson, R. N. Morrison, and Miss Grace Blue.

A very pleasing event took place when Dr. O. C. Watson, on behalf of the managing board of the church and congregation, made the presentation of a substantial cheque to their pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Grier.

Mr. Grier, in reply, spoke of his enjoyment in the work of the church, the hearty co-operation he always received and his great pleasure in their society and on behalf of Mrs. Grier and himself, assured his congregation of his very deep feelings of gratitude for their tangible evidence of esteem and generosity.

It was moved by J. A. Anderson and seconded by Dr. O. C. Watson, that a vote of thanks be made to the various organizations of the church for their hearty co-operation in all the different works of the church.

The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the Doxology, after which the ladies of the congregation served lunch.

ROSENEATH NEWS

ROSENEATH, Jan. 15.—Mr. M. Davey and his father, Mr. William Davey spent Sunday in Warkworth renewing old acquaintances.

Mrs. George Herrington is visiting friends in St. Marys, Toronto, and other places west.

Miss Ethel Jewel has returned home after a lengthy visit with friends and relatives in Western Canada. She was accompanied home by Miss Grace Sherwin of Sask.

Mr. Willis Weir has arrived from Western Canada to visit his father Mr. Edward Weir.

The marriage of Mr. Meredith Brown to Miss Eva Mae Thompson took place on Wednesday, January 12th, by the Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings. The happy couple left for a honeymoon trip on the evening train to Toronto and other points west. On their return they will reside in the village.

Mr. George Mouncey is again at his old job cutting wood. His sawing machine is one great help to hard labor, and many are taking advantage of the fine weather and good roads in getting in their yearly supply of wood

Darrow Will Assist In Defending Sterry

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—(Canadian Press)—Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago counsel, is coming to Toronto to assist in the defence of Ernest V. Sterry, charged with blasphemous libel, Sterry's local counsel announces.

HOPE TO DECIDE PRELIMINARIES OF NEW TREATY

Government Officials Will Discuss Matter With Premier Coates.

TO DEVELOP TRADE.

New Zealand Now Enjoys Benefits of Australian Agreement.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press)—Prelimnaries to a trade agreement between New Zealand and Canada, will, it is hoped, be concluded during the visit to Ottawa of Premier Coates. Canada, by an order in Council, recently extended to New Zealand the benefits of the tariff concessions granted to Australia under the Australian trade treaty, but the idea is that trade relations between New Zealand and Canada may be still further developed. To this end Premier Coates proposes during his brief stay to hold primary discussion with Canadian government, although there is no expectation that an agreement can be concluded forthwith. In all probability New Zealand will, later, send a delegation to Ottawa to discuss trade relations further and possibly conclude a definite agreement.

Premier Coates was the guest at luncheon to-day of Premier King. To-night he will be guest of the Government at dinner.

G. S. Stiff, of Toronto, shown just after he had "worked" Australia, breaking the Canadian low power transmission record. He was in communication with an amateur station in Adelaide, Australia. Mr. Stiff is a fourth year high school student.

BIBLE CLASS OFFICERS.

St. Andrew's Ladies Hold Annual Meeting and Banquet.

The annual Bible class and election of officers of St. Andrew's Ladies' Bible Class, was held on Friday evening. About twenty-five members and friends, including Rev. and Mrs. Gordon, sat down to supper, served at 6.30 p.m. Table decorations were beautiful daffodils.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the election of officers for 1927 took place: Hon. President, Mrs (Rev.) Gordon; Hon. Vice-Pres., Mrs. Kerr; Pres., Mrs. G. A. Gillespie; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. T. Detcher; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. Nelson.

Committees: Convenor, Sick and Visiting, Mrs. Vass; convenor Social, Mrs. B. F. McNeely; convenor Look Out, Miss Eva McCormack; Teacher, Mr. F. E. Kerr; Assistant Teacher, Mrs. R. Allen.

Sheep Attacks Woman Causing Sprained Ankle

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Paul Stein, of Denbigh, was seriously injured as a result of an encounter with a cross sheep. She sustained a fracture of one arm and also a sprained ankle. The animal attacked her when she walked out of the house into the yard.

RECEIVES INSURANCE

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 15. — (Canadian Press). — Relatives of Mrs. Laura Johnson, widow of J. E. Johnson, murdered Saskatoon mail clerk, have withdrawn their claim to Johnson's life insurance, about $17,000, payment of which had been withheld by a court order. The insurance is therefore payable to Mrs Johnson by an order issued by Mr. Justice P. E. Mackenzie yesterday.

Mrs. Johnson had been charged with killing her husband, but was not brought to trial and a stay of proceedings was granted some time ago.

NEEDLE IN HOSE

CEDAR RAPIDS, Mich, Jan. 14. —For twelve years Alvin Volderbing suffered from headaches. The other day, when he blew his nose, he found a half-inch piece of needle in his handkerchief. Volderbing was a soldier in the Philippines 12 years ago when he was kicked by a horse. The surgeon who operated presumably left part of the needle in his head.

PEER SINGS

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Lord Lincolnshire is 83, but he still can sing. Recently in a speech before the House of Lords he poked fun at the young Liberals by singing part of the song, "God give the land to the people." The discussion was over a bill to provide better cottages for rural workers and increase small holdings and allotments.

MEASURES WAVES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — With the aid of a special camera, sea waves were photographed during a rough sea recently, and it was found that the waves reached 27 feet in height. In a violent gale it was found the waves reached a height of 36 feet, while ordinary waves were said to be 6 to 12 feet high.

TESTS FOR CAREERS.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—If poets are born and not made then the same rule must apply to the candlestick makers, is the belief of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology which recently examined several thousand London school children. Experiments supported by the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust are given with the aim to apply practical psychology to the problem of deciding the future careers of school children.

SAYS SHERIFF SCORNED OFFER TO SURRENDER

Dying Farmer Lays Charge Against Leader of Posse.

WILL NOT RECOVER.

Bombs Thrown After He Said That He Would Give Up.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—W. B. Johnson, Jefferson County farmer, and one-time peace officer, slayer of three persons at Jefferson City, Tenn., and himself probably fatally wounded, from his bed at a hospital here Thursday, said that his offer to surrender to storming posse men who had surrounded his home Wednesday night, was ignored.

"I sent for the sheriff by a man name Donalds, my message being that I wouldn't harm a hair of his head if he would come and take me. They threw dynamite and and gas bombs into my home instead. Now they have wrecked the only home my family has. For myself I don't care, as I shall never get up."

Leaves Letters

Johnson has a bullet hole through the head, just under the eye, inflicted by a deputy, member of a band that stormed his home near Jefferson City yesterday morning after it had been partially wrecked by dynamite. He was brought here a short time later and under guard, is being treated, but with little hope held out that he will recover.

Self-Defence Plea.

A plea that he acted in self-defence when he shot and killed Mrs. Nip Howard, 70-year-old cripple, was advanced yesterday by W. B. Johnson, former deputy sheriff, as he lay on a hospital cot near death from wounds received when he barricaded himself in his house against a posse.

"I wouldn't have done it for anything," Johnson said, "but the old woman said she had a gun, and made a move to draw it. I thought she was going to shoot."

S. J. ABERNETHY IN CHAIR AGAIN

Re-appointed By Campbellford Water and Light Commission.

FIRST MEETING.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15.—S. J. Abernethy was re-appointed chairman of the Water and Light Commission at the first meeting of the year Thursday afternoon. Mr. Abernethy returned as commissioner-elect. He thanked his colleagues Mayor Kingston and A. L. Riendeau, for the renewal of their confidence and expressed the hope that the year's work would be successful.

No action was taken upon a communication from Mr. Scott, the commission's superintendent, asking for an increase of $500 in his salary.

Mr. G. Nicol of the Bank of Montreal, and J. E. Stewart, of the Standard Bank, asked for a share of the commission's business, but no indication was given by the commission of any intention of transferring their account from the Royal Bank.

OBITUARY.

MRS JOHN TIMLIN

COBOURG, Jan. 15.—Leaving a family of one daughter and five sons, of whom Robert and Harry Beatty of Peterboro are members, besides her husband, Mrs. John Timlin, wife of John J. Timlin entered into rest at her home at Centreton, and her funeral took place last Friday to Havelock. In her girlhood Rebecca McCracken, she was married first to Mr. Beatty, who died twenty-one years ago. The other children besides the sons in Peterboro are, Mrs. R. O. Teasel of Trenton, Arnold Beatty of Lindsay and William and Arthur of Grafton.

Th teer years ago Mrs. Beatty became the wife of Mr. John Timlin, Centreton, and has since been a loved member of that community.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

MY FRIEND, Tom Baird, came in to see me the other day and preached a very remarkable sermon which is too good to keep to myself. I did not ask for his permission to pass on to some of my other friends the gist of what was said while we were together, but I know him well enough to know that if he kicks at all it will be more of a pleasure than a pain to be kicked by him. I shall never be able to forget the earnestness which characterized both his voice and his manner. There could be no doubt but that he believed and felt all he was trying to get across to me. He was not talking just for the sake of talking. I felt that he was trying to get me to see certain things as he saw them in the hope that I would feel as he felt. He knew me well enough to know that once I saw and felt as he did I would begin to try and make other converts.

A TARDY RESPONSE

The resurrection commission of Christ commands and contemplates the thorough evangelization of the entire habitable earth in this dispensation; but thus far in the world's history this commission has not been fully executed. The Church has but tardily responded to her responsibility, and only partially performed her divinely-imposed obligation. To some interested watchmen, who constantly and thoughfully scan the vast missionary horizon, there seem to be three necessary elements lacking in our missionary activities, and until these are fully introduced and become energetically operative, our successes will continue to be disappointingly meager.

The three points are: Intensive Living, Extensive Looking, and Expansive Giving.

INTENSIVE LIVING

The need of to-day is a more intensive manifestation of Christian life and a more intense method of Christian service. Our missionary interests and movements are erratic and spasmodic. We work by irregular impulses. We freeze, we thaw, we boil, according to the temperature of the missionary atmosphere. Our labors must become more strenuous and continuous. The great spirit of the enterprise must grip us in all its absorbing grasp. We must become engrossed in the heavenly business. The heart-thought of the thing must burn within, until it bursts forth in an uncontrollable and unquenchable flame. Our interest must be incessant, our activity unremitting. Our zeal must glow and gleam. Our fervor must burn and blaze. We must become more intensely intense.

To evangelise is not something we may do, but something we must do. With an enthusiasm which is irrepressible, with an ardor that is indefatigable, with a consistence which is irreproachable must this glorious heaven-given service be prosecuted. Evangelical preaching must become a persistent and perpetual passion. There must be fewer missionary spasms. Our hearts must be fired with a fervent desire for souls.

As he spoke I felt that it was something of this enthusiastic intenseness that bore the first heralds of the cross over otherwise insuperable barriers, and that if we would expedite the world's evangelization we must ask God to make us more intense.

EXTENSIVE LOOKING

"Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields," is what the Master said to His disciples. Then, in another place He said: "The field is the world." God calls us to an extensive outlook. No selfish sectarianism should be permitted to produce contraction of vision. Heaven is an expanse. Narrowness is of the earth, earthy. Expansion is Divine and magnificent. Contraction is human and insignificant.

There are five indisputable facts concerning the world:

1. It lies "in the evil one." 1 John 5: 19, R.V.
2. It is loved of God: John 3: 16.
3. Its sin was propitiated by Christ: 1 John 2: 2.
4. The Gospel is for the world: Mark 16: 15.
5. The world is to be judged: Acts 17: 31.

With these irrefutable facts in view, let us diligently push forward the glorious work, though we must remember that the evangelization of the world does not imply the world's conversion. To evangelise simply means that every living creature under the sun must hear the Gospel in his own language. What they do with it is not our first responsibility. The entire expanse of our globe must be surveyed and traversed from farthest North to farthest South; from temperate West to tropical East. The various zones into which our world has been geographically divided must be penetrated and visited by such as have had their feet made beautiful with the Gospel of peace. Neither Iceland's snow nor India's sun daunts the true ambassador of Christ. No African fever, however severe; no Chinese mob, however turbulent; no Moslem antagonism however antagonistic, will prevent the servants of the Most High God from executing their Lord's commission. Linguistic difficulties must be patiently conquered. Climatic inconveniences must be unmurmuringly endured. Consular restrictions must be graciously negotiated. Racial barriers must be mercilessly leveled. With God there is neither white nor black, brown nor yellow. God assist us to take an extensive, sympathetic view of this expansive, unevangelized world, for which our Saviour died.

EXPENSIVE GIVING

The work of evangelization is unquestionably an expensive business. It is expensive in human lives, as the lonely graves in distant lands mutely testify. It is also expensive to physical health, as many of our invalided missionaries with their climate-emaciated children bear witness. But it is further expensive from a monetary standpoint; that is, if the work is to be accomplished efficiently and effectually.

In all this I agreed with him. I know that if the earth is to be effectually evangelized it will cost our churches more than the ordinary paltry collection. It will demand much more than a doleful dime per head per person. We must be trained to give until we feel that we have given. To merely bestow what we don't miss is to miss the whole point and purpose of giving. Our personal expenditure must be considerably curtailed. There must be a more delighted and diligent disbursement of the means God has providentially placed at our disposal. That occasional quarter, which has so frequently served as a soothing salve to a restless conscience, must be substituted by a substantial and sequential offering. Our contributions must become periodical and also methodical. The Israelite gladly gave God the best of his flock and the first of his harvest: but we unblushingly offer Him the leanest of our flock or rakings of the field.

ROBBING GOD

God is being shamelessly robbed of His rightful portion. His house stands utterly empty; and heaven's wide windows are hermetically sealed over our heads. We must give. Mission work is costly without controversy. Expanse spells expense. If we were only intense, expanse would speedily be relegated to a mere secondary place. Passag. and cutfit money must be provided. Dwelling places suited to climatic conditions must be erected, ordinary daily necessities must be considered. There is not such a thing on earth as a cheap mission, any more than there is cheap gold.

When he finished speaking I said to myself I would like nothing better than to be able to turn you loose in every church in Canada with such a message as you have delivered to me to-day while we have sat together at the manse window.

—ALLAN FAIRBAIRN.

INVEST

IT WILL always be true, whether we like it or not, that the church that does not invest must not be disappointed if it does not get any returns. There is no use expecting great things from God if we are not attempting great things for God. To get a worth-while dividend we must make a worthwhile investment. Our slow giving is the reason for our seldom getting. Giving is like combing your hair—the oftener you do it the less it hurts

What Think Ye of Christ?

IT WAS reserved for Christianity to present to the world an ideal character which through all the changes of eighteen centuries has inspired the hearts of men with an impassioned love; has shown itself capable of acting on all ages, nations, temperaments and conditions; has been not only the highest pattern of virtue; but the strongest incentive to its practice * * * The simple record of these three short years of active life has done more to regenerate and soften mankind than all the disquisitions of philosophers and all the exhortations of moralists. This has been the well-spring of whatever is best and purest in the Christian life.

I. SEEWELL.

A Costly Fire.

DR. HARRIS H. GREGG, at one time minister in Winnipeg, has met a heavy loss in the destruction by fire of the beautiful stone-and-stucco residence of Mrs. N. Thayer Montague, on Lookout Mountain, which Dr. Gregg and his family were occupying.

Dense clouds of smoke arose from the floor above the furnace while a group of friends were being entertained at tea. Hastily gathering their wraps the ladies fled, as Dr. Gregg ran upstairs to arouse his son, and called the Lookout Mountain fire department.

Many valuable papers were destroyed. Dr. Brookes' Bibles and works (Dr. Gregg is the son-in-law of the late Dr. Brookes), Mrs. Gregg's hymns and music, of her own composition, Dr. Gregg's manuscripts and notes from years of study, priceless letters, personal heirlooms, volumes brought from London, rare collection of books on nature, history and the Scriptures, all summer and winter clothing. Nothing was insured.

"What have I left?" says Dr. Gregg. "I have my Lord Jesus Christ, Mrs. Gregg and the children, and the best of friends God ever gave a man."

A FAMOUS ANGLICAN

REV. DR. J. STUART HOLDEN, vicar of St. Paul's, London, will be in Philadelphia, January 13-17, to give a series of messages under the auspices of the Prophetic Testimony of Philadelphia. Dr. Holden is widely known both in England and America. He is chairman of the Council of the English Keswick Convention, at which he has spoken for many years.

A Popular Preacher Resigns.

PITTSBURGH, city of smoke and steel and rich folks, has had some great preachers, among whom will always rank high, Dr. Maitland Alexander, who has been minister of the First Presbyterian Church for twenty-eight years. He has announced his intention to retire from the pastorate and give place to a younger man. He is by no means an old man, being only sixty years of age, and in the very prime of his manhood and usefulness. He has built up a large and important work, and might be said to have solved "the problem of the down-town church," by a continuous setting forth through all these years, of Jesus Christ and Him crucified and risen again.

* * *

A Good Custom.

THE Fifth Avenue Church, New York, has adopted the custom of having flowers in front of the pulpit every Sabbath and of permitting parishioners to give these as memorials. Rev. Henry Howard, senior pastor, who is from Australia where he was one of the leading Methodist ministers, is one of the few "leading" pastors in the Metropolis who has no "D.D." says "The Presbyterian,"—"He does not need it." Perhaps like another famous Australian minister he can say, "My Divinity never was sick; and it does not need a doctor."

Dean Inge.

I HAVE just been reading part of what must have been a very interesting and impressive sermon by Dean Inge of St. Paul's, London. He devoted his cathedral sermon on Advent Sunday to the words in Joel 2: 25, "I will restore to you the years which the locust has eaten." It was a consideration of forgiveness and the Christian way of thinking about the past—a subject on which, as previous sermons have shown, the dean has thought much and is anxious that people should have clear and true ideas. He said with emphasis, that our past, whatever it is, continues to affect us. It consists of events which are not done with but which are still in the making. What once had a meaning has a meaning always. "We are not promised," said he, "that after forgiveness no personal loss will remain; that is too much to expect; but many men have risen high enough to acquiesce in losses which they feel they have deserved. They are so lifted out of themselves that they can view their own little lives on earth with a sort of detachment. They are fellow-workers with God, who has many fellow-workers, many instruments. His will will be done by us or by others. Enough for us to know that our wretched blunders will not remain as blots, scars and flaws in God's temple. Our little contribution to the fabric will be sound as far as it goes. We are forgiven; and our work is accepted through Him who is the author and finisher of our faith."

COMPANY WE SEEK

A FAMOUS London Editor once said that faces often tell fashionhoods. Talk reveals little. Let a man live for a month in constant intercourse with the most brilliant society in London, and write down everything he hears worth remembering, and the record will not stretch very far. In fact, he will wonder at the passion, the insight, the despair which moved him so mightily in the books of the timid, commonplace man with whom he has spent a long and barren evening.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

HERE is a story which I found in an old book which I will give just as I found it. I was sitting at the window looking out, one cold, slippery day last winter. As I looked, I saw a knot of boys, all neighbors of mine, who were standing talking and laughing. Two or three persons had passed, and almost slipped at one dangerous spot—I think the boys had been sliding there—and now a little girl came by with a basket of buttons, tapes, shoe-strings, and such things. Down she went, her basket falling on its side, and half the contents rolling out. Through the window I could hear the boys laughing! Not one of them stepped forward to help the little girl; but the door of the house opposite opened quickly, and a little boy without overcoat or mittens, ran down the steps, and hurrying to the poor girl, after saying a word or two to her, began to help her to put the things into her basket. The poor girl was so stiff and cold that half her things might have been lost but for this kind little knight and gentleman. I call him a knight because the knights in old times helped the poor and helpless wherever they found them: and a gentleman, because a gentleman—a true Christian gentleman—is polite to rich and poor alike.

HOW TO READ THE GREATEST OF BOOKS

Study It Through.

Jas. 1: 25.

AS EARLY as possible after rising, turn to the Bible and be the passage ever so short, read it carefully through, feeling that through it, God's message may come to you for that day. At some time during the day read it more fully.

* * *

Pray It In.

Jas. 1: 5.

We should never forget that the truths of His Book are spiritual and must be spiritually discerned, and the heart that is uplifted in prayer will find an incoming of God's light illuminating the Word.

* * *

Write It Down.

Psa. 139: 17.

Make a little entrance on the margin of the Bible, or, what is better still, have a book called "Precious Thoughts" and in that enter just a sentence or two telling the precious thought that came to you through the Scripture that day.

* * *

Jas. 2: 17-18.

As we go forth in the spirit of the Master to live out the precepts of His Word in thought and word and action, we will make our lives radiant with good deeds done in His name and for His sake, and His Word will become a living reality.

* * *

Malachi 3: 16-17.

It has been written, "A word fitly spoken how good it is." If we have received a helpful, uplifting or precious thought from the Word of God, it will be made doubly so by passing it on to another. Clouds are vanished, burdens are lifted, aching hearts are cheered, faltering faith is strengthened and the peace of God is given by passing on some precious thought from that Book which is as far above all other books as Jesus Christ of Whom it speaks is above all other men.

—Selected and Adapted.

To be in Christ is the secret of our life. To be for Christ is the meaning of our activity. To be with Christ is the hope of our glory.

TRUTH OF THE MATTER

IT WOULD be the height of folly to imagine that those who are said, (never by themselves) to be discoverers of new authors, really accomplish much. As a rule, genius finds a way to express itself sooner or later, and any who takes it upon him to set his friends to writing will burden the world with some bad books, as a set-off against gladdening it with some that are good. What is more important, the public is not to be deceived. You may bring an author before it a few weeks or months sooner than would have been the case without you, but you will not succeed in palming off anyone that does not deserve success. Whenever a writer gains the public ear, your praise can do little either to help or to hinder him. It is wonderful how quickly, and almost as if by instinct, readers turn away from an author who begins to fall below himself. A subtle thrill of understanding seems to penetrate the community at once.

—W. Robertson Nicoll.

WHAT a suitable time these men have chosen for their work! It is New Year's Day, and there they are gathered together in the street listening attentively to the directions given them by the young man who is addressing them.

How earnest he is! His zeal seems to kindle a flame in their hearts; they evidently seem to feel that this is just the day for beginning such an undertaking. Now they separate, on great things intent, but soon we see them reassembling elsewhere. Their zeal is not going to expend itself in talk; for see, there is something serious in their minds.

They take part in a solemn service, and then, outer garments being laid aside, the hard work begins. They divide into two companies, and a search is made for some things which, when found and identified, are carefully laid aside, while others when found without search are carried forth and given into the hands of some of their company, who hasten down the hill and throw away their burdens into the flowing stream.

They have a great work before them, and one that will take many days to do, but could they have chosen a more suitable day on which to begin this work, and could we do better than try to follow their example, each one for himself?

This is the second in a series of pen pictures of Bible History by a preacher whose name will be with-held for the present. The key will be supplied next week, when another in the series shall appear.

The key to the first Pen Picture is Genesis 23.

A HOBBY-HORSE

A HOBBY-HORSE is a doubly dangerous animal, for it first encourages a man to ride down other people despotically, and then runs away wildly with the rider's wits; or, to take another simile, a hobby-horse is like a petted child that, running riot with over-indulgence, in a fit of passion slaps his mother in the face. No enemies are so dangerous as those which we make for ourselves.

THE AMUSEMENT TAX.

Among the requests made by representatives of the Ontario Municipal Association during their interview with Premier Ferguson and the Cabinet yesterday was one in regard to the amusement tax, the deputation proposing that this tax should be abolished on all social events held by churches, fraternal organizations, etc., where the receipts do not exceed $200.

This suggestion will appeal to most people as entirely reasonable.

The total revenue derived from the amusement tax in the case of such entertainments is not large enough to compensate for the amount of inconvenience caused by the collection of the levy.

In church and lodge events where the total receipts are not large the tax might well be abolished.

The Government has already promised to do away with the amusement tax where the admission charge does not exceed 25c, and this exemption should be enlarged to include entertainments of the nature mentioned which do not take in large sums.

THE DIAMOND JUBILEE.

Premier King's announcement of the early appointment of a National Committee, along the lines of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, to arrange a worthwhile national programme for the celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee, will be enthusiastically received.

The public imagination has already been fired by the idea of a huge celebration of the Dominion's sixtieth birthday, and Canadians in every section of the country will be ready and anxious to co-operate in making the observance of the anniversary an event of such magnitude that it will attract world-wide attention.

Every centre in Canada is expected to fall into line, for it is essential that in its main details the programme of the celebration shall be the same everywhere from one ocean to the other.

The form the demonstration will take will, of course, depend upon the National Committee upon whom the responsibility of drafting the Dominion-wide programme will be placed, but it is the intention to arrange a dignified and impressive ceremony, worthy of the great historical significance of the occasion.

Peterboro should not be found lacking when the time comes for action in regard to the Diamond Jubilee.

TORONTO'S PLAYGROUNDS.

Toronto sets the pace for the whole Dominion so far as the providing of recreational facilities for its citizens are concerned.

The fact that on winter sports alone the Queen City spends $75,000 each year is conclusive proof of that statement.

Where Montreal has but twenty-two free skating rinks Toronto provides no fewer than 115 sheets of ice, with a daily average attendance estimated at 150,000 people.

With fifty-eight rinks available for skaters alone, the remaining fifty-seven are devoted to hockey, and some 1,200 organized hockey teams play on these free rinks.

In addition, Toronto has seventeen slides for children and seven public toboggan slides.

Is it justified?

"It is money well spent," declares H. R. McQuaig, Superintendent of the Recreation Section of the Parks Department, "because this outdoor exercise makes for the greater health of Toronto citizens."

Undoubtedly Toronto is a very healthy city, with a decidedly low death rate, and there seems no reason to doubt that the abundance of opportunities for healthful recreation, both summer and winter, that are provided by the city authorities are playing a prominent part in this excellent record by building up sound physiques and stout resistance against disease.

Toronto's winter playgrounds cost money—but there is a handsome profit from the investment.

WINTER IN CANADA.

It is of interest to note that simultaneously with the publication of last evening's editorial article in The Examiner in regard to the desirability of advertising Canada as a winter resort there arrived in this office a copy of "Winter in Canada," the latest addition to the tourist literature issued by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service.

Much care has evidently been taken in the preparation of this most attractive booklet, which corresponds in appearance and general style with former publications of this series, "Fishing in Canada," "Camping in Canada," etc.

It should admirably serve the purpose for which it has been issued—that is, the drawing of attention to the attractions of the Canadian winter.

Neatly printed and illustrated, "Winter in Canada" emphasizes many features of winter life in this country, stressing the joys of skating, tobogganning, ski-ing and other cold weather amusements here.

The keynote of the booklet is found in the closing paragraph, which points out that, "Canada has much to offer the seeker after health or pleasure during the winter. The great open is well nigh boundless, and the essentials for personal comfort are easily obtainable."

"Winter in Canada" may be obtained without cost from the Natural Resources Intelligence Service, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

FROM WITHIN.

Beginning a new pastorate a Canadian minister recently told his congregation that they could make their church the kind of factor in the life of the community they desired it to be. It was not for outsiders to settle that issue, he declared. The mere fact that some had stated that the church had passed its peak of usefulness, that its location was not desirable, and that its immediate population was not a church-going one, had nothing to do with it. Nor could the pastor make a success of it if the congregation was not actively, individually, as well as collectively, working and co-operating with him in making religion so vital and living a thing that the people round about were first attracted by it and then won to it. Social activities and schemes of entertainment could not, in his view, attain that goal.

He may have startled some of his hearers, but his contentions were soundly based. It is probably true that many churches are listed in the stationary or dead columns because the congregations leave all the religious side of the work to the pastor and assume neither responsibility nor particular interest in it as individuals or as an organization.

The principle has an application not to churches alone, but to every phase of business life and of individual life, too. While the head must set an example, what hope is there for any industry where the rest are so many time-servers, and, in the slang of the day, do not "give a hoot so long as they can hang on to their job?" Likewise what individual can be worth while to the community who is not willing to help himself? This or that influence may lead him to the right road and set his feet thereon, but he will soon wander away if within his soul there is no ideal, no determination to press forward to heights he may never reach, but still be accomplishing in the endeavor. The world is cumbered with decayed organizations and drones because they are indifferent to the latent possibilities and powers within themselves.—Brantford Expositor.

POLITICS AND RAILWAYS.

The fight for lower freight rates by the Western Provinces opened for 1927 on Monday when representatives of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan appeared before the Privy Council to ask for the removal of alleged discriminations in grain and flour rates. The former complained that an order of the Railway Board of September, 1925, purporting to carry out the provisions of an order-in-Council made in June of the same year, calling for reduced tariffs by the railways so as to bring grain and flour rates to Pacific ports to the same level as those to Fort William, had not been put in force. Alberta's representative complained also of the westbound rates and urged that the Western rates question be dealt with immediately, before the general rates inquiry, while counsel for Saskatchewan supported the latter plea and asserted that discriminatory rates existed on eastbound grain and flour to Fort William.

There is no need to go into details of the cases presented by these three Provinces to show that their appeal to the Privy Council marks the beginning of a serious onslaught on the railways. In this they are not alone, for Parliament will have before it at the forthcoming session the question of concessions to the Maritime Provinces as recommended by the Duncan Commission. Politics are certain to be mixed freely in these rate issues with results which may lower still further the prestige and authority of the Railway Board—already weakened by political interference—and which may also endanger the prosperity of the railways for which the outlook has been growing brighter after several years of serious adversity.

Quite apart from any question of the justice of the claims by British Columbia, the Prairie Provinces or the Maritime Provinces for lower grain and flour rates there is undoubtedly too great a danger of the public seizing upon the recent reports of increased railway earnings as justification for lower freight rates. Such an attitude arises from the taking of a purely temporary view of the railway situation.

While the recent gains of the railways are cheering they have not been of sufficient duration to permit of unqualified optimism, points out J. L. Payne, former Comptroller of Statistics, Railway Department, Ottawa, in The Montreal Gazette's review for 1926. Last year was the best for them since 1916, but in the intervening period they had grave difficulties. This is revealed by the operating ratio. For the ten years since 1915 this was as follows: 1916, 68.9; 1917, 71.4; 1918, 82.9; 1919, 92.2; 1920, 97.2; 1921, 92.3; 1922, 89.4; 1923, 86.4; 1924, 85.8; 1925, 81.8; 1926, 81. For the full period the average was 91.9. As an operating ratio in excess of 75 is accepted by railway economists as inconsistent with soundness, it will be readily seen that throughout this period the railways were practically insolvent. They were losing ground at a rate which, on the face of things, would require great subsequent gains to overcome. The contrast of this period with the previous decade when the operating ratio averaged 71.1 is startling and emphasizes how great a need there is for continued railway prosperity and gains. Even in 1926, the best year since 1917, the railways' operating ratio was considerably above the ratio accepted as sound.

When the earnings of our railways are compared with those of United States roads, it is found that they suffered more in the period of depression than the latter. In only four years did the operating ratio of American railways exceed 85 and then only by a fraction. In three years of the period they were under 70. Their freight and passenger rates average more than 30 per cent. above those of the Canadian railways. And they have a greater density of traffic to handle.

In the face of these facts it is evident that the fullest consideration should be given to the needs of the railways in maintaining or increasing their earning power.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Government and Opposition in Quebec have found common ground in their slogan, "Hands off the constitution."

The request of Alberta and Ontario for an early hearing in the coal haulage case should be granted by the Railway Board. It is a very important matter.

The ski may yet prove as powerful in bringing visitors to Canada as the whiskey is said to be now.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is contemplating the introduction of compulsory weed-cutting legislation. There is a very evident need of such a law in the Province.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Jan. 15. — Trade opened quite active in last Monday's market, with prices steady with last week. By midweek there was rather a sudden let-up in the demand for butcher cattle, except for those of choice and extra choice quality. For medium and common qualities, prices lagged about 25c.

Export buyers were out of the market all week, except for a few bulls at $5 to $5.25. Orders, however, are at hand for four to five hundred steers next week for Glasgow. Heifers likely not wanted.

Heavy cows were 25c lower in the week-end markets.

Sheep and lambs—Choice lambs, 12 1-2 to 12 3-4c; fl. Good lambs, 11c to 12c; culls, 8c to 9c; yearling sheep, 8c to 9c; choice 6 1-2c to 7 1-2c; medium 5 to 6c; heavy, 4c to 5c; culls, 2c to 3c.

Springers and milkers — Choice springers, $90 to $100. Choice milkers, $75 to $85. Medium and common cows are just being peddled to a very few buyers. It is advisable to hold until the first of next month unless they are choice cattle.

Stockers and feeders — Ontario stocker steers of choice quality weighing 700 to 800 pounds, will bring $5.75 to $6.25. At the present time there is little demand, and cattle coming on the market which could be classed as stockers and feeders of any flesh are being bought for killing. Too many steers weighing 1,000 pounds and up, with no buyers for this class.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—Big shipments from below the equator had a bearish effect on wheat yesterday, and so likewise did ample snow covering for the domestic Winter crop. Wheat closed unsettled 5-8c to 1-2c off, and provisions showing a rise of 55c.

Unexpected lower quotations at Liverpool, together with reports of increased pressure of offerings from the southern hemisphere, tended to pull wheat values downward from the start. Meanwhile, Argentine and Australian exports this week were figured as totalling 5,153,000 bushels against only 3,871,000 bushels for the week before, and it was indicated that shipments from Argentina during January and February would average at least 6,000,000 bushels a week. Vessel charters were announced for more than 75,000,000 bushels of grain to leave Argentina before February is at an end.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press)—A moderate amount of business was transacted in Manitoba Spring wheat with both United Kingdom and Continental buyers on the Montreal grain market yesterday. There was an improved demand from local buyers for oats in the domestic market and sales of quite a few cars were made for all-rail shipment from Fort William. Trading in spot supplies was quiet and prices were unchanged.

The demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was still of a limited character, but the undertone to the market was steady.

The millfeed market continued active and firm. The trade in rolled oats was steady and prices ruled firm.

There was no further change in local egg prices, but the undertone to the market was strong and the indications were that there would be another sharp advance in the near future, on account of the increased duty imposed on supplies coming from the United States. The demand was good and an active trade was done. The receipts were 999 cases.

The potato market was quiet with an easy undertone. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.85 to $1.90 per bag of 90 pounds, and Quebec White stock at $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The butter trade was extremely dull but values were firm. The receipts were 24 packages.

The feature of the cheese trade was the improved demand from English importers and a fair trade was done. The local demand was quiet but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 46 boxes.

IS PETERBOROUGH TO BE A BUSINESS BATTLEFIELD?

Jan. 12, 1927.

To the Editor, Peterboro Examiner:
Dear sir:

May we call to your attention and the attention of your readers that probably the most important words ever to be uttered in our Council meetings were spoken by Alderman MacDonald at the last City Council meeting? They were, "that it was a case of the survival of the fittest, and that it made no difference to the City if two hundred were started."

This was in regards to granting a license to a new Chinese restaurant.

Will you and your readers give serious consideration to this matter? Does it mean that Peterborough business is to receive no protection or support whatever from our Council? Do we want our streets lined with failures until the "fittest do survive" and do we want those who do not survive to be constantly putting up such a battle? Does not each failure put its mark on our fair City?

Do you remember that a year or two ago there was placed before our Council a petition, signed by most of our representative business men, to keep another Chinese restaurant from securing a license and stating that there were enough in the City at that time? Take a look back at the minutes of that meeting and at that petition and you will find that at least one member of our present Council signed the petition. Have conditions change so since that time that we need more eating places here? An investigation will show but little improvement and that the present eating houses could handle double the amount of trade they now have.

Do Alderman MacDonald's words prove to our young men that their home City is the place for them to take the chance of opening new business enterprises in? No, they do not, and even though the Council saw fit to issue this new license should we announce to the world that Peterborough is to be a business battlefield until the "fittest survive."

This is one class of business that the Council can control if it wishes to do the best for Peterboro and we ask that it refrains from handling these matters in the manner shown.

The amount of salaries alone, paid to our white help, and which amount is spent right here in Peterborough, should insure to us every support from our Council and citizens.

We thank you for your valued space and only ask "Fair play to all business."

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

"I" INSTEAD OF "ME," Etc.

It seems to be a growing practice of so called "popular" writers—and of course the tendency is reflected in the common speech—to use the nominative case of the pronoun where the objective is required. Readers who have forgotten, or who have never learned, the meanings of these grammatical terms may learn what is meant from the following examples:

"It was our bond of sorrow that brought Mary and I together." "I" is in the nominative case, but the objective is required here, and the sentence should read: "It was our bond of sorrow that brought Mary and me together."

Another example: "You never think of giving her or I any pleasure." Again, "I" should be "me."

"Most of the property was held jointly by he and his wife." In this case "he" should be "him." These examples of ungrammatical English were cited by F.P.A., the "column conductor" of the New York World.

A Thought For To-day

WHAT SPINOZA SAID.

An unpretending Dutch lens grinder died over in Holland about two hundred and fifty years ago.

He was poverty poor, all alone, and almost friendless, but this sincere and far-seeing craftsman left a manuscript under his work bench and on this yellow-with-age sheet can be found today one of the greatest philosophies of all times.

His name was Spinoza and he said: "If you can keep from doing a thing because it is bad, you can keep from doing the same thing because something else is good."

Think that over.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By Dr Frank McCoy

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. McCOY WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER

FASTING PARTIES

It seems that the people are slowly awakening to a new health consciousness. Everywhere the subject of fasting and diet is discussed, and while I have been preaching and writing about diet reforms for the past twenty years, it is only within the last five years, that I have seen such a generous acceptance of my ideas. It is true that most of those who are taking up the study of diet, are really only in their primary grades, and are trying out such diet schemes as vegetarianism, raw foodism, etc., but I have much confidence that soon everyone will be taking up the scientific study of dietetics.

Dispatches from London tell of the freak parties that are being made the feature of the present social season, and an American, Mrs. Loeffler, of Los Angeles, has set the ball rolling with invitations to such a party at the Savoy, which was given on June 18th. These questions were asked on her card.

Are you on a diet?
Do you eat meat? What kind?
Which vegetables do you prefer? What kind do you like best?
What would you like to do after supper?

The special banting needs of each guest were met at the party. The guests were allowed to go home early, if they needed their beauty sleep before their next day's activities. Those who were fasting were given a glass of orange juice, or just plain water. Others had just a plain salad, while many, of course, ate everything in sight; but this is a start in the right direction, and it would be an innovation if more American hostesses followed this custom started by Mrs. Loeffler.

The main idea at a party seems to be for each one to fill up with all the food they can eat, to their limit of endurance, and then it usually takes them a day or two to recover from such a party.

Hostesses should start the custom of feeding their guests with appetizing but healthful dishes, so that they will have no regrets after the party, and will wake up the next morning feeling fine. I know that it is possible, for I have established such a custom in my own household. Guests are never asked to eat what they do not think is good for them, or urged to take a second helping of any dish, unless they really desire it.

The old habit of treating in the saloons of the past, was perhaps the most vicious harm of alcohol before prohibition, and still continues to be the most vicious, when laws are so drastic that temperance is not practiced.

Urging your guests to overeat is certainly advising them to do something more harmful than over-drinking, and yet no laws have been made prohibiting such a practice, and I sincerely hope that no such drastic action will ever be taken. If prohibition laws were made about certain foods, I am afraid that there would not be much hope for us, if we are to judge the probable effects by the result of the 18th amendment. What we need is more temperance with food and drink.

Let us learn to eat for "Health's Sake," choosing those foods which seem to us to be the best in nourishing quality, and learn to use these foods in the right combination, with other foods. We can also encourage our friends to do likewise, by not tempting them to eat unwholesome dishes, which are only designed to tickle the palate.

STYLE
By Dr. Frank Crane.

The reign of style is universal.

At a wedding the other day the bridesmaids were all tall, slim girls. There seems to be a style in the height of girls.

The style of women in Turkey runs more to embonpoint than the standard of beauty in the United States.

The style in Oriental countries of having several wives is challenged by the style in western countries of having but one, while in some countries the trend seems to be to have none at all.

We used to wear pointed shoes, pantalettes, high headdresses, chignons, bustles and long skirts.

What would our grandmothers say to see the ladies nowadays wearing skirts that come only to the knees? Such dresses must appear positively indecent to those who are brought up upon the idea that a perfect lady should have nothing at all between her ankles and her chin, at least nothing to speak of.

Bobbed hair is in style and cigarette smoking seems to be on the increase.

We all notice how queer our ancestors looked with their high stocks and other out-of-date clothing in old portraits. Styles of dress have changed since those times and they will probably change again in another generation.

But style is something deeper than mere appearance.

There is style of opinion. It was once the style to speak reverently of kings and of the church. Nowadays it is the style to poke fun at them more or less openly.

But the most curious thing of all is style in diseases. Once upon a time nobody ever heard of appendicitis. Now it is quite the thing to have your appendix removed, and certain doctors make a fortune by hacking out the superfluous appendix to your intestines.

People used simply to get tired. Now they have nervous breakdowns.

If you are going to be sick it behooves you to choose a fashionable malady. Don't have the old-fashioned stomach ache or sore toe, but look about for some new name for these commonplace diseases.

And if you are going to die don't select an old, worn-out complaint, but keep up with the procession. Get some new, fashionable trouble and pass away in good society.

There is no sense in dying like a horse or a cow from some common disease when you can die like a gentleman and a scholar by taking up with a new one.

BOOK SHELF GROWS.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The British Museum library have been growing out of bounds. Containing about 4,000,000 books and increasing by 35,000 to 40,000 books a year, the decentralization of the library is deemed necessary. It is the duty of the British Museum to publish and preserve every book published in Great Britain.

HEART DISEASE LEADS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Heart disease ranks first today among the causes of death, and if nothing is done to check the present situation it will claim as its victims one-fifth of the present population. These were the figures given recently by a physician who has examined thousands of people for a leading insurance company.

Grandma is Their Doctor

"ON an old-fashioned bureau, in a house I know, lies a large-sized new Testament with the binding well worn, and with it a much-used old copy of Dr. Chase's Receipt Book. When the calves have the colic or the neighbor's baby the earache, 'Grandma' hands out well-assimilated advice from the Dr. Chase Book. When 'Grandma' herself feels 'run-down,' Dr. Chase's Nerve Food stands ready on the dining-room table among the salt and pepper shakers."

In these few simple words Mrs. Bert Smith, Way's Mills, Que., beautifully describes the way in which many a grandmother is a blessing to her family and to her neighbors as a guardian of health.

And what finer compliment can be paid to Dr. Chase's Receipt Book and Dr. Chase's Medicines than the approval of such mothers of experience as the one here described.

Just as in this home, Dr. Chase's Almanac hangs on the wall in the great majority of Canadian homes, and in the cupboard or medicine chest will be found one or more of Dr. Chase's Medicines ready for use in case of emergency.

If you did not receive a copy of Dr. Chase's Almanac it will be sent free by The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada.

SYNOPSIS

Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves Abner Gratman. Stivner, lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic deal, wagers fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Gratman is the taker. Victory will mean business good will. Abner flirts with Joan. This unnerves Ranny, and he loses the game for the Americans. Vengeful, he drives the ball at Abner, but hits Stivner! When he goes to take Joan home, he finds she has gone with Abner. Lacking proof that Joan is faithless, Ranny plans to trap her and Abner while they are all on a proposed trip on Stivner's yacht.

CHAPTER VII.

As Long Island's North Shore is the abiding place and the land playground of fashionable society, so are the north side waters of Long Island, the famous Sound, a paradise for the yachting enthusiasts of the smartest circles.

The "sail bugs" of the young and daring, and the towering one masters of the aristocrats of wind craft sailors skim and dart and cleave through its emerald waters from Sand's Point to Port Jefferson, while far to the eastward from Old Field Point lighthouse rove, on summer and fall week-ends, the palatial motored cruisers and steam yachts of those mature and solid folk who like the sedate cup of yachting, which is power cruising, but not the cocktail of it, which is sailing. The latter calls for uncomfortable positions, minutes without end while lying full length on awash decks merely for the thrill of dodging an intermittently swinging boom.

But the former—effortless, swift motion; deep lounging chairs; suspended hours of supreme comfort—the acme of physical ease.

Out of Port Washington and Glen Cove and Oyster Bay and Huntington they slice proudly of Friday afternoons, these craft of the people who have money and know how to live.

Monarch of all that fleet, from thirty-two foot cruisettes to two hundred foot ships, was Livingstone Stivner's mammoth and luxurious steam yacht, the Speedwell, as it gently slipped its buoy moorings inside the Glen Cove Breakwater, abreast the clubhouse, on the Friday following the fateful polo game.

Clay Varick had been right. Joan and Ranny Forbes were aboard. Gratman, too, of course, and some half dozen other guests in addition to Stivner.

When Ranny had returned home from the club late the night following the game he had found Joan already there. She was alone, and there were no signs that she had been otherwise for a long time. Acting upon specific instructions from Clay, Ranny had not essayed to ferret out of her any information about her lark with Abner—where, and how long she had been. She had vouchsafed no explanation. Therefore the matter had remained at status quo, except that Ranny's failure to take her to task for not waiting for him, had aroused in Joan a guarded watchfulness that had lasted through until this afternoon.

It had led her to puzzle over the utter lack of nagging suspicion in his manner this last day or two.

It had led her to wonder upon the mysterious small box he had insisted upon putting in their week-end bag.

And it had caused her no small pangs of surprise when he manifested an uncommon interest his afternoon, in the blonde widow, Mrs. Clemoneau, who was also a guest. THE Mrs. Clare Clemoneau! THAT Mrs. Clemoneau!

Three things Joan knew in her married woman's perspicacity about such things. First, that all widows are dangerous; second, that widows named Clare are more dangerous, and, third, that blonde widows named Clare are most dangerous.

Clare was gushing. Clare was pale and ethereal, with hair the color of sun-bleached strawberries, eyes like a faintly hazed blue sky, firm, creamy shoulders. From her perfect "34" up she looked for all the world like a delectable breakfast dish.

Clare had a lisp—oh, ever so slight a lisp. Clare had money—oh, ever so much money. Clare was, in fact, the richest widow in America. Clare's whizzy, wispy frocks were the despair of feminine society, dowagers and debs and in between.

And Clare had an enticing habit of "just adoring" everything and everybody—that is, those things and those bodies that intrigued her somewhat fickle, though quick flaming, interest.

Clay Varick knew this, and therefore he was caused considerable apprehension when, as Clare met Ranny, she delightedly liaped that she "just adored" famous polo players.

Livingstone Stivner seemed none too happy to observe the pointed ardor in Clare's manner, the unmistakable pin points of flame in her eyes as she gazed up into Ranny's handsome face.

Ranny himself was quite surprised at the abrupt development of under currents in what had been planned as a congenial, jolly sail. He might have been rendered ill at ease, except that he was broadly conscious of Abner hovering beside Joan. That made it practicable as well as painless to respond to Clare's gracious warmth!

Clay groaned inwardly, cursing Ranny for an ass and longing to give him a swift kick. Good Lord! Was Ranny fated to always unconsciously oppose Stivner's purposes? Through the machinations of Fate, to always criss-cross his path against the grain of the lumber king's private interests?

Joan for her part, had suddenly relaxed her intimate attentiveness to the persistent chatter of Abner at her ear. She had greeted Clare very cooly, indeed, mentally assuring herself the while that she had made no mistake in disliking Mrs. Clemoneau from the first occasion upon which she had met her, years ago.

The Forbeses had been the last of the invited guests to arrive.

A soft treading Filipino steward had bowed them from the gangway head to their suite, a lovely apartment consisting of two bedrooms, each complete with shower and dressing room, and a large central sitting room. In addition to the bedchamber doors and two closet compartments, a private sun deck opened off the sitting room.

Thus it was that when the Forbeses finally sat down those of the week-enders not directly involved settled themselves, with many knowing looks and nudges, to a spell of spicily enjoyable watchful waiting. Their sophisticated brains told them that here were all the earmarks of a chockful social powder keg, which was apt to blow up into a choice scandal in any of the 72 odd hours the cruise would last.

The Speedwell was already under a full head of steam, sliding out into the broad, tangy Sound and nosing due East. It was a placid day, with the promise of an amber sunset in the unclouded sky. A bracing autumnal wind flecked spume from the green waters carved up by the piercing bows and made the heavy sweaters—universally worn by the idling crowd—come in very comfortably.

It was the sort of wind that bites the blood and touches the flame of life and love to combustible pulses!

In the case of Abner the effect was amorous arson. Lustful mists filled his brain like warm aromas of Sicilian days. Scarcely able to contain himself, he whispered to Joan:

"I've been looking things over. I can climb down to your private sun deck without detection—tonight—"

Cautious as Abner was, Clay overheard.

Meanwhile Clare's tossing little head had also been planning. She breathed into Ranny's ear:

"I'm one of those strange persons who collect famous signatures. I'd just adore yours in my book. Won't you drop by my stateroom—this evening?"

Livingstone Stivner inadvertently overheard that!

THEATRE

AT THE REGENT

SPECTACULAR WAR BACKGROUND IN GREAT DECEPTION.

"The Great Deception," announced as the attraction at the Regent Theatre for a 3 days' engagement, beginning Monday, is a vivid movie story dealing with spectacularly dramatic events of the late World War. It claims kinship with such immensely successful stage plays as "What Price Glory?" and photoplays like 'The New Commandment' and 'The Big Parade.'

The story was first told in novel form by George Gibbs, well-known author. Mr. Gibbs titled his story "The Yellow Dove."

On the screen the virile characters which Mr. Gibbs devised are portrayed by Aileen Pringle, Ben Lyon, Sam Hardy, Basil Rathbone, Charlotte Walker, Amelia Summerville, Hubert Wilke, Marco Gonzales, Lucian Prival and others. The direction is by Howard Higgin.

In "The Great Deception" Ben plays the role of a British Secret Service emissary, who comes into conflict with German spies. One of the most exciting scenes in the picture shows Aileen Pringle piloting an airplane in which Ben lies wounded.

A special sham air raid was made over New York city with the aid of the anti-aircraft unit at the army base there for this picture. It is a First National release.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE BETTER 'OLE."

"The treat of a lifetime" is the verdict of the critics on Warner Brothers comedy sensation, "The Better 'Ole," which opens at the Capitol on Monday.

With Syd Chaplin portraying the character of "Old Bill," patrons of the Capitol can feel assured that a real evening's entertainment is in store for them. The story of "Old Bill" and his cronies is too well-known to need outlining, and the management of the Capitol can only say that in portraying this famous character, Syd Chaplin has outshone any of his previous efforts. This picture is just completing its initial showing in Canada at the Regent Theatre, Toronto, to-day, after a three weeks' continuous run to capacity houses.

TRUE STORIES ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE
By a Mutual Life Representative

The FORGOTTEN CLAUSE

I read the Clause to her

A NUMBER of years ago we issued a policy to a man who subsequently became incapacitated from tuberculosis. For three years he was unable to do anything.

One day his mother came to me wanting to surrender the policy on her son's life for the cash value. I examined the policy and found it carried a total disability clause which the poor woman had entirely overlooked.

"Surely," I said, "You don't want to surrender this policy." And I read the mother the disability clause. She didn't yet quite understand.

"It's all right for you to talk," she said, "but "I need that money NOW"

"It would be a sin to take this policy from you now. I simply won't do it," I told her flatly.

I reported the case to the head office. The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada promptly refunded two years' premiums and in addition paid an amount covering the monthly income for the two previous years.

Regularly each month after that until her son died,

The mother received a cheque

from the Mutual Life of Canada. At his death the company sent her a cheque for the amount of the policy in full.

Had she surrendered that policy as she tried to do, she would have been practically penniless before he died, as her son's policy had only been running a few years and its cash surrender value was therefore comparatively small.

All Representatives of the Mutual Life of Canada are equipped to give invaluable counsel upon life insurance, explain the various provisions of different Mutual policies and point out the particular policies called for by your insurance needs. Be frank with them and give them your confidence. They will respect it.

Petes Tie With Lindsay in Junior Game Last Night

YOUNG PETES HOLD MIDGETS TO A 2-2 TIE ON LINDSAY ICE

25 PENALTIES.

Le Barr's Men Still Maintain 4 Goal Lead Over Opponents.

Lew LeBarr's Juniors held Lindsay Midgets to a score of two all in what proved to be one of the most rectic struggles witnessed in the Lindsay ice box for some years.

The game started at a sizzling pace which was maintained until the final gong sounded.

Twenty-five penalties in all were handed out by Referee Collett, the offences ranging all the way from accidental trips to regular brawls in which most of the fans participated.

In the ensuing melee, the referee was knocked down, being buried under an avalanche of spectators who by this time had crowded over the boards on to the ice. Order was finally regained, the officials of both teams working strenuously towards that end.

As a result of the game the Young Petes still maintain a four goal lead over Lindsay.

It is not likely that Lindsay will come here to finish the series, as they think the lead is too big to overcome.

The Petes' first goal came after four minutes' play, and was scored by a Lindsay man against his own team.

The game was fast throughout both teams appearing more than anxious to pull off a win, and this spirit more than anything else was responsible for the numerous penalties.

Lindsay played four men up on the attack during the entire game, leaving one man on defence. The Petes missed chance after chance of scoring, when they got down to the Lindsay goal.

First Period

A few seconds after the face-off, Mein kicked out a hot shot. White obtained the puck and plowed his way through to the Lindsay goal, just missing the goal post by inches. Jones and LeBarr, working in perfect unison, worked down to test the Lindsay goalie again. He shot the puck into the corner, where Jones seizing it, sent it across the goal mouth where it deflected off a Lindsay stick for the first goal of the game.

The play went from end to end in mad rushes as each team would obtain the puck, but no further score resulted during the perod.

Second Period

Lindsay started off in a brilliant fashion bottling up the Petes and checking every move. Jones at this stage was prominent getting away time after time only to be halted when he attempted to shoot. As the pace became warmer the penalties became numerous and from then until the end of the period a regular epidemic resulted. With only four Petes on the ice Lindsay pressed hard but failed to push one across. LeBarr and Calladine in a beautiful piece of combination skated the length of the rink, the effort resulting in Peterborough's second goal. Two minutes after Fever of Lindsay executed a lone rush and drilled a hot one past Mein for their first counter.

The play had hardly started when the puck was at the Lindsay goal again. Their goal tender made a pass at one of the Petes and a mix up resulted, both being sent to the penalty box. Forbert occupied the net for the remaining minutes only being called on once to turn away a shot.

Third Period

Gillespie occupied the Petes' goal during the last period and handled several shots in quick succession. Lindsay, putting everything they had into the game, were tearing round the Petes' net like bees and were rewarded when Forbert hooked one past Gillespie for the tieing counter. Another mix up started, the play being stopped about five minutes; Woods of Lindsay getting penalized.

Lindsay started off with a full team, despite the penalty, and carried the puck down to register another goal which was disallowed owing to the bell having rung. The penalty keepers tried to make themselves heard, in their excitement grabbing anything but the rope that controlled the gong.

With two minutes to go Lindsay never gave up but kept on coming, however without any further score resulting.

Lindsay Intermediates Spend Night On Road

The game scheduled between Lindsay Intermediates and Whitby, did not come off last night owing to the bus in which the Lindsay players were travelling not being able to make the road.

The bus arrived from Whitby about 6 p.m., after taking six hours to complete the 50 mile trip. At 8.45 the Lindsay players were aboard and started out for Whitby.

They got as far as Myrtle by midnight, and walked two miles to the railway station, with the thermometer hovering around 22 below, and there they camped until they caught an early morning train for home.

Some of the players told the Examiner that the bus driver stripped his gears, as also did the driver of a bus that was sent out to rescue them from their predicament.

Queen Isabella may have thought a lot of Columbus, but his name was in the dirt book, too. He even crossed the ocean.

You can go on and on in this strain, but in the end you'll only develop bunions.

There are two reasons why it's hard to believe Cobb and Speaker threw a ball game. One is Cobb. The other is Speaker.

JUNIORS WIN FROM "GROVE"

Preparatory School Unable To Cope With Play of Victors.

TEN PENALTIES.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 15—Lakefield Juniors defeated the "Grove" Preparatory school team in the first junior O.H.A. game of the series of B group four goals to two last night. The game was very clean throughout—and referee Walter Jackson handled the bell to the satisfaction of both teams.

The Preparatory school team put up a wonderful showing considering they did not come back to study until this week and only had had a couple of practises. Hudson for the Grove boys started the scoring in the first which was the only goal scored in that period. In the second Lawless, Hamblin and B. Wannamaker scored for the juniors. In the final frame Stabler and Griffith both scored.

The juniors had the advantage on the night's play and also have more weight. Ten penalties were handed out on minor offences. On the night's play Moore turned in a splendid game, stopping 38 shots to 9 stopped by Junkin. Griffith and Hudson starred for the Grove while Hamblin turned in a splendid game for the winners.

The line-up was:

Referee—Walter Jackson.

While Judge Landis is not a member of the football rules committee, he evidently believes in the safety. . . . At any rate he signed a new contract for $65,000 before he fired Speaker and Cobb.

Mr. Ty Cobb will always be known to baseball as the Georgia Peach. . . . And we have an idea that Mr. Dutch Leonard will always be known to baseball as the California snitch.

MENIE HOCKEY TEAM STRONG

SHOW UP WELL.

BURNBRAE, Jan. 15. — Those wise birds who said that the Menie hockey team couldn't continue the form they displayed against the Mill team in the opening game, received a severe jolt on Tuesday night when the same Menie squad stepped into the Clerks and handed them a 4 to 3 defeat. The Clerks were a vastly improved team from that which faced the Hydro champions in the Town League opener, and continued a dazzling pace from the opening gong, but in spite of their early lead, they couldn't stop the boys from the country, who came from behind to tie the count twice, and finally won out.

The Menie boys present a well-rounded aggregation this year, which should be right up in the finals. Ted Owens, in goal, is stopping them from every angle, and even sits on the puck in emergencies. Hay and Shillinglaw, the regular defence, are both going strong, especially the former, who scored Menie's second tally on Tuesday evening. His speedy rushes and sizzling shots are a constant threat to opposing defence and goalie. Shillinglaw is a little weak in condition yet, but is coming fast. Rannie at centre is as speedy as ever, and with lots of practice before the season started, he is good for sixty minutes. He scored the winning goal on a rebound of Kerr's shot. Kerr, the former Lakefield star, is captain of the Menie squad, and plays left wing, although he is equally good on the rear guard. His rush to score the tying goal in Tuesday's game was one of the finest pieces of work ever seen in Covert's Arena. Coulter at right wing is going strong and makes things interesting for the opposing goalie with an accurate snap shot from long range. He seldom misses the net on these shots. Linn, substitute forward, is developing into one of the best players in the League. He is fast, a hard worker and has a knack of following in for rebounds. He scored Menie's first goal on a difficult shot from the corner. Walt Owens, defence substitute, is solid as a rock in that position, but was out of his element when used on the wing in the last encounter.

It is quite probable that Will Hume, former star centre player of the team, will be back in harness before long. His operation last summer left him in a weakened condition, but improvement has been rapid lately, and it is only a matter of days until he will give over his position as coach for a more active position on the firing line. His wicked shot will be a big help to the Menie team's score-sheet.

The open-air rink at Hoard's is now in good condition, and local hockey enthusiasts are making good use of it. A team of Menie "seconds," including some past stars and some that will be such in the future defeated the Hoard's team to the tune of 7 goals to 1 on Monday night.

HOCKEY SCHEDULE.

Next Week's Games in Campbellford League Will Affect Standings.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15.—Next week's hockey games in the Town League will have a big effect on the standing. Menie and the Hydro clash on Wednesday and the winner will be sitting pretty at the top of the heap, while the Clerks and the Mill will battle for the cellar position Monday night.

Monday, Jan. 17 at 7.30 (Midget series)—Elks vs Bear Cats; at 8.15 (senior series)— Clerks vs Mill.

Wednesday, Jan. 19 (Midget series)—Tigers vs Elks at 7.30; (Senior series)—Hydro vs Menie, at 8.15.

HYDRO WINS LEAGUE GAME

TIGERS, 4; BEAR CATS, 1

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 15.—The Hydro beat the Mill here Thursday night in a Town Hockey League game at Covert's Arena by a 4 to 2 score. The game started like a flash, and had all the appearances of a high scoring affair, Cowell taking a pass from Johnston and scoring in three minutes. The same player came back from the face-off to drill home another, and in three minutes more Wilks scored for the Mill, followed by Cowell for the Hydro in another minute, the score reading Hydro 3, Mill 1, all inside of eight minutes. The teams warmed up to their work, and the puck travelled from end to end, with both goalers making clever saves. Ayrhart grabbed the rebound of Wilks' shot and scored the Mills' second tally with three minutes to go.

The Mill had plenty of opportunities to score, but their shooting was weak. The period ended with the score 3 to 2 for the Hydro.

With Brown and Watt missing from the Hydro, the electric boys' attack was not so powerful, and the Mill had slightly the better of the argument except close to their opponents' net, where they fell down badly. Many golden opportunities were wasted by lack of shooting ability, where at the other end Cowell was shooting hard and accurate at every opportunity, and Johnston was also causing considerable trouble by his brilliant rushes down the ice.

Jack Brown was playing great defensive hockey at this stage, and he seldom let Cowell have an open shot. It was while Brown was serving a penalty that Cowell scored the last goal of the night, with three-quarters of the period gone. With a two-goal margin, the Hydro resorted to a sound defensive game, and were content to fall back and wait for the Mill attack, after losing possession of the rubber, and the Mill boys played right into their hands by bunching too close on the attack.

The third period was virtually a repetition of the second, the play being in Hydro territory the biggest half of the period, but good defensive work by Free and Beatty and sensational goal-tending by Saunders, turned back the efforts of the Mill, while Johnston and Cowell were giving the Mill followers plenty to worry about, by some lightning fast dashes down the ice.

Outstanding in the Hydro victory were the brilliant efforts of Cowell and Johnston. Johnston's fine exhibition of puck-carrying and his ceaseless back-checking was only overshadowed by Cowell's four markers, and Johnston supplied the pass for one of these.

Saunders, in the Hydro net, had more saves to his credit than the veteran Stewart, but some of the Mill goalie's saves were of the sensational order, and his exhibition of net minding and the fine defensive work of Brown were the bright spots in the Mill performance. Ayrhart was the most effective of the forwards. Lambert also went good, but lacks experience.

In the Midget game the Tigers won from the Bear Cats 4 to 1, and had much the better of the argument. They had a decided edge on both wings and on the defence, and they paid particular attention to "Doug." Runions, the Bear Cat star.

The youngsters are showing improvement in every game, and are learning the value of team play as well as the finer points of the game, essentials they would not so readily absorb were it not for the formation of the Midget League.

The line-up:

Referee: H. Atkinson.

GREYS AND BLUES PLAY DRAWN GAME

Score of Fast Deloro Plant League Game 2-2.

MARMORA, Jan. 15.—The Greys and the Blues clashed in the Deloro Plant League on Wednesday evening before a good crowd. Play was fast throughout the game. In the first period Skinner scored for the Blues from a pass from Jack Campion for the Greys shortly after equalized, scoring on a fast rush. In the second period the Greys speeded up and added another goal through M. Auger who broke through the Blues' defence. Some brilliant goal-keeping was seen at both ends in this period. Woods and Jack were particularly aggressive but met with no success. In the third period Skinner evened the score half a minute before time was called.

Teams:

Greys—Goal, C. Neal; right defence, C. Brady; left defence, M. Auger; centre, C. Campion; right wing, H. Auger; left wing, T. Cousins; subs, J. Clairmont, J. Brady.

Blues—Goal J. McCroden; right defence, F. Craig; left defence, W. Kerr; centre, V Jack; right wing, W. Skinner; left wing, C. Wood; subs, G. Mantle, C. Robertson.

Referee—F. Leal.

Among those who are not conspicuously in the running for the Nobel Popularity Prize for all time is a gentleman—pardon us, a bird—by the name of "Dutch" Leonard.

Well the postment ought to be for Leonard anyway....He didn't make them deliver those two letters to the American League.

BRISTLING BATTLES of BARE FIST DAYS

(MY LIFE STORY)

By Jack McAuliffe

Iron pipes wielded from back of a wing, a black jack smacked against a man's skull when he was backed up against a curtain—those are some of the tricks Madden and myself had to use to get out of tight places when we were touring the country agreeing to score a knock-down over any comer or forfeit $50.

Many a time I had to resort to the "back-heel" punch in order to get my man down and save the $50. I used to step in fact and stick out my foot behind my opponent's leg. Immediately I'd slip over a lightning left or right. It never failed to flop a man and many times he stayed down from the force of the fall.

When our fights were staged in theatres we'd have an assistant stand behind the curtain with a big club or length of pipe and if my man was too big or too tough a little outside whacking always came in handy. I had to watch out myself, too, and keep away from the wings and backdrops when I was in enemy territory.

Madden taught me a lot of the tricks of the ring and he was pretty clever with his dukes himself. He always insisted on courage in his boxers and used to delight in telling how he got John L. Sullivan his first fight under his direction with a rough and tumble artist named John Flood, who was a killer in the ring. Sullivan said he wanted to meet Flood and told Madden to go get him the fight. Madden tried to sign them up for Queensbury or London rules but Flood was very gruff and hardboiled and trying to frighten Madden, said, "It's going to be catch-as-catch can and everything goes!"

Madden hesitated, finally agreed, and went over on the lower east-side to rouse Sullivan out of a deep slumber and tell him of the dangerous foe he had matched him with and under what conditions they would fight.

Sullivan sat up in bed, blinked a bit and stared at Madden until his story was finished.

"I don't give a damn—I'll be ready tomorrow," Sullivan roared and promptly went back to sleep.

NOTE—In the next chapter McAuliffe tells of what real danger he faced in his fights when ringsiders crashed a chair over his head after a knockout he scored in Philly and he scoffs at Dempsey's alibi that cowboys' guns had anything to do with the modern Dempsey-Gibbon fight.

Junior Petes Have Eventful Journey To Lindsay Snow Drifts Stop Car,s While Hotels Are Crowded

Manager Lew LeBarr will remember last night's Lindsay game for more reasons than the number of penalties awarded.

Having some fears that the road would be impassable, he kept the telephone wires hot all day calling up different people along the route in an effort to get some definite information.

He was told that several trucks had gotten through so at four o'clock the team, travelling in three cars, each equipped with ropes and shovels, started out to make the journey.

About two miles out on the Chemong Road the trouble began when the leading car became stalled in a drift. After a nifty display of shovelling, the car was able to proceed; only to have the two cars following fall into the same predicament.

They stalled again, twice, before reaching the Lindsay turn, but kept pushing on in the hope that the road would be better. However, on making the turn, they found that their troubles were only at a beginning. About two hundred yards along the road the cars encountered drifts six feet deep and, faced with the prospect of shovelling the road for the entire distance, they were forced to turn back.

It was a merry chase back to the city in what proved to be a successful effort to catch the 5.30 train, a great deal depending on it. The Petes were in possession of a four-goal lead, but with the goals counting on the round, no one was sure, what the O.H.A. decision would be if they did not get to Lindsay as scheduled.

The first car made the station just as the train was preparing to start, and by sundry cajolings and arguments, persuaded the conductor to hold his train until the other two cars arrived about ten minutes late.

On reaching Lindsay they were faced with the problem of no hotel accommodation, the reason given being that the bonspiel had taxed everything to capacity. Manager LeBarr, however, managed to secure quarters for the players, the remainder of the followers contenting themselves with sitting up and gazing out of the window all night.

"The TOBACCO of QUALITY"

SECOND PLACE IS AT STAKE ON MONDAY NIGHT

Marlboros and Petes Are Expected To Stage Great Game.

DUKES ARE FAST.

Selke's Team Contains Some Well Known Hockey Stars.

Although the other two teams are not yet out of the running, the general opinion is that the battle for the play off position in the senior group lies between Marlboros and the Petes, with the Grads likely to finish first.

That fact adds interest to the clash between the two at Brock street rink Monday night, which looks like the season's fixture.

The Dukes blanked the Petes 1 to 0 earlier in the season at the arena and if they can come across with another win here Monday they'll have the blue and white in a tight corner.

Frank Selke, the Marlboro's manager, expects them to do that very thing but nobody in the Petes' camp can see it that way and they are confident that they can turn back Joe Primeau and his pals.

Marlboros' forward line of, Primeau, Heintzman and McPherson is fast and clever and they have an experienced, hard checking defence pair in Crompton and Hedges. The smaller ice surface will not bother the Dukes a great deal and they will undoubtedly give Eddie Wright's team a memorable argument.

The game is called for 8.30 o'clock sharp.

The reserved seat plan is on sale at Bert McLeod's drug store and there is a keen demand for the pasteboards.

Prospects are good for fast ice and both teams will be satisfied on that account.

TO INVESTIGATE ON 1922 SERIES

Quiet Probe of Giants-Yankee Embroglio Said To Be Under Way.

SECOND GAME.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (United Press)—A quiet investigation of the world series of 1922 is under way, it was disclosed, at the office of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, here, yesterday.

The series was played between the New York Giants and the New York Yanks.

The Giants won in five games.

The most peculiar feature of the series was the second game, which went 10 innings to a 3-3 tie, when it was called by Umpire Hildebrand "on account of darkness." More than 38,000 spectators violently protested at the umpire's decision, asserting that there was sufficient light to finish the game.

Judge Landis awarded the $120,000 gate recipts of that game to charity, because of the fans' violent protest.

The series was marked by allegedly poor judgment on the part of the Yankee team, and exceptionally fine pitching by the Giants.

The Yanks went into the series an even choice to win, but came out badly punished.

Judge Landis refused to comment on his investigation, and will not divulge his plans until he has something definite to make public.

The pitchers in the series, who collapsed noticeably, were Joe Bush and Carl Mays. Bush dropped two games, but newspapers commented at the time that it was "bad breaks" and not pitching that lost for him.

Mays was a big disappointment to Yankee fans. He blew up in the fifth inning of one game, when the Giants trotted four men across the plate. It was not until the eighth inning, however, that he was taken out.

There was a great deal of comment on the series, regarding the poor showing of the Yankees. Babe Ruth failed to do any startling work with his bat, and other players seemed equally impotent before the Giant hurlers.

News to Ruppert

New York, Jan. 15—"If there has been any investigation of the 1922 world series between the Yankees and Giants, it is news to me," said Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, when told yesterday of the Chicago report.

"The games were on the level, and the Giants just played better ball. I'm sure that if Commissioner Landis were inquiring into the series, he would have notified me."

At the Giants' offices, it was said that Charles A. Stoneham, president of the club, considered the story as "preposterous."

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

At present our Petes is neatly tucked in 2nd place in the group race, and if they can take a fall out of Mister Joe Primeau and his peaky Marlboros when they visit the Brock St. ice box Mon. night they'll be sitting pretty. The set-too oughta be just about the most peppery of the season. The 2 teams is battling it out for 2nd place, the Petes is out to get revenge for a 1-0 licking at the hands of the Dukes, and altogether it looms up like a interesting party. The Marlboros has some fast boys, and this Mister Primeau in particular has loose hips and a mean way of ghosting through a defence.

They ain't much to be said about the game with Varsity Grads. It's ancient history now, and I for 1 am willing to forget it. The Petes looked about as much at home out there against them ex-students as Mr. Raney would be at a New Year's party at a night club, and the biggest excitement the newspaper men had was to find their way into the new Varsity arena. Locating the pass gate was worst than a treasure hunt. As for the Grads a smooth team is what they is nothing else but. They're big and they're fast and they're clever, and if they got any weaknesses they couldn't be seen last Fri. night, and the lighting was excellent at that.

Thanks to the T.C.C.'s taking a fall out of the Marlboros and the Petes beating North Toronto, our lads has climbed a peg this week. The game with North Toronto was 1 of them lady-like you-won't-really-mind-old-dears-if-we-help-ourselves-to-a-goal-now sort of affairs that needed nothing but the serving of a round of tea and cake to make it a perfect social function. North Toronto turned up with only 1 sub—the others may have got caught in the mob that was trying to fight its way into the Arena—and not much ambition, and the 2 teams was on good terms all through the piece. Our lads had a big edge and oughta come home a lot longer way in front.

The jr. game Tues. night was a treat to me for 1 thing anyway, Mac, and that was, it uncovered a kid what could score goals. Birds like that is as rare in this burg as Pacific coast reception on a 1-tube set, and so this young Mister Buck Jones what slapped in 4 markers was a sight for sore eyes. Peterboro has been growing hockey players what could skate and stick-handle, but the No. what could plant the old washer in the net 4 outa 5 chances has been darn scarce. A statistical shark has figgered that if all the scoring chances missed by Peterboro teams in the last 10 years could be placed end to end they'd stretch from Halifax to Vancouver and back again, with enough left over to run a border around Lake Ont.

Well, Mac, they ain't much left to say except to remind the customers again that this game with the Marlboros Mon. didn't oughta be missed. The Dukes and the Petes oughta put on a real show, and they ain't much doubt that the biggest mob of the season will see them tangle.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

MARMORA WINS BY SINGLE GOAL

Brady Scores Only Counter of Game With Stirling in First Period.

GOALIES STAR.

MARMORA, Jan. 15. (Special.)—The leadership of the Hastings County League is retained by Marmora as a result of last night's encounter there when the homesters again won by a solitary goal against Stirling, which as in the last game between these teams, was scored by Brady. The ice was in good condition and an increased attendance witnessed the game.

Play, which opened tamely, speeded up towards the end of the first period, Marmora pressing heavily.

Their score came after 14 1-2 minutes of play, Brady putting in an offhand shot which struck Hulin's skate and glanced into the net. Neal was then tested with some hot shots but cleared nicely.

In the second period Stirling indulged in strong rushes, but Marmora checked hard. F. Ingram stood out for the visitors in making some clever rushes but Neal proved sound. The period ended with the score unchanged.

In the final period play became a little rough and Referee Dwyer meted out four penalties. Both teams endeavored their hardest to score, Wood, McWilliams and Auger playing vigorously for their side, and ingram being prominent for Stirling.

Stirling came near equalizing when Neal fell in stopping Ingram's shot and a melee ensued in front of the Marmora goal.

For the last few minutes of the game a score seemed imminent almost every moment but the goalies were on their job as throughout the whole game, and the verdict went to Marmora amid rousing cheers.

The line-up:

Stirling		Marmora
W. Hulin	goal	C. Neal
F. Ingram	r. defence	E. Bennett
W. Tulloch	l. defence	M. Auger
J. Ackers	centre	G. McWilliams

MODEL OF OFFICE SHOWN AT TRIAL

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—A wooden model of the Rev. J. Frank Norris' office and its surroundings at Fort Worth was introduced by the prosecution as its first evidence when the trial of the Baptist Fundamentalist minister, charged with the murder of D. E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman, opened yesterday. About fifty witnesses were sworn.

The first witnesses described the wounds on Chipps' body, the purpose of the State being to show that the lumberman was moving away from Norris when shot, and that he had his hands up in an attitude of protecting himself.

and he had not taken the whole bottle before he was greatly relieved. The severe stomach attacks ceased, there was no more gas on the stomach, and he could eat anything he wished."

So sensational has been the introduction of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History—so keen the interest in the new standards of individuality and style which this car has set in the low-priced field that it has caused an instant revision of automobile values.

When you consider just a few of the many refinements and advances introduced for the first time into the field of the low-priced car by this Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History—the wonderfully enhanced beauty of appearance, the strikingly individual body styles, the smart Duco colors, the new sliding seats in the Coach model, the new oil filter and air cleaner, the new coincidental lock, the new radiator, the new full-crown fenders, and others too numerous to itemize—you will appreciate how radically Chevrolet has revised all previous conceptions of beauty and value in the low-priced car.

And today—owing to the popularity of previous Chevrolet models, and the lower costs which tremendous volume makes possible—the Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History is selling at new and lower prices—the lowest for which Chevrolet has ever been sold in Canada.

Odd Information Given About Exports Of Ulster

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—There is a 10 year old pupil at Leslie Street School who still wonders why his teacher scolded him so for his answer to one of the questions on a homework paper.

He remembers the question as one that gave him a good deal of trouble. It had stared up into his face, seeming to mock him as he read and reread it, scratching his head the while.

Finally he turned to the man who sat reading beside him. His companion looked up momentarily at the interruption. He grinned broadly as gliby he answered the boy's question; then still smiling, went on with his reading.

Next day the boy's teacher stopped short halfway through her perusal of his paper. She was accustomed to the baiting of young wags, but this one she thought had gone a trifle too far. The boyish hand had written this answer:

Q.—What are Northern Ireland's chief exports?

A.—Policemen and postmen for the Dominion of Canada.

OUTLOOK EASIER MEXICAN AFFAIR

Following Speech Urging U. S. To Change Latin-American Policy.

THREATEN BOYCOTT.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—In the view of official Mexican circles, the outlook was brighter yesterday, as regards both disturbances within the country and international relations. Notwithstanding this, however, some other observers continue to regard the situation as still dubious, if not fraught with dangerous possibility.

The speech before the United States Foreign Relations Committee Thursday as Senator William E. Borah, urging that the United States adopt a new Latin-American policy and arbitration of the dispute with Mexico growing out of the new oil and land laws, denials by Ricardo Trevino, secretary-general of the Regional Federation of Labor, and the Mexican Foreign Secretary, Aaron Seins, that Mexico was under the influence of Bolshevism, and the War Department's insistence that bandits and rebels will be suppressed, all combined to cause Government officials to think the situation was easier. At the same time, however, reports were received in the capital of uprisings in the interior of the country.

The whereabouts of Bishop Diaz, secretary of the Catholic Episcopate, still remains a mystery. The Bishop was reported to have been ordered sent out of the country after he was arrested on Monday, and since that time nothing definite as to his position or his whereabouts has become known. Catholic leaders, concerned over the Bishop, express the fear that many Mexican priests may be banished from their native land on charges of rebellion against the Government, it having been charged that the Episcopate was responsible for the recent series of risings against the authorities.

Some United States business interests regard with apprehension the proposals by Latin-American societies of Mexico City for a boycott throughout Spanish America of goods from the United States as a protest against the policy of the United States in Nicaragua. Thus far there are no tangible evidences here that such boycott is in effect, or even that it will go any further than the fiery speeches advocating it.

CONTINUE REFUSAL RESUME BUSINESS

British Bankers and Merchants in Hankow Keep Closed Shops.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—British bankers and merchants in the British concession city of Hankow, so far as is known here, still are refusing to resume business, Charge d'Affaires O'Malley having declined to assume responsibility for advising resumption without advice from the British government.

A despatch describing the incident of January 3 and 4, when the anti-British agitation on the part of the coolies was at its height, reached the British Foreign Office yesterday. This message reported that 170 British civilians were still living on the premises of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, where they took refuge.

It is understood that the government is in possession of the view of the various Powers on the situation in China and that these, together with reports from Mr. O'Malley, will be considered in detail at a Cabinet Council next week.

Official quarters emphasize that the question of foreign settlements in Shanghai is an international one and not solely of British concern in that Great Britain's is economic, not political, and that Great Britain has no intention of interfering in the internal affairs of China and will act only in the event of necessity, to protect the lives and property of her nationals.

GOOD PUNTER.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—They tell this story about a certain peer in the House of Lords.

Discovering two boys helping themselves to apples in his orchard the peer gave each a resounding kick in the pants. Next day the boys were found loitering near the orchard again.

"Didn't I warn you boys what you would get if I caught you around here again?" His Lordship shouted.

"Yes, sir," came the ready response. "We came this time to ask you if you'd join our football team."

Huge Bird Attacks Quebec Wood Ranger

THREE RIVERS, Que., Jan. 15. Canadian Press. — Euclide Beauce, a wood ranger of Spring Creek, was attacked by a large bird of prey while measuring lumber in the woods near here.

The bird suddenly descended upon the woodsman, encircled him with its long legs, slashed at his neck with its claws, and pecked at his head with its beak. Beauce was unable to disentangle himself from the bird. He shouted for assistance. When rescued his body was covered with small wounds and he was almost exhausted from loss of blood. The bird was killed but its identity has not yet been ascertained. It is believed to be of a European species.

LADIES' BASKETBALL LEAGUE MATCHES

'Y' Seniors, Brintons, Bell Telephone and C.G.E. Winning Teams.

The second weekly games of the Peterborough ladies' basketball league were played amidst great enthusiasm. A large number of spectators gathered in the gymnasium at 8 o'clock to cheer for their teams.

The "Y" Seniors vs. DeLaval proved an interesting game and the score was no indication of the splendid playing.

The "Y" Elementary vs. Bell Telephone was a strongly contested game the score being 4-4 at half time and the playing on both sides very good.

In the game between C.G.E. and Westclox Miss C. Taylor for the C.G.E. played a speedy game and Miss Finley for the Westclox showed some good checking.

"Y" Seniors, 28		DeLaval 2
L. Chambers		H. Carson
M. Craig		E. Forster
V. Graham		R. MacPherson

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds, and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto.

THREATS COST CHIPPS HIS LIFE

Eye Witness Says That Norris Shot When Threatened With Death.

GIVES EVIDENCE.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—Dexer E. Chipps lost his life in the office of Dr. J. Frank Norris, at Fort Worth last July, because he treatened to kill Norris, L. H. Nutt, an eye-witness, testified in court here today.

Nutt was conferring with Norris as Chipps entered the door about 5 p.m. on July 17. Chipps warned the pastor to cease attacks on his friends, Mayor Meacham, W. E. Austin, and Mr. Roach of Fort Worth, or he would kill him, the witness testified.

Nutt said Chipps made a move towards his hip pocket in a threatening manner and said: "Let's go to it."

Norris then shot three times and Chipps took a few steps and dropped to the floor.

LIBERAL LEADER CONTINUES FIGHT

Sacasa Says He Will Maintain Opposition To Diaz Regime.

DESPITE BLOCKADE.

PURTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, Jan. 15.—(United News.)—Despite what he referred to as a "blockade by the United States' Navy" and the neutralization of large sections of Nicaragua, President Juan B. Sacasa, Liberal leader, has no intention of quitting office, he told the United News last night. "Reports that I am deserting the Liberal cause are entirely untrue" he said. "Despite the blockade of the United States' Navy and the establishment of neutral zones, I shall remain at my post until the last extreme. The Liberals have not abandoned opposition to the Diaz regime."

Earlier in the day Sacasa had issued a statement protesting the landing of United States' troops in Nicaraguan territory.

BELMONT COUNCIL STARTS YEARS WORK

Appointments Made and Accounts Passed at First Meeting.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 15.—The inaugural meeting of Belmont and Methuen council was held on Monday, January 10, with all members present. After taking the necessary declaration of office, the members took their seats, with Reeve Breckenridge in the chair.

Moved by Councillors Sanders and Spencer, that Grant Dafoe be re-appointed clerk at a salary of $200 for 1927, with extra pay for long-distance telephone calls, postage and stationery.

Moved by Councillors Whitney and Spencer, that Wellington Burgess be re-appointed treasurer at a salary of $150 and extra pay for postage, stationery and revenue stamps; also, that he will have power to sign all cheques in connection with township disbursements.

Moved by Councillors Whitney and Barrows, that council make the salary of assessor $130 for 1927, the assessor to pay his own postage and stationery.

Moved by Councillors Sanders and Spencer, that James Freeman be appointed assessor for 1927.

Moved by Councillors Spencer and Whitney, that James W. Russell and W. R. Burgess be appointed auditors at a salary of $12 each, the collector's roll to be included in the audit.

Moved by Councillors Sanders and Spencer, that W. H. Brown be appointed sanitary inspector at a salary of $3 per day, and 13 cents per mile one way.

Moved by Councillors Spencer and Whitney, that Henry Pacey be appointed member of the local board of health.

Moved by Councillors Barrons and Sanders, that W. S. Davidson and Terry Fitzpatrick be appointed sheep valuators at a salary of $3 per day, and 13 cents a mile one way.

On motion, by-law No. 671 was given its several readings, passed, signed and sealed, and a by-law to confirm the appointment of certain township officials for 1927.

Moved by Councillors Whitney and Sanders, that the following accounts be ordered paid, and orders drawn on treasurer for same: R. McKelvie, $10; J. A. C. Allan, $4.35; George H. Dinwiddie, $4; Municipal World, Ltd., $7; Wellington Burgess, $14.39; W. J. Peoples, $5; J. W. Russell, $453.95.

On motion of Councillors Whitney and Barrons, council adjourned to meet at 1:00 p. m. on January 29, 1927, or at the call of the reeve.

ONLY AN OUNCE.

FLORENCE, Kas., Jan. 14. — When the old Florence Hotel, built fifty years ago, was raised recently, there was much speculation among the residents as to what would be found in the cornerstone. It was a bottle of whiskey—an ounce. On a piece of paper wrapped around the bottle was written: "Dedicated to a fool."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

DARROW WILL DEFEND STERRY

Colored Barrister Could Only Accept Ontario Counsel as Junior.

FUND OPEN.

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—"There is now no doubt left as to the conduct of the defense of G. V. Sterry," stated R. L. Cross, solicitor to the Rationalist Society of Canada, Inc. "I have had word from our friends in New York and can state that Clarence Darrow is positively coming to Toronto and will conduct the defence with me if the Bar Association will grant him that courtesy."

Ernest Victor Sterry is charged with publishing a blasphemous libel in the Christian Inquirer, a Modernist-Agnostic journal of which he is the editor. Sterry is out on $1,000 bail to come up before the magistrate next Tuesday.

Thursday a sympathetic source offered to finance the defence to the extent of placing at Sterry's disposal the services of one of the most eminent criminal advocates in this province. Conferences were held between the principals in the case, but as Mr. Cross could only consent to Sterry accepting the offer if the other counsel would act as junior to himself, the proposal collapsed. Mr. Cross is a colored barrister.

A defence fund is now open both here, in Detroit and other U. S. cities.

"Already many offers of assistance and expressions of sympathy have been received," states Mr. Cross. "These include messages from members of the clergy, public officials and other eminent people."

ISSUES CHALLENGE

GREENVILLE, S. C., Jan. 15. —J. Furman Sloan, farmer, of Grenville county, has issued a challenge to the world. Sloan's grandfather, Richard Sloan, of Simpsonville, was the father of 18. Mr. Sloan's other grandfather, Samuel Bah of Inman, likewise had 18 children. Mr. Sloan's father, George T., was also the father of 18.

His second wife, who was Miss Zalie Davis, survived him. After her husband's death she married Jule Smith, a widower, with 13 children. She gave to her second husband three more children, making a grand total of 34 children of whom she was either the mother or stepmother.

Of these 34, J. Furman Sloan was one. He was married and his home now boasts 11 sons and daughters.

"Why," Mr. Sloan said, "the Sloans at one time became so plentiful that the Lebanon church wouldn't hold them all."

KNOX CHRCH CHOIR ANNUAL MEETING

Officers Elected For Ensuing Year—Reports Presented For 1926.

Knox Church Choir held their annual meeting last night with supper at six, served by the Ladies' Aid. About forty persons were present and after partaking of all the dainties provided the Secretary, A. P. Huffman, gave a splendid report of the activities of the choir for the year 1926. The treasurer also had a very satisfactory account of the finances. A hearty vote of thanks was then tendered the secretary and treasurer for the efficient way they had discharged their duties. It was moved by Mr. Stanley Willis, seconded by Mrs. Lockie, that a vote of thanks be given the Ladies' Aid for their services rendered. Mr. H. McCannan, president of the choir, spoke on behalf of the social committee of which Mrs. Whitfield (nee Enid Sanderson) was convenor, thanking them for the many pleasant socials enjoyed by the choir. Mr. Devey, organist, thanked the members for their kind co-operation during the year, and urged all to attend practice and Sunday services. The election resulted as follows:

Hon. President — Rev. Mr. MacDonald.
President—Mr. H. McCannan.
Vice President—Gladys Chambers.
Secretary—A. P. Huffman.
Treasurer—Miss Ethel Wood.
Flower Committee—Mr. Syd Willis and Mrs. V. Buckham.
Social—Convenor, Vera Foster; Committee, Miss Doris Soper and Annie Crocker; Mr. Stanley Willis, Mr. Pitchford.
Librarian—Mr. Arthur Armstrong.

Downward Move Slackens In Quiet Mining Session

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—The downward movement on the Standard Mining Exchange was moderated somewhat during the day's less active session. Amulet sold down another eight cents at 100, Grover Daly lost 1¼ at 25 3-4, and Duprat eased a half at 27½. Area's downward rush was halted, and the standard closed at 88, a net gain of three cents, after selling at 95. Barry Hollinger continued upward, gaining four at 97½. Teck Hughes firmed ten at 6.50. Kirkland Lake joined the issues on the weak side, losing two at 91, but the heavily dealt in Laval-Quebec held steady at 39. Trading was still remarkably heavy in volume.

Railroad Shares Active, Featuring Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, January 15. Canadian Press. — The activity and strength of the railroad shares, speculation in which was fanned to fever pitch by merger rumors, featured today's brief session of the stock market.

Gains in the railroad shares ran from one to eight points in the popular issues, several of which sold at their highest prices in years. Western Carriers made the best showing, although brisk accumulation continued in the Wheling and Lake Erie issues.

Pools apparently regarded yesterday's stiffening of call money rates as temporary, bidding up several specialties in which important merger or dividend developments are rumoured to be pending. The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 650,000 shares.

Wheat Prices Go Up; Surplus Being Absorbed

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—With surplus wheat reported being absorbed abroad in a fairly satisfactory manner, wheat moved upward today. The trade gave evidence of leaning to the view that changes favored higher price rather than lower from the present level.

Starting unchanged to a shade up, wheat gained. Corn and oats also were firmer, corn opening at 1-8 cent decline to 1-8 cent gain, and later showing a slight advance. Provisions inclined to weakness.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 138 7-8, July 137; Corn, May 81 1-4, July 84 1-8; Oats, May 48 5-8, July 47 1-8.

Market Trend Uncertain Toronto Exchange To-day

TORONTO, Jan. 15 (Canadian Press).—The market with without any definite price trend during the week's closing session of the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Occasional substantial advances were offset by fairly numerous light recessions. Canadian Canners issues were a strong feature, the Common gaining 1 1-4 at 29 3-4, and the Preferred advancing 1 at 80 1-4. International Nickel also was firmer, closing 3-8 higher at 41 3-8. A third firm spot was Shredded Wheat, up 1 1-4 at 56 1-4. Hiram Walker, the active leader, firmed a quarter at 32 3-4. On the weaker side Brazilian, still active, was a quarter lower at 107, and Massey Harris sold down 2 1-2 at 68 1-2. Imperial Oil eased an eighth at 39 3-4, and British American Oil a quarter at 82 1-2.

Chrysler Model Numbers Mean Miles Per Hour

In its alluring smartness and beauty the new, finer Chrysler "70" forecasts the new vogue in motoring design even more definitely than the first Chrysler did three years ago.

Newer, more exquisitely graceful bodies—newer, more distinctive silhouette with military front and cadet visor (see illustration)—newer luxury of comfort—newer, greater riding ease—newer richness of upholstery—newer, finer hardware—newer refinements in controls and lighting—newer, more attractive color blendings far in advance of current harmonies.

And with this newer appearance is the famous chassis—unchanged save for valuable refinements—whose basic performance, dependability and long life have been proved for three years by hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic owners.

COCKSHUTT DINNER TO BE GREAT FEAST

Great Preparations For Banquet in Honor of Retiring Lieutenant-Governor.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan 14. (By Canadian Press.) — Over half an acre of canvas burlap spread over an equal area of carpet felting, tanbark and clay will be necessary to prepare the floor of the Coliseum for the colossal banquet to be given in honor of Col. Harry Cockshutt, retiring Lieutenant-Governor or Ontario on January 18.

The catering contract has been accepted by a large city firm. This occasion in the annals of Toronto banqueting history has only been equaled by the entertainment given to the Duke and Duchess of Connaught in the armories in 1916.

There will be required 150 quarts of fruit cocktail, 100 gallons of soup, 12 gallons of olives, 25 pounds of almonds, 4 cases of celery or 24 dozen heads, 2,000 pounds of chicken or 500 four-pound birds, which if placed in a solemn lineal procession would extend for about five blocks; 18 bags of potatoes for potato croquets, 150 tins of peas and 15 bags of carrots for the compote of vegetable with white sauce, 200 quarts of frozen pudding, 75 quarts of vanilla sauce.

Now to the question of trimmings and embellishments. It will take 2,000 orders of fruit, which is more or less an elusive estimation and consequently can only be held down by an approximation; this would be about 250 pounds of grapes, together within the neighborhood of 200 pounds each of oranges, apples and bananas, 40 pounds of coffee, 10 gallons of cream, which would be the product of about 25 jersey cows; 70 pounds of sugar; 4,000 bread rolls, which if placed end to end would reach from an eighth to a quarter of a mile; 125 pounds of cakes, 75 pounds of candy, 100 pounds or 40 quarts or red currant jelly, just to go with the chicken.

Thousands of Dishes

There will be 2,000 serviettes or nearly one-twentieth of an acre when placed in area side by side; 2,000 feet of table linen or about one-third of an acre when laid out; 2,000 punch cups; 16,000 plates and dishes; 8,000 assorted spoons; 8,000 knives and forks; 2,000 coffee cups; and over 3,000 paper doilies.

The personnel of 60 will include chefs, assistants and dish washers; and 180 waiters will be necessary to handle the situation. The central cooking plant itself is some little distance from the scene of the fete so the savory dishes will have to be loaded upon small hand trucks there and directed by assistants to a secondary heating plant. This plant will be a very long table extending from north to south, directly before the three western entrances to the Coliseum proper. It will have a special steam heating apparatus and be divided into three sections; each section in itself constituting an intact serving unit with a disposal exit of one of the three entrance doors. In this manner the assembled company will be served directly from this table and from their corresponding units in such by the 180 waiters.

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL IN WINTER

By Regulating the Stomach and Bowels With Baby's Own Tablets.

Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are changeable—one bright, the next cold and stormy, that the mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. In consequence they are often cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds or grippe. What is needed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. They will regulate the stomach and bowels and drive out colds, and through their use the baby will be able to get over the winter season in perfect safety.

In using Baby's Own Tablets the mother has an absolute guarantee that she is giving her precious little ones something that is absolutely safe and something that cannot possibly do harm to even the newborn babe as the Tablets contain not one particle of opiates or other dangerous drug. They are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box, by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WIVES ARE SCARCE IN OLD TURKESTAN

Moslems Who Used To Have Nine Wives Now Have Trouble Getting One.

SAMARKAND, Russian, Turkestan, Jan. 14. (By Canadian Press.)—with the men of Turkestan outnumbering the women three to one, polygamy is fast disappearing and men who once had as many as nine wives are now having a hard time getting one.

The Soviet census, just completed, shows the great disproportion of men to women in Turkestan. Indeed there is a virtual famine of women, especially those of marriageable age, which the local officials believe can only be met by the importation of women from other parts of the Soviet Union.

Turkestan's 10,000,000 population decreased last year nearly 20 per cent. because of a sharp decline in the number of marriages and in the birthrate. The consequensce of this is that the price of women and girls of marriagable age has increased from 500 to 5,000 rubles which is quite beyond the reach of the poor man.

Polygamy, which formerly was the rule throughout Turkestan, is fast disappearing. Before the Bolshevist revolution, rich landowners boasted up to nine consorts while the deposed Emir of Bokhara had 300 wives. Now the native Mohammedan has difficulty in purchasing and maintaining one wife.

And old Uzbeg, who made a living by begging, told the correspondent that 25 years of labor before the revolution enabled him to buy a wife, but after six month's abode with him she fled and sold herself to a wealthier Moslem.

Because of the shortage of women, Turcomans, Uzbegs, Tadzhiks and other Moslem natives are marrying Russian and Christian women who, unlike their Mohammedan sisters, demand no dowry or fee for themselves. Such marriages previously were unknown in Turkestan.

By reason of the great demand for them as wives, the woman of Turkestan enjoy a privileged position unknown in any other country in the world. Their husbands do all the housework, cooking, washing, ironing and marketing and generally showing their spouses the utmost diffidence.

STEAMER SERVICES CANADA TO INDIES

Meats From Dominion To Go To Islands—Two Services.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan 15 (By Canadian Press.)—Tenders for an elaborate mail, passenger and freight steamship service between Canada and the British West Indies have been invited by the department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. The tenders will be opened on January 20. The service is called for in the trade treaty negotiated in 1925 between the Dominion, the West Indies, Bermuda, British Guiana and British Honduras. This is the second occasion upon which Canada has called for tenders for the service; last year it was said that none of the companies bidding were able to supply adequate service.

The trade treaty with a long list of mutual tariff concessions has been been ratified by Canada and by the Islands and is only kept from becoming operative by the delay in the setting up of the ship services. Should the lines be established they will supply a faster and more frequent means of communication between these two parts of British North American than has ever existed before. At the present time the Canadian Government is paying $340,000 annually in subsidies to steamship companies to maintain a service which the islands have claimed is quite inadequate to permit them to sell their natural products to the best advantage in Canada. To establish the proposed communications will cost Canada a great deal more money in annual subsidies.

Services Called For

The contract will provide for two services. The Eastern Service calls for ships calling fortnightly, all the year round, at Canadian Atlantic ports, Bermuda, St. Kitts, Nevis, Antigua, Monserrat, Dominion, St. Lucia, Barbadoes, St. Vincent, Grenada, Tobago, Trinidad and Demerara. The vessels are to be of 6,000 tons, capable of twelve knots with accommodation for 100 first class, 30 second class and 100 steerage passengers. Each is to have 10,000 cubic feet for cold storage. In addition to this a fortnightly freight service of 4,300 tons vessels with a speed of ten knots from Canadian river ports in summer and ocean ports in winter calling at St. Kitts, Antigua, Barbadis, Trinidad and Demedrara. Freight rates are to be subject to the control of the Government of Canada.

The Western Service is to carry mail, passengers and freight between St. Lawrence ports in summer and Canadian ocean ports in winter calling both ways at Bermuda, the Bahamas and Kingston Jamaica. The passenger vessels are to be 6,000 tons with accomodation for 100 first class passengers and with a speed of 14 knots. Refrigeration is to be provided for 75,000 stems of bananas and for a speed of 10 knots and refrigeration for 50,000 stem and bananas. A smaller steamer of about 1,000 tons with room for 20 first class passengers and cold storage space is to be operated fortnightly between Kingston, Jamaica and British Honduras connecting with the passenger vessels operating between the islands and Canada.

Ten Years Contract

The contracts will be for a ten year period. The entire sunsidy will not be borne by the government of Canada under the treaty 29,000 pounds annully will be contributed by the Barbados, Bermuda, British Guiana, the Leeward Islands, Trinidad and the Windward Islands.

More than a little interest in shipping circles has been aroused by the inviting of the tenders for the new service. It is known that several of the great shipping companies are anxious to secure the contract. The Canadian Government Merchant Marine it is said is among those tendering as a private company. Although the Government's own merchant fleet has not ships which quite meet the requirements called for, it is understood that they are prepared to build or reconstruct vessels to suit the trade if the contract is secured.

Lauredant Lavergie, one of the two inspectors who look after theatres here, admitted he knew that vaudeville was being played at Laurier Palace from time to time. He knew also that the house was considered as a moving picture theatre. He had not reported the matter, remarking "there are several in Montreal that have done that, and that has been to the knowledge of many people." No evidence was given definitely to establish whether the Laurier Palace was using moveable scenery; all that came out was that, on the afternoon of the tragedy, ten girls and two comedians were to have given a kind of miniature burlesque performance.

It was during the evidence of Henry Lavigne, an usher, that Fire Commissioner Quinn gave his judgment on the cause of the fire. Much had been said about the trap door, that gave on to the space between the floor of the balcony and the ceiling formed over the ground floor at the bottom of the balcony construction. Emile Massicotte, film operator in the theatre, had already told of smoke coming from the trap, and still another usher had said that, when the door was lifted by means of fingers niserted in the hole in the door itself, the smoke poured out as though it had accumulated in volume and had been under compression.

"That's it," said Fire Commissioner Quinn with conviction. "There is no doubt but that the fire started from some child bringing in a cigarette. That trap was exposed and the cigarette was dropped through the hole or rolled through. It may have been there from 12 to 2, and during that time the fire was smouldering. I think the court has reached a conclusion as to the cause of the fire."

"I think one of the employees there before the theatre was opened to the public was smoking. It was one of the employees," remarked J. J. Carana, counsel for one of the insurance companies interested in the theatre. But from the witness box came a strenuous protest from Lavigne, who said he knew that there had been no smoking by the theatre personnel.

Much attention was given during the afternoon to the inspection of the theatre by the city authorities, and it was in that connection that Chief Inspector McIsaac was called. Personally, he had not been to the Laurier Palace since 1925, at which time Ameen Lamand, the proprietor, had been forced to instal a new box for the film operator, in accordance with a new by-law.

He explained that his department gave an "O.K." before a city license for operation is issued to any theatre or moving picture house. That permission for the issue of the license had been made in the case of the Laurier Palace ,following inspections by an assistant. He explained the various actions taken against Mr. Lawand in the Recorder's Court, showed the difference between theatres and moving picture house licenses, and told the court how he works with the city building inspector for the enforcement of all laws as far as possible.

A good cold weather starter now more dependable than ever

Probably no single feature of Dodge Brothers Motor Car has been more widely talked about and commended than the power and promptness of the starter.

The new two-unit starting and lighting system now advances Dodge Brothers leadership in this important respect still further.

There are now no moving starter parts when the car is in motion—no starter chain—no noise—no wear. The new starter is even more DEPENDABLE than the old, and far simpler and more compact in construction.

Many other major improvements have been added during the past twelve months, all vitally affecting performance and increasing value far beyond the apparent measure of current Dodge Brothers prices.

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

LITTLE CHILDREN KNOW ALL CANADA

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 14. (By Canadian Press).—Among all the portfolios depicting life in Canada which various branches of the Junior Red Cross Society of the province of Quebec have recently prepared for distribution throughout the British Empire, the volume arranged by pupils of the Elm Tree School, Athelstan, is by far the best. This is the decision at which Mrs. R. B. Shaw, supervisor of juniors in this province has arrived.

In the little schoolhouse at Athelstan, where the registration of scholars is but 12, and all but two of these youngsters not yet 12 years of age. Mrs. Shaw has located a Red Cross group with an unusual knowledge of Canada's natural resources and of the manners and customs of her people in different sections of the country. With the aid of this information, the boys and girls have illustrated "Canada in Winter," "Canada in Summer," the making of maple sugar and habits of birds. Some contributors to the volume, who have named themselves "Brooklet Beavers," have used their paints and skill in such ways as to portray ... tically animals, common to the forests and streams of this Dominion. Whether this portfolio, which Mrs. Shaw terms her prize volume will be sent to the headquarters of the Junoir Red Cross is South Africa or Japan has yet to be decided.

Bob Hathaway and Faith Lane looked at each other blankly for a moment then Bob laughed shortly, flicking the typed message that the fleeing stenographer had left for him, with a contemptuous finger.

"Scared stiff—lit out," he said succinctly. "She must have guessed that you had traced the letters to this office. But this is rather conclusive proof that I had nothing to do with her nasty little blackmail scheme, isn't it?"

"Oh, Bob, don't!" Faith pleaded, reaching out a shy hand to touch his arm. "I never really doubted you, but I had to find out all I could—for Cherry's sake. In my heart, I knew—"

"Your big heart, your darling, generous big heart!" he said huskily, gathering her cold fingers into a grip that hurt her. "This isn't the time nor the place, dear, to tell you. I had planned it so differently—moonlight or starlight, the two of us alone, entirely away from all the other Lanes and Cherry's problems—but you know, Faith, darling Faith, that I love you, want you to marry me. You've known, haven't you?" He drew her toward him, his blue eyes brilliant with love, but a little shy, too—the eyes of a man who has not had enough practice in tender declarations to do it easily.

"Yes," Faith whispered with unsteady lips. Then, with a sudden smile of heartbreaking tenderness that flooded her brown eyes with light and lifted the deep cut corners of her mouth in irresistible invitation, she abandoned her instinctive effort to hold back, and walked gladly, proudly into his arms. She cupped his flushed, lean face in her hands, and raised her face for his kiss.

His arms strained her with such sudden fierceness against his breast as he bent to kiss her that her back protested with a sharp stab of pain. But it was a delicious pain. She could have smiled at being stretched on the rack if he had been bending over her, kissing her.

When at last he flung back his head, triumphantly, and she rested in the curve of his arms, looking up at him with wide, misty eyes, she saw to her amazement that his lips were trembling, and that tears had magnified the amazingly blue irises of his eyes.

"Sorry! Oh, my God Faith! I'm just praying that I'll be halfway good enough for you. I feel such a rotter—about Cherry. I wish I had never kissed another girl, that—"

"Don't!" she begged huskily. "I know—how you feel. Chester Hart kissed me once, but I didn't like it. —I rubbed it off," she confessed naively, "and he was so angry that he turned to Cherry. But I've—never—let men paw me, Bob."

"You precious!" he laughed, rubbing his cheek against hers, and cuddling her fingers against his throat. "We'll simply have to forgive each other for our dreadful sins and begin all over again. Do you really love me?" His voice was suddenly serious, a little incredulous, as if he sincerely doubted that such a marvelous thing had really happened to him.

"I'm afraid I love you too much," she whispered unsteadily, drawing a quick sharp breath as if her heart hurt her, filled as it was with too much joy. "I always love too much, burden those I love with tenderness and solicitude. Don't let me burden you, Bob. They say men like to pursue, never quite sure, even after a marriage, like to think there is still a hidden chamber, containing the very core of love—"

Bob Hathaway laughed exultantly, cutting short her fumbling explanation with another long kiss. "You're a natural born giver, dear heart. You couldn't hold back to save your life."

"We'll spring the news on the Lane family and on Uncle Ralph this very night," he told her gaily, after a bit, as she was smoothing her hair. She looked up at him with startled eyes. "And break your promise to your uncle?" she demanded. "No, Bob. We're going to keep it secret until after Cherry's wedding, and you're not coming to the house. No, wait, please, darling! It isn't fair to allow you to be mixed up in all that's happening or threatening to happen to Cherry. We'll see each other frequently—"

"Why, Faith; I couldn't stand it!" he protested plaintively, like a hurt boy. "Just when I've learned what heaven is—"

"Please, Bob, it will be hard for me, too, but, well—I'm thinking of Cherry, too." Sudden color flamed in the clear ivory of her cheeks. "She loves you, Bob, she really does, in her way. It would hurt her terribly to see our—our happiness, while she is preparing to give herself into a loveless marriage. Do this last thing for me—for Cherry—and after she is married, I'll wear placards, like the old sandwich men, advertising to the world that I'm going to—to marry Mr. Robert Hathaway, rising young architect."

"I'll think it over," he told her so forlornly that she was touched almost to surrender.

"Hello! Why, Faith; you here! Hello, Mister Hathaway!" Cherry stood in the doorway, her piquant little face hard and angry, her yellow eyes blazing. "I suppose Faith has told you that we're on to your little game. I thought I'd beat her to it, but I found she'd taken those awful blackmailing letters. Now—come clean, Mr. Bob Hathaway!"

PEOPLE WHO NEED HEALTH BUILDING

Should Enrich Their Blood By Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There are conditions of health in which no particular organ appears to be at fault, yet the patient is miserable and unable to pursue the activities of daily life with vigor and enjoyment. The remedy needed is a medicine that will benefit the whole system rather than a part. The blood reaches every part of the body and an improvement in its quality is quickly followed by an improvement in the whole system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make a prompt and visible improvement in the blood, and bring new health and strength to ailing people. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is proved by the following statement: Mrs. W. F. Nash, R.R. No. 1, Bellamy, Ont., writing on behalf of her husband says: "For the past two summers my husband has taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much success. He was in a weak condition, did not sleep well at night, tired all the time, with poor appetite. The result was he got very thin. He decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and by the time he had taken three boxes he was feeling and looking so much better that it was very noticeable that the pills were all they were recommended to be. We feel very grateful and advise the use of the pills in all cases of weakness."

These pills may be had from all dealers in medicine, or by mail, post paid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

A black velvet slip was chosen as the foundation for this over-dress of fine black voile. The belt is of black and pink ribbon. It is signed by Jenny.

• • •

There was a time when dressmakers were surrounded by no end of conventions. Certain materials were considered appropriate for day frocks, others for the evening: there were lining materials and trimming materials and materials suitable for the milliner, others for the tailor. Partly, of course, these discriminations were based on suitability—but to a great extent they were mere conventions. We used a certain sort of silk for a certain sort of frock just because it always had been used in that way.

Now dressmakers have gone so far in the other direction that it sometimes seems that the important thing is to use materials for what they never have been used for before. Gingham to trim a georgette evening gown, fur to cover garters, shoe leather on a hat, ostrich feathers on shoes—we like that sort of thing.

The sketch shown, which was originated by Jenny of Paris, shows an original treatment of the slip. Velvet is used for this purpose and not only is this a new use to which to put velvet, but at first thought not a very appropriate one either. The very word slip suggests the obvious objection to velvet for this purpose. The material for this purpose should be smooth and sleek like satin or taffeta silk. But some of the new velvet really is very smooth and, if a fairly heavy over frock is used, the contact would be without friction.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 16, 1927.

This is read as an unfortunate day by astrologers who find that many malefic planetary influences are active. It is a day in which intrigue and deception are likely to flourish, especially in business affairs.

Contracts should not be signed while this sway prevails, the seers warn, as they are likely to be misleading.

There is a favorable direction of the stars for intellectual pursuits and forecasts of increased vogue for lecturers.

Under this planetary government there may be much social ambition apparent and the desire to meet persons of wealth may lead to favors.

Women today should profit by an aspect that seems to promise for them success in business or professional work.

There is a sign making for business activity that is unusual the first month of the year.

The New Moon of two days ago, an eclipse of the Sun, presaged great expansion of American commercial interests.

Building organizations, bond companies, and banking institutions will flourish, it is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the prospect of a fair year, but they should avoid extravagance.

Children born on this day probably will have much success in life with many reverses that prove in the end beneficial.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1927

Astrologers see this as an unfavorable day since two adverse aspects are strong.

This is not an auspicious day for signing contracts or for entering into new ventures in the business world.

Financial matters may seem more discouraging than they really are, while this configuration prevails, astrologers declare.

It is wise to be careful about writing letters today and love missives are especially dangerous, it is said.

There is a promising sign for education and educators. The profession of teaching is to become more honored than ever before and it is to be well paid, the seers prophesy.

Again interest in spiritualism will be strong, it is foretold, and there will be much investigation into occult ism.

This should be a fortunate time to start on a journey, for the stars presage good weather and pleasant companionship for most tourists.

A great tide of travel is to sweep between the two oceans in the remaining months of winter, if the planet are wisely interpreted.

This is not a fortunate date for promoters or for salesmen as there will be an inclination to hold onto money.

Blast furnaces are to work overtime in England, it is forecast, and they will be busy producing armaments.

Mars is a place supposed to stimulate evil deeds and violence of many sorts is likely to prevail.

Sensational robberies may be numerous and in many cities the streets at night will be unsafe for law-abiding citizens.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have temptation to change occupation and place of residence, but it is wise to remain stationary.

Children born on this day may be natural wanderers and they are likely to have many adventures. Money will easily slip away.

MURRAY STREET ANNUAL MEETING

Church Officers Report Progress During Past Year.

SCHOOL FLOURISHES.

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 12th, the members of Murray Street Baptist congregation held their annual tea and business meeting. In spite of handicaps, due to the fire and other causes, the reports were exceedingly satisfactory. The Pastor's report which indicated a very busy year, teaching, preaching and visiting, emphasized the value of the teaching ministry of the modern pulpit and the close connection between education and true evangelism.

The other reports showed progress both numerically and financially.

The Clerk reported forty-two additions to the roll during the year, twenty-four of them by baptism. The reports of the treasurer and the financial secreary showed a small net increase over 1925 in contributions to both current expenses and missionary and denominational activities. At the same time, the debt upon the church has been reduced to $1,650.

The report of the secretary of the Sunday School showed that the united service of Church and Bible School on Sunday morning is a success. The average attendance was approximately the same as in 1925, and over 100 more than in 1924. The advantages of the scheme were pointed out,—the presence of the children in the family pew for the opening exercises; the special Bible training given them during the sermon period, which is followed by the usual graded lessons; and the Sabbath afternoon of rest that it makes possible for teachers and workers.

As usual in the modern church the work of the women bulks large. The Women's Association raised about $700 and, besides their other activities, the two Women's Mission Circles contributed over $800 during the year.

The total amount raised by this congregation was $12,740.

During the evening, Dr. Rose paid a well-merited tribute to the life of the late Deacon Benjamin Mathews, and an appreciative reference to the memorial gifts from the families of the late Dr. and Mrs. Burritt Mann.

At the close of the meeting, the officers were elected for the ensuing year.

VARSITY LOSES.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 14.—(By Canadian Press)—The return to Australia this month of Miss E. L. R. Reid, will mean a loss to the University of Toronto Botany Department, of a valued member and friend. Miss Reid, who has lectured in the Department of Botany for the past two years, was exchange lecturer from the University of Western Australia at Perth.

Dr. J. Gertrude Wright, who was lecturer in Botany here before she left to take Miss Reid's place in the University of Western Australia, is returning next Autumn. She will first visit Java, Mauritius islands, and South Africa, where she will gather material for her work on returning home.

HOW "FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE HER NEW LIFE

MRS. J. F. RUTKOWSKA.

"For several years I suffered with severe constipation and was a nervous wreck. I had great pain in my limbs, and such terrible headaches I thought I would go crazy. I had no appetite, could scarcely eat anything without stomach distress. After reading about 'Fruit-a-tives' I decided to try them. Before I had taken three boxes, I was entirely well. I sincerely think 'Fruit-a-tives' saved my life." —Mrs. J. F. Rutkowska, Tolstoi, Manitoba.

Indigestion, biliousness, headaches, nervousness, pains in the back and limbs are largely caused by allowing poisons to accumulate in the body. "Fruit-a-tives" is nature's remedy, made from intensified fresh fruit juices combined with tonics. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulates the bowels, liver and kidneys to normal action and brings about a condition of delightful health. Buy a box of "Fruit-a-tives", today. Plans for the Future

THE TREND OF THE TIMES - By W.E.

We have always with us those who lament the passing of the old order of things, and who make disparaging comments on the new. Particularly is this the case during times of stress and anxiety, and in the periods following great convulsions of nature or among the nations. These are often times of pessimism and reaction. Men instinctively turn to the past, which look so firm and solid, in comparison with the present and the future. Depreciation of the present has always been common; even the bald-headed senators of Rome occasionally lamented that things were changing for the worse. Where there is life, there is change, and never did changes take place so rapidly as to-day. It is not an easy task to balance the gains against the losses, but while we seem to be losing some things we might well keep—the Puritan Sabbath, for instance—there are not a few favorable aspects in the life of to-day as contrasted with earlier times.

Except in some of the Southern States, where old-time rough and ready methods are employed to bring recalcitrant minds into line with popular opinion, the idea of toleration is much more firmly fixed in the minds of the people than it was, say, half a century ago. People are moving away from the belief that personal violence, intimidation, or social ostracism are the most effective methods of combating erroneous ideas.

The complaint that our educational system appears as though designed to produce a race of clerks and office workers is one that is becoming less pertinent as the years go by. The relation between science and research and industrial development are now more clearly recognized than ever before, and every year witnesses an increasing amount of attention being devoted to technical and vocational training. Here, undoubtedly, is a step forward.

In the Home.

Science, which has revolutionized industry, is now being enlisted on behalf of the homemaker and the housekeeper. Electricity, which supplies the lighting, has, as a result of the thought and planning of man, become a means of saving the time and lightening the labor of the woman in the home. Domestic help is, in innumerable cases, being replaced by all kinds of labor-saving appliances. Furniture is becoming smaller and lighter, and the whole impulse of household economy is towards simplicity, compactness and utility, combined with beauty.

Life to-day offers a larger liberty to everyone—children and youth, pauper and prisoner. Of practically all the English-speaking peoples it can be said that social consciousness has been awakened to a certain extent, at least, and the idea of national responsibility to ameliorate the hard lot of the needy and unfortunate is firmly implanted the minds of the bulk of the people. The advocacy of old age pensions in this country is a case in point.

Opportunity and Responsibility.

Opportunity for the ambitious and and diligent never was greater than to-day. But it cannot be said that the mass of the people manifest an adequate appreciation of their duties and privileges. The responsibilities which citizenship entails are too often evaded—witness the comparatively small percentage of voters in Peterborough who failed to exercise their civic franchise on New Year's day.

The excessive love of pleasure, which has been characteristic of the years that have followed the war, may be explained partly as being the reaction from the physical and mental structure of the people during the great struggle. A New York critic of Henry Ford's five-day working week innovation for his employees has stated that no nation has long retained commercial or political pre-eminence which permitted itself the luxury of frequent holidays. He might also have added—and he would have been on less debatable ground had he done so—that the community which devotes the bulk of its leisure to pleasure, instead of utilizing it as a means of advancement is certain to be outstripped by more alert and disciplined competitors. An even more disquieting feature is the fact that, in recent years, forms of entertainment have come into vogue which can not have any other than a pernicious effect, particularly on the minds of the rising generation. The production of filth on the stage has become a highly organized and extremely profitable commercial enterprise and has been carried to such an extent as to provoke protests from all quarters except those responsible for the condition, who know of but one kind of pressure—that which is exerted by a fall in box-office receipts. In the same category may be placed the enormous quantities of salacious magazine material, produced south of the boundary line, but sold, by Canadian vendors, unchecked by Canadian authorities.

Somewhat unexpected in times like these is the fact of increased interest in theology and in the Bible among many of the laity—the result, to a great extent, of the Fundamentalist-Modernist controversy that has agitated the Protestant Evangelical Churches during the past decade. Men, to whom the Bible has long been a closed book, have been stimulated to scan the pages of the old volume, especially those of the first chapter of Genesis, the Book of Jonah and the Gospels, to read for themselves, the words, whereof the interpretation has produced such extremely divergent opinions.

Care of Children.

Children are allowed a latitude unknown to those of any former generation—a change in many ways for the better, although not without its perils. Probably at no time in the world's history was a higher value set on child life than to-day. How far society has progressed in this direction can be readily ascertained when we recollect that, a century ago, children of very tender years—as low as seven—were being employed in mines and factories, and some much-scorned "uplifters" were being derided and abused for their efforts to limit the working hours of these unfortunate babies, whose blood and tears were cementing the fabric of industry.

It is when we come face to face with examples of this kind that we realize that, while morally the world is at present in one of the backward eddies which have from time to time impeded the journey towards the goal of better things, it has moved, and, from many viewpoints, still is moving, towards a brighter and better day.

HOT-ENOUGH FOR YOU?

THIS IS OUR KEEP COOL NUMBER

KEEPING COOL WITH BILL EDGAR

With the thermometer soaring up to great heights, reaching between ninety and a hundred degrees in the shade, and with no shade handy, the temperature is a thing of great importance to every one of us these torrid days. One is almost tempted to wish for the return of a real old-time pioneer Canadian winter day, when King Frost reigned unchallenged, and when Peterborough wrapped itself up in furs as it shivered in a 38 below atmosphere. Sweltering under the broiling sun, we feel regretful that we can not follow the excellent advice of the witty English churchman, Sidney Smith, who suggested that on hot summer days a man should divest himself entirely of his flesh and move about only in his bones. A bonnie suggestion!

But there is no doubt that it is very hard work to keep cool. Hard work causes perspiration and raises temperature, ergo, the very effort to keep the body nice and cool is apt to shoot the temperature up to an unheard of point. For instance, fanning oneself during a scorching day like yesterday might at first promote a cool and airy feeling, but after a time the happy effect wears off, fatigue sets in, temper and temperature both rise to an alarming degree, and the last state of the heat victim is worse than the first. It might be interesting to make an experiment in this direction. What would happen if a misguided perspiring one were to continue fanning himself, growing hotter all the while? He might continue his efforts until his temperature mounted so high as to make him a miniature furnace. He might indeed become so hot that he could cook a meal by the heat of his own body, and thus, by economising fuel, render his contribution to the conservation of Canada's timber resources.

Because of the large number of letters that have poured into The Examiner office, inquiring for the best methods of combating the effects of excessive heat, we have consulted all the highest authorities, and have acquired a fund of exclusive information which we publish for the benefit of the panting, sun-burnt throngs on George street. We do not believe in old-fashioned remedies; therefore, we do not advocate cooling drinks, the excessive use of which has so greatly increased the price of ice during the past few days. Nor is indiscriminate bathing to be encouraged. To those who are having their morning dip, we would suggest that they float and paddle rather than swim, since the exertion not only increases the temperature of the swimmer's body, but also has its effect on the water.

In fact, the thick atmospheric pall which is seen occasionally hovering over East City is not mist or fog, as the follish and ignorant have believed. It is really steam, generated from the waters of the Otonabee by the thousands of careless, happy bathers who are to be seen every day disporting themselves in the river off the bathing beaches. Modern science believes in working on the body through the mind. Try the Coue method. As you step out into the morning air, repeat to yourself some little formula like this—Mary had a little lamb; it's fleece was white as snow. Watch the effect. See how you feel. Of course, it is very hard to become cooler these days, but we guarantee that if you repeat these words to-morrow after you leave the house, and stand still some time in the open air, you will find your temperature lowering steadily. Probably as good a way as any of cooling oneself is to climb up Armour Height—pausing now and then on the journey lest you become too warm—and lying for an hour or so on the top where you are sure to get a sufficiently cool breeze. Then, there are other ways of producing the mental effect to bring down the thermometer. If any one of your acquaintances seems to be overheated, try the effect of touching him for a loan—say, a five-spot—and you will find that the atmosphere will become perceptibly cooler. Or, if a creditor calls for payment of an already overdue account, tell him you will see him later, and his manner will probably become very chilly. A great many chilly manners produce a chilly atmosphere. It is their cumulative effect.

The methods outlined above are not guaranteed to work effectively in every case. They would not work, for example, in the case of the man, suffering from heat prostration, for whom a local doctor was recently called in to prescribe. The patient was suffering from heat all right, but it was "canned heat"—and mere suggestion is helpless in such a case. To put it in a general way, our remedy is good only for the effects of too much sunshine; it can not undo the work of "moonshine."

Waiter—Why not, sir?

A PAIR OF THEM

Judge—It seems strange to me that you could keep on robbing that enormous corporation for so long without being caught.

Prisoner—Well, the corporation was pretty busy itself.—Life.

HE'S DOWN

"What is absolutely certain is that stupidity, just like intelligence, is hereditary and——"

"That's a nice way to talk about your parents."—Le Petit Bleu, Paris.

LOWBROW

"Did you know a hundred thousand was paid for the first Gutenberg Bible?"

"No; I didn't even know Gutenberg wrote the Bible."—Life.

WHAT'S THAT!

Bridegroom—Have you kissed the bride?

Best Man (absently)—Oh, yes, hundreds of times.—Answers, London.

ONE WAY OUT

The new bride was in tears on the evening of her first supper for friends.

"My cottage pudding won't rise," she sobbed.

"That's all right, dear," replied the husband, "we'll just tell them it's a flat pudding."—Christian Science Monitor.

PASSING IT ON

Critic (at private viewing of film)—"Really that actor is too awful for words."

"That's my son."

"Of course, it must be the fault of the incredibly bad direction."

"The director is my husband."

"But he couldn't do anything, perhaps, with such a dull and amateurish scenario."

"I wrote it."—Lustige Blaetter, Berlin.

YES, YES, THEY GROW

Tommy—Do fish grow very fast?

Billy—I should say! Father caught one once and it grows six inches every time he mentions it.—Pele Mele, Paris.

WELCOME!

Nurse—It's a boy.

Confirmed Golfer—Hooray! A caddy!—Golfers' Magazine.

INDEED, SEPULCHRAL

Housewife: But my good man, your story seems to have such a hollow ring.

Tramp: Well, that's because I'm speaking on an empty stomach.—Tit-Bits, London.

ENTITLED TO IT

The unattractive daughter of a general had received a proposal from a subaltern. "Dad," she said, "Filbert has proposed to me and he's only a second lieutenant. Now you must do something for him."

"I can't promote him over the heads of the others, but I will have him cited for gallantry."—Louisville Vourier-Journal.

SHE TOOK THEM

Lady Client: I don't know whether I like these photos or not. They seem rather indistinct.

Photographer: But remember, madam, your face is not at all plain.—Pele Mele, Paris.

OH, IN VARIOUS WAYS

"Is it true, father, that the big fish eat the sardines?"

"Oh, yes, my son."

"But how do they open the tins?"—Pele Mele, Paris.

By C. M. C. ((Examiner Correspondent.)

It was nearing noon on a day in mid-July, and just the kind of day one would expect in mid-July: hot, with that still hotness that makes everything hang limp. The leaves on the trees drooped without a breath to stir them, the blue sky above was cloudless and the flowers in the gardens bowed their pretty heads as though in meek resignation to the burning heat and a long looking forward to the cool of the evening and a refreshing drink.

Within a house, on one of the city's pleasant avenues, Katharine Newton hovered over a hot stove and drooped like one of the flowers in the garden. It was Saturday and Henry would be home for noonday dinner, and, added to that, she was making raspberry jam. Raspberry jam on Saturday! She fancied she could hear Henry's voice. Then a little feeling of resentment swept over her. She had hurried through her work every Saturday to be ready to start off with him at two o'clock for their their weekly picnic, and it had been nearly five each day when they got started. Henry always had just a little more to do in the garden, and odd jobs about the garage, and the old flivver always demanded an hour's work, yet she must always be ready on time. Well, he could just do the waiting to-day, she thought, for she would not hurry one bit more in this heat, and if he dared to tell her to keep cool, she felt she could almost kill him. That little trick of Henry's was getting on her nerves. It was ridiculous, she knew, but smaller things have separated households and Katharine felt she would simply have to leave Henry if he didn't stop telling her to "keep cool" when things went wrong. Keep cool, indeed, when one was cooking dinner and making raspberry jam on a hot day! Katharine sniffed indignantly and burnt her hand as she lifted the fresh raspberry pie out of the hot oven. She could hear Henry's voice in her ears as she reached up the soda can. "Just keep cool, now, my dear, and it will be better in a minute or two. It's getting excited and nervous that heats us up more than the weather. If you can keep cool and calm under all circumstances, the most trying moments of life will pass off successfully." Katharine felt the hot tears sting her eyelids as she applied the soda to her burnt hand, and felt that if Henry repeated those words again to-day she would hate him for ever more. There was his step now. She hastily put down the soda, drew her apron over her wet lashes and flew to the icebox for the cream.

Henry came in whistling cheerfully. "Hello, Kathie! Some day, eh? Ninety in the shade. Hottest day in two years."

He came over to the stove and stopped to kiss her moist, flushed cheek.

"What in thunder——! Raspberry jam on Saturday! And on such a hot day! I thought we'd start right after dinner for Stoney Lake, but this looks like it, doesn't it?"

"It's almost done, Henry," said Katharine, "and I simply had to do them. The man was to bring them on Monday, but he said they were ready this morning. I didn't dare refuse them or we might not get any more, and you know how fond of raspberry jam you are."

"That's right. Blame it on me," said Henry savagely. "I'm always the one who's so fond of the jams and the pickles and the preserves."

Any other time Katharine would have laughed and mollified him in a minute but this morning she was hot and tired and her hand stung.

"All right, Henry Newton, I'll not make another sealer of anything this summer. You can do without preserves next winter or make them yourself, which ever you like," she exclaimed.

"Now, now, Katharine, keep cool," began Henry. But Katharine had fled into the dining-room.

Dinner passed off fairly well. Katharine was doing her best to "keep cool," and not quarrel with Henry, and the dinner was good. Eaten in the cool dining-room, shaded by the big maple tree, the heat did not seem so intense. Henry ate well but Katharine ate very little, making most of her meal on the crisp lettuce just out of the icebox.

"Well," said Henry, as he pushed back his chair, "I suppose I may as well work in the garden until that jam is done."

"Oh, don't work in the garden today, Henry," pleaded Katharine. "It's far too hot. You might get a sunstroke. The jam is done. All I have to do is to bottle it and wash up. I'll be through by two o'clock. You lie down and rest. It's cool in the living-room."

"No," said Henry firmly. "If it's not too hot for you to work over the stove, it's not too hot for me in the garden. I want to train up those grapevines down by the fence. It should have been done a month ago."

"Then you'll have to work on the car after that, and it will be five o'clock before we get started again, and it will be all my fault as usual," said Katharine tartly.

"Nothing of the sort," said Henry loftily. "I'll be finished and waiting before you've got that messy old jam bottled up."

He pushed back his chair and started for the garden. Katharine sighed and then picked up a load of dishes. "If he'd help me with the dishes as lots of men would," she thought bitterly, "we'd be through in no time, and out of this heat. It'll be the usual thing, working all afternoon in the heat, and then too tired and cross to enjoy himself. Well, I'll not get dressed until the car is at the door. He can do the waiting this time."

She looked out of the kitchen window and saw that he was in the garage working at the car.

"He must have changed his mind about the grapevines," she thought. "I'd better hurry and be ready when he is."

With the thought of a cooling dip in the lake, and a restful afternoon on a grassy bank under spreading trees, to spur her on, Katharine worked with a will. She kept an eye on Henry and saw that he was still under the car. The jam was bottled, the dinner dishes washed, and she was about to prepare the picnic tea when she saw him emerge from the garage with hammer and twine and start for the end of the garden.

Katharine paused irresolutely. "For two pins I'd put the things back in the icebox, and not go at all," she thought.

Then the vision of dashing waves and yellow sand rose up before her tired eyes, and with skilled hand she went swiftly about making sandwiches. She was filling the last deviled egg when she heard a roar from the garden and running feet. She hastened to the door to see Henry coming wildly down the path, both hands clasped over his ears.

"What is it?" she cried in a panic of fear, pressing her hand over her fast-beating heart to try to steady it.

"Had he gone suddenly mad?" thought Katharine. "Did sunstrokes affect people like that?" She must be calm. If ever there was a time when she must keep cool, it was now. She felt a momentary desire to lock the door on this raving madman. How could she ever manage him? "Supposing he should kill her! Such dreadful things happened nowadays. One never knew, even with one's own husband!"

The tumult of thoughts rushed through her brain in a far shorter time than it takes to tell it. She forced her shaking hands to open the door and her trembling feet to take her out on the porch.

"Go in," shouted Henry. "Get inside, quick!"

He came bounding up the steps, and pushed her in before him, locking the door behind him, as if pursued by a pack of wolves. He dropped on a chair, and Katharine gazed at him fearfully.

"What is it, Henry?" she whispered. "What's the matter, dear? Are you sick?"

"Hornets!" said Henry briefly.

Katharine's eyes widened. He was crazy. There was no doubt about it. He had gone made with the heat. What would she do with a madman on her hands? What did people do with a person who suddenly went mad?

"Hornets!" repeated Henry in an exasperated, pain-filled voice. "Don't stand staring like an idiot! Hoenets, I say! Haven't you got any soda or anything to put on them?"

Obviously, he meant the stings and not the hornets. Katharine felt a strangling desire to laugh. The relief was so intense, and Henry did look funny. His face was swelling rapidly. One eye was almost shut, his upper lip was coming up to meet his nose, his left ear bulged out, and his right cheek made him look like chubby Sam Simpson down the street. Then she was galvanized into action. He was suffering, the poor dear.

"Mud's the best thing in the world, Henry. I'll get some earth from the garden."

She started for the door.

"Don't go out there," cried Henry! "You'll get stung, too, and then we'l be in a pretty pickle."

But Katharine was gone, running down the steps with winged feet. The angry hornets were still buzzing around, but luckily she eluded them, seized as much earth as she could carry and was soon back in the house again.

Half an hour later, she had Henry lying on the couch in the darkened living-room, his face and neck and hands plastered with cooling mud.

"It will soon feel better, dear," said Katharine soothingly. "By evening you'll be all right. The swelling is down a little now. I'll get some more mud ready and change the plasters. It takes the sting out, doesn't it?"

Then, as she reached the door, she fired her first and last shot. "Besides," said she, "it's such an excellent way for you to practise what you preach and keep cool!" —C.M.C.

VACATION JOY - By Jeanette

The man who arranged the nice little pictures that decorate this page at intervals had an eye to the lesser forms of activity in this world of ours. You know what we mean. There are people, lots of them, who go around all the time with their eyes on the big bugs of the world. They see the important people and the important big cars and the outstanding figures that decorate the platform at every public affair. But we aren't going to consider the headliners in this particular article. We are going to pause for a moment and turn our eyes from the Mussolinis and the Calleses and the Coolidges and consider the lobsters, as exemplified in the first picture of the bunch, and the callouses on the feet of the man whose wife holds up her hands in holy scorn, and the heat of the gentleman on whom Old Sol is beaming. This article, we might warn you in the first place, isn't about anything in particular, nor has it a moral, nor is it designed to add to the uplift of the press in any respect. We had this piece wished on us, as it were. We went and looked at the magazine section and there it was, all ready laid out for us, with a title, as you see it, five small inset pictures and a large one that rather complicates matters, because, although the lady is nice-looking and worthy of respect on account of the up-to-dateness of her bathing attire, still she doesn't fit in with the rest of the bunch. All we have to do with this article is to fill in the words, and that isn't much of a job. The dictionary, as someone has remarked, is full of words. It contains all the literature that has ever been written, but in rather a jumbled state.

We thought, when we looked at the first picture, that it was a crab that had the gentleman by the toe, and had in mind something about the Crab that appears in the almanacs and is the sign of a certain month in the year. Is it July? Perhaps. At any rate, people born under this sign are supposed to be afflicted with tempers and boils and should only marry those born in November, March or January, except when they have gained poise, when they may marry almost anybody and risk the consequences with a light heart.

But the fact that this denizen of the sea is a lobster instead of a crab knocks all our written eloquence into a cocked hat, so to speak. One can not discourse learnedly about a lobster, because it is a foolish sort of sea food that comes into the world green and then turns red with wrath when it is too late, when it is in the soup for the last time. It is one of those retiring creatures that conceals its sweetness behind layers of horny scale and has to have all its toothsome morsels picked out of it with difficulty and patience. But here we see the lobster having its innings. In the gay summer time, when the waves and the beaches go wild, it catches unwary toes and has a high old time, in more ways than one. It has a clinging manner, has a lobster, as is illustrated in the picture, and the gentleman who belonged to the submerged tenth of the populace at the time of taking the picture is not enjoying himself. Lobsters have their little ways, but they are not so bad. We once heard of a girl who got a pearl necklace out of a lobster, beating the oyster's record all hollow.

Then in the second picture the sun is having a real good time. This important portion of the planetary system has a lot of abuse levelled at it. The moon makes people feel moony, and spoony, and looney, and so has become a sort of patron saint for lovers and poets and insomniacs, but the sun seldom inspires much tribute of this sort. When the day is very warm, we complain. "As a rule, man's a fool. When it's hot, he wants it cool. When it's cool, he wants it hot. Always wanting what is not. As a rule, man's a fool." But the gentleman who has dolled himself up in the white shirt and the striped hat-band does not like the sun's grin. He mops his perspiring brow and wishes it were winter. The sun is having its vacation joy, just like the lobster.

Another participant in summer gladness is the colored porter. We don't know what his name is. The picture doesn't say. And we note, with some consternation, that the artist ran out of ink before reaching his left hand, which appears to be white. Or is he wearing a white glove, like a traffic policeman? At any rate, he has carried these heavy bags to their place and now extends a willing paw for whatever remuneration may be in sight. We just wonder how much he'll get out of the old bird with the cigar and the Thomas Meighan tie.

Now we come to the down-trodden individual in the upper cut. He looks a lot like Mac, in the "Tilly the Toiler" series. He has plucked up enough courage to ask the boss for a vacation, and the boss is raging about it. What sort of vacation would a man take who looks like this? Would he want to go to a summer resort or a fishing camp, or would he take the two weeks to fix up the house and erect a new chicken coop? The boss, who is an ideal employer for a man like this, having all the necessary attributes to keep his nose down to the grindstone at all times, is not going to give up without a struggle, but Mac's prototype has his feet firmly planted on the ground, with toes turned up. We wish him luck.

As for the gentleman who rushes for forgotten tickets, we have no sympathy for him at all. His wife has reminded him of those useful slips of paper at least three times this morning. She is the sort of woman who finds enjoyment, moreover, in such lapses of her husband. She will have a pleasant time during the rest of the day, being a martyr to his forgetfulness. If he gets back in time to catch the train, she will be upset for hours over the occurrence, and he will have to wait on her every minute, and if he doesn't get back in time, she will cry and refuse to be comforted until he promises to buy her something new. Anyway, it served him right for marrying such a woman. Any female who would do her hair like this under a tight hat is an undesirable wife, and he was foolish to tie up to her for keeps.

Now, last but not least, for the lady in the picture. She is a pretty lady, with a Colleen Moore hair cut and an ingenuous smile. She is the ideal type to wear a nice bathing suit, because she does it just exactly as if she were wearing all the clothes in the world.

She isn't a bit fazed over it, and, any way, as bathing suits go, it's a very proper model. It is one of those bathing suits that are splendid for wear on the sand. The water would probably spoil the fringe, but, worn in conjunction with a beach umbrella, it would give excellent service in a beach chair. She is a good example of "Vacation Joys," because a bathing suit is the best of wear for vacations. It presupposes water and sunshine and amusing companions, and what could one wish more?

"Er, er, didn't I speak to you on the tram last night."

A MIDSUMMER IDYL - By L. H. G.

The heat was intense. There seemed no escape from it. It was too much effort even to bathe or swim. One even suffered lying under the trees near the beach. So, Noreen sat with her back to a tree, a book lying in her lap.

She was day-dreaming and thanking her stars that, though it was so hot on the shores of beautiful Sylven Lake, at least she was not in the office in the sweltering city. She could imagine what the city would be like to-day. The pavements hot as fire, the stores, the elevators, the offices, unbearably hot despite the electric fans, Noreen was glad it was her vacation time. Now, at least, she had no need to do anything but lie around and amuse herself. Her cousin, Jack, with his wife, Louise, had gone motoring, but Noreen had felt too indolent to go along.

A short distance away gleamed the white tent in which they were camping.

She must have dozed, for, suddenly, she was aroused by a shout. For a moment she was dazed, then realization came. The tent was on fire. In a panic, Noreen fled towards it. A tall, muscular young man was throwing out boxes, bedding, clothing, et cætera. He shouted to Noreen to carry the ejected things further away. There was need of haste and both worked like Trojans. Bits of burning canvas from the walls were constantly falling on the things he carried and onto himself. Several times he had to stamp out incipient fires with his hands or his feet. Presently, he had to desist. But his hair and eyebrows were singed, his face and hands smarted from the heat, and his eyes were nearly blinded from smoke. Breathlessly, Noreen ran to him exclaiming: "Oh, I do hope you're not burnt! How good of you to work so hard for strangers! Come down to the lake." And, grasping a towel, she bathed and bound up his burnt hands.

Seated under the trees, they chatted and soon each knew the other's name and place of abode. Their acquaintance had progressed wonderfully before evening came, bringing Jack and Louise.

When they heard of the fire, Jack laughed. "You two didn't want to go to a hotel for your holiday; a tent and a campfire were much more fun, and now I fear you'll have to finish you holiday at the hotel."

So, to the hotel, a mile away, where the strange young man was already a guest, they all went, filling the car with the things saved from the fire.

Before the holidays were over, Noreen Blount and Ed. Westcott were engaged, and at the New Year, Noreen went to Lorain as Ed's bride.

And often, especially on sweltering hot days, their thoughts and talk would carry them back to the torrid day that the tent burnt, and their subsequent meeting.

IN ALL FAIRNESS

Counsel: Now tell the court how the accident happened.

Witness: Well, the car shot out of the garage, exceeding the speed limit, knocked the fellow flat on his back and ran over him. The fellow was slightly intoxicated, stepped in front of the car, which was going 10 miles an hour, was softly brushed aside, and—

MUTUAL

"What would your father say if he saw you here at this hour?" asked the patrolman.

"He would say, 'Don't tell your mother!'"—Sondagsnisse-Strix, Stockholm.

HOT WEATHER SUGGESTIONS

Wear loose fitting clothing. If you have none, borrow some from a friend who is much larger than you. Remember not to chase those who make fun of you on the streets, as running causes one to become overheated.

Don't fight. If you are married, separate from the other half during the summer months.

Cross crowded thoroughfares as much as possible. Your narrow escapes from getting run over are bound to make you shiver.

Don't eat. Drink.

Keep away from red hot mammas.

Sleep on the roof. As near the edge as possible. Have your head overhang. Then every time you look down into the street you will break out into a cold sweat.

Use cold cream.

Cultivate a frigid manner.

Use crisp sentences.

Wear a frozen expression.

—R. C. O'Brien.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited,

To keep cool, whether it be physically or temperamentally, is an art. The stout lady agrees to this in unison with the intrepid adventurer, for occasions come to both when coolness is most suitable. The difference in their cases may be summed up in this: The former, at some expense, undergoes some process or other to keep the temperature down, whilst the latter is trained to instantaneous coolness without cost. Doubtless, the cheapest way to keep cool in summer-time, in the physical sense, is to take the advice of a son of Scotia in having someone tell you a good sparkling ghost story, whereby you feel the shivers running down your back.

It is also advisable to keep clear of what has been described, in very cool terms, as the business end of a bumble bee, or of any of its insect confederates. One French-Canadian, at least, regretted donning the kilts in a Canadian Scottish battalion for that self-same reason. With our beautiful lakes, over which those gentle zephyrs blow, and our delightful ice-cream parlours, with their soothing electric fans and cooling wares, why spend further thought on physical coolness, save, perchance, to recall those lines concerning the human race, which runs:

"I maintain that man's a fool:
When it's hot, he wants it cool;
When it's cool, he wants it hot—
Always wanting what is not."

Generally speaking, you pay to keep cool in the physical sense. It pays you to keep cool in the temperamental sense. "Keep cool," is the admonition given by the safety first and other movements which have for their aim the prevention of accidents. "Keep cool" is an all-the-year-round precaution. It should be acted upon when your argument with your friends or the other fellow's is easy of heating. Puffed wheat might be an improvement on the other sort, but good views are not improved by explosion. Let all take their own choice of coolers, debarring the one of unpleasant associations, and, in cooling off, let's stop short when it comes to the heart, for too much warmth can scarcely be in evidence re.

John's Resolution

BY L. H. G.

John Jones made a New Year's resolution! To him it was a serious one, but to any one else it would have been funny. But it was made in the inmost recesses of his soul and no one else knew.

All his life he had been hen-pecked! It was a standing joke in the community of McFee's Corners. That his helpmate and "better half" the diminutive Mabel, should rule him so completely, was a never-ending source of merriment and wonder to their neighbors and friends. For John was tall and large above the average. As folks said, "She scarcely comes up to his shoulder!" And John was different outside the family circle. Away from home John was a man among men.

So John made a solemn New Year resolution! Henceforth he would be master in his own house. For days he had thought of nothing else, and he felt sure when the crisis or show-down came that he would triumph!

He thought of the old yarn about the generous gentleman who started out to give a fine team of horses to the first man whom he found to be master in his own house. According to the story when this quixotic individual arrived at the home of benedict No. 1, he stated his offer, "One of those teams is yours if you are ruler in your own house." But a slow, reluctant, sheepish shake of the head was the answer, and the generous one drove on to the next farmstead.

Again the offer was made and again the slow, rather shamed, shake of the head.

But the third Benedict was more wily. His answer was, "Yes he was 'boss' in his own home." But the would-be donor was also wily. "Very good, very good, indeed;" he ejaculated. "So take your choice of the blacks or the bays!" The farmer hesitated, then finally blurted, "Just a minute, I believe I'll ask the missus!"

But the man on the quest laughed and said, "Guess you won't qualify either; looks like I'll not be able to give away the team."

John thought also of the Well of St. Keyne and longed for a draught of its magical water.

A well there is in the west country,
And a fairer one never was seen.
There is not a wife in the west country
But has heard of the well of St. Keyne.

For if the husband drink of it first
He shall be master for life.

* * * *

But if the wife should drink of it first,
God help the husband then.

The crisis for John was not long in coming. He had lately decided that his eldest son had enough schooling. The boy had spent a term in High School, but a farm boy didn't need high school education. So John announced that young Jim should stay home henceforth and help on the farm!

Amazement, incredulity and anger showed in his wife's face. That her husband, who knew her plans for sending Jim through college, should dare to oppose her, was unbelievable!

"John Jones, are you crazy," she blazed at him. "It was settled about Jim's schooling long ago, what's got into you, anyway?" John quailed before the outburst, but manfully stood his ground and stormed and argued. But gradually he weakened and finally he strode out of the house, beaten. His strong-willed wife had won again and another New Year resolution was gone where resolutions are used for asphalt.

Florida and Peterborough

(By JAMES TURNBULL)

These are the days to step briskly with a swinging stride, to raise the chest, hold back the head and breathe deeply. These are the days when the cold crushing winds blow from the north as though to test the strength of the manhood that is so powerful under a warm sun.

That's the way to feel about the weather if you want to make your influential friends green with envy. Unfortunately, most people get the idea that they are a certain species of bear and the first thing you know they hibernate for the winter. Everybody has met them as they are everywhere: sniffling and groaning about the cold before a hot air register or a hot water radiator, and there they stick until the balmy winds of spring chase them from their recluse.

Then they step out among their friends and the first thing you know they are telling about the hard winters they used to have in the good old days.

Certain of the species, however, with money enough to cater to their desires, dodge the advent of winter by departing for the sunny south made famous by picture and publicity stunts.

Every year sees thousands of Canadians depart for the happy hunting grounds in Florida, where, during the winter months they while away the days and sunshine and tropical surroundings to their mutual enjoyment.

But do they really enjoy themselves? It is questionable. The first period of their stay is usually devoted to writing voluminous letters to their friends in the frozen north, telling of the wonderful pleasure of surf bathing in January and painting tantalising pictures of basking in the heat of the sun; or if they are not doing that they will probably enclose numerous newspaper clippings which tell in their inimitable way, the pleasures of life in that section of the country.

They never tell you about the fun they are having convincing unbelieving Americans that the place they come from is not a frost-bound wilderness, surrounded entirely by icebergs and occupied mainly by Eskimoes and mounted policemen; that Canada occupies a larger area than their own country; that its cities are modern and compare favorably with the best that are to be seen in the United States. Of the boasting they do about the clear, frosty days when a person with red blood cannot help but feel that grand and glorious feeling as he tramps on the crackling snow, they say not a word.

These people, in the long run, are wonderful assets to Canada as at the same time they are bringing back their experiences of the sunny south, they show by their actions and expressions that they are indeed glad to get back to God's own country.

They never lock the telegraph office; although they keep the keys inside.

HE LET THE FURNACE OUT! HE! HE!

"Oh, Jim will you not let the furnace out, the heat in this house has just been suffocating these last few days, and sure it is warm enough outside to go around without an overcoat," This was friend wife's greeting to her husband as he got up on Sunday morning.

As the weather of the past few days has been so mild, especially in the house, no doubt this will be the greeting of many housewives to their husbands at this time of year. The coal bin has run low from such a hard winter, and the ever-economizing wife is looking ahead for colder days next winter.

Would it not be wonderful if such were the case; that to-day when you wakened up the sun was shining brightly, pouring forth a heat from its rays that was making everybody feel that Spring had come.

But the old furnace must burn and roar for a couple of months, and more, yet; there will be more coal bills; the ashes will have to be removed for a good many days to come; and the husband will hear for a good many more times, "Jim, can't you be more careful when you shake the furnace. The coal dust is simply ruining the furniture and the gas is blackening all the wall-paper, and I am sure no one could keep their silverware clean when that furnace is going.

The snow and the cold weather add a touch to Canadian life that is hard to find in any warm climate. It makes the race more enterprising and thrifty and if it were put to a vote in Canada to-day as to whether the Canadian likes and enjoys his Winter and as to whether he prefers it to any other climate, there would be as a vast majority for the good old Canadian Winter with all its snow, frost and cold winds.

Coming into a warm house on a cold winter's evening, the person finds a homely appearance and feeling that is not found on a Summer evening when the weather is warm.

The time will come, as it always has, when the furnace can be let out; and everybody will be enjoying the glorious sunshine and the balmy air of Spring. The birds will return and with them will come much song and happiness. The flowers and grass, trees and shrubs, will take on new life and everybody will be happy and gay. So until then the housewife will have to be patient about the damage to the furniture and rooms by the coal dust and gas, and the husband will have to spend a few more hours stoking the furnace.

A Summer Wedding : By Country Pastor

It was the middle of August. Not a drop of rain had fallen for nearly a month. The rays of the morning sun beat down like those of noon on the average summer day. The birds had ceased their singing and taken shelter among the trees of the woods. The cattle had forsaken their feeding places and gone out into the bay, where they stood half-submerged in the water. The clover leaves seemed courteously to bow before all passers-by.

The harvest fields were dotted with stooks of wheat, barley and oats. Here and there were men and boys, with their coats off and their bare arms showing nearly to the shoulders, who, as they stopped now and then to rest, could be seen wiping the perspiration from their fevered-looking faces.

Horses, drawing reaping machines, seemed to lag at every corner, as if to say, "My! How hot it is to-day."

In the distance, like the gathering of a fierce storm, rose a cloud of dust, the forerunner of a caravan of motor-cars, the foremost of which was a costly sedan, beautifully trimmed with white satin ribbons. Several cars followed this one, and, although without decorations, were white with dust. Each in turn drove up in front of the red brick church, which, because of its tall spire, was easily seen and distinguished from the humble homes of the inhabitants. Here, there was a halt and from the first car stepped forth a gentleman in neat attire, and, by his aid, a lady wearing a long bridal veil. The handsome couple and their attendants quickly made their way into the sanctuary, where many guests, some waving fans and others, hymn-books, sat patiently waiting to witness the ceremony. Up the aisle the party went. Before the altar, in a loose black gown, stood the parish priest, who, from a small black book, began to pronounce the solemn vow, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" he asked the groom. "I came on purpose," was the prompt reply, and then the audience smiled. "Wilt thou love her, comfort her, honor and keep her in sickness and in health?" the parson asked again. "I'll do my best," was his reply, as he looked at his lover, and smiled while wiping his blushing brow.

The service ended, the preacher said: "It is customary for you to saltue your bride." With finished air, the groom remarked, as he clasped her hand in his: "You are to be congratulated," and took off his coat, which he carried on his right arm as he lilted down the aisle. "I believe this is the hottest day yet," he remarked, while throwing his coat into the seat of the coach which was to carry them back to lunch.

"Well, Joe," said a friend at the table, "these are strenuous days to be getting married."

"I know that well," answered Joe, "but I can almost keep myself and it is a poor woman who can not help a little bit."

Is there not more truth than fiction about this, for who makes a greater contribution to the success, or failure, of family life than she who keeps the home?

A Minature Romance

IT HAD MANY ADVENTURES, BUT AFTER ALL IT ENDED HAPPILY

All the Kinsolving girls had been married off but Jennie, the eldest of the lot. Sally and Peggy and Carrie were provided for. "If Jennie had only had a hopeless love affair," said Peggy to her sisters in conclave, "it would not be so awfully prosy, her being an old maid. But she has never been in love in her life, and nobody has ever been in love with her."

"If I were in her place," said Sally, "I'd concoct a romance for myself. I'd buy a miniature of some good-looking youth and wear it in a brooch, or on a black band around my wrist, and pretend it was the picture of the one loved and lost."

"So would I," cried Carrie. "Oh, it would be just glorious! You could make up the most romantic love story to go with it. Let's make her do it."

"She won't," sighed Sally.

"Well, let's try, anyway," said Peggy.

All the sisters were on a visit to Peggy who had married a Waterman. "John," said Mrs. Waterman to her husband, "the girls and I have concluded that something has got to be done about Jennie." Then she told him the scheme, adding: "When you go to town to-morrow, go to a portrait painter and have him paint a little miniature out of his imagination."

"Did you order that miniature?" asked Mrs. Waterman when John returned home that night.

"Certainly," replied John; "it will be ready next Friday." And when John came home Friday night he brought the miniature with him. The young man whose face was depicted on the ivory seemed to fill the bill; the "girls" had the miniature mounted in plain gold, affixed it to a black velvet band and made a descent upon Jennie.

At first she refused to have anything to do with such an absurd affair. But the sisters were not to be put off. They wept, they scolded, they implored until finally Jennie said good-naturedly: "Well, well, girls—have your own way. This young man in the picture looks to me about the sort of a young man I should pick out—if I ever picked one. I'll tell you what I'll do; I'll wear this memento of my lost romance. But, mind you, you will have to invent and tell the story that goes with it. I won't burden my conscience by creating the romance."

A few nights later John Waterman telephoned that he was going to bring home with him for dinner a young man who had brought to him letters of introduction from a business man in Chicago whom John, for financial reasons, was anxious to please.

"Now, girls," said Jennie, "this will be a good time for you to spring my little romance upon the sympathizing stranger. It would not be proper to tell it before my face, of course—but oh, do tell it where I can overhear you. I am wearing my miniature, you see."

But the girls told no romantic fiction that night. Instead, after dinner, when John and the stranger had been left behind in the dining-room for a smoke—and perhaps a glass of mineral water—they sat with their heads together perplexed. "Did you ever see such a strong resemblance?" asked Sally.

"But it can't be the same," expostulated Peggy. "John had the miniature painted by an artist who just drew on his imagination. But the resemblance is too striking. Jennie, you had better take that thing off before he sees it—if he hasn't already."

The young man brought out to dinner by John was a most presentable person, Martin Somers by name, about thirty-five years old. They all liked him and Jennie had regarded him with especial interest at the dinner table. "What!" said Jennie at the demand of her sisters that she take off her miniature, "give up the only romance I ever had—before I know what it is? I shall do no such thing." The sisters began to expostulate; but the entrance of the gentlemen put an end to their expostulations. They looked on in helpless anxiety while Jennie, full of the spirit of mischief, got Martin into a corner for a tete-a-tete. Toying with her miniature, Jennie managed to have the young man get a good look at it.

He gave a little start and a puzzled look came into his face.

"Miss Kinsolving," said he, "will you tell me how you happened to come into possession of this miniature?" And Jennie told him the whole true story. The miniature, Martin explained, was one of himself painted about six years before, which had been stolen by a dishonest servant.

"And I'll bet a cookie," said Jennie, "that John Waterman never ordered a miniature at all—he forgot it. Then, on his way home, suddenly remembering what his wife had told him to do, he got this in a pawnshop where it had been pledged by the servant who stole it—among the unredeemed pledges." They called John over and made him confess.

Martin insisted that Jennie keep the miniature. She consented but declared that, of course, she would not wear it any more. "You have spoiled my first and only romance," said she.

"Some day," replied Martin, "I hope to see you wearing that miniature again. And who knows—perhaps we can, between us, get up a little romance to go with it that will be more real, if not so exciting, as he one your sisters had invented." As it they did. They were married three months later—and Jennie wore the miniature on her wedding day.

TRY IT!

KEEPING COOL OVER A POT OF MOLTEN METAL IS NOT SO EASY!

Summer temperature during the winter; tropical heat in summer time; employees, shop and office, going about their labors in the coldest weather in their shirt sleeves; that's the condition that makes "Keep cool" a timely slogan in the newspaper office at any time of the year. Just try and keep cool. Open windows cause a draft on those immediately in front of them but makes no difference to anybody else. Fans merely stir up the warm air and cause drafts, without any relief. Even the water in the pipes is tepid until a good deal has been run off.

You find it hot on the main floor. At the back there are machines which, while they do not cause any great heat, certainly don't act as cooling agents. You say, "It will be cool down cellar." At the foot of the stairs a blast of warm air greets you. Following it up along the passage, you find the stereotype department. Here the plates of the pages are cast, as well as the cuts (pictures) used in the advertisements and news columns. In the corner is a furnace with a ton or two of molten metal at a temperature of around 700 degrees. The operator dresses as if he were at a backwoods camp on a blistering August day, and has a fan in his window, but still he's hot and those not used to and dressed for the place waste no time in transacting their business with him.

The second floor, then, will be cool. Compared to the cellar, it is, because the heat is not so much confined. Four monotype casters are the first machines to meet the eye at the top of the stairs. Thermometers on them attract the eye. Eight hundred degrees Fahrenheit! Yep, they're full of melted metal, kept constant at that heat by electricity and gas.

The sound of more machinery attracts the visitor seeking a cool spot (The frequenter of the place knows better) to another room. Five linotypes don't contain a great deal of metal, but when that is at a temperature of around 500 degrees the room where they are kept is not a refrigerator by any means.

The third floor has none of these fiery furnaces but scientists tell us hot air rises. As a result the workers there get the benefit of all the hot spots below, and is not a cool place at any time.

An unkind friend adds his two cents' worth to the discussion and says the Editorial Department is more to blame than any of these parts of the establishment. "Just think of the unlimited quantities of hot air you fellows spout every day. If you don't talk it you heat up pencils and typewriters producing it. And then you're right in the middle of the building so that everybody gets the results."

Truly the life of the scribe is not one of ease. He can't even keep cool in wintertime, let alone in summer. The public adds to his troubles by keeping him in hot water because of his alleged hot air, so mentally and physically he has a "Hot time", and its not like the one mentioned in the famous old song.

PLAY BALL!

By Flossie Everson

"We're off," cried Bill with face so bright;
"I'll knock that ball clean out of sight."
"Strike one," the umpire's voice began.
"Strike two," but Bill that instant ran.

"Come, Bill, I know you'll win the chase."
Bill wiped the sweat from off his face;
And soon reached home when cheers were heard,
But he so warm, said not a word.

Now Tom with bat in a sweating hand,
Was up in time the ball to land.
"I'll do my best," was all he said,
And past base two the ball he sped.

The sun went down on winners glad,
The loser's hearts were glum and sad;
When Tom reached home with joy did say:
"Well, Bill, you're right; we've won the day."

We're Mad As Hatters

HOW MURIEL TOOK THE "KEEP COOL" NUMBER

"My, but it's warm out this morning!" I said to Muriel as I entered our little bungalow and held my hands over the radiator. "I was going to stop and pick some violets out in the field, but didn't have time."

Muriel looked at me aghast. "Warm!" she exclaimed. "Why, I looked at the thermometer about half an hour ago and it was six above outside!"

"Did you?" I laughed. "Well, perhaps it has got warm since then. Half an hour is quite a long time!"

Muriel's face showed perplexity. She looked out of the window. "Well, if it's warm," she said, eyeing me with some doubt, "what are you holding your hands over the radiator for?"

"Oh, my dear, that was a joke. Don't you understand. I said it was warm because it is so cold!"

"No, I don't understand any such foolishness at all. And if it is so cold how could there be any violets in the field?"

I walked toward her with smiling face. "Why, little pet, don't you see. That's just an expression they use sometimes, just the joke to think of picking violets in such cold weather. Wit—that's all. Don't you see?"

She glared at me angrily. "No, I don't see at all. If it's cold out why don't you say so, and what under the sun do you want to talk about stopping to pick violets for when you know there are no violets. I think you are just as silly as you can be. The next time you come in and it's cold, say it's cold, and then I'll know what you are talking about, and don't talk about wanting to stop to pick anything unless it's there to pick!"

"I'll remember, my love," I said meekly. —William Sanford.

Women Can't

(By Virginia Swain, NEA Service Writer.)

"Once fitted for war—unfit for peace."

Dagmar Ruin, Red Cross heroine and veteran of three wars, sounds this warning against war as a drug.

"I hate war," she says. "I've suffered untold misery because of it. But I can't get along without it—that is, I am unfit for all but the military phases of peace. I must go on working for veterans, fighting the tragedy war has left behind it, because there is nothing else to fight.

"The shipwrecks of peace are far worse than those of combat." Miss Ruin believes. "A period of war service unhinges the soldier's mind and body for peace and leaves him a derelict while still young. It is much easier to fit into the army than into civil life."

Reared a Noblewoman.

In her own case, the tragedy has been just as great. Reared as a noblewoman at the court of the Czar of Russia, Miss Ruin plunged into the vortex of war as soon as she had finished her musical course at the University of St. Petersburg.

Since then, she has known only the rigors of military life, serving on the front lines for more than four successive years of war, taking part in the Russian-German struggle before the revolution in Russia, in the Finnish war of independence against the Bolsheviks and in the fighting on the western front.

She has received a dozen medals from grateful governments, including the Cross of St. George "for bravery," an honor seldom conferred on a woman.

Throughout Finland, her own country, though a countess, she is known as "Sister Dagmar," the title she used in the various armies with which she served.

Wore Officers' Chevrons.

She held officers' rank in the Finnish war of independence. But she carried only one bullet—to be used on herself.

"We would never have allowed the Bolsheviks to take us alive," she says.

Dagmar Ruin's eyes have seen such sights as have made them grave and quiet for all time to come. She doesn't smile easily.

There was the gruesome slaughter of the Mazurian Lakes, in which Dagmar and one other woman nurse tried for days to extricate the dead and dying Russian soldiers from the frozen bog into which their own artillery wheels had crushed them.

There was her flight, as the only woman among 40 men who walked for three days across the Bay of Finland on thin ice, to escape the Bolsheviks. Dagmar helped to carry the boats needed for the rifts in the ice, and she still bears the scars where the boat edges rubbed through the flesh of her shoulders.

And there was her escape from a firing squad, during her spy-work among the Bolsheviks.

The end of the war found Dagmar Ruin noblewoman, patriot and heroine, broken, aged at 22. She could not enter the social life to which she was born, and she could find no work in the world that seemed worth doing.

Then she returned to Finland, and found the other derelicts of the war. Many of them were armless, legless, blind. This work seemed worth while.

She established a home for crippled veterans, and supported it by collecting money from the few people in Finland able to give. She taught the cripples various crafts, to dull the edge of memory and keep them sane.

In America a Year.

A year ago she came to America seeking knowledge of American treatment of veterans, and hoping to collect funds for her home.

Through the influence of Dr. Harry Garfield, president of Williams College, and a son of the late President James A. Garfield, of the United States, she gained permission to make an extended stay.

Dagmar Ruin hates and fears war. She has published five books aiming at universal peace. She hates it because she "can't give it up."

A Practical Stocco Home

By Garnet W. Wilson, Architect

Whether one's interest first centres on the perspective, or on the plans of this English cottage style home, the general excellency of the one will almost inevitably lead to a scrutiny of the other.

Passing along the verandah and through the vestibule we enter what may be termed a square hall from which the dining room, kitchen, living room, and coat closet, open. Between the kitchen and dining room is the pantry, and dining alcove. With this arrangement the dining alcove may be made much more attractive in appearance than when off the kitchen, while the possibility of excluding cooking odours is another advantage.

At the top of the four steps from the grade entrance to the kitchen, a recess of ample size to accommodate a refrigerator is provided.

Ascending to the second floor we find three good size bedrooms, and a bathroom. Each bedroom has at least one large clothes closet, while a linen closet, and broom closet are provided in the hall.

A delightful contrast is made between the dark oak of the exterior woodwork, and the white stucco walls, forming a charming color scheme with the color blended shingle roof.

With birch floors, and electric stove and water heater wiring, this home cost approximately $7,700.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address: Mr. Garnet W. Wilson, 50 Princess Street, St. John, N.B. Copyright 1927, MacLean Building Reports, Limited.

ORDINARY COLOR SPOILS HOUSE TWO-COLOR SCHEME GOOD

It is well to stick to a two-color scheme, for the sake of simplicity. If three colors are used, the third should be the roof color. For instance, a simple bungalow might be painted cream, with trim of old blue. The roof, then, could be painted or stained a low red orange. If the chimney-pot is painted blue to match the trim the color scheme will take on unity as well as gaiety.

If you would have the utmost wear out of your paint, choose warm tints rather than those of cold hue. Tints based on the reds, browns, and blacks, are, generally speaking, the most durable. Grays, slates, browns, yellows, creams, wear very well and combine happily with gayer colors that can be used on the trim.

In general, a large house looks best if painted a neutral tone—gray, buff, brown or gray green, while small houses can carry light, bright colors—yellows, blues, soft reds, cream, white, ivory, or light green. Light colors give the effect of apparently increasing the size of the house while neutral or soberer colors apparently decrease the size. Of course, if a house is well surrounded by foliage, it may be painted any color under the heavens, regardless of its size or shape.

It is obviously a breach of taste to paint your house red when the house next door is red, too, or some color that "fights" with red. When neighboring houses have decided color schemes, the best thing to do is to paint your house a neutral tone—silver gray or buff—and use one or more of the bright colors for trim and roof. In this way your color scheme will not be obliterated—neither will it be a "sore spot" because of its lack of harmony with those about it. If your house stands apart all the colors in the world are at your disposal.

Distinctive Choices.

Here are some of the tints that may be used to vary the far too commonplace grays and buffs, to say nothing of the almost universal whites—coffee, fawn, apricot, lavender gray, and even soft Italian pink. And here are some suggestions for trim color—apple green, robin's egg blue, terra cotta, yellow and bright cobalt blue. Sometimes the roof is painted the same color as the trim and sometimes a variation is desirable. Recently people have taken to using more powerful tones on the roof, such as purple, blue and black, or unusual shades of red or green. This requires a good "eye" as well as some consideration, but, when properly used, that is, when in accord with the architecture and surroundings, a roof of any of these colors is eminently successful. One of the most attractive houses in an eastern suburb is one whose stucco frame is tinted a soft Italian pink while the trim is deep robins' egg blue and the roof golden brown. This color combination is unusual but not freakish. The house is greatly admired for its distinction.

One of the most important things to consider when planning exterior color schemes is the style of the house. Your best friend and advisor is the architect, whose experience and knowledge is at your disposal. No doubt he has designed the house to carry certain colors. He knows which are most appropriate for that particular style, and, above all, he knows which lines and forms should be emphasized to make a house look its best. A Colonial cottage painted pea green may be unusual, but certainly not beautiful. After all, color is decorative. When we use paint, the great decorative as well as preservative medium, unimaginatively, tritely, we are defeating not only our own ends, but those of paint itself.

THE BATHROOM, A Most Important Room.

The question of the size of the bathroom is always an important one. If the room is too large it means wasted space, heat and energy in cleaning it. If the room is too small it is uncomfortable and unsatisfactory. Just enough space should be planned for so that there is room enough to move around each fixture comfortably.

Tile, glazed for the dado and unglazed for the floor, laid in cement is a perfect material for the purpose as water cannot penetrate it and there are no cracks for dirt to collect it. Rubber flooring, the sort that looks like linoleum, is also excellent. The walls above the dado and the ceiling should be of hard plaster finished smooth. When a shower bath is installed over the tub the tile is run up to the ceiling on the two walls.

Bathroom fixtures have become so standardized that all of the leading companies make patterns that are very much alike in appearance.

Enameled iron and porcelain are the two materials most commonly used for all kinds of bath room fixtures. This material is durable, attractive in appearance, light in weight and generally priced moderately. Vitrous china is also much used for water closets and lavatories.

There are three general types of bathtubs, those with legs that leave a space under and back, tubs with a closed base underneath, and built in tubs that entirely fill a niche at one end of the bathroom.

For use in the ordinary home, a tub five feet long, thirty inches wide, with the rim about two feet from the floor is usually the one recommended. The legless tubs are generally several inches lower than the others. Just as with the toilet, the better the tub, the less noise the water makes in entering it.

The popularity of the shower bath has created a demand for shower bath equipment that has been generously supplied.

The styles of lavatories are many, although they all now have the common characteristic of being easy to clean. The sizes are so well standardized that it is rarely necessary to give dimensions. Lavatories may be had for corners, or straight walls. They may have a center pedestal, fluted or not, legs of varying number or be hung on the wall by brackets.

Various materials are used such as porcelain and nickel and porcelain-like enamel for faucets. For most fixtures the porcelain and nickel faucets are the best and require the least care.

A minimum of noise is the least that can be expected in a water closet. If one is fortunate to possess one that operates quietly enough so that the noise of the water is not heard outside of the room, they can be well satisfied. More errors are made in the selection of this fixture than any other, the plumbers tell us. The reason for this is that it is really the most complicated of the fixtures and the average person just assumes that it will work all right and lets it go at that.

The best water closets like the best lavatories and tubs now have a valve on the supply pipe so that the closet can be shut off if necessary without shutting the water off to the other fixtures.

When you list the things needed in the bath room you find they are few, yet they are so important that it is wise to plan the bath room early in your building program, working with your architect and always remembering that every bit of poor plumbing that goes into your home will soon show up and have to be replaced.

Mrs. M. Macleod Now Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I have suffered from backache and rheumatism for some time," writes Mrs. M. Macleod, a well known resident of Talbot Vale, Victoria Co., C.B. "I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills and found them very satisfactory."

Ninety per cent. of the ills from which women suffer come from weak kidneys. They are the organs that strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood. If they fail in this work the impurities remain and result in weakness, weariness, nervousness, headaches, backaches, dropsy and rheumatism.

VARSITY GRADS SHUT OUT T.C.C.

Beat Red Ringers By Scoring Five Goals in Second Period.

PARKDALE OUT.

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Holding Varsity Grads scoreless in the first and third periods, and actually outplaying the blue and white clad team during the initial twenty minutes of play, Toronto Canoe Club was forced to absorb a 5 to 0 trouncing in the senior O. H. A. game at the University of Toronto arena last night.

The Red Ringers failed to show the speed, team play or checking in the second period that they did in the first and the Grads, breaking very fast on the attack and displaying some nifty combination and individual thrusts, ran wild.

GALT, 5; PARKDALE, 1

GALT, Jan. 15.—Parkdale Paddlers went down another step in the cellar of group one last night, when they were trounced by the Terriers, 5 to 1, in a poor exhibition, both teams being decidedly off color. Parkdale had Mose Lount back in uniform but Harry Watson was missing while the Terriers were without Art Gauthier, who was taken to the hospital a couple of hours before the game suffering from an attack of influenza.

Only a small crowd saw the game, which, although it did not provide much good hockey, was interesting. In the first period Parkdale showed lost of speed but their passing and shooting was bad, while the local forward line, without Art Gauthier, was upset. Lount and Heffernan were the pick of the visitors. Al. Gauthier, was the star of the Galt team, working like a trojan, and the defence showed up well. Humphries, in the visitors' nets, had a busy nigh of it, having exactly twice as many shots to stop as Murray, 52 to 26, and he did very well. Murray was best on close-in saves. The game was rather lively at times, and Referee Masters handed out ten penalties which were evenly divided. Last night's win gives the Terriers a chance for second place, while the Paddlers are out of the race, it being their fifth consecutive defeat without a win. Galt plays the return game in Toronto on Tuesday. The teams:

Parkdale—Goal, Humphries; defence, Lount and Radke; centre, Miller; wings, Morris and Heffernan; subs., Clayton and Mogan.

Galt—Goal, Murray; defence, Hoffman and Himes; centre, Al Gauthier; wings, Woods and Duncan; subs., Patterson and Wea ver.

Referee—Ike Masters, Kitchener.

OSHAWA WINS.

Beats Bowmanville 12-2 in Intermediate O.H.A. Match.

BOWMANVILLE, Jan. 15.—In the intermediate O. H. A. game played here yesterday evening Oshawa defeated the home team 12 to 2.

Bowmanville—Goal; Colwell; defence, Hooper and Dunsem; centre, Moise; wings, Luxton and Piper; subs., Crossey and McPhee.

Oshawa—Goal, Smith; defence, Carter and Johnston; centre, Lott; wings, Huck and Rowden; subs., Avery and Lowe.

Referee—Wortley.

Jesse R. Capablanca of Cuba, the world's chess champion, engaged in competition for ten years without losing a match.

ANGLICANS WIN LEAGUE GAME

Beat United Church 6-2 in Millbrook Church League.

GOOD HOCKEY.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 15.—The second game in the local hockey league was played at the Cosmos rink on Thursday evening, the Anglicans opposing the United church team. The former won out by a score of 6-2. The line-up was:

United Church.—G. C. Garside, goal; A. Johnston, B. Morton, defence; J. Larmer, centre; J. H. Anderson, N. Rowland, wings; A. Fallis, A. Todd, subs.

Anglicans—H. White, goal; A. Thorne and D. Sheppard, defence; G. Mitchell, centre; R. Shaw, W. Budd, wings; E. Richards, H. Nattrass, subs.

A. McCorry was referee and gave entire satisfaction.

Next Tuesday the game is between the Anglicans and the Independents; Thursday, between the Unionists and the Presbyterians. All games called at 7:45 p. m. sharp.

THOMPSON DENIES RETIREMENT RUMOR

Premier Ferguson Also Knows Nothing About Story.

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—Rumor ran wild for a while yesterday, turning Hon. Joseph E. Thompson, Speaker of the last Legislature, out of public life, and re-admitting Canon H. J. Cody. In short, Mr. Thompson was to resign his St. David seat to make way for Canon Cody, who was to be taken into the Government and made Minister of Education.

But fact has to be considered as well as fiction, and fact, registered by Mr. Thompson's booming voice over the phone at a later hour yesterday, reported there would be no resignation. "This matter," said Mr. Thompson, "has never been whispered, mentioned, or suggested to me, and I don't thing the thing can be done without me knowing something about it. I will sit in the next Legislature if I am alive."

Premier G. Howard Ferguson's comment on the matter was briefer than Mr. Thompson's, but just as emphatic. "I haven't heard of it," he said.

Canon Cody was suffering from a bad cold, and said nothing.

NORTH HURON M.P. STRICKEN BY DEATH

John W. King Succumbs To Heart Attack at Bluevale Home.

GODERICH, Jan. 15.—The people of the constituency of North Huron were startled to hear of the sudden death of John Warwick King, M.P., who passed away at his home at Bluevale about 10.30 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. King was the sitting member for the riding in the Federal House. He was in fairly good health, and death was due to a sudden attack of heart trouble. He was in his seventieth year, and leaves three brothers: R. C. King of Toronto, Dr. T. King of Souris, Man., and Peter King of Bluevale. Mr. King's wife predeceased him in May. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

The deceased man was born at Smith's Falls, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Duncan King. He was educated at Bluevale Public School, St. Catharines and Collingwood Collegiate Institutes, and at Ottawa Normal School. He was married about 27 years ago to Annie O. Schoales of Hullett Township, Huron County, and for 17 years taught in several public schools in Ontario. Following his retirement from teaching he has been an agriculturist.

For a number of years he was treasurer of Turnberry Township. He was first elected to the Dominion Parliament in 1921, when he defeated George W. Spotton, Conservative, and W. A. Frazer, Liberal, securing a majority of over 1,000 votes.

He was the Progressive candidate again in the elections of 1925 and proved the victor by a majority of 170 votes over George Spotton, Conservative. Once again in the Federal election in September of 1926 Mr. King was elected by a majority of 345 over H. J. A. McEwan, Conservative.

Mr. King was an uncle of Mrs. Harry Dickin of this city.

OBITUARY.

ROBERT MILLS

There was laid to rest at the Wainwright, Alta., Cemetery, the mortal remains of Mr. Robert Mills, who passed away at the ripe age of 83 years. The deceased, who was born in South Down, Ontario, spent his life there until some eighteen years ago, when the family came to Wainwright, and settled in the Dolcy district, where he farmed for many years. During the past eight or nine years, Mr. Mills lived in town with his wife at his residence on Sixth Avenue, where, after a seizure of pneumonia, he passed away. He leaves to mourn, three daughters and four sons: Mrs. Deyell, Dolcy; Mrs. L. Wilson, Omemee; Mrs. Buchanan, Coldwater, and Edwin, Dolcy; Ephraim, and Wellington, Red Deer; and Albert, Peterborough; also three brothers and one sister. The funeral was conducted at the house by the Rev. G. Pybus of the Wainwright United Church, who also performed the last sad rites at the graveside, to which a large following attended to pay their last respects to the deceased and his family. Many beautiful flowers were placed on the casket by sympathizing friends. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. Welsh. W. Washburn, S. Bowerman, H. Pawling, H. Dowling, and Mr. Haynes.

MRS. HESTER MILLS

After an illness of long duration, there died at Wainwright, Alta., Mrs. Hester Mills, relict of the late Mr. Robert Mills, who died five weeks ago. Mrs. Mills, who was in her 81st year, was married to Mr. Robert Mills in Peterborough, Ontario, 62 years ago, and came to Wainwright district in 1909, residing here since that time. The deceased lady suffered with her heart but the immediate cause of her demise was an attack of pneumonia. The funeral was held at the home on Sixth Avenue, and was conducted by Rev. G. Pybus of the United Church, who also took the service at the graveside in the Wainwright Cemetery. She leaves to mourn her loss, four sons and three daughters, Messrs. Wellington and Ephraim, Red Deer; Edwin, Dolcy, and Albert, Peterborough; and Mrs. L. Wilson, Omemee; Mrs. Deyell, Dolcy; Mrs. Buchanan, Coldwater, also one brother, Joshua Robinson, Carson City, Nevada; one sister in Coldwater; twenty-seven grandchildren, and six great grandchildren. Many beautiful flowers were placed on the casket. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. Washburn, W. Stuart, M. McIntee, J. Welsh, M. Haynes, and H. Dowling.

WILLIAM COLLINS

The death occurred in Ennismore yesterday of William Collins after an illness of four years. He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, one daughter, Mary Elizabeth; two sons, John James and Michael Gilbert, and two brothers, John of Ennismore, and Stephen of Montreal.

The funeral will be held on Monday morning at nine o'clock from his late residence to St. Martin's Church and Cemetery.

MRS. J. C. SMITH

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 15 — The death occurred very sudednly this morning of Clarice Leighton, wife of Dr. J. C. Smith, in her 33rd year. Besides her husband she is survived by three children, Lulu, Douglas and Donald; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Leighton, of Lindsay; one brother, James Leighton of Winnipeg, and one sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Leddingham of Orillia.

A very pleasing and surprising part of the programme was the presentation of prizes by Hiawatha Encampment to two of its members, Patriarchs George Benton and George East, for having gained the highest number of points for efficiency, in conferring degrees during the year 1926.

After the closing of the Encampment, lunch was served in the dining hall, where a pleasant hour was spent, for the good of the Order.

THAT COLD!

To successfully combat a cold, it is necessary to speed up the elimination of poisons and accumulated waste from the body. The best way to do this is by restoring normal nerve energy to the liver, kidneys, bowels, lungs and skin by releasing constriction from spinal nerves. FRENCH SHELVE RHINELAND ISSUE BECAUSE OF DELAY EXPERIENCED OVER FORMING GERMAN CABINET

Fortifications On East Used As Defense Against Bolshevist Russia.

BRIAND ATTACKED.

Obliged To Deny Having Promised Stresemann To Hurry Evacuation.

PARIS, Jan. 17. — The French Cabinet's discussion of the foreign situation was again postponed owing to the difficulty experienced in Berlin in forming a Government.

The whole issue of the Rhineland evacuation was shelved as not immediate and it is believed likely that for some weeks, perhaps months, it will not be taken up.

Meanwhile, according to the French, the absence of civil control in Berlin has considerably stiffened the attitude of the German military authorities and their representative here, General von Pawels, on the question before the Conference of Ambassadors of the character and use of the fortifications along the Polish frontier.

At the same time the suspicion has developed that the Germans, who are negotiating on the question of exporting half-manufactured arms in Berlin, will go a considerable way to meet the British objection in this matter in order to placate British opinion, and that they will seek approval of the Eastern fortifications on the ground that they are defensive in character and are in no way destined for use against the Poles, but as a bulwark against Bolshevist Russia.

In itself the discussion is of only minor importance. There is little doubt here that Germany will keep the Eastern fortifications much as they are at present however the discussion ends, and there is little doubt that she will continue to export half-made armaments.

The issue is meanwhile serving as ammunition for those who criticize M. Briand's Locarno policy and above all for those who are the Cabinet's opponents in internal politics.

The campaign has become one of an almost personal character with M. Briand as its destined victim.

Out of the political turmoil of the past three years he has emerged as the only strong leader of the Left. Others such as Edouard Herriot have been discredited or are too extreme to form a real danger. M. Briand remains not only as the most prominent man of the old Left parties, but, with the added power that he has recently received through his pacific policies, he can count to a large extent on the support of the clergy.

It is for these reasons that into this final phase of the failure to secure German disarmament so much venom and vigor is being imparted. In reply to a Deputy, M. Briand was forced to issue a denial to the report that he has made any definite promises to Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, as to hastening the Rhineland evacuation. The question, he said, was not even discussed at Geneva and only casually mentioned at Thoiry.

In an open debate in both Houses of Parliament the Foreign Minister's strength, it has been shown during the past two days, is unaffected by these attacks. For his Locarno policy he controls a strong majority and the issue may never come to a test but, meanwhile, the German situation is not helping him.

COMMUNISTS ARRESTED.

Three Members of Polish Diet Among Those Held By Police.

THE WEATHER.

The recent cold dip has now passed over, bringing as its usual after-effects, a little snow. While Saturday morning's low point was 12 below, Sunday morning's was a close second with 18 below as being reached during the night. Towards morning it had moderated considerably. January of last winter had ten days of zero or below. The present month has already eleven days to its credit (or should I say, discredit?) February last winter had eight days below.—W. P.

DISCUSS WAYS FOR BRINGING TRADE CLOSER

J. G. Coates Says Satisfied Over Conference With Premier King.

INSPECT FALLS.

Makes Inspection of Ontario Hydro Plants at Niagara.

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—Satisfaction with the result of his discussions with Premier Mackenzie King of legislation to bring New Zealand and Canada closer in trade relations was expressed by Premier J. G. Coates, of New Zealand, on his arrival here yesterday from Ottawa. There was, he declared, a genuine desire on the part of both Dominions to promote trade between them, and he believed the business men of his country, who had, perhaps, been less aggressive in developing trade in the past than had Canadian with New Zealand, would move out after it from now on. Although the matter was primarily one for business men, his government was doing everything in its power to help and the matter of appointing a trade commissioner to Canada was now under consideration.

The Premier and his party spent most of the day in visiting Niagara Falls and inspecting the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission's plants there. They arrived in Toronto early yesterday morning and left soon after for Niagara, returning last night. He was particularly interested in the Hydro plants because of the development of this kind now going forward in New Zealand, which will eventually provide for all New Zealand's requirements of power. The Queenston plant he thought the most modern he had ever seen and he expressed satisfaction that it was located in the British Empire.

On the subject of trade relations, Premier Coates stated that while his country was particularly anxious to develop her trade with Canada, at present the scales were weighted against her as she imported from Canada five times the amount of goods she sold to this Dominion. It was neither country's fault, and he hoped his discussions at Ottawa would have the effect of opening up new channels of commerce and making the balance of trade more favorable to his country than it had been.

Of Empire defence, Mr. Coates had very little to say, beyond stating that his country was doing all possi-

Red Neckties Doomed Cause Wearers Trouble

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(A.P.)—The famous red neckties worn by English railroad men are doomed. They are to be replaced by a more prosaic article in blue.

They caused a lot of trouble during the general strike, it was explained, because railway men were accused of being "reds" and Communists.

The red tie was issued originally with the idea that in case of emergency it could be pulled off and used as a danger signal.

FINE IMPOSED UNDER NEW LAW

Local Man Pays $8.25 For Disregarding Through Street Sign.

WARNING ISSUED.

The first case under the new traffic by-law requiring all vehicles to come to a complete stop before entering streets designated as through streets came before His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning.

The offence occurred at the corner of Charlotte and George, when a local man crossed the intersection, disregarding the by-law.

In fining the accused $5 and $3.25 costs, His Worship declared that in future he would be apt to make the fine $10, but on account of this being the first case brought before him, he had inclined toward leniency.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall stated that from now on all offenders will be hailed before the Magistrate without further warning.

MOBS ATTACK FOREIGN WOMEN AND CLERGYMEN

Great Anti-Christian Rising in Foochow Led By Soldiers.

BUILDINGS LOOTED.

Spanish Nuns Driven Out and Orphans Taken By Students.

FOOCHOW, January 17. Canadian Press. — The rising tide of Nationalism in China reached a new stage of violence here last night when a number of British and United States women and two ministers were beaten by Chinese mobs, several of the victims later being dragged through the attacks of their tormentors.

The uprising was the worst anti-Christian demonstration in the history of Foochow. Churches, schools, hospitals and foreign residences were ransacked. The riot was precipitated by northern soldiers incorporated into the Cantonese army.

All the Roman Catholic churches and schools in the city were attacked. Other institutions plundered include the Anglican and Methodist Hospitals, the city branch of the Y.W.C.A., the Anglican girls' school, and the Foys blind school.

The demonstration had its forerunner on Saturday, when Fukien students broke into the Spanish Dominican orphanage, vicarage and church, drove out the nuns and the priests and abducted the Chinese orphans there.

Foochow is about 35 miles inland on the Hokaing river. It is one of the principal cities of Fukien province, where the anti-Christian feeling has been spreading for some time.

MISSIONARIES REACH SAFETY

SHANGHAI, Jan 17. Canadian Press. — Forty four missionaries driven out of interior China by anti-foreign disturbances arrived here to-day on the British steamer Sui Wo from Kuling, a resort near Kiukiang, 450 miles inland on the Yangtze river. Most of them were Americans. They evacuated Kuling under the personal supervision of J. H. Paxton, the United States Vice Consul.

Missionaries Safe

LONDON, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—The Church Missionary Society received a message from Foochow today stating that although all the missions there were attacked by Chinese rioters all the missionaries were safe.

Cabinet Meets

LONDON, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—The British Foreign Office continues to view the whole situation growing out of the anti-foreign agitation in the Yangtze Valley as most serious, and the Cabinet was called into session this afternoon to consider Sir Austen Chamberlain's latest reports from China.

The Government, it is stated, intends doing everything possible to prevent a repetition at Shanghai of the recent mob violence at Hankow and is continuing its consultations with other Powers towards this end.

FOUR CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH IN MIDNIGHT FIRE

Bodies Recovered After Fierce Blaze Has Ruined Home.

ALONE IN HOUSE.

Toronto Couple Visiting Neighbors When Tragedy Occurs.

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—Four children lost their lives in a fire which at 12.53 a.m. on Sunday gutted their home, 39 Poulette street, and spread to two other houses situated to the north. Tenants of these places were able to escape in safety to the street. All efforts by the father of the children and by citizens to save the little ones were futile.

The dead are:

Baby Emmerson Geoffrey, aged two months.

Loreen Geoffrey, aged 15 months.

Josephine Geoffrey, aged 3 years.

Mathew Geoffrey, aged 4 years.

Rescued from their homes:

Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips, 41 Poulette street.

Mrs. Jennie Gentle, 43 Poulette street, and her three children, Jennie, aged 13; Josephine, aged 9, and Samuel, aged 7.

Children Were Asleep.

Augustine Geoffrey, father of the children, with his wife, Jean, had left the kiddies alone, while they went to the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kitchener, 29 Sydenham street, to spend the evening. The children had all been put to sleep. Baby Emmerson was sleeping in a basket on a chair in front of the stove. The three older children were in bed in the room above the kitchen.

The stove was standing close to the wall, and, there being a good fire on, the heat is thought to have ignited the woodwork. Dense smoke, together with the cracking of the burning woodwork of the house, wakened Mr. and Mrs. Phillips. Realizing that children were sleeping in the Geoffrey home, they

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—This is the story of a man who had a good hunch and didn't play it. "I think you guys are prohibition agents, but I'll take a chance," Anthony Forte told two men who asked to buy liquor from him a few days ago. Yesterday the men returned with a search warrant and assured him he had been correct. They found a quantity of liquor and arrested Forte and a companion.

Will Pray For Dad, Too When New Baby Comes

CHICAGO, Jan 17—When the baby comes, church people pray in thanksgiving that mother and infant are doing well, but no one cares whether the father does well or not. To remedy this situation, a group of Episcopal ministers meeting here yesterday decided to ask that prayers for the father be made a part of the church liturgy.

"The agonies of a father in his apprehension for the safety of his wife and his newborn make it fitting that he should be included in the service of thanksgiving" explained Dr. George Craig Stewart.

TORONTO PROUD OF HARDY YOUTH WHO WON RACE

Hotel Bell-hop Rises To Fame and Fortune Over Night.

WON FOR MOTHER.

Love For His Mother Inspired George Young To Greatest Efforts.

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press)—With the winning of the Catalina Island-California mainland swimming marathon, George Young, bell hop in a local hotel and support of his widowed mother, has risen overnight to fame and fortune.

Little known outside of the few places in which he competed in swimming races, the 17 year old youngster has jumped into front page prominence in newspapers the world over through his plucky fight against cold water, tides, wind and waves.

Carrying with it a prize of $25,000 the winning of the race meant a great deal to George Young. The money was untold riches for the youngster who had his mother to support. With Bill Hastings, also a swimmer and diver, Young left Toronto ten weeks ago for the coast. Transportation was expensive, so the two youths rode a decrepit motorcycle. They had trouble continually—at one time their iron steed failed them completely—but they got a ride along the way. After considerable difficulty, the two arrived in Los Angeles and made their home with Toronto friends. George started training for the grind.

During this period of the "great adventure" cheerful letters came steadily back to the mother. They told of the cold water, the difficulty George had with the brine—he had never swam in salt water until he made the trip to the coast—he told of financial difficulties and the hope he had of walking up the beach—the winner over one of the greatest galaxies of long distance swimmers who had ever competed.

Youthful confidence — strength—brain—and above all love for his mother—brought Young to the pinnacle of success and to-day his home town of Toronto resounds with his praises.

On every street corner, at every gathering, the "I Knew Him When" club is holding meetings. Talk of the swimmer's modesty, his speed, and his strength are related. It was recalled that one year ago to-

PREDICTS RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF RADIOPHONE

Rt. Hon. Fred Kellaway's Address on Empire's Wireless Telegraphic System.

MADE GUARANTEE.

Beam System Would Eventually Link Up Every Part of Empire.

LONDON Jan. 17 (Canadian Press Cable).—Great advances in the development of the Empire's wireless telegraphic and telephonic network in the near future were prophesied by Rt. Hon. Frederick Kellaway, former member of Parliament and former Postmaster-General, now managing director of Marconi's wireless telegraphs, in an address at Chelmsford Saturday night.

The commercial success of the beam wireless stations working between Canada and England had exceeded the most enthusiastic expectations, Mr. Kellaway said, and he also remarked on the success of the tests with Australia. He was cheered when he contended that the Marconi company's guarantee to the post office authorities had been complied with.

The Marconi director forecasted wireless telephone services which would eventually link up every part of the Empire along the lines of the "beam" or directed wave system.

"Soon you will be able to take off the telephone receiver and ring up your father or brother in Melbourne," Mr. Kellaway said.

Already conversation had been exchanged between Ottawa and London.

The Marconi company was approaching the idea of facsimile transmission, he went on. By this method the operator, instead of tapping out a wireless message on a telegraph key, would lay down the message on the transmitting apparatus and it would be automatically recorded by one operation at the other end of the circuit, in whatever part of the world it might be. From a commercial viewpoint, the value of this achievement could hardly be over-estimated, he concluded.

WILL STUDY IMMIGRATION

Hon. Herbert Greenfield To Study Immigration Situation in Great Britain.

VISIT NORWAY.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 17 (Canadian Press)—Hon Herbert Greenfield, former Premier of Alberta, passed through Winnipeg yesterday morning on his way to Great Britain to study the immigration situation He was accompanied by members of his family and Hugh Baker, his secretary. Mr. Greenfield stated that he would probably visit Denmark, Norway and Sweden in the course of his investigation. An office will be opened in London and may be made permanent.

Speaking of conditions in Alberta, Mr. Greenfield said: "We feel confidence that conditions in the province are ripe for an extensive policy of immigration, but before we commit ourselves to any policy we are going to be sure it is the right policy." He added that Hon. Robert Forke, minister of Immigration, had expressed his approval of the steps being taken by the Alberta government.

CHANDOS COUNCIL REDUCES SALARIES

Saving of $111 Made By Cuts—Inaugural Meeting.

APSLEY, Jan. 15.—"Economy" is to be the motto of the Chandos Council for 1927, as evidenced by the reduction in salaries put into force at the inaugural meeting this week on the recommendation of the new reeve, Allan Caldwell. Incidentally Reeve Caldwell attains his office through his quality of stick-at-it-iveness, he having competed for the reeveship it is reported, no less than ten times, this being the first time he was successful. The following are the new officers appointed by the council:

A saving of $111 in salaries was effected as follows: Reeve $40 instead of $50; councillors $25 instead of $36, clerk $90 instead of $100, assessor $65 instead of $80, M.O.H. $40 instead of $50, truant officer $20 instead of $25, auditors $6 instead of $7. It was decided that non-residents be assessed $2 a day for statute labor.

MEETS REQUESTS OF INDUSTRIES

Churchill Careful Not To Cause Any Interference in Trade Revival.

BUDGET VITAL EVENT.

LONDON, Jan. 17. — Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, in drafting his next budget —a budget which will be a vital factor in deciding the length of life of the present government—is said to have decided to co-operate with industrialists and traders. Forecasts are to the effect that the budget will be drawn up so as to cause the least possible interference with any revival in trade, in spite of the tremendous losses to the country caused by the coal stoppage. Realizing the intense political importance of his budget, the chancellor of the exchequer is giving careful attention to the great demand for economy, which is being urged in all quarters.

KISS BETRAYS.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—William Mahoney was betrayed by a kiss. It will cost him just ten years' hard labor. William, pursuing the career of a burglar, invaded the chamber of a servant girl, kissed her and asked her where the family kept the valuables. When he was caught the girl identified him.

PERCY COUPLE 55 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Abijah Spafford Observe Anniversary Quietly.

BOTH IN GOOD HEALTH.

NORHAM, Jan. 17.—On Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Abijah Pratt Spafford of Bradley's Corners, Percy township, Northumberland county, celebrated quietly in their own home, the 55th anniversay of their marriage

Mrs. Spafford, nee Mary Benedict, is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elias Benedict, of Hungerford township, Hastings county, and was born on Dec. 4th, 1848. Mrs. Spafford's mother, who passed away on March 17th, 1923, at the home of her daughter, had reached the ripe old age of one hundred years and one month. Mr. Spafford is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Spafford, of Athol, township, Prince Edward county, and was born on August 6th, 1849. He is a descendant of the United Empire Loyalists.

Mr. and Mrs. Spafford were married at her father's home, in Hungerford, on January 17th, 1872, by Rev. Eli Woodcock, a Methodist minister of Belleville.

For two years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Spafford resided in Hungerford, but 53 years ago moved to Percy township and took up the farm on which they still have their home, but which is now rented to Stanley Ellis, upon which they have a comfortable home where in the sunset of life they are enjoying a well earned rest, Mr. Spafford having been one of the successful farmers in this community. They have been life long Methodists and throughout many years their home has been a stopping place for ministers who have been received with warm felicitations and have enjoyed the open-hearted hospitality of their hosts. Although nearing the eighty year mark and despite the fact that some 25 years ago Mr. Spafford for a period of three years was critically There are twenty-seven grandchildill, they are both today enjoying reasonably good health with all their faculties well preserved.

Of their three daughters two still survive, Mrs Frederick Simmons, Salem, Cramahe township, and Mrs. William Henry Porter, Oak Heights, Haldimand township. They have three grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Charles Mills a cousin, of Milden, Saskatchewan, is the only survivor of the friends who were present at the marriage, 55 years ago.

Fame Of Royal Pollies Booms Sales In London

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Since it was announced that Queen Mary carried her favorite Brazilian parrot with her in a large canvas covered cage when she left for her Winter holiday at Sandringham, bird dealers are unable to get enough parrots to supply the demand.

The Queen and the parrot episode, together with the wide publicity to the death of the famous talking parrot at the "Cheshire Cheese," which had chatted with Princess Mary, the Price of Wales and many English celebrities, has created an unusual interest in talking birds.

Polly of the Cheshire Cheese has been replaced by another gray parrot which resembles the old favorite, but he is younger and lacks Polly's linguistic accomplishments.

England Wins Rugby.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 15 (Canadian Press Cable). — England defeated Wales in their International Rugby match at Twickenham to-day by eleven points to nine. Rugby matches between England and Wales began in 1880, and of the series England has won 20, Wales 16, while two have been drawn.

WHAT ARE YOUR EYES WORTH?

There is no sense so precious as that of eyesight; seventy five per cent. of our education is obtained through the eyes, and yet some folks go on neglecting their eyes as if they were not worth much. IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL CORTEGE

To the RIGHT is shown the huge Church of the Nativity in the Hochelaga district of Montreal, where the solemn requiem mass was sung with all the impressive ceremony of the Roman Catholic church for the 77 child victims of Montreal's appalling theatre disaster. After the service the coffins, mostly white, indicating that children's bodies lay within, were reverently carried to the waiting hearses. In some cases two bodies had to be transported in the same hearse. The picture shows the large number of hearses required, also something of the police arrangements. Photographs by Rice, Montreal.

OPEN NEW CHANNEL ON ST. LAWRENCE

Will Enable Largest Ocean-Going Steamers To Reach Quebec.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 17 (Canadian Press)—The north channel, a ten-mile stretch of water on St. Lawrence immediately to the east of the Island of Orleans, will be thrown open to navigation on June 1. This was the statement of Alex Johnston deputy minister of Marine and Fisheries, who, in an interview here, added that it will then be possible for any ship drawing down to twenty-five feet to be navigated through the dredged passage at all stages of the tide. At certain stages, however, it will be possible for the largest steamers to reach Quebec through the northern route, as the average rise and fall in the water level due to tidal affects varies between twelve and eighteen feet at that locality. Thus even on a neap tide there will be as much as thirty-seven feet in the channel.

Mr. Johnston pointed out that there were a few odd lumps in the channel until the end of last season but that it had been thoroughly swept and has now been declared clear. Everything will be done to have the northern passage buoyed and lighted in a manner as thorough as has been done in the Traverse, which is the passage taken by the majority of incoming and outgoing ocean steamers.

FREIGHT DERAILED.

Traffic on C.N.R. Held Up Near Cornwall Early Sunday.

CORNWALL, Ont., Jan. 17. — (Canadian Press).—The two main tracks of the Canadian National Railways, about three miles west of Cornwall, were blocked for about seven hours yesterday morning, when six cars of an east-bound freight were derailed through a broken journal.

The east track was cleared by 11 o'clock, and it was hoped to have the west track open to traffic last evening. The train crew escaped uninjured. The passengers on the east-bound Montreal train suffered no inconvenience beyond the loss of time. The wrecked cars contained dressed meats.

OLD MASTERS

When I have borne in memory what has tamed
Great nations; how ennobling thoughts depart
When men change swords for ledgers, and desert
The student's bower for gold—some fears unnamed

I had, my country!—am I to be blamed?
Now when I think of thee and what thou art,
Verily, in the bottom of my heart
Of those unfilial fears I am ashamed.

For dearly must we prize thee: we who find
In thee a bulwark for the cause of men;
And I by my affection was beguiled:

What a wonder if a poet now and then
Among the many movements of his mind,
Felt for thee as a lover or a child!

—W. Wordsworth.

For the first time in more than half a century the sewers of the City of London are to be surveyed. Some of these sewers, of which there are many miles, go back to the time of Queen Elizabeth.

REPORT THAT JAPANESE LIKELY TO BACK CANTON GOVERNMENT TRADE IN YANGSTE IS BADLY HIT

Tokio Hears De Facto Recognition Likely on Pressure By Merchants.

ENFORCE SURTAXES.

Had Hoped To Use Surtaxes For Forming New Commercial Treaty.

TOKIO, Jan. 17. — Japan will extend de facto recognition to the Canton government, it was intimated on Sunday, after a cabinet meeting in which the Chinese situation was discussed and Baron Shidehara explained developments.

Official confirmation of the recognition plan is unobtainable but it is hinted that Japan's present policy is soon to be changed. The report is supported by the activities of M. Saburi at Canton, where he conferred with Nationalist leaders and then proceeded to Wuchang for a similar purpose.

Indications are that Canton's relations with Soviet Russia form the main obstacles to recognition, and it reported that M. Saburi's conferences were intended to determine Canton's real attitude toward Bolshevism, and what Japan can expect to gain through recognition.

Japan's trade in the Yangtse Valley, the most important section of China, has been suffering heavily since the Cantonese advance, and it is bound to suffer more throughout China through the imposition of surtaxes. Business men have requested the government to take some step to relieve them and their move is supported by a large section of the House of Peers under the leadership of former Premier Kiyoura, who recently visited China and now is demanding that the government alter its policy.

The government is in a dilemma. The British proposals are substantially what Japan supported during the customs conference, expecting opposition by the other powers and thereby winning China's friendship. Now Britain has called this bluff and simultaneously both the Cantonese and the new Peking government have announced the immediate enforcement of surtaxes. Japan hoped to use the surtaxes as a bargaining point or a new commercial treaty, which has not materialized. Now she is anxious to discuss such a treaty before the surtaxes are actually effective and worthless as a bargaining point. Therefore it is possible that the rumour of recognition of the Cantonese government is inspired to frighten Peking into the conclusion of a reciprocal commercial treaty.

Japan desired to delay a response to the British proposals until America had answered but the imposition of surtaxes is likely to force earlier action here.

"King Of Hoboes" Rides Rods At 25 Below Zero

WINNIPEG, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—Abraham Nilanidson, a 35-year-old wanderer, who has viewed the inside of many United States and Canadian jails, and champion "rider of the rods," is recovering from his latest adventure in the Provincial Jail here. Starting on an eastern journey, he secured a firm hold on the "pilot," or cow-catcher of the fast Imperial Limited.

With snow piled around him, his huge beard covered with ice, and his overalls frozen to the engine, he was discovered when the train reached Oak Bank, Man., 15 miles from here. It was 25 below zero when he started on his adventurous trip.

Returned to Winnipeg, Abraham appeared in City Court Saturday, and after unfolding a weird tale of adventure, he was sentenced to thirty days in jail.

RANGER ATTACKED BY BIRD OF PREY

Encircled Him With Long Legs and Gashed His Neck.

THREE RIVERS, Que., Jan. 17. —Euclide Beauce, wood ranger, of Spring Creek, was attacked by a large bird of prey, while measuring lumber in the woods near here. The bird suddenly descended upon the woodsman, encircled him with its long legs, gnashed at his neck with its claws and pecked at his head with its beak. Beauce was unable to untangle himself from the bird. He shouted for assistance. When rescued his body was covered with small wounds and he was almost exhausted from loss of blood.

The bird was killed, but its identity has not yet been ascertained. It is believed to be of an European species.

Subways For Paris Autos Planned At Busy Corners

PARIS, Jan. 17.— Underground passages for automobiles at the principal street intersections are to be constructed this year in Paris to relieve traffic congestion.

Three locations, one of which will be in front of the Madeline Church, will be used for experiments. If the idea works the system will be extended.

Fifteen plans were submitted to a city commission and one of these a fairly definite method has been evolved. The architectural and engineering features are being put into shape.

One-way streets have greatly facilitated traffic handling and the restriction of parking to one side of the street has been accepted as a helpful feature after two years' trial.

PREMIER COATES AT FAIR GROUNDS

New Zealand Premier Greatly Interested in C. N. Exhibition.

TORONTO, Jan. 17. — (Canadian Press.)—On his second day in Toronto, Premier Coates of New Zealand, was greeted with typical mid-winter weather, snow and fairly mild temperature. This morning, the party motored to the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds, when they evinced great interest in the space allotted to New Zealand exhibits of last year's Fair. Premier Ferguson, of Ontario, accompanied the party and expressed the desire for an Empire Court at the next National Exhibition. The party returned to a local hotel to prepare for the Canadian Club luncheon, which was addressed by Premier Coates.

ON LAST FOOTHOLD.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 17.— (Canadian Press.)—The Cantonese forces have lost their last stronghold in Chekiang province with the recapture of Ningpo, 100 miles south of Shanghai, by Gen. Sun Chuan-Fang, Governor of Chekiang. The defeated southerners are retreating toward Fukien.

The average person is estimated to speak roughly 12,000 words a day.

ANTI-EVOLUTION LAW IS UPHELD

But the Tennessee Supreme Court Reverses Fine Against Scopes.

ANOTHER APPEAL.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 17. — (Canadian Press).—The Tenneesee anti-evolution law under which John T. Scopes was convicted in July, 1925, was declared constitutional by the State Supreme Court today but the verdict of the lower court was unanimously reversed on account of an error of the trial judge in attempting to fix a fine of $100 upon Scopes. The ruling suggested that the case against Scopes be nelle prosced, instead of being retried, the judges agreeing that "nothing is to be gained by prolonging the life if this bizarre case". Under the constitution of Tennessee a fine in excess of $50 can only be assessed by a jury.

RULING TO BE APPEALED

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The decision of the Tennessee Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of the Tennessee anti-evolution law in its ruling on the Scopes case, will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court, Dudley Field Malone of defence counsel said.

DIAZ DEPORTED TO GUATEMALA

Reported That He May Leave For New Orleans Shortly.

TREATED KINDLY.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—Special dispatches from Tapachula, Mexico, confirm reports that Bishop Fascual Diaz, Secretary of the Mexican Roman Catholic Episcopate, who was arrested last week, has been deported to Guatemala.

The dispatches carry an interview with the Bishop, given as he was about to leave for Guatemala City, in which he declared that he had been treated with great consideration and received many attentions during his trip from Mexico City.

Bishop Diaz also said that at the moment he did not know whether he would remain in Guatemala City or leave for New Orleans.

FOUR CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH

rushed to the street. Mrs. Phillips was pounding on the front door of the Geoffrey home and screaming, in hope of wakening the people, but her cries were of no avail.

Alarm Is Started

A citizen seeing the flames telephoned the Fire Department. Another citizen, whose name police did not learn, ran from Poulette Street along Sydenham to Parliament Street calling fire. Patrol Sergeant Hough and Constable Carr were walking south on Parliament Street. Hearing cries of fire, they ran toward the scene. Tough went to Kitchener's house in search of a telephone to call firemen. On learning there was no phone he ran to Queen and Parliament Streets, and pulled the alarm box.

Meanwhile Mr. Kitchener, who had opened the front door to Patrol Sergeant Tough, glanced north on Poulette Street and saw the flames. Calling back into the house, he told Geoffrey his house was on fire.

Both ran to the scene. By this time a man, who later disappeared from the scene without giving his name, had forced in the front door. Lifting a piece of a rug from the floor, he started into the house in search of the four children. So fierce were the flames and the choking smoke that he almost collapsed. His face and hands were slightly burned. Mr. Kitchener helped him from the doorway back to the street.

Father Takes Action

Augustine Geoffrey, father of the little tots, then tried to make his way into the house. By this time firemen and police had arrived, and with much physical exertion they stopped Geoffrey from dashing through the mass of flames. On different occasions, Geoffrey, frantic at the thought of his loved ones perishing, struggled to release himself from those holding him, and once succeeded. He got to the front porch and wanted to climb up to the front window. He was told it was useless and was taken back from the scene. His wife, on the verge of a nervous breakdown, stood by as firemen ran their lines of hose to the house.

Captain Bird hoisted ladders in front of the house and climbed in the front window. Groping around in the dark with his lantern, he could find no trace of any one. Meanwhile Lieut. George Ellis and Fireman Walsh of Richmond street Hall climbed in the back window and found the bodies of the two girls, Loreen and Josephine, on the bed. They handed them out of the window to other firemen, who took them down the ladders to the backyard. By this time Captain Bird had made his way into the back room and, looking under the bed, found the body of the oldest boy, Mathew, crouched against the wall. His lifeless body was also handed out the window to waiting firemen on the ladders.

CHINESE MOBS LOOT MISSIONS

Several Buildings and Residences Broken Into By Plundering Mobs.

NO CASUALTIES.

FOO CHOW, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press). — Chinese mobs, composed largely of soldiers yesterday looted the Y.M.C.A., two misison churches and certain mission residences. A British subject also was robbed.

The Spanish Bishop's residence was broken into Saturday night, despite promises to the Consular body that the Dominican premises would be protected.

No casualties are reported, but threats to invade and loot the foreign quarter Monday have been heard.

ALNWICK COUNCIL OPENING MEETING

ROSENEATH, Jan. 17 — The first meeting of the Alnwick township council was held on Monday, January 10. All the members elected assembled in the town hall Roseneath, at eleven a.m. After taking the usual declaration of office, the reeve called the council to order.

The personnel of the council for 1927 is: Gordon Parker, reeve; Alfred Braithwaite, Erwin Brown, Ernest Timlin and Albert Halstead, councillors.

Two communications were received. One from the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, asking for a donation, was put on file. The other was from the members and officers of the King's Mission Band, thanking the council for the use of the town hall, given free for their bazaar that was held last December.

Moved by Ernest Timlin; seconded by Alfred Braithwaite, that Arthur Tucker be caretaker of the town hall at $24 a year.

Moved by Alfred Braithwaite; seconded by Erwin Brown, that this council appoint Gordon Parker and Ernest Timlin to see someone in regard to acting as township constable.

Moved by Gordon Parker, seconded by Alfred Braithwaite, that the clerk, John McMillan, send for the usual amount of dog tags.

Moved by Alfred Braithwaite; seconded by Erwin Brown, that this council extend the collector's time until February 26 next.

Moved by Ernest Timlin; seconded by Gordon Parker, that this council do not rent the town hall for dancing for the year 1927. Ayes: Ernest Timlin, Gordon Parker and Erwin Brown. Nays: Alfred Braithwaite, Albert Halstead.

Moved by Gordon Parker; seconded by Ernest Timlin, that the clerk get out a petition form to present to the Indian department with a view of assessing Indian dogs by the Indian council.

Moved by Erwin Brown, seconded by Albert Halstead, that the clerk post up notices of tender for white pine, tenders to be in the clerk's office by January 22.

By-laws were passed as follows: To appoint an assessor for 1927. Austin Lean appointed.

To appoint a member for the local board of health and sanitary inspection. Charles Grigg appointed.

To appoint a collector for rates. Marcena Davey appointed.

To appoint two auditors for 1927. Silas Shetwin and James L. Timlin appointed.

Moved by Albert Halstead, seconded by Erwin Brown, that the reeve sign orders on the treasurer for the following amounts: Judge McGlade, revising part III voters' list, $30.50; John McMillan, names entered on part III voters' lists, and attending judges' court, $14.40; John McMillan, election expenses, $38.20; Clarence Thackeray, bushing, Rice Lake, $10.00; Earl Shearer, bushing, Rice Lake, $6.50; Municipal World, 6 copies, $6.00.

DISCUSS WAYS

ble to help Great Britain bear her burden of naval expenditure. At present New Zealand was keeping up two cruisers which, unlike Australia's navy, formed a unit of the British fleet.

One result of the recent Imperial Conference, the Antipodean Prime Minister said, was a strengthening of the bonds that connected the far-flung Dominions of the British Empire. The Conference's work would, he was sure, insure solidarity of Empire. In the past there had been misunderstandings because government had been attempted thousands of miles away. The British people had the gift of government and self-government, and he believed it safe to leave it to those who were on the spot to use their judgment as to what was necessary in a time of crisis. The institutions and principles for which all Britishers stood would be maintained and protected, he believed, by the people of the Empire for generations to come.

Premier Coates and his party were entertained at dinner last night by His Honor W. D. Ross, Ontario's new Lieutenant-Governor, and spent the remainder of the evening resting after their activities of the past few days.

To Discuss Tour

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 17 (Canadian Press)—Sam Davidson, secretary of the Dominion Football Association, will meet Premier Coates, of New Zealand, here Wednesday to discuss the forthcoming tour of the Canadian soccer team in New Zealand. Premier Coates, who is a keen sportsman, wired Mr. Davidson yesterday asking that the conference be arranged.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE CRUST

When I was young, in that old day,
We did not dare to throw away
The humble things, the simpler fare.
Our father's suits we had to wear,
And, when the evening meal was spread,
With thrifty care ate all the bread.
At me the end was often thrust—
But, thank the Lord, I liked the crust.

And, when I grew, I asked for ease,
I asked for only things to please,
But fortune gave me work to do,
Yes, many a night to labor through,
And many a day whose weary length
Took all my courage, all my strength.
Man is not given what he asks,
But, thank the Lord, I liked the tasks.

Like other men, I thought content
Was found alone in merriment,
But many a joy I found, my son,
In days well lived, in work well done.
With things to make, to plant, to build,
With things like these my life was filled.
I had to toil, men often must—
But, thank the Lord, I liked the crust.

FAREWELL PARTY.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Jan. 15. —A very pleasant social time was spent by the young people of this district on Tuesday evening last, when they gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barnum to spend another evening with Mr. Morley Petherick, prior to his return to Hamilton. Morley has been engaged in garage work in that city since last summer, and as he now intends to make his home there, the young people of Petherick's wished to bid him God-speed in a fitting manner. A number of contests were held during the early part of the evening, and a short impromptu programme of addresses given. Morley was presented with a handsome case containing a fountain pen and ever-ready pencil, together with a sum of money. The following address was read by Lindsay Anderson.

"Dear Morley:

"It is with deep regret that we, your friends of Petherick's Corners, have gathered here this evening to bid you farewell. We have learned of late that you will be again absent from our midst, and, during your four months in Hamilton we have experienced the loss of one who took a willing and active part in all church and young people's work.

Although we miss your friendly companionship and jovial spirit, we have one consolation—that Peterick's Corners is proud to send anywhere in the world a representative with such manly and character building principles as you possess.

"We are pleased to learn that you have reached such a responsible position and wish you every success in your chosen profession.

"It is not our wish to be severed from your thoughts in the future, and so we would ask you to accept these gifts, not for their intrinsic value, but as a token to remind you that you will be at all times remembered by your many friends at Petherick's Corners.

"Signed on behalf of the young people of Petherick,

"Harry Barnum,
"Roy Fry."

Morley thanked his friends in a few well-chosen words and a few remarks were made by Messrs. Fred Barnum, Will Ford, Earl Fairman and Mrs. John Simpson.

League Service.

The regular league service was held in Zion Church on Thursday evening, in charge of Mr. Thomas Fry, devotional convenor. Over fifty were in attendance and the new system of scoring in the contest was put on trial. An extra point is given for each member who attends church the previous Sunday. The whites with fifteen present, all of whom were church attenders, led with thirty points. The khaki had sixteen members present, but only eleven had been in church on Sunday, so that their total was twenty-seven points. The blues and reds had eighteen and thirteen points respectively. After the business meeting the programme was in charge of Mr. Fry and Rev. C. D. Daniel, beginning the series of four meetings under the prayer-week in the United Church of Canada. Both speakers gave splendid devotional addresses. A vocal duet was also given by Mr. Fry and Mr. Fred Barnum. The interest taken in this meeting encourages the pastor to hope for great results from this series of meetings. The final service on Sunday evening at 7 p.m.

OBITUARY.

MRS. J. C. SMITH.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 17.—The funeral of Mrs. J. C. Smith will take place this afternoon at 1.30 to Lakefield cemetery.

MRS. ALFRED DUNCAN.

HASTINGS, Jan. 17.—On Saturday, Mrs. Harry Orr received the sad news of the death in Milestone, Saskatchewan, of her sister, Mrs. Alfred Duncan. Deceased was born in Percy Township, and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fairman, Senior.

The funeral took place from the family residence in Saskatchewan.

MISS ELIZABETH FOWLDS.

HASTINGS, Jan. 17.—The village received a sudden shock on Saturday evening when they heard of the death of Miss Elizabeth Fowlds, who resided with her brother on Front street west.

Deceased, who had been ailing for a little more than two months, was talking to her brother. She told him she was feeling not so well as usual, and before medical help could be summoned she passed away quietly.

Miss Fowlds was a great favorite with both old and young and was ever a willing worker in every kind of work at church and all social public functions.

The funeral will be held from the family residence on Monday afternoon.

MRS. JESSIE FOWLER.

Thursday afternoon, Jan. 6th, death claimed one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Peterboro, in the person of Mrs. Jessie Fowler, widow of the late William Fowler, who predeceased his wife about eighteen years ago.

Mrs. Fowler was the last surviving member of the family of the late Archibald Lillico of North Monaghan, and was of staunch U.E. stock. Mrs. Fowler was a consistent member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, and had the honor of being made a life member of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society She took an active interest in all Christian work, and for many years labored faithfully in Sunday school work. In her span of life, which passed beyond the years allotted by the Psalmist, she had achieved something which many a one might envy, the love of all who knew her.

She was buried from the home of her nephew, R. T. Lillico, Provincial Highway (the old homestead) where she was born eighty-five years ago. Owing to the illness of her pastor, Rev. J. W. Gordon, the service was taken by the Rev. Mr. MacDonald, assisted by Rev. Mr. Wren. An appropriate hymn, "In the Garden", was beautifully rendered by Miss Murray. The floral tributes were many. Six nephews bore the remains of Mrs. Fowler to her last resting place in Little Lake cemetery.

Benjamin Franklin found that the 4th of March fell on Sunday fewer times than any other date during the next two centuries, so that date was chosen for the presidential inauguration

HASTINGS JUNIORS WIN FAST HOCKEY

Beat Campbellford Boys 6-5 in Match at Hastings.

HASTINGS, January 17. — The junior boys gave a fine exhibition of hockey at the rink on Saturday morning when they played a similar team from Campbellford. The game was real interesting and ended in a win for the local lads, the score ending 6-5.

The Hastings curling club is sending a rink up to Peterborough on Monday to compete for the Neill trophy, Skip G. B. Stevenson, vice, W. Welman, second, K. Kennedy, lead, G. Kerr.

SOUTH MONAGHAN U.F.Y.P.O. MEETING

Musical Evening Held at the First Gathering of New Year.

The South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. held its first meeting of the year at Centreville on Friday evening, January 7. The meeting opened with community singing. The programme, in accordance with "music night," consisted of a vocal solo by Mr. F. Dawson, followed by a very interesting paper on "The Lives of Great Composers." The subject of the debate, which formed part of the programme, was: "Resolved that Oratory is a Better Form of Entertainment than Music." The affirmative was upheld by Miss M. Earle and Mr. F. Barnard, while Miss M. Thorne and Mr. R. Rutherford took the side of the negative. After careful consideration the judges' decision was given by Mr. C. Hall in favor of the affirmative. Three musical contests brought the evening's entertainment to a close. The winners of the first were Miss F. Bonnycastle and Mr. W. Hall, and of the second and third, Miss E. Taite and Mr. H. Campbell.

How to Play BRIDGE

A new series of lessons by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1926, by Ruple, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 11

There are certain definite requirements of bidding that should be complied with at all times, if the auction player wants to become a sound bidder. These requirements are more or less arbitrary and vary with the position of the bidder. For example, if you hold five hearts to the ace, king, it is a sound heart bid if you are dealer; but if three players have passed, it is not a sound fourth hand bid. In the same way, a bid may not be sound on the first round of bidding but may be perfectly justified on the second round. The real reason for these so-called conventions of bidding is due to the fact that all sound bidding is part of a harmonious whole. Each bid, if it be sound, should consider not only the bid itself but also its effect upon and interpretation by one's partner. If it tells him the truth, it is a sound bid, but if it deceives him or may be misconstrued, it is not sound. Whenever you make a bid, think not only of your own cards but also of your partner and what he may do after he hears your bid. You should also consider your own course of action if the bid you now intend to make should be overbid by your opponents. Have you started something that either you or your partner can carry to its logical conclusion? If so, it is a sound bid, but not otherwise. Here is a hand that illustrates the value of looking ahead and deciding one's future action before making a bid:

Hearts—9, 5, 3
Clubs—9
Diamonds—K, 9, 8, 4, 3
Spades—Q, 7, 4, 2

Hearts—A, J, 8, 4	Y	Hearts—K, 10, 7, 6, 3
Clubs—Q, J, 10, 4, 3		Clubs—A, 7
Diamonds—A, Q, 5	A B	Diamonds—7, 4
Spades—4	Z	Spades—J, 10, 5, 3

Hearts—Q
Clubs—K, 8, 6, 5, 2
Diamonds—J, 10, 2
Spades—A, K, 9, 8

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one spade. A had a perfect informatory double of the spade bid but bid two clubs, failing to look forward and consider his opponent's or partner's bidding. Based on his two club bid. He should have doubled in the hope that his partner could bid hearts, not thinking that his failure to double might keep his partner from bidding. When A bid two clubs, Y, who was a mighty clever player, realized that the only suit in which A-B might have a chance for game was hearts so bid three spades. B would have bid two hearts but didn't feel strong enough to bid four, especially as his partner had failed to double. For these reasons, B passed. Z passed and A bid four clubs. He had a big hand but didn't handle it right. Y and B passed and Z, also a good player, was wise enough not to double four clubs, feeling that to do so would drive A-B to four hearts. As a result, A-B were set three tricks at clubs when they could have made four hearts. This big loss was directly due to A's failure to look forward to all the bidding of the hand rather than to the bidding of his own cards only. There are many bids that are sound for that bid only but unsound when considered as part of a harmonious whole. Think not only of your own bid, but of your partner and opponents and the action they may take if you make that bid. Look forward always and try to consider every bid as part of a chain of bids, rather than as a single and disconnected link.

Problem No. 13

Clubs—K, 4, 3
Diamonds—A, K, 10, 7, 2
Spades—K, Q, 4

	Y
	A	B
	Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and A passed. What should Y bid and why? An analysis of this hand will be given in the next article.

Problem No. 14

Spades are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can he so play the hand that Y-Z can win all of the tricks against any defense? Solution in the next article.

An Open Letter To The Public

TO THE PUBLIC:—

We feel deeply grateful to the people of Peterborough and all surrounding vicinity for your liberal patronage during the past nine days, and we take this method of thanking you one and all alike.

The enormous business we have done during our mammoth $150,000 Business Adjustment Sale has proven to us beyond a question of doubt that our policy of "A SQUARE DEAL TO ALL" is now and always has been appreciated.

Robert Fair Company, Limited, has always enjoyed a good reputation among its thousands of customers, and during our business life our Store has made hundreds of friends who have been attached to us by dependable merchandise, reasonable prices and fair treatment to all alike, and with these ideas constantly before us our growth has been steady and sure.

Early in January this year we decided to adjust our stock, and to stimulate business we decided on this "Great $150,000 Business Adjustment Sale" of all merchandise with prices to meet present-day conditions. In this great selling event we were shown where we can do a large volume of business, we can successfully operate on a very small margin of profit, giving you the benefit of lower prices, and we are so well satisfied with the last nine days' selling that hereafter it is our determination to sell larger volume to the masses at lower prices.

This Sale has proven to be the most talked of Sale ever attempted in Peterborough. "EVERYBODY TALKING" of the greatest selling event of our career. We know, too, that hundreds of homes have been made happier and thousands of dollars have been saved by those who attended.

We have bought many thousands of dollars worth of DRESS GOODS, SILKS, MILLINERY, LADIES' READY TO WEAR, GLOVES, LINENS, STAPLES, RUGS, FLOOR COVERINGS AND HOUSE FURNISHINGS, that are arriving daily, and furthermore, we have been able to give employment to over forty extra people.

Without doubt, public opinion is convinced that it was high time for some public-spirited concern like Robert Fair Company, Limited, to LEAD THE WAY TO LOWER PRICES. Bear in mind, good people, that is not just an advertisement, but a sincere workable plan from one of Peterborough's reliable establishments, and if the last nine days' response to this idea is any measure of its success, this concern has struck a telling blow to heretofore prevailing high prices, because WITH SALES VOLUME LOWER PRICES ARE CERTAIN.

To hold and win the good-will of our customers is our constant aim—and it is of really greater importance than the making of money, for we realize that "satisfied customers are constant advertisers." We wish to say further that if during the rush in the past nine selling days and our immediate success of increasing customers had anyone found occasion to find fault with our service, we regret the circumstances we assure you. We would not have it happen, but you know, with so many new clerks and salespeople in the Store and their enthusiasm to make sales, occasional mistakes are and were possible, and we believe excusable.

In conclusion, we again thank each and every one who helped to make this Sale event "Peterborough's Greatest Sale" the huge success it was, and the people of Peterborough and all surrounding vicinity who value money will do well to watch our window displays and further newspaper announcements.

Robert Fair Company, Limited

CALLS FOR HELP.

Peterboro's response to a call for furniture and clothing for two families in destitute circumstances, as issued by John Edgar, Agent and Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, was an offering of the needed articles that threatened to swamp him.

The city's heart usually beats true when S. O. S. calls of this nature are sounded.

The trouble seems to be, however, that conditions are allowed to develop in homes until an acute point of destitution is reached before anybody discovers the need for action.

It is a fine thing to generously answer these public requests for assistance, but it would be still finer if cases of distress could be prevented from reaching such a stage, as they might easily be, if assistance were extended in time.

BEER PARLOURS.

Toronto advices are to the effect that, although there has been pressure brought to bear upon the Ontario Government to include in its new liquor control act a provision permitting the sale of beer in hotels, the answer of the Ontario administration has been an emphatic "No."

No other reply could surely have been expected.

The Government was elected on a platform that consisted of a proposal to sell beer and liquor only through Government vendors.

The promise was definitel made by the Premier and by his candidates everywhere that there would be no sale of beer by the glass.

Thousands of people supported the Government in its vendor policy who wo ! not have voted in favour of a plan that included sale by the glass, and in view of these facts, it is surprising to think that there are interests in Ontario that considered it possible for the Government to forget all its campaign pledges and introduce legislation that it had emphatically promised would not be introduced.

PAYING FOR SERVICE.

When people grumble at the high tax rate and compare what they have to pay today with their tax bills of fifteen or twenty years ago, they are overlooking something.

They are failing to take into account the services they are receiving for their heavier taxes.

Woodstock's City Clerk has been delving into some figures, going back thirty years to study the details of civic expenditure in that city.

In 1895 he finds, for example, that the expenditure on Woodstock schools, was $21,246; they had grown to $67,367 in 1925.

Expenditures in the Board of Works Department were six times as great; the cost of street lighting had doubled; there was an appropriation of $10,000 for mothers' allowances and highways in 1925, while 1895 showed no item of this kind; the Fire and Light Department cost $18,251 in 1925, as against $1,592 thirty years ago, and the Public Library expenditure had jumped from $100 to $5,447 in the thirty-year period.

Peterboro's expenditures would show a corresponding increase.

It only means that if taxes are heavier than they used to be more value is being secured from them, much more service is being provided.

If people would be satisfied with wooden sidewalks, unpaved roads, inadequate street lights, volunteer fire departments old fashionedly equipped, an apology for a Public Library and other conditions of thirty years ago, they would have lighter tax bills.

A WIN FOR CANADA.

All Canada will feel a thrill of pride at the wonderful feat of George Young, seventeen-year-old Toronto swimmer, in winning the Catalina swimming marathon and gaining the distinction of being the first person who ever swam the twenty-two miles of icy, tide-swept, wind-tossed waters that separate Catalina Island from the Californian mainland.

So great were the obstacles to be overcome that odds were freely offered that no one in the large field of swimmers, representing sixteen nations, would be successful in covering the distance.

Numerous swimming stars with notable records to their credit even refused to start, contending that the coldness of the water made it impossible for human beings to endure it long enough to complete the passage of the channel.

Over one hundred swimmers, however, started on Saturday morning, and the youthful Toronto boy defeated a very representative field, including two successful English Channel swimmers.

In this country it was realized that he was one of the fastest competitors, but there was natural doubts as to whether the Canadian youngster possessed the stamina and endurance necessary to triumph over the many obstacles that made the passage one of the greatest difficulty.

His victory brings to him rich monetary rewards, first place in the race giving him $25,000, while lucrative vaudeville engagements will undoubtedly follow the glory of winning such a notable contest.

George Young has shown the world, as have John C. Miles in marathon running, the Spencer brothers in the bicycle racing field, Jack Delaney in the prize ring and numerous Canadian stars in professional hockey that when it comes to contests where in addition to skill, stamina, endurance, courage and gameness are needed Canada is raising a breed inferior to none.

Nothing can be more disputed than an indisputable fact.—Ohio State Journal.

OUR WHEAT FUTURE.

One of the most interesting aspects of Canada's place among the wheat nations of the world and her future in this regard, may be found in the growing market for wheat abroad—not in countries to which she has been exporting for many years, but among peoples with whom wheat has not always been a staple commodity.

An official of the United States Department of Commerce recently pointed out that the raising of the standard of living among the native population of Malaysia has created a demand for "flivvers" and canned foods from the United States. A further illustration of what may happen when the standard of living goes up in some other part of the world is quoted by The Boston Transcript. It comes from an address by Mr. Julius H. Barnes before a recent convention of farm implement manufacturers. Mr. Barnes, a former President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and wheat administrator for his country during the Great War, is acknowledged to be an authority on the subject. His words, as quoted by The Transcript, follow:

"The rising tide of living standards in the world has in all history been first reflected in the change in food preferences from lower grains to wheat. The wheat areas of the world are not unlimited in extent. America is fortunately one of the areas adapted to the prime food aspiration." And "the American Pacific coast is beginning to realize its advantage of proximity to the expanding wheat consumption of Asia and the Orient."

With increased purchasing power, it is pointed out, Oriental peoples will want their wheat in increasing quantities. The rice eaters will discover the nutritive value of bread and they will be able to pay for the wheat because of the demand from Occidental lands for the natural resources of the Orient. It is natural, of course, that the United States should look with a keen eye on trade prospects of this kind, but the interesting part of that conjecture is the frequently heard prophecy that a few years hence the American Republic will no longer be an exporting nation, so far as wheat is concerned. Many students of the subject believe the day is not far distant when all the wheat raised in the United States will be consumed in the United States, and that it will also be necessary to import a good deal. As a matter of fact, Canadian wheat is now being imported into the United States in considerable quantities, even in the face of a heavy customs duty, because of the superior quality of the Canadian product and because this high quality is demanded by American millers in order to keep up the standards of their flour.

Canada's wheat exports constitute one of the greatest national assets this country possesses, yet it is evident that we are only in the early stages of development in this line. As Mr. Barnes pointed out to the American implement men, new markets are developing through changes in long-established national customs, and our greatest competitor is undoubtedly approaching a position where he will vanish from the export market or, at least, where his exports will be negligible.

The beauty of the situation, from Canada's standpoint, is that natural conditions are so thoroughly on our side.

First of all, we have the land, the finest wheat-growing land in the world.

Secondly, we have proved over and over again that we know how to produce the wheat—the highest quality wheat in the world.

Thirdly, there is no shortage of land. Millions of acres are waiting to be developed, millions of acres of as fine wheat land as can be found anywhere.

And, lastly, our wheat growers, learning from the experience of many years, have devised a marketing plan that means a square deal for the farmer and good treatment for the buyer. The pools formed in the Prairie Provinces have saved the Canadian wheat-growing industry.

Canada, then, is "all set" for the greater days that lie ahead.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Even White River didn't gain anything out of the cold snap, the record going to Doucet, Quebec.

If all Canadians were like George Young we wouldn't need a navy.

In winning the Catalina swimming marathon George Young will give Canada more publicity than a dozen ambassadors extraordinary could possibly secure for this country.

Lindsay-Peterboro hockey matches still continue to indicate that the brotherhood of man is not yet an assured fact in this section.

The Toronto Telegram believes that enemies of the O.T.A., instead of seeking the opportunity of drinking beer in beer parlours, should be satisfied that they will be able to drink 8.8 beer in beer bottles.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 17 (Canadian Press) — The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market Saturday was quiet owing to the fact that foreign bids were below local exporters' views. The demand from local and country buyers for coarse grains in the local market was also limited and prices were unchanged.

The volume of business transacted in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was again small, but values ruled firm.

An active trade was done in all lines of millfeed and prices were steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for storage eggs and prices were marked up two cents per dozen. On the other hand fresh specials were reduced four cents per dozen. The trade was fairly active. The receipts were 411 cases.

The butter market continued quiet but values were unchanged. The receipts were 26 packages.

The foreign demand for cheese was moderate but the local trade was moderate but the local trade. The receipts were 40 boxes.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press)—Helped by prospects of a reduction of the United States visible supply total on Monday, wheat showed an upward trend Saturday right from the outset, closing quotations on wheat were firm, half to one cent and five eighths net higher, corn 1-8c to 1-2c up, oats at 1-8 to 1-4 a 3-8c advance and provisions unchanged to 25c down.

Final prices for wheat were at virtually the day's top level. Offerings from start to finish proved rather scant, and enough buying to hold the market taut was almost constantly in evidence. Sellers showed a notable disposition to avoid pressing the market until Chicago stocks exhibit a tendency to increase. Mills were reported to be after wheat here, and sales out of store were in progress.

Unfavorable weather restricting the movement of corn to terminals gave firmness to corn and oats.

Provisions sympathized with a downward trend of the hog market.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE OWNER OF BOOKS
By Dr. Frank Crane.

There are some people who like to own books, just as others own ornes or teapots or any curiosity.

Their house is full of bookcases and their book shelves are full of old volumes. They haunt auction sales and pay, if they can, fabulous prices for first editions. These people are called bibliophiles.

A bibliophile seems to be a person who loves the outside of books. He doesn't care much about what is in them.

The owner of books is not necessarily a great reader.

Your real reader does not much care to whom a book belongs; all he wants is the information it contains.

The real reader is a chooser. He can tell when he strikes a sea of inocuous platitudes or a mountain range of useless difficulties.

As a matter of fact most books are mostly padding. They contain a large amount of matter merely to fill up space. Very few tell you simply and concisely what you want to know.

So the older the real reader gets the smaller his library becomes.

Oliver Wendell Holmes said that his books gradually decreased in number until he had only about ten or twelve at the time of his death.

There is a good deal of snobbery and pretense about being a great reader an keeping up with the latest books.

Books pour from the presses of the world in a veritable Niagara. If a man were to read all the latest volumes he would have to have nothing else to do.

Emerson said, "There are eight hundred and fifty thousand volumes in the Imperial Library in Paris. If a man were to read industriously from dawn to dark for sixty years, he would die in the first alcove."

The art of being a good reader is the art of being a good selector. It is as important to know what to choose and what part of the book to read as it is to be an industrious reader.

This does not mean that reading should be only for a purpose and we should never read anything but what is useful.

Reading is also an amusement and sometimes it is engaged in for the fun of the thing.

But the art of skipping is necessary none the less, and the best part of the ability to read is the ability to tell what not to read.

A good reader is a skillful hunter and not an omnivorous gulper.

A WINTER RESORT.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: The Examiner has started in to boom Muskoka as a winter resort. Why not our own north nd ? From Stoney Lake and Buckhorn northward the height above the sea rises rapidly and forty miles north of Peterboro it is 400 feet higher than Peterboro with a dry clear atmosphere and as those who have lived there know not a trace of dampness. From that on up through Haliburton to Algonquin Park there is not a clearer drier healthier atmosphere in the world.

This whole region of ours which is next door to the right facing north of the Muskoka region and may be called the Kawartha District, as its lower lakes are, is a perfect paradise for those seeking health and recreation. The air is wonderfully clear, and pure, and the day will come when those who want a perfect climate to live in in winter, where health and strength teem in the forests and high clear altitude, will find it out. There will be health resorts and hotels there yet, and there will be winter cottages galore there ; just as there are summer cottages. The water in lake, st eam and spring is nearly 100 per cent. pure by government analysis, and in some cases it is 100 per cent pure. There are mineral springs in our north also.

The Examiner can do a great work by investigating our own north from a health point of view, and then writing it up.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

"JUDGE" or "JUSTICE?"

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

The question is asked sometimes, "Is there any difference in meaning between 'judge' and 'justice'?"

It is difficult to reply to this question. Sometimes the term "judge" is applied to the holder of a judicial office, sometimes the term "justice." For example, in New York State, the highest court, known as the court of appeals is composed of a chief judge and a number of associate judges. In the Supreme Court of the state, however, the proper term to use is "justice." The United States Supreme Court is composed of the chief justice of the United States and eight associate justices.

On the other hand, we have "justices of the peace" and "police justices," holders of inferior judicial offices. It will be seen, therefore, that both in legal usage and in common use the terms "judge" and "justice" are frequently used interchangeably.

A Thought For To-day

THE LATE JUDD C[illegible]S.

When I was a boy, Judd Coles was always waiting on the corner for some farmer to come along with a wagon so he could catch a ride home. Judd never walked and he always refused to work.

When there was wood to spit, potatoes to sprout, or corn to husk, Judd could be found sitting on a nail keg down at the country store, talking big.

His Mother babied him and his Father let him loaf until he reached the age of nineteen, then he was a confirmed "no good" and remained that [illegible] good for not[illegible] until he died in the almshouse.

Judd never minded very much the fact that he was a town charge, for he had always been poor.

But the boy who will not work and who has been raised in ease and luxury is sure to be in much worse shape than my old friend Judd.

To be compelled to come down from the pinnacle of prosperity to the low level of poverty is an awful fall.

Genteel poverty is the most grinding punishment.

Parents! If you have a boy, make him peel potatoes or go without Murphies.

If the boy is livin at home with free board and a well furnished room, having his clothes mended and then borrowing money of his parents and not saving a cent, my suggestion is that you write me and I will give you the old address of the late Judd Coles.—The Silent partner.

TRADE REPORT

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 17 (CP)—The Weekly Trade Report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, ltd., reads as follows:

St. John's—A fair volume of business is reported by the wholesale trade at this time Retail trade is inclined to be slow. Collections are also slow.

Montreal—A general falling off in sales has been evident during the past week. Inventories and stock-taking are in progress and very little buying prevails Clearance sales of holiday surplus stocks are stimulating an otherwise dull period of trading in retail lines. Collections, both wholesale and retail, are somewhat slow.

Toronto—A fairly steady demand for seasonal goods, such as heavy underwear, clothing, rubbers, overshoes, etc., is reported by the wholesale trade. Other lines are comparatively quiet. The retail trade has been stimulated to a certain extent by clearance sales, but othrwise is inclined to be slow. Collections on the whole are fairly satisfactory.

Winnipeg—A normal volume of business in staple lines is reported by wholesale grocers, dry goods, boots and shoe dealers. Hardware and other lines report business as quiet but fairly satisfactory. Retailers report that staple lines are in fair demand and clearance sales of surplus stocks have to some extent increased the volume. Collections satisfactory.

reRegina—All lines of wholesale trade port business as quiet. The usual falling off of business subsequent to Christmas trade would appear to be taking place in retail trade, as both city and country dealers report business as quiet. Wholesalers and retail country merchants report collections as slow. Retail, city, fair.

Saskatoon—Wholesale grocers report business as fair. Dry goods rather slow, boots and shoes slow. Hardware fair. Conditions generally, in the wholesale trade, are inclined to be slow. Retail trade in the city during the past week has been fair, country slow. A slight dropping-off of collections in the wholesale trade is reported. Retail city collections are fair; country retail slow.

Calgary—Business fair, stock-taking general and special sales being put on. Collections slow to fair.

Edmonton—Noticeable improvement in wholesale and retail conditions. Collections better.

Vancouver—A fair volume of business in manufacturing trades for the past week is reported. All lines of wholesalers report business as fair. Retailers generally throughout the province report business as quiet during the past week. Collections in all lines slow. All construction work is still proceeding, although it has been slowed up to some extent by unsettled weather At this time of the year, things generally are quiet. The travellers are out booking for spring delivery, and it is anticipated that before long there will be a marked improvement in selling conditions.

CELERY—GOOD FOR EVERYONE

Celery is a member of the parsley family. It was first grown in Germany and was introduced by the Dutch who settled in Michigan. They found the old peat swamps near Kalamazoo to be an ideal place to raise celery. The Kalamazoo celery has since been known all over the world.

A large amount of celery is grown also in California and New York. During the celery season in the United States, over fifty tons are shipped daily to the large cities for distribution.

While a few years ago celery was considered a sort of delicacy, to be used at Thanksgiving and holidays, it is now quite generally used the year round.

There are several reasons for the increased consumption of celery.

It has an agreeable taste, and it is hard to find anyone who does not enjoy the flavor of properly grown celery.

It never creates any digestive disturbances and can be used by anyone who is able to use any kind of food at all.

Celery is not nearly so expensive as it was a few years ago, and with modern methods of refrigeration it can be kept and used every month in the year.

Celery contains only a small amount of caloric value, but is very rich in the organic salts, containing an abundance of alkaline and base-forming organic minerals. Most people who are ill have a lowered blood alkalinity, and celery supplies this deficiency.

Raw celery should be used without any flavoring or dressing. The use of salt with celery is a bad habit, as all of the alkaline effect of the celery is lost, because the salt makes an excess of stomach acidity.

Do not buy the green celery, but be sure to see that it is well bleached, as the bleaching removes certain volatile oils, which are irritating to the digestive organs.

Be careful to wash the celery well, as you do all salad vegetables, using a vegetable brush and allow running water to flow over the celery as it is being scrubbed. Take the stalks apart as you are washing it, as certain poisons find lodgment in between the stalks, which are put on to kill insects. These are often not dissolved by simply soaking the bunch of celery in cold water, but must be scrubbed off with a brush in running water.

Good celery makes a delicious dish, and you can secure many different kinds of flavors by cooking the celery for different periods of time. While fifteen or twenty minutes cooking is sufficient to soften the celery, if the cooking is continued for two hours a delicious flavor is developed which is unlike the flavor of any other vegetable. If you have not tried cooking celery two hours, do so the next time you prepare it, and you will find that you have added another dish to your list of vegetables.

Hygienic picnic lunches are hard to prepare, but you can always fill in with a few bunches of celery which every one will enjoy. Just wrap the celery in a moist towel or cover with parchment paper and it will be fresh and refreshing when you are ready to use it.

Start in today having celery on the table at least for one meal each day, and you will find that you can "fill in" with this vegetable in place of the bread and biscuits you have been using.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

SYNOPSIS

Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce. Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her, but secretly knows that she loves Abner Gratman. Unnerved, Ranny loses the International Cup Match for America. When he goes to take Joan home, he finds she has gone with Abner. Lacking proof that Joan is faithless, Ranny plans to trap her and Abner while they are all on a proposed trip on the yacht of Livingstone Stivner, a billionaire lumber magnate, with whom Ranny is trying to consummate a big business deal.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

Your real soldier of fortune loves intrigue.

To him it is the cocktail of Life; as battle is its beer, and adventure its gin, and roaming its rum.

As all the adverse currents and involved cross purposes of that wit-bound group on the luxurious lounge deck of the "Speedwell" flowed into the reservoir of his consciousness, an exciting sparkle welled behind Ranny Forbes' keen eyes.

He had come prepared—literally as well as figuratively—for some grim trouble with the man who was trying to steal his wife.

He had not expected however, to find himself in danger of being stolen from his wife.

Blonde Clare's obvious blandishments, as such, had not meant much in Ranny's young life until he became aware of the effect the billionaire widow's play for him was having upon his wife.

At first he did not understand why Joan should mind, in view of her own extramarital interests in Abner Gratman. If she were sincere in her demands for a divorce, it should be to her advantage to encourage intimacies between her husband and another woman. That would be the logical thing to do.

But Ranny, in common with the rest of malekind, realized in his superior way that it was too much to expect logic from a woman when an affair of the heart was concerned.

Inconsistency, thy name is Married Woman! So mused Ranny contentedly.

Joan was letting silly feminine pride interfere with clear reasoning. That was as plain as the mole on Mrs. Remington Teffin's sternum. It was a matter of vanity with Joan that if any genuine philandering were to be done in the family, it would be done by her.

Selfish as well as stubborn. That was Joan all over.

As benign as it is possible to look at forty odd, Ranny looked—as he smiled with arch indifference toward Joan—meanwhile making plain that he was more interested in Clare's flaxen hair and butter-cup of an ear at that moment than in anything else in the world, including his lawful wedded wife, Joan.

"I shall certainly stop in and sign the book," he whispered to Clare, feeling very risque.

Whereupon a seductive mist diffused over the large and babyish—but not too innocent nor too trustful eyes that were the beacons of Clare's fickle soul, and imparted to their blueness the remote dreariness of a winter sky.

Silken and fleet, one little hand brushed an understanding pat on Ranny's bronzed paw, which gripped the side of Clare's chair as he leaned toward her.

Delicate the smile and subtle the touch—but they were not lost upon several dissembling companions, notably Clay and Stivner and Joan.

Not least important, Abner Gratman, too, furtively drank in the by-play; and used it, the next instant, to the account of his own suit.

"You see, Joan, dearest," he whispered plaintively, "the sort of cheater he is to whom you so foolishly remain 'true,' as you call it. There's no question of truth or honor involved between any husband and wife, unless it is reciprocal, now is there, I ask you?"

Abner felt quite convinced by his own argument. He felt that if he were a woman in Joan's shoes, such a situation and such an argument would bowl him over into the hottest fleshpots.

Joan's murmur, barely audible even to his heart attuned ears, unseated Abner's complacency. It was just another demonstration of the philosophic fact that women know and men won't believe: that no man can project himself behind feminine reactions.

"There's the question of my own honor—in my own eyes!"

Though Joan's answer plunged Abner into sullen, childish pouting for the time being—as her endless variations of it to his endless versions of the selfsame plea had, these many weeks past—she was startled to find herself, for the first time, critically examining the wisdom and the necessity for her own steadfast clinging to an ideal.

Once she were rid of Ranny, she would marry Abner—gladly.

She felt that Abner would mean to her the things that Ranny had not. He would fill the inner voids that Ranny's clumsy, essentially masculine approaches had left unexplored.

Abner was so thoughtful, so profoundly understanding. The antithesis of Ranny.

What was it that they called such men as Ranny in those curiously stark, elementarily frank and true, labels of character in the cinemas? Oh, yes. "Two-fisted!"

That was Ranny Forbes! Two-fisted! Yea, thrice two-fisted!

And fists, Joan reflected with a bitterness softened only by her natural whimsicality, were not the most perfect nor most delicate nor gentlest means of touching the tender places of a woman's heart!

Successful lovers—the sort of husbands who wear well and abidingly—need a saving dilution of effeminacy in their make-up. Cave men and swordsmen and debauchees were romantic enough for a flaming month; but one could not imagine Cellini, for instance, as a constant husband!

And Joan wondered why she had ever been led to envision Ranny Forbes, the soldier of fortune, in the role of a fireside ornament.

She had been captivated by his strength of body and will and character, as she was repulsed by it now—for it had meant only neglect, only a secondary place in his interests.

Abner, having no purely animal pride in his physical prowess, would delegate her to the first throne in his scheme of life.

Abner was the opposite pole—the lode for which her heart now hungered. Abner represented domestic quietude. Harmony. Adjustment.

Perhaps if Ranny had only met her halfway, there might have been adjustments, she reflected regretfully. He might have filled her days and nights. Now it was too late.

Here he was, the tanned rascal, openly enfolding himself in the blonde web of a lady spider!

With characteristic feminine shortsight, Joan thought not of her own open friendship with Abner, the sure gossip it had stirred up, the certain embarrassment it had brought Ranny. She knew that she was morally blameless—so far. Foolishly, she took it for granted, so great was her own prideful faith in her own virtue, that others must know the same.

But Ranny! He was different. It must be apparent to everybody that he was shameless. That Clare was brazen!

Womanlike, wifelike, Joan traced a comparison between herself and Clare—greatly in her own favor, of course!

Joan's eyes flashed her haughty lack of fear of a public accounting of the vast difference between her innocent talk with Abner and Ranny's bold reception of that bold blonde's advances.

She felt herself exalted to pinnacles of virtue, and in her mood dragged Abner to the heights with her—without his knowledge, of course.

Abner's hot, glistening eyes in that moment when he scented the end of the hunt would hardly have suggested summits of morality to honest appraisers.

But, Joan, being very virtuous, was, of course, not honest. In truth, she was gosh darn mad! Jealous.

She was not, however, a lady to permit pique to parade for long through the Alpine polish of her hauteur. She was too alive to the satisfaction that such a display would give to certain people of immediate importance—Ranny, for instance, and that grinning and self-satisfied Clay Varick, and Clare Clemoneau. Oh, that Clare!

Joan employed a subtle counter offensive. She exuded unfluffed indifference. When Joan wanted to turn on the full batteries of her indifference her high disdain was a cloud piercing Matterhorn.

SHORT STORY

CUPID AND A CURB-BIT

By H. Irving King.

Julian Haverill and Mary Blaisdell were trying their best to save money for the reason that their parents would not consent to their marriage until they could produce between them the sum of two thousand dollars.

Deacon Blaisdell and the widow Haverill had talked the matter over and this two thousand dollar decree was the result. "There is nothing like cultivating a saving habit," said the widow. Mary was twenty-three and Julian twenty-five to the widow and the deacon they were mere boy and girl.

"We want those young people to acquire the saving habit while they are young" agreed the deacon.

The saving of the lovers had been accumulating for some months when Julian and Mary held a council of war—or rather a financial congress. "How much have you saved so far?" asked Julian.

"I have saved one hundred dollars" replied Mary "and you." "I also have saved about the same—to be exact one hundred and twenty-five. What's to be done? This sort of thing puts our marriage in the never—never class. Mother makes me pay board and buy my own clothes.

"And I," said Mary, "could not have saved anything if father had not increased my allowance—I wonder if we could not get our parents to cut down the amount required. It's worth trying."

Julian had a good position with a good prospect before him in business, and Mary was by no means given to squandering money. The deacon had always seen to it that she did not have much to squander. Mary broached the question of a reduction of the ransom to her father and was met with a stern refusal. Julian suggested the same thing to his mother with a like result. The lovers discussed the question of a revolt.

A week or so later the deacon said: "Mary, how much have you and Julian managed to save up between you so far?" Mary told him.

"Hum," said he, "Well, here's five hundred to add to your savings."

At about the same time the widow said to Julian: "I shall not charge you any board hereafter. You have shown such good disposition toward saving that I will help you that much." So time went on and at last Mary and Julian had one thousand dollars stored up. But time was still to go on—and they felt that they could wait and save no longer—that a crisis had arrived. Theeir parents knew that they had a thousand dollars between them, but in spite of all pleadings still remained obdurate.

"I tell you what," said Julian, "I have a friend who speculates on the exchange—buys stock you know—he makes lots of money at it. If I give him our thousand dollars I'll bet he could double it for us in no time."

"Let's try it," said Mary, "we never will get two thousand going on as we are." So Julian gave the thousand to his friend—and his friend invested it for him. After that how Julian did watch the stock market reports. At first his particular stock went up—and then it began to go down. And Julian and Mary were wiped out. There was woe and lamentation then.

"We must begin all over," wept Mary.

"Yes, all over," sighed Julian. "And our parents are sure to ask us some day soon how much we have saved—and then what shall we tell them?"

"Oh, I don't know—I can't think."

"There is only one way out of it," said Julian with resolution." I have a good job—I can support a wife all right. We are both of age. I have enough money left to buy the ring: Let's go and get married and trust the rest to luck." And so it was arranged. They knew that they would have to take out a marriage license. There was bound to be a row—but what of it. They were two desperate lovers.

Now it so happened that the deacon who was a man of affairs with many investments and who sometimes took a "flyer in the market when he could get a sure thing, had plunged heavily on the bear side of that very same stock in which Julian had investedon the bull side. And the deacon had reaped rich rewards.

"Widow," said he to Julian's mother, "I have just made a lot of extra money. I can afford to set those two youngsters up in life. I guess they have acquired the saving habit by this time. What do you say?" The widow said she thought so, too, and a little later she and the deacon came into the room where Julian and Mary were holding their lodge of sorrow. And the deacon said.

"Well, young folks, do you think you have learned your lesson?" "We have," sighed Julian and Mary in concert, wondering how the deacon had found out about their unfortunate venture into financial high jinks.

"I guess so too," said the deacon. "Your mother agrees, Julian, go and get married as soon as you please."

"But father, how did you find out?" asked Mary. "Find out what?" asked the deacon. And then Mary and Julian, between them, spilled the beans. "Nevertheless" said the deacon when the confession of the lovers was ended, "go and get married. Widow I reckon we made a mistake in trying to drive these two youngsters with a tight rein. Love won't stand a curbbit."

ROMANCE OF BRITAIN'S SECRET SERVICE IN "GREAT DECEPTION"

Realistic Air-Raid on New York Made for New Kane Picture Showing at the Regent

"The Great Deception," Robert Kane's new picture for First National, which comes today to the Regent Theatre here, is a romance of the British Secret Service during the World War. George Gibbs wrote the story under the title of "The Yellow Dove."

In the photoplay Ben Lyon appears as a member of the British Secret Service, matching wits with Basil Rathbone, who represents the head of the German espionage bureau operating in London.

Aileen Pringle appears as an American girl visiting in London at the outbreak of the war. Both Lyon and Rathbone develop an absorbing interest in the pretty girl.

Other members of a particularly fine cast are Sam Hardy, Charlotte Walker, Amelia Summerville, Hubert Wilkie and Lucian Prival. Howard Higgin directed.

In the course of the story Ben Lyon does a good deal of dangerous stunt flying. Miss Pringle is in the plane with him at the time.

For one of the most important scenes in "The Great Deception" a sham air raid was made on New York city. The army base there co-operated by repelling the "raid" with anti-aircraft guns and giant searchlights while the cameras photographed the event.

YOUNG NOBLEMAN FALLS TO DEATH

Hungarian Count Found With Broken Back Below Cliff.

VIENNA, Jan. 17 (United Press).—A lantern lit search through the passes of the Semmering Mountains today ended with the discovery of the broken body of Count Bela Szchenyi, 17 years old, a relative of Count Laszlo Sechenyi, Hungarian Minister to the United States, and by marriage related to the Vanderbilt family. Searchers were summoned to the boy's body by the barking of his dog, which had been his only companion on a hiking expedition which began yesterday.

Count Bela's back was broken by a 130-foot fall over a cliff. Count Bela's dog tried to bite the searchers as they approached his master's body.

Count Bela was the son of Count Julius Szechenyi.

"She's the Happiest Woman I Know!"

OFTEN you hear such expressions about people. And in nearly every case the real reason for such happiness is a body that is right—through right eating. Food has a tremendous influence on the way we feel, on the way we look at life, because it's our food which must supply all our energy.

Select your daily foods with care. Choose Grape-Nuts for breakfast, for these good reasons.

Grape-Nuts, made from whole wheat and malted barley, supplies the five essential elements of nutrition. It is specially prepared for digestion. It has one of the most delightfully appetizing flavors. It is crisp—and through the enjoyable chewing of Grape-Nuts you healthfully exercise your teeth and gums.

Grape-Nuts is very inexpensive. Four teaspoonfuls, costing less than one cent, is sufficient for each person. Serve with milk or cream right from the package. At all grocers' in wax-wrapped packages.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

INVESTIGATIONS OF POULTRY MEN HELP DAIRYMEN IN THEIR FIELD

Dairy Research is Slow Because Reproduction is Slow.

MANY CULL HERDS.

Constant Weeding Will Be Always Necessary With Dairy Cattle.

The investigator in animal problems has a great advantage if he can experiment with small animals that can be kept in large numbers and that reproduce at comparatively short intervals. Probably it is for this reason that poultry investigators have been uncovering so much new knowledge in recent years. Dairy investigation is slow because reproduction is slow but in many cases we can apply to our own problems the knowledge that is acquired in easier ways. We can learn a lot from the poultryman. Take germinated oats for instance. Some years ago it was discovered that germinating oats until they had a white growth of half an inch and then feeding to hens enabled them to digest the starch in their food much more readily and had a favorable effect on health and reproduction. The practice of feeding germinated oats is now almost universally in practice on well-managed poultry farms. More recently it has been discovered that the feeding of germinated oats to cows that are sterile may give new life to the ovaries and aid conception. Then there is the matter of direct sunlight. Poultry investigators have known for several years that chick exposed to direct sunlight—that is, not passing through glass—will not develop leg weakness, which is the equivalent of rickets in humans and a stunted, weak-boned development in calves. Dairymen who turn their stock out in the yard every day are, therefore, in line with the most recent scientific discovery. Poultrymen have also discovered that there are several kinds of glass cloth that will admit the rays that window glass excludes and they are using these preparations in preference to glass in laying and brooder houses. Why not glass substitutes in our stables and calf pens? It is worth considering. Poultrymen have proved that fresh, dry air, even if cold, is to be preferred to warm, moist air. We believe this to be true also of dairy cattle and particularly young stock. Poultrymen are feeding cod liver oil and it would be interesting to know what effect cod liver oil would have on delicate calves. Let us take knowledge and use it, no matter from what source it comes.

Why So Many Poor Pure Breds?

"Why are there so many scrub pure bred cattle in this country," a visitor from Scotland was once led to inquire. There are several reasons and all capable of readjustment. Perhaps the first and foremost reason is that too many who buy pure bred cattle have an idea that all the offspring will be valuable and that all the heifers must be reared. The idea of vealing a calf that can be registered seems to be far from the mind of the average breeder. As a matter of fact, there are scrub calves in every herd, no matter how good the foundation stock and unless these are disposed of for meat, the average quality of the herd will steadily depreciate. The late A. C. Hallman once bewailed the fact that the Holsteins of recent years show so little improvement over the best animals of the breed when he first started to import the black and whites into Canada. He questioned if present-day breeders were practicing the close selection that made the breed in the first place. Dairy cattle will never be developed to the point where constant weeding of even the most richly bred stock will not be necessary. Prof. H. Barton was once inclined to think that too early breeding was perhaps the main cause of small size in pure bred herds. He estimated that 75 per cent of all registered dairy herds were depreciating in quality rather than improving. He told the writer of one trip through a famous stock section. "In almost all the barns entered," said he, "the biggest and best cows were the foundation cows that had been purchased from other breeders. The young stock was generally undersized and the young cows gave little promise of ever developing the scale of their dams. I inquired about age of breeding and found that most heifers were bred to freshen so young that development was stunted." We cannot set any age as correct for breeding. It depends on the breed and development. It is a pretty safe rule, however, not to have heifers come in before 30 months except in the smaller breeds and even there we would set the minimum at 27 months. Then there is the question of feeding. We do not believe in forcing young stock with grain rations but the roughage and pasture should be the best for yearlings and a fair amount of grain will not come amiss with the calves up to one year. Finally, there is the scrub, pure bred bull—another controllable factor.

FEDERAL MINISTER.

Hon. H. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture in the King Government.

PARALYSIS IN COWS SHOWS INCREASE

Cheap Preventatives May Check Disease in Early Stages.

Paralysis of milk cows is said to be on the increase but it is still so uncommon that most farmers are not acquainted with the trouble. Two years ago we were asked by a neighbor to drop in and see a cow that was "not right." When we went in the stable she was lying down and got up with extreme difficulty. Her owner said that the first symptoms of trouble was that the cow became stiff in her gait. Later she walked with difficulty. She still ate well. What was the trouble? She was a heavy milking grade Holstein and he did not want to lose her. We happened to be acquainted with the trouble. It was all a matter of nutrition. We are coming to believe that most troubles in the stable are nutritional at bottom. This herd had been fed all winter on corn silage, straw and home-grown grain. All of these feeds are deficient in minerals and the cow, to supply the minerals needed for her milk and her general nutrition, had drawn so heavily on her bones that she was becoming crippled. We advised our neighbor what was needed.

As the taking of the advice meant money outlay, nothing was done until the cow was completely paralysed. Then the veterinary was called and gave exactly the same advice and charged a couple of dollars for his trouble. When a cow is noticeably paralysed, it is well to dry her as soon as possible to check this drain on her system. Start feeding immediately those feeds that are rich in minerals, such as clover hay or alfalfa and oilcake meal and bran. In addition we would advise feeding a mixture of equal parts salt, steamed bonemeal and charcoal,—three ounces daily. In severe cases, three or four tablespoons of cod liver oil daily, given as a drench in milk, is good treatment. It is also good to have the cow in direct sunlight as much as possible. The trouble never develops where cows are properly fed.

TURKEY PRICES GOOD.

Owners Pleased With This Season's Returns.

The prices obtained for turkeys on the Ontario markets the past fall and this winter, should encourage many more farmers to take up their breeding. Turkeys have proved one of the best paying crops on the farms of Manitoulin island, notwithstanding the late springs that are common there. In the older part of the province, where spring is earlier, turkeys get more time for growth, and will thus be considerably heavier. There are no conditions on Manitoulin island that are favorable to turkey growing that cannot be found in Southern Ontario, and the latter has the decided advantages of closer proximity to markets and earlier springs. With turkeys bringing the producers $3 to $5 each, they make a good sideline for the average farmer.

CANADA'S TOBACCO CROP

The production of tobacco in Canada in 1926 was 28, 824,000 pounds from 33,356 acres, according to a preliminary estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Ontario, with 23,493 acres and an average of 254 pounds an acre, contributed 20,064,000 pounds.

CANADA A BIG EXPORTER

Canada led the world as an exporter of both wheat and flour in the 12 months ending July 31, 1926, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In the 12 months, Canada exported 275,461,100 bushels of wheat and 10,896,700 barrels of flour.

PROTECT TREES

Young trees and even trees up to fifteen or twenty years of age in sod orchards should be amply protected this fall against mice and rabbits, if losses from girdling are to be avoided next spring.

SWEET MILK

Feeding silage or turnips before milking or having decaying turnips near the cow stable may taint the milk as it is being drawn from the cow. Few food products taint so easily as warm milk and few foods are as disagreeable to take as tainted milk.

LIGHT SNOW FALL.

Winter Coat is Great Help For Soil Condition.

While farmers are enjoying the mild winter weather, a little more snow would be a help, it is stated. Reports from the surrounding areas show that the snowfall has been much heavier in some rural areas than it has in the section immediately surrounding Peterboro'. Snow is nature's fertilizer, and it is a great benefit to the soil. Experienced farmers state that better crops always follow a winter with a heavy snowfall, and for this reason they would like to see the weather man be a little more generous. The snow puts the soil in good working state and nourishes it as well. The agriculturists will not worry over blocked roads if the crops next year are to be improved. After the experience of 1925 the land owners are looking for a little favorable consideration.

SEED GROWING IS PROFITABLE SAYS MINISTER

Canada Produces Big Exportable Surplus of High Grade Seeds.

ALFALFA INCREASES.

One District in British Columbia Produces 70,000 Pounds of Timothy Seed.

Seed production in Canada is rapidly becoming an important and profitable industry, states Honourable Mr. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, in his latest report. The inherent qualities of winter hardiness and vigour of growth possessed by Canadian-grown seeds has brought a great demand for them in foreign markets. The thorough system of grading, strictly enforced by the Dominion Seed Branch, has given foreign and domestic buyers complete confidence in our seeds.

Canada produces an exportable surplus in high-class seeds of cereals, forage crops and vegetables. The production of these seeds is continually increasing and they are supplanting imported stocks on our home markets. Especially great progress has been made in the production of seed of alfalfa, malting barley, and browntop or Rhode Island bent grass. Our alfalfa crop increased from 238,000 acres in 1920 to 859,000 acres in 1926, and this remarkable increase has been brought about largely by the development of our own seed supply from varieties which can withstand our severe winters. In Northern Ontario, special attention is being given to the growing of barley seed, as malting barley of high quality, which finds a ready market, can be produced in that region. In British Columbia, one district alone gave a yield of 70,000 pounds of timothy seed and 6,000 pounds of meadow fescue of the finest quality. Many other examples of our progress in seed growing might be cited, all showing the great possibilities the future holds for this industry.

FARMER GIVES MORE THAN HE RECEIVES

Survey Shows He Fails To Get Share of Country's Profits.

Balancing production against income, a survey of the economics of agriculture reveals that the farmer isn't getting his share of the country's profits.

That's long been the cry of the country against the city, but now actual facts and figures are presented to prove the farmer's complaint. The information is offered by the National Industrial Conference Board, which has been making a thorough study of the production and income of the purely productive branches of industry as against the distributive and financial system.

In the productive branch, the survey includes the workers in agriculture, manufacture, mining and transportation. In the other branches are those engaged in banking, trade, construction and government service. The survey covers the years from 1850 to 1920 and shows a trend especially in agriculture that has been continuing since 1920.

A conclusion of the board is that the combined share in the national income of the productive branches of industry in the 70 years under study has declined in proportion to the number of workers in those occupations, while it has increased on the same basis in the other fields. And agriculture, it is found, has suffered worst of all.

What Agriculture Gives.

1. He buys on the average about $10,000,000,000 worth, or about one-sixth of our manufacturing production.

2. Industrial employment of nearly half the country's workers depends on his material.

3. He supplies a fifth of the railway freight tonnage of the country.

4. His products form nearly half the value of our total exports.

5. His taxes defray one-fifth the total cost of the government.

Much Land—Low Value.

6. His property represents one fifth the country's total wealth.

7. He contributes about one-sixth the country's income.

And here's how he's been repaid for this:

His share in the national income, from 1850 to 1920, has declined from 34.6 per cent to 13.8 per cent, although he still represents a third of the country's population.

At the same time the share of the distributive system—the other half—increased from 26.2 per cent in 1850 to 46.4 per cent in 1920.

APPLE EXPORTS.

Paint Daily With Iodine Until Affected Part is Healed.

The export of apples from Canada in the last fiscal year amounted to 1,388,493 barrels worth 6,250,186, as compared with 1,406,237 barrels worth 6,316,000 in the previous year and 1,653,206 barrels worth 7,271,683 in the year before that. This total export is equal to nearly forty per cent. of the average Canadian apple crop of the last five years. The great bulk of the exports go to the United Kingdom, which last year took 1,290,650 barrels worth 5,743,009. Other heavy purchasers are the United States, New Zealand, Sweden, Newfoundland, China, Hong Kong and Denmark.

PICKANINNY VISITS LONDON ZOO

This llama lamb, born recently at the London Zoological Gardens, is jet black, an unusual trick of nature. The mother seemed a bit surprised, but it will be only a few months before the youngster develops all the white markings of its elders.

FEED PROBLEM SERIOUS MATTER

Majority of Farmers Have Plenty of Feed For Their Stock.

NEW GRINDER.

BURNBRAE, Jan. 17—With the advent of the New Year local farmers are casting anxious eyes over the list of feed prices and speculating as to whether additional feed will have to be purchased to carry the stock through to the grass. While the majority of farmers have plenty to put them over the rest of the winter, a number are heavily stocked and will have to rely upon mill-feeds to a certain extent. At the present time mill-feeds can be purchased at a fairly reasonable rate with prospects of higher prices in the near future. Bran is quoted locally at 1.60 to 1.90 a hundred pounds, according to the quantity purchased; shorts 1.70 to 1.80; oilcake meal 3.10 to 3.40. Quaker dairy ration 2.20. Oats form the staple ration for most local dairymen and are quoted at prices ranging from 50 to 60 cents a bushel. Most of the farmers in this district grow oats as the chief cereal crop, with a few adding barley or spring wheat to make the ration heavier. Those who have had a good crop of oats during the past season are in a pretty safe condition as regards the feed problem, for with the addition of a little bran or oilcake a very satisfactory dairy ration can be secured.

Messrs. Stephen and Clark have installed a new process grinder, which bids fair to become a success in making good feed mixtures. In addition to grinding coarse grains in varying degrees of fineness, this mill will handle alfalfa or sweet clover. During late years, it has been proved that alfalfa meal, from good green hay, is a splendid appetizer, as well as providing considerable food value in the feeding of hogs and poultry. Undoubtedly, when more grinders of this style are used, farmers will pay more attention to the mixing of feeds to procure a perfectly balanced ration.

Five Pairs of Twins.—An Aberdeen-Angus bull in Iowa is the sire of five pairs of twin calves this season. The herd of which he is the head, won thirteen grand champion and nineteen champion ribbons at state fairs this year.

Wool to Liverpool.—The last steamer to clear from Montreal before the close of navigation for the present season carried a shipment of 70,000 pounds of graded wool from the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers to Liverpool. This was the largest shipment from this country to England in 1926.

New Zealand Lambs.—A shipment of 3,000 New Zealand frozen lambs reached Toronto recently, where they were offered for sale to Christmas shoppers. How kindly Canadian consumers, accustomed to the fresh-killed home product, took to the frozen variety remains to be seen. Frozen lamb is not as popular as it was at one time.

MACHINERY COST RELATIVELY LOW

Average Expenditure Is $2.85 Per Acre on Eastern Canadian Farms.

PERCENTAGE LOW.

An investigation into the cost of farm machinery, an account of which is given by E. S. Hopkins, Dominion field husbandman, in his latest annual report, has elicited many interesting facts. From data received from farmers all over the country it was found that the average annual cost of general farm machinery on farms examined in the prairie provinces was $1.36 per acre of cultivated land as compared with $2.85 per acre on those in Eastern Canada. This cost includes depreciation as based on the lifetime of the machines, current interest, repairs and housing. The reason for this difference is, of course, the large acreage of prairie farms. Moreover, during the lifetime of implements a very much larger total acreage is worked before the implements are discarded on the prairies.

Percentage Low.

The investigation also shows that the expense incurred by machinery in the cost of producing crops is a relatively small percentage of the total cost. In fact, on the farms from which reports were received it was 8.5 per cent for wheat in the prairie provinces and 9.8 per cent for oats in Eastern Canada. It has proved economica whenever the size of the farm will warrant its purchase.

These figures showing the annual cost of farm machinery are average figures covering a large number of farms. In commenting on them, Mr. Hopkins points out that it should be borne in mind that each individual farm has a separate cost, depending on the amount of machinery owned, the care which is exercised in handling it, and the number of acres in the farm.

Chasing the Ticks.—Evidently sheep ticks are facing a hard winter. The Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers report that more dip has been sold this season than ever before. Since last spring 400 cases of powder dip, sufficient to make 400,000 gallons of dipping solution—or enough to dip twenty-five per cent. of all the sheep in Canada—have been distributed.

Over 80 Jerseys sold.—According to Elmo Ashton, of the Jersey Breeders' Association, at the recent Royal Winter Fair over 80 head of Jerseys, worth $90,000, were sold by the Jersey breeders who attended the exhibition.

A New Giant Ox.—New Zealand holds the record for the heaviest ox. A grade Holstein-Friesian was recently slaughtered there that dressed 2,394½ lbs., or 72½ lbs., more than the giant "Durham" ox of a century ago that has held the record since 1807. The live weight of the New Zealand animal was 3,653 lbs.

To remove rust stains from any material, use equal parts of table salt and cream of tartar. Wet the stain and sprinkle the mixture on thickly. Then place the material in the sun.

New Minister of Lands and Forests in Ontario May Set Aside Rocky Land For Reforestation

A large area lying between a line from the Severn River to the Ottawa, cutting through the Counties of Haliburton, Hastings and Renfrew, and Algonquin Park into a lumbering and tourist district, may be set apart for forestry if a scheme hinted at by Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, is carried into effect.

The proposal involves the purchase of the present farm holdings. By conserving the game and forests, Mr. Finlayson believed the tourist trade would prove a strong revenue-producer, in addition to the potential forest wealth.

Hon. Mr. Finlayson stated at a meeting of the Wholesale Lumber Dealers' Association that the department is considering making large appropriations for reforestation in Southern Ontario and for giving assistance in Northern Ontario. He urged that lumbermen support the Government in its effort to prevent depletion of woodlands. He also urged use of Canadian woods in building, and said he was considering bringing a recommendation before the Government to have Canadian woods used exclusively, when required, in the erection of Government buildings.

UNITED STATES FALL PIG CROP SHOWS BIG DROP

June Estimate of 36 Per Cent Drops Four Above 1925.

NO SPRING INCREASE.

Reduction Probably To Occur During First Six Months of 1927.

The United States Department of Agriculture pig survey for the corn belt states as of December 1 reveals a surprising condition. The report, which is preliminary for corn belt, points to:

1. "An increase in the eleven corn belt states of about 4 per cent. in the fall pig crop of 1926.

2. "An increase of less than 1 per cent. in the combined spring and fall crops of 1926.

3. "No indicated increase in the spring pig crop of 1927 for these states.

4. "A probable decrease in hog slaughter during the marketing year, 1926 to 1927."

The increase in the fall pig crop is shown as a little over 4 per cent. above the fall crop of 1925. The number of sows farrowed was about 5 per cent. larger, but there was a small decrease in the average size of litters saved. This increase is equivalent to about 500,000 pigs.

Spring Breeding 9 Points Up.

The number of sows bred or to be bred to farrow in the spring of 1927 is shown as about 9 per cent. larger than the number actually farrowed in the spring of 1926. Previous surveys have shown that the number of sows reported in June as farrowed in the spring has been from 8 to 10 per cent. less than the number reported in December as bred or to be bred.

If this same spread prevails in the spring of 1927, the actual number of sows farrowing next spring will show little change from the number that farrowed in the spring of 1926.

The above figures, showing about 1 per cent. increase in the combined spring and fall crops of 1926 over 1925, are as indicated by the surveys and no allowance has been made for the increased deaths from cholera this year over last.

Allow for Cholera.

The increase in deaths from cholera this year is estimated to be between 1,250,000 and 1,500,000 head. This would indicate a probable decrease in the slaughter of hogs during the hog marketing year, November 1, 1926, to October 31, 1927, of upward of 1,000,000 head from the 40,800,000 head slaughtered under federal inspection in marketing years 1925 to 1926.

Most of this reduction will probably occur during the first six months of the marketing year. With such a reduction the inspected slaughter of 1926 to 1927 would be the smallest since 1920 to 1921.

The fall pig crop of 1926 is much smaller than was indicated as probable by the June, 1926, survey, which showed an increase of 36 per cent. in sows bred or to be bred for fall farrow over sows farrowed in the fall of 1925.

This decrease can be ascribed to several causes, among which were the near-failure of the corn crop over large areas in the states west of the Missouri river, the widespread cholera epidemic and the poor outlook for the corn crop in many states in July and August.

Good Spring Prices.

In commenting on the above report, the Chicago Drovers' Journal says:

"The survey found an increase of about 4 per cent. in the fall pig crop of 1926 in the 11 corn belt states, and an increase of less than 1 per cent. in the combined spring and fall crops of 1926. It will be recalled that the Government's June intentions report indicated that there would be an increase of 36 per cent. in sows bred to farrow this fall. The principal reasons for failure of this large increase in fall production to materialize were poor corn prospects and the outbreak hog cholera.

"More important than these 1926 figures, at this time, is the promise of farrowing next spring. Here no increase over last spring is indicated!

HONEY SERVES VARIOUS PURPOSES

Found to Make a Fine Mixture With Alcohol for Anti-Freeze.

Honey sweetens life in many ways. This is apparent when we see the various uses to which it is put. Formerly it was used mainly as a spread on bread, but today there are a great number of other ways of using it to vary one's menu. Though the best way to serve honey is in its natural or raw form in desserts, as a sweetener, it is used to a large extent in cookery both in the baking of cakes and making of bread, to which it imparts the property of keeping fresh for a long time—this is a point which all good housekeepers should note.

Besides this it is used in the making of candies, both as a centre which is chocolate-coated and as an ingredient in the many other kinds of sweets, for which recipes are to be found in all good cook books.

A very appetizing new spread is now manufactured by incorporating honey with peanut butter to make what is called "honey-nut butter."

Apart from entering directly into table use, it is used to make most excellent vinegar, said by many to be equal to the best produced.

The motorist, too, may sweeten his temper by the use of it as an anti-freeze. It has been found that equal parts of honey, water and alcohol make a mixture that has proved very satisfactory to some who have taken the proper precautions to see that all gaskets and connections are tight, so that no leakage can occur, for places where water cannot pass through honey mixture will.

We can realize the value of honey as a natural food when we see some of the large breakfast food manufacturers now advocating on all packages of cereals put out by them the use of it as a sweetener.

FINE QUALITY OF BEEF DISPLAYED ON LOCAL MARKETS THIS SEASON

PROVINCIAL MINISTER.

Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture in the Ferguson Government.

Sale By Grade Would Help Industry—Retailers Label Cuts.

PRICES LOW.

No Competition By Sellers in Canada in Offering Prime Cuts.

At this time of year one cannot help but be impressed with the quality of the beef which is displayed on the market and in retail stores throughout the city. It is tempting, to say the least.

Producers of the quality product are not satisfied with the price they receive. While the consumer might think that he pays plenty for the choice cuts, it should be remembered that only a small percentage of what he contributes reaches the live stock producer, for there are the expenses in connection with the marketing and the margins which the different interests must have before final delivery is made. Considering all these circumstances, the live stock producer claims that the price of Christmas beef is not far enough in advance of the ordinary market to encourage him to specialize in this production.

~~Across~~ Borcer.

It is reported that in this country there is not the encouragement from the trade which one finds in the United States. At the Royal the owners of prize cattle were disappointed, it is stated, with the offers made for their animals. There does not appear to be the desire on the part of restaurants, hotels and railroads to offer this prime product, while across the border there is keen competition for the best the country can produce and the owner reaps the benefit.

Want Grade.

At the International Live Stock exposition in Chicago the Pennsylvania railroad purchased 129 head of show cattle at an average cost of 20.10 per hundredweight and weighing 1,189 pounds. A hotel secured a load of prize-winning Angus steers, weighing 1,050 pounds, at 23½ cents a pound. It is pointed out that not only are these sales a great help to the business, but they stimulate a demand for better beef. There is a vast difference in the quality, and it is felt that if the meat supply was graded in the same manner as certain other farm products that consumers would soon become educated to demand the best, and in this way the improvement, which the live stock men declare is so important to the welfare of the industry, could be brought about.

YOUNG CATTLE EASILY INFECTED BY RING WORM

Disease of the Skin Result of Poor Animal Husbandry.

A TREATMENT.

Decrease In Amount Sent Out But Value Increases.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Ringworm is a skin disease present in many herds during the winter period. It is a disease of domestication, favored by poor animal husbandry practice. Quite common and most frequently seen in young cattle, appearing a short time after freeze-up when the animals have returned from pastures to the infected quarters that they occupy during the feeding period.

Caused by a Parasite.

The parasite, Trichophyton tonsurans, which is responsible for the ringworm condition, is a hardy rascal and can live in the stables, feed-racks, mangers and yards from spring to Autumn and is always ready to welcome his victim, be it a man, a horse a sheep a pig or a steer,—cattle are preferred, offering a skin that is usually soft and porous—just what the parasite needs. The transmission of the parasite may be direct or indirect. Indirect by means of harness, curry comb, blanket, bedding, tie chain, halters, mangers or stall partitions. In cattle, natural infection occurs through contact of diseased and healthy animals, as rubbing or licking one another. The parasite after reaching an animal locates in the hair follicles, causing the hair to become brittle and to split or break off. A single organism once established under favorable conditions multiplies at a tremendous rate, so much so that thousands of hair follicles are invaded and the circular patches of grey scaly crust increase. Yearlings and calves are most susceptible, particularly so if crowded together in warm stables, where the organism is present on walls or mangers. The disease appears around the ears, eyes, neck, lips and tailhead, the parts that an itchy animal can rub on an infected object most easily. The period of incubation for this parasite varies from seven to thirty days. Small nodules covered with asbestos-like crust first appear, growing into areas several inches in diameter. These are generally thicker on dark than on light skin. Considerable irritation develops, causing the animal to rub the encrusted area, aiding inflammation with thickening and cracks. If the crust is removed a raw, bleeding surface is exposed.

Treatment Suggested.

As soon as ringworm is detected an effort should be made to isolate the affected animals and to treat them at once. A definite plan of treatment should be followed. Wash the crusted areas with water and soap to soften the scale, remove the hair around the area, and also the scale, then dry and paint over with iodine. The iodine should be applied daily until the affected part is healed. Ointments containing sulphur, or an ointment made of one part powdered bluestone to six parts of vaseline, may be used instead of iodine. Pine tar is also a good dressing. Oils and greases tend to check the development of ringworm. This disease could be prevented and the loss caused by its presence prevented by the practice of proper clean-up measures in the stables and yards used by the farm animals.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O. A. College.

CANADA IMPROVES ITS WOOL PRODUCTS

Clip of the Past Season Was 11,000,000 Pounds.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—The wool industry in Canada has increased not only in production but in quality, according to the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers of the Dominion.

The wool clip of the past season has been about 11,000,000 pounds as compared with 10,000,000 pounds in 1925. This is only wool as removed from the mature breeding sheep and does not include any lambs' or pulled wool.

According to the same authority the wool has been removed in good condition and there is every indication that a superior product is coming from the producers in this country.

This is in marked contrast to the situation a few years ago when wool produced in Canada was offered for sale in such unsatisfactory state that even Canadian manufacturers regarded the domestic product with indifference.

In considerable measure the revolution is due to the introduction of government grading and in systematic marketing effected recently.

CHAMPION JERSEY

Famous Cow Goes on World Tour for Exhibition Purposes.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(Special).—The champion jersey cow of the world, an out and out British Columbia product, is to go on tour, according to the directors of the David Spencer, Limited, of this city.

The cow, which is called Pretoria Oxford Janet, has a wonderful history. It is owned by Foster Whitaker, aged 17, of Armstrong, B. C., son of Henry Whitaker, rancher of that district, and originally came into young Foster's hands some six years ago through his being a member of a Government pure-bred calf club at Armstr...

Major-Ge... ...e Lindsay, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., of London, England, who has been making a first-hand tour of investigation of Western Canada, in which territory he has considerable investments, made the statement that there is plenty of capital in Great Britain now for investment in Western Canada and that he expected to see a heavy influx of British money into the Dominion, particularly for the development of natural resources.

Agricultural progress in Saskatchewan is on the upgrade. During the past few months land sales have been brisk, half of the purchases being of raw, unbroken farms. Wholesale implement dealers of the Province all look for a big year of farm production in 1927. One implement dealer states that he has now more orders for spring delivery that the total of his 1926 sales.

'CHURCH NIGHT' SOCIAL SUCCESS

Gathering Held By Millbrook United Church Well Attended.

MILLBROOK NEWS.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 17.—"Church Night," a social and instructive gathering, now being introduced into the United Church, was inaugurated on Wednesday evening, the attendance being most gratifying, and the interest and enjoyment giving heartening promise of continued and increasing success.

There was no formality about the affair, two members of the session, Dr. A. Jemison and Mr. H. W. Johnston greeting everyone as they came in the door. A "spiral handshake" broke up any lingering stiffness, and aroused plenty of merriment. Ernest Burnham presiding at the piano as the long line turned in upon itself, everybody in the room having shaken hands with everyone else before the "spiral" was complete.

The little folk had their share in the evening, piano duets and solos by Bryer Edmunds and Mary Burnham being enjoyed while the guests were gathering. Misses Bertha Lang, May Byam, Annie McMahon, and Estelle Hetherington also gave piano numbers during the evening. Community singing, the hymns being thrown upon the screen, was another enjoyable feature. W. F. Fallis managed the lantern.

P. Stinson made an opening address of welcome on behalf of the official board, and the girls of the C.G.I.T. group acted a charade expressing "The Official Board Welcomes You." Mrs. A. J. Brown was the first to guess the meaning of the charade.

The social committee served light refreshments early in the evening, Mrs. (Rev.) P. H. Howard and Miss M. E. Needham, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, pouring coffee at the table from which the members of the board took their supplies for the service of the guests.

The pastor, Rev. P. H. Howard gave a brief talk on the purpose of "Church Night," using the topic, "Christian Fellowship in a Family Church," explaining that even in Apostolic times the church members gathered together in a social way, and this often led others to desire acquaintance with the Lord.

A fellowship, consistent with the associations of the Christian life, with "everybody in it and of it"; with money not an object; "it only costs a smile to get in, and a laugh to get out"—and with good nature, larger fellowship, and finer character, is the ultimate objective, and covers definitely what the board had in view in planning the innovation.

The two hundred families in connection with the church have been divided into eight districts, and each section will be responsible for one Wednesday evening during the remainder of the winter months.

The centre group, P. Stinson, convener, will have charge next Wednesday evening.

Grace Church W.M.A.

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church held its annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon, with encouraging reports from all departments received from the secretaries.

The amount raised totalled $160.00, and envelopes for monthly contributions were again distributed.

Officers elected for 1927 were:

President, Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell; Vice-Pres., Mrs. R. J. Doak; 2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. C. Thorndyke; Secretary, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Treasurer, Mrs. Kennedy; Secretary Expense Fund, Mrs. S. E. Eakins; Dorcas Secretary, Miss Eagleson; Secretary "Glad Tidings"—Mrs. J. N. McGill; Welcome and Welfare Secretary, Mrs. Thorndyke.

The general secretary, Mrs. Eakins, looks after the "home helpers," that is, members who through age, ill health, or home cares, are unable to attend the regular meetings, but pay their fees, and are interested in the Auxiliary work. Offering envelopes and literature are supplied these members, and in other ways the secretary sees that they are in close touch with whatever the Auxiliary is doing.

Members of the expense committee, besides the convenor, include Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mrs. Hawthorne, and Mrs. McGill.

The study book for 1927 is "Moslem Women"; the missionary monthly paper is given to each member of the Auxiliary, the subscriptions being paid out of the expense fund.

United Church W.M.A.

The first meeting of the new year for the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Stinson on Wednesday, and 3 o'clock, a large number of members and visitors being in attendance.

The Watch Tower was taken up after the opening business period, Mrs. A. J. Brown, convenor, giving some interesting items on "The National Temperance League of Japan;" Miss Nellie Finnimore news from Korea; and Mrs. McKnight mission work in Montreal.

Mrs. O. Williamson, superintendent of the Sunshine Mission Band, reported over $20.00 taken in at the Christmas concert, and a box of toys, books, candy, and clothing sent to Miss Hawken for use at Christmas time among her Ruthenian school children. Miss Hawken's field is at Wahstao, Alberta.

Mrs T H Aiken, convenor of Group E, took charge for the programme Mrs David Lunn reading the Scripture lesson from Philemon, and Miss Martha Lunn giving the devotional leaflet on "Faith and Our Fellow Men." Mrs. Stinson closed this period with prayer.

Mrs. Aiken gave the introduction to the 4th chapter in the study book, "Following in the Footsteps of the Great Physician," and Miss Nellie Hetherington covered the chapter in a most instructive talk.

A duet, "'Tis the Voice of Jesus," by Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Miss May Byam was much enjoyed.

Group E assisted the hostess in serving refreshments at the tea hour, the usual good social time being thoroughly entered into and appreciated.

Mrs. (Dr.) Rae and Mrs. Thos. Luxon moved and seconded the hearty vote of thanks to the hostess and the group in charge.

The Women's League of Grace Presbyterian church has had the Manse renovated and redecorated recently, and a handsome electric range is being installed, in preparation for occupation by the minister and his bride. The marriage of Rev. Mr. Riddle to Miss Harper, of Toronto, takes place this month. Since coming to the village Mr. Riddle has been boarding with Mr. Steele, and the Manse has not been in use.

Messrs. A. Miller and J. Redmond of Peterborough were business visitors in town this week.

ROSENEATH W. I. HEARS REPORT

Delegate To Central Ontario Convention Tells of Activities at Meeting.

HELPFUL ADVICE.

ROSENEATH, Jan. 17.—The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. E. Brisbin on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 6, and was well represented by members and a few visitors. President Mrs. Lily Turner conducted the meeting, which opened with singing the Maple Leaf Forever.

It was decided that the Institute tables be given free of charge to the Mission Band and to St. James' Church, and a social evening will be given on St. Valentine's Day, Feb. 14. The ladies will serve lunch and furnish a programme.

Mrs. George Ingham read an excellent paper, entitled "Thoughts of the New Year," which was full of good thoughts and a lesson to everyone.

It being relic day, many of the members brought with them their old relics, and this proved very interesting as each had the history of their ancient article. The oldest relic was shown by Miss Irene Brown, who had with her a cup and saucer decended from her great - great - grandparents and brought from England, over one hundred years old.

Mrs. W. Rogers, of Fenelia branch, was present. She was a delegate to the W. I. convention held in Toronto last November, and brought with her a splendid report, which read as follows:

"The twenty-fifth annual convention of the Women's Institute of Central Ontario opened on Tuesday, Nov. 16, in the Hygenic Auditorium, Toronto, with Mrs. T. W. Meek, of Alton, in the chair. The meeting opened with community singing.

"Mrs. E. L. Groves, of the Board of Education, Toronto, gave the address of welcome, and opened by telling a story of a negro lady that she had taken care of, and whenever she called to see her the negro lady would say, 'Honey, I'a glad to see you. You is mighty welcome.' Mrs. Groves assured the audience that this was the feeling of all present. She then spoke warmly of the work the Institutes were doing, especially among the children, and insisted on the splendid challenge of the child of today is issuing to the older generation. At this age when the fathers of today are reading 'Dare Devil Dick' in secret, the son is tinkering at his amateur radio set. She spoke of the children being creators, doing t' in . that the car. . . ture citizens is one of the greatest interests of the Women's Institute. Mrs. Groves is also in favor of women being on the school board.

"Mrs. E. Appelbe, of Georgetown, responded to the address of welcome, and said the W. I. organization was one of service. With the eleven standing committees, she thought great pride should be taken in the work.

"This was followed by reports from the standing committees on community activities, energies of knitting, school lunches, school fairs, community Christmas trees, libraries, community halls and getting grounds for parks, furnishing seats and tables.

"Mrs. Walker was the next speaker, and delivered an address on relief work, such as giving showers of fruit to hospitals and paying hospital fees for people who were absolutely in need of help. Mrs. Walker thought we should be up and doing and to tell others what we are doing. To do the best we can for others is a great help in doing our duty.

"The next speaker was Miss Grant, of Moore Creek, who advised that each branch should have a relief committee, and told the work of one branch where a mother died and the Women's Institute took charge of the infant babe and kept the home together. Another branch donate a silver cup to every infant at birth.

"Miss Chapman was the next representative of the W. I., and mentioned of branches sending clothing to Northern Ontario, also of having a grandmothers' day.

"Mrs. Charles Macoun, Secretary-Treasurer, of Campbellford, then gave a lengthy report, which was very interesting.

"The meeting then adjourned until evening, when Mrs. Duncan, of Weston, presided in the chair, followed by reports of committees on education and health. All who had attended the first convention in Toronto, also the Federated Board, came to the front and reported as follows: Institutes holding picnics and giving special prizes, co-operation between schools and the W. I. A. It was advised that children be encouraged to write an essay on Canada. Miss K. F. McIntosh, Brampton, spoke of health week staged in Simcoe County, and also said that owing to the women of today who drive their own car that motor mechanics and manual training should be added to the sewing and first aid classes.

"At this point the audience was favored with a duet by Miss Winnifred Smith and Mr. Cecil Lyons, entitled 'Laddie and Lassie,' who for an encore sang 'Madam, Will You Walk and Talk With Me'; a song, entitled 'Mary,' by Mr. Brown, organist of Cook's Church, Toronto; and a solo from Mr. C. Lyons, 'When Apples Grow on a Lilac Tree.' These selections were greatly appreciated.

"Miss Guest then gave a talk on immigration, and emphasized the sympathy, tolerance and undertaking of those interested in welcoming and caring for and adjusting newcomers to their district. She also said what a woman thinks today, her husband thinks tomorrow and says the day after tomorrow. Miss Guest stated that the Women's Institute's greatest service was in creating public opinion, and made special mention of what is being done for the immigrants by some of the W. I. branches.

"Dr. C. T. Currelly, Curator of the Ontario Museum, spoke on the rural home and gardens. He deplored the prevalance of the attitude on the part of the Ontario men. The man who beautifies his home and the woman who beautifies the neighborhood have put themselves there forever. Dr. Currelly thought that many Canadians are losing much of their habit of thinking of their homes as more or less temporary. He also thought that old people retiring were better to locate in some small village or town than in a city.

"Wednesday morning meeting opened in the usual manner, with Mrs. O. Dell, of Ridgeway, in the chair.

"The first item of interest on the programme was an open discussion on immigration, led by Miss Guest, and took up considerable time. Mrs. Ross, of Embro, reported on home economies. She divided it into three lines—food, clothing and shelter. Some diseases are treated by diet alone. Mrs. Ross spoke on the feeding of school children and school lunches. Her report showed much malformation still exiseting among rural children. We should study the food value of milk, eggs, etc.; also read a paper, entitled 'An Argument in the Kitchen,' by Helen Campbell, of the Dairy Board, Ottawa. She emphasized that we should study closely the literature that is circulated free of charge and sent out by the Government, and that all Institutes should have a library. Miss Guest considered the short sewing course a great help to the women of the Institute, and told demonstration of the many useful articles made from a flour sack.

"Dr. Margaret Patterson then spoke on health and pointed out that her subject was closely linked with that of economies as they overlap in many ways. The Provincial Department of Health will send a nurse to any community willing to put on a health week.

"Mrs. G. A. Putnam, Superintendent of Women's Institutes, spoke of the desire for rural women to have up-to-date equipment in their homes, labor-saving devices and household conveniences. She expressed great hope for the progress and extension of the work of the organization.

"In the afternoon Miss Chapman gave an address on young people's work of giving children some work of responsibility. Miss Chapman says how easy it is to create a happy atmosphere and a jolly good time when the programme is planned ahead, and to revive the old-time dances. She thought there was nothing better than the old square dance to get the old and young together. It means fewer wallflowers at a party.

"The Juniors then took over the meeting. Miss Lena Revell of Freelton made a very capable chairlady, and told many interestings things done by the Woman's Institute in Wentworth County, of how they raised money. Miss Helen King gave a paper on house-cleaning.

Miss Ida Clark spoke of the contest they had in gardens, the winning gardens scoring seventy to ninety points.

Miss Reba Wigley told of debates at public speaking contests.

Miss Irene Blackburn told of the girls' judging contest.

Miss Margaret Watson gave an address on the relationship among the Juniors and their activities in the local Fall fairs.

This was followed by a solo from Rev. Robinson of Markham "In Flanders Fields."

Mrs. W. Todd, Orillia, read the resolutions and a collection was taken in aid of Christie Street Military Hospital, proceeds $72.68.

Mrs. W. R. Lang gave a comprehensive address on legislation, speaking particularly on the Dower Act and the need of changes and amendments to protect the rights of married women.

It was moved by Mrs. A. A. Peel that a conference of women's organizations be called by the Woman's Institutes to look into the laws for women and children, and make recommendations to the Government where amendments or new laws were desired.

The large gathering then journeyed to the Palm Room of the Robert Simpson Company, where a delicious banquet was served. The party was then driven to the Royal Winter Fair in the T.T.C. bus.

Thursday morning the meeting concluded with Mrs. Meek in the chair. After a brief address, Mrs. Henry Aitken spoke on what the Womans Institutes have accomplished in their practical work, and told many interesting features.

Miss Appelbe gave a short talk on historical work in connection with the W.I.

Mrs. Field Robertson of the provincial board gave an excellent talk on the ideals of the organization and said, we are building today the road for tomorrow, and the road of tomorrow showed unlimited opportunities for service and a great challenge to work for home and country.

Miss Guest then told of planning programmes and said the Womans Institutes throughout the Dominion form a home-maker's university, and to maintain interest in the W. I. we should elect capable officers, furnish a first-class program, foster a spirit of co-operation, indulge in extensive advertising, create public opinion for Institute ideas, inspire confidence in Institute possibilities, enter into the work with prayer and faith; never say "Can't"; study and use government help; programe plannng

This report was thoroughly enjoyed by all present, and a vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Rogers for her kindness toward the W. I. of Roseneath. Not only was it a treat but it conveyed a great deal of help and brought new ideas.

Took A Friend's Advice And Found Relief

Mrs. A. Morash recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

"For over a year I suffered great pain," writes Mrs. A. Morash of West Dover, Halifax Co., N.S. "I could hardly walk for pains in my back. A friend told me about Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought a box and before I had it half used, I got relief. I have not had a pain in my back since and can recommend them to everybody as a sure relief for backache."

Dodd's Kidney Pills strike right at the seat of the trouble, the kidneys. They are no cure-all. Just simply and purely a kidney remedy.

FIRE VICTIMS LAID TO REST

This impressive scene was sketched by Fergus Kyle, the well known Canadian artist, during the funeral service for 40 of the Montreal theatre disaster victims. In the foreground in front of the altar are seen the little caskets resting on platforms placed over the pews. Nearly all these coffins were gleaming white. Every corner of the church was packed, and crowds lined the steps outside. When the service began great dark blinds were drawn, the only natural light coming from the large windows near the roof. The pillars in their simple draping of black streamers are shown.

Do Your Own Manicuring? Then Do the Job Right

BY NINON

Careful manicuring is a beauty rite that cannot be neglected without unpleasant and obvious consequences. Hangnails are not only unlovely and embarrassing, but are actually sources of infection and discomfort.

The weekly manicure is not nearly so important as the daily care, or is the pink and polished nails as important as the well-shaped cuticle.

Each night, after you wash your hands before retiring, rub your fingertips with cold cream, vaseline or olive oil and when the cuticle about the nail is well lubricated, push back the cuticle with an orange stick dipped in medicated cotton so that each little half moon is revealed.

Never cut the cuticle unless it has been neglected for so long and allowed to grow up so far that it cannot be pushed back, and then use very fine scissors and do not cut deep enough to cause bleeding. Should you be careless enough to do so, stop the bleeding with a styptic pencil and disinfect the area.

Manicure Weekly.

Manicuring when the cuticle is regularly cared for becomes a simple matter of cleanliness. If you do not go to a professional manicurist, you should have a weekly session of your own.

Before you begin to polish or file the nails, dip your hands in soapy water to get them in a soft receptive mood for treatment. After filing the nails, use an emery board to remove the rough edges. Very long finger nails are appropriate only for Chinese gentlemen, and for such women as lead lives of leisure and inactivity. Stenographers, musicians, golfers and housewifes must keep their nails short enough so they are not always being broken or registering their hard knocks.

Good taste dictates that nails be filed to follow the shape of the finger with a rounded point extending over the tip.

In these efficient and hasty days, few manicurists use anything but liquid polish and this polish, expertly applied, is adequate and lasts for a week. Badly and amateurishly applied, it is positively offensive. The highly colored finishes that leave the nails a deep red are anything but lovely. For myself, I prefer to go over my nails each day with the buffer and a little powder, instead of this readymade shine.

Liquid Bleach Good

If you use nail white under the nails, apply it with discretion. A liquid bleach that is introduced under the nail on a cotton dipped orange stick is very good. Nothing is better than orange juice, or a combination of equal parts of juice, peroxide and ammonia.

If your nails are so brittle they break often, or are unduly ridged or fluted, this indicates an acid condition of the blood that a doctor should treat. In case you bruise your nails severely, dip the finger tips in hot water—as hot as you can stand it—and keep them there for 15 minutes. This will keep the bruise from being black and unsightly.

Keep your manicure implements immaculately clean and your pastes and lotions covered.

Every night, before retiring, use an orange stick on the cuticle.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

In that embarrassing moment, Faith's first thought was for Cherry—she was immensely glad that her little sister had not opened the door when she and Bob Hathaway were in each other's arms.

"Yes," I took the letters," Faith told her quietly, but she could not keep her eyes from shining with joy. "I came to ask Bob for an explanation, and it's just as I thought—it wasn't Bob at all; he knew nothing whatever about the letters. It was his stenographer, Lola Gonzales—"

"She hates me like poison," Cherry's scarlet lips set in a thin, ugly line.

"Why?" Faith put her hand on Cherry's shoulder and turned the girl so that she had to face her.

"Well, I got her job with Mr. Cluny, didn't I? And if you must know," the little head, in its saucy brown cloche was flung up defiantly, "she's nuts about Chris Wiley, and I made him give her the air."

"He must have laid her off only temporarily," Bob Hathaway cut in unsmilingly, "for he's been going around with her since you became engaged to Uncle Ralph."

"That's a lie!" Cherry flung the ugly word at him in childish fury. "He's through with her, I tell you! I guess I ought to know—"

"Because you're seeing Chris Wiley yourself, on the sly," Bob Hathaway's anger rode high, reckless of Faith's distressed, pleading eyes.

"Cherry, you've got to apologize to Bob!" Faith seized her sister's arms and shook her as if she had been a naughty child. "He's going to do everything he can to unravel this mystery and put a stop to those blackmail letters, and I'm not going to let you pay him back by calling him ugly names. Apologize right now!"

To Bob's amazement Cherry's small face began to quiver, and tears welled up in the golden eyes.

"I'm sorry, Bob. I'll be good. I—I apologize." Cherry's voice came sweet and muffled from the little head cradled in the hollow of Faith's shoulder.

"All right, infant!" Bob's voice was comradely and gay again. "Now, listen to the report of Detective Faith Lane, and we'll decide where to go from here."

After Faith had rapidly sketched the day's adventures for Cherry—the finding of conclusive evidence against Lola Gonzales, Bob's logical accounting for his meeting with "Handsome Harry," Pete Gonzales, under the veranda of "Ye Olde Logge Cabin," and Lola's frightened fleeing during their absence from lunch.

Bob Hathaway reached for his hat. "There's no use wasting time in speculating on how Lola got the low-down on Cherry. The thing to do is to find her and put the fear of the Lord and the law into her. Wait—I'll look up her address and we'll drive out to her house."

Within five minutes the three of them were in Bob's roadster, headed for the "across-the-tracks" part of town.

It was Bob who knocked at the door and who greeted the shapeless, middle-aged, blondined woman who at last answered his knock.

"I'm your daughter's employer, Mr. Hathaway, Mrs. Gonzales," Bob smiled pleasantly. "She left me quite suddenly today, while I was at lunch, and her note said her mother was very ill. I wanted to offer any assistance in my power."

The woman but shook her head in frank bewilderment. "That Lola! What'll she be up to next? Lord, Mr. Hathaway, I ain't sick! And if I was Lola wouldn't know nothing about it. She ain't been livin' at home for a dog's age. She got sore and left home when I laid the law down to her about that low-life rascal, Chris Wiley."

"Do you know where she is living, Mrs. Gonzales?" Bob's voice was sympathetic and ingratiating at the same time.

"Got a room over on the West Side somewhere. Oh, Pete! Pete! Do you know Lola's address?" She turned her head and bawled into the black interior behind the door.

"Who wants to know?" a hoarse voice challenged.

"Mr. Hathaway, that Lola works for!" Mrs. Gonazles shouted. "Come-ere!"

There was no answer. Faith and Bob exchanged a quick glance of foreboding and suspicion as the seconds dragged on. At last Mrs. Gonzales, impatient from bawling unsuccessfully for her son, went in search of him.

"I'm going to scout around the back of the house," Bob told her suddenly. "Chase him in the car if he comes out this way. Cherry can drive."

TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1927

This should be one of the fortunate, stimulating days that bring good luck, according to astrology.

There is a sign of great promise for those who deal in real estate and the prophesy that even in winter there will be great activity.

In many cities plans of magnitude will be carried out, it is forecast, for 1927 is to be a year of tremendous accomplishment.

Good luck should come from dealing with elderly persons, while this rule prevails. Generosity and kindliness are likely to be prominently manifested, even by those who are usually crabbed.

Labor should feel the effect of a more favorable planetary rule today, when there is likely to be activity in new projects.

This should be a lucky day for those who seek employment. Under this rule it is well for persons of all classes to make the effort to improve their positions and increase their incomes.

Intelligence is to be revered more than in the past and it will be fashionable for women to cultivate spiritual beauty, the seers prophesy.

Again the seers prognosticate for the United States a growing trade with Mediterranean markets.

Italy this year will attract more American tourists than previously, it is prognosticated.

American diplomats are to have a busy time, especially in the spring, if astrologers are correct in their auguries.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a quiet, serene year in which they will benefit through elderly persons.

Children born on this day will be strong and steadfast, it is forecast, and many may seek the church in choosing a vocation.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The bodice cut low at one side of the back, shown above, is held over the right shoulder with a wreath of red flowers. It is cut straight and high at the front. In the center is a novel neckline—with a point in front which is held up with lame cords and tassel hanging at the back. Below is a sequin-trimmed frock with flesh chiffon over the shoulders.

• • •

Ever since the low-cut evening bodice first came to be worn, there have been alarmists to tell us that never before have women worn their evening clothes so outrageously low. Their idea seems to be that evening bodices are getting lower and lower—and they blush to think what we are coming to.

The fact really seems to be that, since low necks are worn, some women will get a certain satisfaction in wearing them just a bit lower than anyone else. Recently it has been at the back rather than at the front that Mrs. Grundy looks for cause for criticism—for bodices are rarely cut very low in front, though dressmakers have found many ways to display well-favored backs.

We are no longer limited to certain conventions in the matter of necklines—as was the case when a neck might be described as a v square, round or boat shaped. There are bodices that are cut on a diagonal line across the back—bodices that leave the shoulders quite bare but are held closely secured around the neck. Sometimes one shoulder is conventionally finished while over the other there is a short wreath of artificial roses.

An interesting neckline is shown in the sketch formed by a point at the front held up by a heavy gold cord that ends in two tassels that hang at the back, which is cut very low.

The third neckline in the sketch is achieved by means of flesh-colored chiffon cut yoke like to hold a sequin-covered frock in position. This is a charming arrangement. The chiffon is cut sometimes in a rounded, sometimes in a pointed yoke.

FOOD AND HEALTH

RECIPES AND ECONOMY

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

A well known editor talks about "the extravagance of economy." This particular woman finds that, true to her instincts, she is perpetually "scrimping." "Then one day I brought myself up," she said, "because I found that my scrimping was beginning to interfere with the wholesomeness of my diet."

Certainly, the editor was sensible to mend her ways when these ways interfered with health.

This question of when to economise and when not, in relation to food, is a broad one. Without attempting to discuss more than one aspect, I should like to think for a moment as to what might be done to one's favorite recipe to make it fit in better with one's food budget!

Have not we all such favorite recipes? Recipes for dishes that are wholly delectable, but wholly devastating to one's purse? We are apt to reserve such dishes for holiday treats. But there are the more every day recipes for the concocting of ordinary every-day foods. A bit of self-training will show the sensible housekeeper how to revise such recipes in such a way as to make the resulting dishes equally nourishing and considerably less expensive.

Just by way of illustration, take the matter of pea soup. There are any number of ways of making this soup. To mention only a few, we have cream of pea soup made with fresh milk and early June peas. Without a doubt, this is the most delectable of all. Then comes cream of pea soup made with canned peas. This, again, is appetizing and nutritious. Then comes pea soup made with dried peas and evaporated milk and so on, down to the humble variety of pea soup made with dried split peas and no milk.

Admitting freely that cream of pea soup is the aristocrat of this group, it is not by any means the only one worthy of one's palate digestive powers. The point I am striving to make is this. It would be absurd to use very expensive garden peas and certified raw milk for making soup unless one had literally not to think of the cost of his food. Even then it would seem a bit extravagant because there is always the joy of sharing. How then should a recipe for cream of pea soup be revised in order to keep up its food value and lower its cost?

One illustration has already been given: Use canned peas as the first step toward sensible economy. The housewife may rejoice in the fact that this in no wise interferes with the food value of the soup.

Coming down the scale of economy, we find ourselves using evaporated milk instead of fresh milk and again we have not interfered seriously with the nutritive value of the soup. As for dried peas, they are bulk for bulk, more nourishing than fresh ones. If the plain soup made with dried peas and water appears as one dish of a menu which also offers a reasonable quantity of fresh vegetables, again the housewife need not worry about the food values.

Do you begin to get the idea? When it is desirable to change ever so slightly one's scale of living costs, one great help will be to scan the ordinary recipes used every day, and the training of ourselves to recognize how such changes may be made without in the slightest degree jeopardizing health. It is a study in itself, but one worth making.

IRWIN BAILEY HAS JAW BROKEN

Former Peterborough Star Injured in Collision With Detroit Player.

OUT OF GAME.

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press)—Irvin Bailey, brilliant right wing star of St. Patrick's Hockey Club, in the National Hockey League, sustained a broken jaw in the game with Detroit Cougars here Saturday night.

Bailey, who had performed prominently throughout the game, started down the right boards in the last ten minutes of overtime play on one of his customary dashing sallies, when he collided full force with a Detroit player. His opponent's knee caught Bailey full amidships, and the St. Patricks player had to be carried off the ice. At the time it was thought nothing serious had happened, for Bailey was able to go to the showers and dress for home, but as he complained of a pain in the jaw he was taken to hospital, where an X-fay photograph revealed a slight fracture. The injury will probably keep Bailey out of the game for at least two weeks.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, speaking at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday, referred first to the lesson contained in the Epistle in which is commemorated the first miracle performed by Christ, in the changing of the water into wine at the marriage feast, as an instance of the power of the Blessed Virgin Mary's intercession with her Divine Son, and the manner in which Jesus at once responded to her request for His aid.

Speaking of the practical faith in the existence of God and the knowledge of our relationship with Him which should be cultivated in the hearts of men, His Lordship said: "The commandments given to Moses are nothing more nor less than the natural law which God has inscribed on the hearts of every individual, and they were made part and parcel of the New Law by Christ Himself. He gave His endorsement in His public life."

"We should be as much concerned with the salvation and faith of our neighbor as with our own," said His Lordship, adjuring his hearers to do all in their power to spread a knowledge of the true faith of Christ.

ALL SAINTS' ANGLICAN.

Rev. Canon O'Meara, D.D., LL.D., Principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto, was the preacher at both services in All Saints' Church yesterday, in connection with the semi-jubilee anniversary being observed this month. At the morning service he spoke from the text, "In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink. He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water," being verses 37 and 38 of the seventh chapter of the Gospel according to St. John.

The speaker said that the feast referred to in the text was that of "Tabernacles," which was a celebration of thanksgiving to God for all His mercies and kindnesses, and of rededication of the people to Him. It seemed fitting, too, that the congregation of All Saints' should hold special services of thanksgiving and rededication on the twenty-fifth anniversary. At the feast as observed by the Jews, there was a ceremony when attendants at the Temple went to the pool of Siloam and brought back jars full of water, which they poured out in the courtyard. This symbolized, first, the care God had taken of His people since the day He had given them water from the rock in the wilderness, and, second, that the seeming waste of water didn't matter as there was no scarcity with God, Who would continue to care for them in the future.

The speaker said that one of the most beautiful passages of the Bible was where the Lord Jesus Christ said, "Where two or three are met together in my name, there am I." One was present at that service, he said, Who was rejoicing with the people of the congregration at their time of celebration, just as He mingled with the crowds at the Jewish feasts instead of secluding Himself in some retreat. At that time He had heard and seen the troubles of some of the people, although those about them saw nothing but happiness. He had said then, "If any thirst let him come unto Me and drink."

Many Christians live dwarfed lives, continued Canon O'Meara, because they read only verse 37, and just slip along, never accomplishing anything. Verse 38 says, "Out of his inmost self shall flow rivers of living water." The words "out of," he said, showed the divine origin of the Bible, because too many humans, instead of saying "out of," think of what they can get, and how they can get ahead of their neighbors, using the word "into" instead. Those who come unto Him and drink are supposed to be rivers, irrigating those with whom they come in contact, helping them to the redemption He offers.

Special music was provided by the choir at both services.

SALVATION ARMY TEMPLE.

"Where do we go from here?" was the subject taken by Adj. Frank Ham, who took his text from Acts, chap. 1, verse 25, "From which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place," at the Salvation Army Temple yesterday.

There is no doubting that Judas was one of the problems of Jesus Christ, for did not Judas sell his Lord and Master for thirty pieces of silver? But for the conscience that troubled him sorely preceding the betraayal, the sum would have probably been greater. But what of his end? The remorse that followed drove him to end his life as a suicide—by his transgression he went to his own place.

We might well for a few moments consider the place in the world Judas had. He was one of the chosen apostles, a position anyone seeking honor would have coveted, possibly even the angels might have coveted the place and privilege. He was with the Master Himself for the three years of His ministry, heard that wonderful Sermon on the Mount, was with Jesus in the Temple, witnessed the miracles of the raising of the dead, the restoring of sight to the blind, the healing of the lepers. He was with the twelve in the boat, and finally commissioned by Jesus Himself to "go out and preach." He was given power to heal the sick. He was fully conversant with the teaching of Christ in that there would be a reward for the righteous and punishment for those who failed to follow. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the world and lose his own soul." If Judas had remained true he possibly would have been as the other apostles, honored by churches erected bearing their names as St. Luke, St. Peter, etc., yet by his transgression he fell.

Now to answer the question, "Where do we go from here?" Judas went to his own place, it is recorded in this verse. But that was not the place where St. Matthew went when shot by Arabs, or St. Paul when beheaded, or St. Peter when crucified head downwards. Jesus said Judas was a son of perdition, and he went to his own place. The Bible says there is one of two places to go—to Heaven or Hell.

Heaven is the place for those who have come through great tribulation and have washed their robes in the blood of the lamb. Paul said it was to "depart and be with Jesus"; Judas went to his own place, not into annihilation, not into purgatory, but to the place of lost souls. The tragic side of this end of Judas was that he made his own place. Hell was never made for a being of human birth, but a place for the devil and his angels. The man whose one aim in life is to do the will of God shall receive his reward but the man who ignores God shall go to the place Judas went, "who by transgression fell." It is our own choice. Judas did not go by specially requesting a place there—no man would do that—but there are present here those who are doing as Judas did, harboring the desires of the devil. There are no favorites in the journey from earth to heaven, yet there is no need for any one of you here to make a false move. You all know the way. Judas was with the disciples when Christ said, "I go to prepare a place for you." God grant that you all here may decide to go to that place that the Lord said, "I will give to thee."

The way you live will determine the way you will go at the end. Does the life you are living now pay? Will you be sure of peace on judgment morning? God has opened the way for you all. Let the sad story of Judas be a warning to you all and be assured that you are as we sang at the beginning of this service,

"Bound for the land of the pure and the holy,
The home of the happy, the children of God."

GIRL FRUSTRATES ROBBERY ATTEMPT

Frightens Bandits From Toronto Store By Using Telephone.

TORONTO, Jan. 17. — Gunmen staged a hold-up early Sunday morning in an apartment on Dundas street west, and others attempted to rob a jewelry store on College street, early Saturday evening.

The attempted robbery of the store was frustrated by a young lady clerk, who, on seeing the robbers in the store, seized the telephone and called for police. The robbers took fright and fled.

The apartment hold-up netted the robbers $205.

Three men, one of whom carried a revolver, walked into the jewelry store of Frank Ellis, 31 College street, about 7.30 Saturday evening. The men made their way to the counter, where Mr. Ellis was standing.

Keeping him covered with a revolver, one of the gunmen stood by, while a second was about to go behind the counter when he sighted one of the clerks.

Clerk Calls Police.

The clerk, Miss Jean Gourley, was at a desk in the back of the store. Peering into store she reached for the telephone, and removing the receiver, called for police. One of the robbers rushed to the rear of the store and snatched the telephone from her hands.

A minute later the three men wheeled around and fled out on to College street, making good their escape. The telephone had been snatched away from Miss Gourley's hands before her outcry could be picked up by the telephone operator.

As the men ran from the store Mr. Ellis picked up the telephone and notified the police Detectives from the City Hall and Claremont street were hurriedly on the scene, and armed with descriptions of the hold-up men, set out in an attempt to find them.

The Bund, at Hankow, China, the scene of the present serious conflict between Nationalists and the powers. It is dominated by the municipal building, from which, it is reported the British flag has been lowered and replaced by the emblem of the Cantonese. The whole struggle between the Occident and the Orient for Chinese domination seems at the moment to be centred at Hankow, where the British concession is now in the hands of the Canton forces, who stand for national autonomy. Hankow is the great commercial centre of the middle portion of China, and since 1858 has been one of the principal places opened to foreign trade.

3RD PETERBOROUGH TROOP "VIMY"

The Third got away to a good start for 1927 in their meeting Friday night. Eleven Scouts and two recruits were present. It was rumored that the other five Scouts have not yet recovered from holiday activities, but that in another week all will be well. They are counting on having a full turn-out next Friday.

The meeting began with the usual Flag Ceremony, the only trouble being that no flag was at the top of the pole and no one seemed to notice it. The matter was brought to the A.S.M.'s attention during the meeting and one of the Chickadees immediately ran the flag to the top of the pole. This would have been good for five points in Patrol Competition, but the competition does not begin until next week.

The A.S.M. gave a short talk on the Scout Law, reminding every boy that he was not a Scout unless he lived up to the law to the best of his ability. Most of the boys are trying to be Scouts, but some are just out for the good time they can have. These are reminded that a "Scout" has to do a great many things ordinary boys do not. A Scout is a worker, not a "shirker." He does a "Scout's Job" in everything he undertakes, i.e., he does his honest best. If there is work to be done a Scout is the first to jump forward to offer his services.

The Troop is the possessor of a great many pieces of good rope which had only one defect—the ends had not been treated to a good whipping before using, and as a result were badly frayed. This was remedied during the next period of work. All rope ends should be whipped before they are used. The Scouts in the Third appreciate this now after wrestling with frayed ends of ropes, trying to make them behave.

Games followed. A sense training game wherein one boy was blindfolded and sent among the others. When he touched a Scout he had to tell by Sense of Touch who that Scout was. No Scout could laugh in that time.

A very lively game was played next. The Scouts sat in a circle with heads down, eyes shut, and hands behind their backs. One Scout went around outside the circle with a bag partly full of old wool. He slipped this into some Scout's hands and that Scout turned to his neighbor on his right and had the privilege of hitting him while he ran around the circle to his place again.

The meeting broke up at 8.45 and Court of Honor was called at 9 p.m. Scout Douglas Fraser was elected Secretary of the Court of Honor and was called to take his place. This gives Scout Fraser a vote in the Court of Honor.

It was decided to organize a hockey team and to accept the challenge tendered by the members of the Fourth Troop to a sudden-death game in the near future. All Scouts who could skate were considered members of the team, so there are ten good hockey players to put on the ice.

Acting Patrol Leader Jack Gray has carried on the work of the Hawk Patrol in a very satisfactory manner and was by vote of the Court of Honor elevated to the rank of Patrol Leader.

During the last two weeks, the troop held a ski-hike to Nassau and had a big "feed" and ski-toboggan party. Both were successful events so far as fun was concerned, everyone having a good time.

Next meeting will be held on Friday night at 7.30. The members of the Court of Honor please take note that the Court of Honor will be held before the meeting at 6.50.

FOURTH PETERBORO TROOP.

One of the bright spots at the Peterboro Troop of Boy Scouts was the investiture or the enrolling of Master Carlos Routley as a Scout. He took the Scout promise, which is,

On my honor, I promise that I will do my best

1. To do my duty towards God and the King.
2. To help other people at all times.
3. To obey the Scout law.

After the investiture, a review of last week's instruction on hand, staff and whistle signals was held, which was followed by a game of one patrol stalking another in a dark room. The ability to move quietly and to hear everything counted in that game.

Inspection was held on attendance, and one half mark was taken off for every button missing or unbuttoned.

The patrol leaders then instructed their patrols on different Scout work for a short period.

Some further instructions on tracking was given by the Scoutmaster, Mr. Corbett.

A game was played known as Scout law baseball, which the Owl patrol won. In this game the batter was hurled questions on the Scout law, and had to give the right reply before the count of ten, or he was out. One of the pitchers threw this out-of-the-way question, How do you revive a dead man? Batter, Artificial respiration.

The Council fire was in charge of the Own patrol, and their games and songs were good. A short talk by the patrol leader of the Crows was given, stressing the need of every Scout being a friend to all and a brother to every other Scout. The Council fire was closed with the singing of God Save the King and the Scouts' silence, which is thirty seconds of silent prayer.

Later at the court of honor meeting, it was arranged that the members of the Crow patrol were to meet the members of the Owl patrol in a game of hockey at the Collegiate Rink on Wednesday night at 6 o'clock.

AROUND THE CITY.

The government employment bureau placed 26 unemployed last week and received 45 new applicants. At present they have 115 on the list.

The Fire Department had two runs over the week end, both to chimney fires; on Saturday at 5.10 p.m. to 554 Romaine street and this morning at 9.48 to 477 Rubidge street.

At this time of year many citizens in shovelling the snow off their sidewalks pile it up around the hydrants in front of their homes, making it impossible for the firemen to get ready access to them. The fire chief asks the citizens to kindly refrain from this practice and rather to shovel the snow away from the hydrant.

It was announced yesterday at Trinity Church that the annual anniversary services of the church will be held on Sunday, January 30th, when the visiting speaker will be Dr. Laidlaw of Toronto, and the guest soloist will be Miss Pearl Brock, contralto, of Toronto. The annual anniversary supper will be held on Monday, January 31st.

LOST ACTION FOR FALL ON SIDEWALK

Woman, Buttoning Gloves, Inattentive To Steps, Is Court's Decision.

CITY IS NOT LIABLE.

Question of Debt Prescription Involved in Case Taken By Heirs—Defendant Ordered To Pay $2,000.

Lack of care on the part of pedestrians using the city streets during the winter months is condemned by Mr. Justice Lane in a judgment rendered in which he dismisses an action in damages instituted against the City of Montreal by Dame Janet Thomson, who broke a bone in her foot when she fell on St. Catherine Street, near Metcalfe Street, nearly a year ago.

On February 6 of last year, Mrs. Thomson walked out of an uptown departmental store and a moment later slipped on the sidewalk and fell. She suffered injuries to one foot, which rendered her unable to walk for over two months. Upon her recovery she entered action for $975 against the City of Montreal, alleging that the latter was at fault in not keeping the sidewalk sanded. The city denied responsibility and claimed that the plaintiff must have been negligent, as the sidewalk at the place where the accident occurred had been scraped on the day in question.

According to the evidence, as reviewed by Mr. Justice Lane, there was a small spot on the sidewalk which had been left uncovered and was consequently slippery, but this did not render the city liable for damages caused by the woman's fall. "It is unreasonable to think," His Lordship stated, "that every square foot of every sidewalk should be covered with sand."

His Lordship pointed out that, although the woman was equipped with new rubbers, she was not paying proper attention to her steps. "She says she was buttoning her gloves at the time," the judgment continues, "which evidently engrossed her whole attention. In walking on the sidewalks in winter time, when everyone knows, or should know, that they are liable to slip from time to time, some attention at least is required by ordinary prudence."

Because of this negligence on the part of the plaintiff, Mr. Justice Lane dismissed the action, with costs.

SOIL COMPOSITION AND PLANT POTTING

Demonstrated By J. S. McGiffin at Annual Meeting of Horticultural Society.

A most interesting evening has been arranged for to-night, in the Chamber of Commerce Hall, for all flower lovers who care to attend.

J. S. McGiffin, B.S.A., editor of Canadian Horticulturist, will give a demonstration of soil mixing and potting plants, that will be an education to all who see it, and hear him.

Mr. McGiffin is a graduate of Ontario Agricultural College and brings both practical and scientific knowledge to his assistance in taking charge of Canada's only exclusively horticultural magazine. He is eminently fitted to impart valuable information to an interested audience and his talk is going to make it well worth while to be present at the meeting to-night, which is also the annual meeting of the Horticultural Society and election of officers for the coming year.

Reports from all committees will be given and the work of 1926 reviewed as an inspiration to further progress in making Peterborough "The City Beautiful."

Everybody is welcome. There is no charge for admission, and a pleasant, profitable evening is assured to all who are present.

An Everyday Story

Francis Henry Cook

London, Ont.—"I was in a general run-down state of health. I had indigestion and my stomach was weak and so sore I could not bear to touch it. I got where I did not have any health at all, was not able to follow my usual line of work. I saw where Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended for stomach trouble so I decided to try it and it relieved me of my indigestion and weak stomach, also the abdominal distress and built me up in health. I can highly recommend the 'Golden Medical Discovery' to anyone who suffers as I did. It is excellent!"—Francis Henry Cook, 471 Elizabeth St.

Toronto Youth Captures Wrigley Santa Catalina Swim

YOUTHFUL CANADIAN SWIMMER WINS CATALINA PRIZE MONEY

Defeats Ninety-six of World's Best Swimmers in Crossing San Pedro Channel—Unofficial Time Given at 15 Hours and 47 Minutes.

CHILLING WEATHER AND ROUGH WATER.

WILMINGTON Calif, Jan 17 (Canadian Press).—George Young, seventeen-year-old swimming marvel of Toronto, swam twenty-two miles from Santa Catalina Island to the California mainland, defeated ninety-six of the world's best swimmers, and won $25,000 offered by William Wrigley, Jr., as the first swimmer ever to cross the San Pedro Channel.

The Canadian's unofficial time was 15 hours 47 minutes. The race started at 11.21 a.m. Saturday morning and finished at 3.06 Sunday morning after all the swimmers save Young had given up the struggle.

Young went into the lead early in the first stage of the marathon, and never was headed after overtaking Norman Ross, of Chicago, who was among the vanguard at the start. Young took advantage of currents from the northwest, and although he covered probably many miles more than the 22 airline miles across the channel, he was aided by the drift of the current. He maintained confidence and cheerfulness throughout the long grind.

A committee of judges headed by David P. Flemming, chairman of the Marathon arrangements committee, met late yesterday to formally award Young the $25,000 prize for the first crossing. The $15,000 prize offered for the first woman to finish after a man, was retained by Wrigley.

Young was greeted by cheering spectators who gathered around blazing beacon fires at Point Vincente when he landed after a desperate fight over the last half mile with turning tides. When almost on the beach Young was carried back to sea, but gave a remarkable demonstration of reserve strength when he sprinted the last fifty yards before walking ashore unassisted.

The treacherous tides and the cold water of San Pedro eliminated one by one the strongest swimmers of the continent as the Canadian forged ahead through the long hours of the night. Ross, giant of Chicago, and favorite to win, swam neck and neck with Young for a time and then fell back till at 2.30 Sunday morning he was a mile and a half behind his fellow paddler. He then gave up the struggle and was taken from the water. Of the twenty-two women starters, Margaret Hauser of Long Beach, Calif., and Martha Stager of Portland, Oregon, made the best showing, giving up at 7.20 yesterday morning when they were three and six miles respectively from the finish. Clarabelle Barrett, of New York, and Charlotte Schoemmell did not do as well as was expected of them.

The victory of the Canadian was hailed by experts as a triumph not only of wind and muscle, but mind.

When the ninety-six swimmers dashed through the surf and began to grind, the speed of Young's swimming quickly put him in the van with Norman Ross. Headed for a time by the Chicagoan, the Toronto man pulled consistenly forward to such purpose that he was shortly swimming with Ross. He then put into effect the strategy which was to pay him twenty-five thousand dollars. In the open water he headed northward, taking cognizance of the heavy current which runs in from the northwest during the night. This was the move which, although it added miles to his swimming, enabled him during the last stages of the race when even his iron muscle felt the chill of the water and the pull of the flow, to spurt along with a minimum of effort at a fast clip.

When almost within grasp of victory Young faced one of the most desperate struggles of the long swim. The friendly tides turned on him when he was within a mile of land and he burrowed his head again into the brine and buckled down with all the strength remaining in his body.

A mile from the shore the tide turned again and Young moved forward again toward the Kelp Beds close in shore.

As he swung strongly on his last strokes a crowd gathered on the shore cheering wildly.

Oblivious to the noise and the lights and fire ashore, the swimmer ploughed along at a great pace through the cluster of patrol boats, press boats, yachts and a hospital launch for which last there was no need.

The clear moonlight night had turned to one of heavy low hanging clouds, threatening fog. The beach gleamed and glowed with the headlights of automobiles and a great bonfire. Here was a man swimming across from a shore twenty-two miles away, out of sight. It seemed almost as though he were swimming out of the ocean itself into the circles of light.

The romance of the situation caught the crowd and spectators began to jump up and down and bawl out at the top of their lungs.

Swinging powerfully and slowly, almost casually Young drew toward the goal, his mind fixed on victory, almost within his grasp.

Then his feet touched the bottom and he walked out of the water. It was a great triumph.

The story of the sea marathon blazing with the skill and strength and youthful nerve of the Canadian, was a sombre one for the remaining ninety-five competitors. They battled with heroism—several of them remaining in the waters hours after the race had been won. Meyer, who took a different course to that set by Young and Ross, swam thirty-four miles with a trudgeon crawl, averaging 36 to 44 strokes a minute. Impressed by the pluck of Mrs. Hauser and Miss Stager, Wrigley announced at the conclusion of the race that they would be awarded special prizes of $2,500 apiece.

But it was a story of cold biting through the muscles and eating toward the bone and of men and women dropping from the race exhausted.

Before the first hour had passed after the starter's gun sent Young on his way to fame, fifteen greased, but cramped and numbed entries had flying from their convoys the red flags— tokens of failure. More than half the starters dropped out before sunset.

Henry Sullivan and Charles Toth, gray-haired Massachusetts veterans, who successfully crossed the English Channel in 1923, found the going against the icy waters too much and they withdrew when they had paddled nine and thirteen miles respectively.

What was declared to be the fastest swiming next to that of Young, Doss and Meyer was done by Ethel Hertle, 19-year-old New York girl, who luckily stuck to a direct course although numbness gradually paralyzed her muscles. She covered a bit more than 11 miles in 5½ hours she was in the water.

The race was all to the Canadian. He never faltered, but swam strongly fro first to last, his youth and the hardihood engendered by life as a boy on the beaches of Toronto in the sometimes not too tepid waters of Lake Ontario, proving sufficient to the treacherous channel and its chilly waters.

Next Tuesday night in Los Angeles he will receive in money a reward which will give him at seventeen an estate of $25,000.

ALL SAINTS LOSE TO LUCKY EIGHT

7-1 Final Score For Exhibition Game Played on Saturday.

The Lucky Eight and the All Saints Juveniles played a game of hockey on the Sacred Heart rink on Saturday, Jan. 15 from 2 to 3. Referee, Rishea.

The final score was Lucky Eight, 7; All Saints, 1.

The line up was as follows:

All Saints: goal Willia ; centre, Busbee; right wing Murphy; left wing Hall; right defence Moor ; left defence, Griffin; subs., Sproats and Price.

The St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees, who fought it out for the world's championship last fall, will stage a little world series next spring, when the two teams will cross bats in several exhibition games during the training season.

BOTH TEAMS IN HAPPY MOOD AT ICE PROSPECTS

Dukes and Petes Are at Their Best on Fast Going.

TONIGHT'S GAME

Blue and White Hope to Stop Marlboros' Fast Forwards.

With keen ice assured for tonight's all-important Senior O.H.A. game at Brock Street Rink between the Marlboros of Toronto and the Petes, the last doubt as to the quality of this battle has been removed.

Both teams like fast going and it would have been a pity had their meeting taken place under unfavorable conditions.

The last time the two teams met the Marlboros kept the Petes off the scoring sheet while they themselves scored the only goal of the game when, after a characteristic rush by the elusive Joe Primeau had been halted by the Petes' defence, Johnny McPherson recovered the puck on a rebound and on his second attempt slammed it by Dwyer for the solitary marker of the night.

Marlboros' smart forward line, Primeau, McPherson and Heintzman, will need a lot of attention here tonight but the Petes are confident that they can take care of them and at the same time successfully solve the Dukes' defensive system and hang up some goals.

The game gets under way at 8.30 o'clock sharp and a capacity crowd will be on the side lines.

SENATORS TAKE EARLY COUNT FROM BRUINS

Boston Unable To Undermine Iron Clad Defense of Ottawa.

STRENGTHEN LEAD.

Open Play By Scoring Two Minutes After Start.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 17 (Canadian Press)—The Ottawa Senators strengthened their already sturdy position in front of the National Hockey League pack by trouncing the Bruins of Boston 5 goals to 4 in a hard fought tussle here Saturday night. The locals took the sparkling contest which thoroughly thrilled the 5,000 fans in attendance by taking the aggressive at opportune times and their falling back on the defensive when their citadel was threatened.

The losers had at least an even break with the red, white and black clad squad on the night's play, especially in the third period when within one-goal of tieing up the count, they over-whelmed the Ottawa forwards and sent a continuous rain of pucks on the local net. But the winners defence was iron-clad and absorbed the heavy mauling to retain their slim margin.

It was in the opening period when the league-leaders really won the match. After "Hooley" Smith had given them a goal advantage in less than two minutes from the start, the Senators continued to dominate the play and added another pair of tallies before the first recess. Capt. George Boucher netted the second by taking the rebound of his previous shot to trick Boston goalie out of his cage with a feint and send the rubber flying into the net-twine. Herberts then tallied for Boston on a trickly play. He drove a long one that was high over the head of Alex Connell but as the disc ricochetted back onto the ice from the wire-netting behind the goal, the dashing Bruin wing followed in to catch the Senator tender unawares, half turned around looking for the puck. Frankie Finnegan registered the other for the winners near the period end on a lone rush that carried him almost on top of the visitor's goalie.

The goal shots of Boucher and Finnegan appeared rather soft from the side-lines and apparently Manager Art Ross of the Boston Club took a similar view for immediately after the frame had ended he wired to his headquarters in the hub-town that goal tender Roberts, who is at present playing with the New Haven team of the Canadian-American league, be recalled for duty with the Bruin clan. Manager Ross stated he was not satisfied with the showing of "Doc" Charlie Stewart, in the Boston net, and had decided to strengthen his line-up with the addition of Roberts. He said he had not decided whether the New Haven tender would replace "Doc" immediately.

In the middle stanza, the locals held sway for a short time near the start during which Capt. Boucher split the Bruin line to drive in his second tally of the match. Then Boston took command and by virtue of a perfectly timed combination attack, rammed two goals past Connell within a minute of each other and chopped the locals goal lead down to one tally. Fred Fredreickson, the lanky Bruin centre, flanked by his wings, was swooping down on the Ottawa cage in thrust after thrust and it was on a pass from him that Shore scored the first of these goals. Herberts got the second on an individual attempt. But the winners stretched their advantage to two goals again when King Clancy dashed along the left boards to flip a back hand one that Hec Kilrea slammed into the Bruin cage from a few feet out.

The Senators figured in little of the last period play except in a defensive way. The visiting line held the puck for the most part far behind the Ottawa blue-line but apart from a one-man rush on which Frederickson scored, Connell was his old invincible self and turned the hard-fighting Bruins aside.

The line-up:

Boston		Ottawa
Stewart	goal	Connell
Hitchman	defence	G. Boucher
Shore		Clancy
Frederickson	centre	Nighor
Galbraith	wing	H. Smith
Herberts		C Denneny
S. Cleghorn	subs	Finnegan

SEMI-FINALS AT CAMPBELLFORD RINK

Keen Contests Seen in Curling Bonspiel Held on Thursday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 17. — The semi-finals of the local bonspiel played Thursday night were keenly contested, especially the Wiggins vs. Palliser game. They were tied at the eleventh end, and Palliser lay one shot on the second circle in the final end, before Wiggins curled his last stone, but Wiggins threw a perfect rock, to draw in behind Palliser and lay on the inner circle, winning the game, 9 to 8.

Tait's rink was a little strong for Matt Mulhearn and won 15 to 9.

In the final Tait and Wiggins see-sawed up to the tenth end, when Tait scored a six end, practically settling the issue. The final score being 20 to 11.

The winners were prestened with pipes of fine quality and the runners up received neckties.

HOCKEY NOTES

There will be a meeting of the Midget, City and District Hockey League Tuesday night 7 p.m. at the St. Peter's H.N.S. rooms, Simcoe Street. This meeting is very important and the representatives of each team are requested to attend. Schedule to be drawn up also.

CAMPBELLFORD HIGH SCHOOL IS OUTPLAYED BY DESERONTO

PREMIER SKATER.

Lelia Brooks, Canada's premier lady speed skater, holder of more than one world's record, who has started another successful season of skating.

Defeated By Score 6-2 in Interscholastic League Fixture.

IRWIN STARS.

Unable To Cope With the Smooth Playing of Visitors.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 17. — With last year's championship team practically intact and playing in mid-season form, Deseronto High School outplayed the local High School boys and won Friday night's Interscholastic League fixture at Covert's Arena. The score was 6 to 2, and might have been larger but for the brilliant work of "Toots" Irwin in the home boys' net. The new addition to the local list of star net guardians was a very busy boy all evening, and he turned in as fine an exhibition as has been seen at the Arena this winter. He stopped shots from all angles, from far out and close in. He wicked and batted out low drives and got in front of shots higher up with every part of his body, taking two shots on the side of his face. It was truly a brilliant performance, and the young goaler never weakened under the steady bombardment.

Deseronto, led by the redoubtable Whitton at centre ice, gave a remarkable exhibition of fast skating, clever stick-handling and fine team work. Time after time, they swept down the ice three abreast, in pretty combination plays, that carried them right through to the goal mouth, and so close was their checking, that at times the local boys had great difficulty in getting the puck out over their own blue line. "Ted" Blute and Ibey were the only ones to have any success in relieving the situation. These two boys, along with Irwin, were the outstanding performers for the home talent. Ted Blute played great hocked for Coach Stephens' boys. He had as much speed as any boy out there, and his stick-handling was a treat to watch. He back-checked all the way, and kept boring in on the visitors' net, despite a stiff gruelling from the Deseronto defence.

Ibey played most of the game on the defence, and made a good job of his new position. He used his body with telling effect, and enjoyed a fair amount of success on his thrusts into enemy territory. He was forced to retire for a short time in the second period when a shot from Whitton's stick struck him on the knee.

The rest of the local boys gave all they had but it wasn't enough to cope with the smooth-working Deseronto machine.

Ibey gave the big crowd their first opportunity to cheer when he hoisted the rubber into the Deseronto net from well out, and the home boys were having their share of the play, most of which was around centre ice. Whitton and Bruyea went down together, and the Deseronto wing passed to Written right at the goal mouth, and Irwin didn't have a chance. Whitton scored again in a few minutes when he went around the defence and right in on top of Irwin. End of period score: Deseronto 2, Campbellford 1.

Bruyea and Whitton were going great guns for the visitors at this stage. They kept up a ceaseless attack, and seemed untiring in their efforts. Bruyea came down the centre alone, but was spilled by Ibey. He came back a moment later, flanked by Written, and this time evaded the defence to score from close range. Ted" Blute carried the puck to the Deseronto end, and in the ensuing scramble in front of the cage, Bland shoved the rubber in for Campbellford's second and last counter. Whitton took a pass out from the corner and slammed it through a maze of legs into the Campbellford net. Irwin didn't have a chance on this one. Deseronto 4, Campbellford 2.

The third period was a repetition of the second, and the visitors had the better of the play, Whitton and Detlor scoring to make it 6 to 2 for Deseronto.

Campbellford H.S.—Goal, Irwin; r. defence, Ibey; l. defence, Davidson; centre, "Ted" Blute; r. wing, Bland; l. wing, McAvoy; subs., B. Blute and Dewey.

Deseronto H.S. — Goal, C. McVicker; r. defence, L. McVicker; l. defence, Cole; centre, Whitton; r. wing, Detlor; l. wing, Bruyea; subs., Green and Campbell.

Referee—C. Holmes.

ST. PATS TIE WITH DETROIT

Cougars Even Score On Lone Effort By Sheppard in Third.

N.H.L. SCORES.

TORONTO, Jan. 17. - A beautiful bit of stick handling by Johnny Sheppard, one of several with which he pleased the spectators during the game, enabled the substitute left wing of the Detroit Cougars to go right through the local team for a pretty goal shortly after the third period got under way on Saturday night between St. Patrick's and Detroit, and while it was the only goal scored by the Cougars during the pastime, it enabled them to hold the Irish to a one-all twenty-minute over time tie, the locals having taken the lead in the second period on a McCaffrey-to-Carson play.

The game, which marked the last of first appearances of the other teams in the league at the Arena this season, was not as spectacular or thrilling as the previous Saturday's, against the New York Americans, but the closeness of the score throughout was more of a tight defensive style, the attacks generally being of the individual nature, although the Cougars showed some elaborate but non-effective passing in the centre ice area.

Outside of the first period the Irish did not show their accustomed speed and dash on the attack, although Carson, Day and Bailey worked hard. Brydge was unable to play and his place on the defence was taken by Corbeau and the veteran turned in a good effort. He used his body well and made a number of attacks.

Roach saved the game on a number of occasions, he having more hard saves to his credit than did Holmes. Halderson, the former Detroit player, was used occasionally on the defence and once relieved Bailey on the wing. McCaffrey and Dennenay showed more inclination to pass the puck than has been their wont so far this season.

The teams:

St. Patrick's: Roach, goal; Corbeau and McCaffrey, defence; Carson, centre; Bailey, right; Day, left; Bourgeault, Dennenay, Keeling and Halderson, subs.

Rangers 5; Chicago 4

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 — The New York Rangers defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 5 to 4 last night in one of the fastest and most thrilling National Hockey League games ever played here. The match provided the 12,000 fans with a dashing and clever display. The Rangers at one time during the second session held a 4 to 0 margin, but the fighting Hadwks tied it up in the third period, only to lose out when Murdock scored his third goal of the night less than a minute before the final whistle. The teams:

Chicago—Goal, Lehman; defence, Fraser and Trapp; centre, Irvin; wings, Dye and McKay; subs, Wilson, McVeigh, Doraty and Traub.

Rangers—Goal, Chabot; defence, Abel and Brown; centre, Boucher; wings, Bill Cook and "Bun" Cook; subs, Boyd, Thompson, Murdock and Mackey.

Referee—Lou Marsh, Toronto.

Americans 2; Pirates 1

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 17—Pittsburg failed to break its losing streak Saturday night and lost its fourth straight National Hockey League game, 2 to 1, to New York Americans. The game was tied until a minute before the close when Reise scored the winning goal with a spectacular shot. R. Green made the initial American tally in the first period and Langlois accounted for the Pirates' lone marker.

Americans — Goal, Forbes; defence, Conacher, Reise; centre, Burch; wings, S. Green, R. Green; subs, Simpson, McKinnon, Roach, Bouchard, Scott.

Referee — Dr. W. J. Laflamme, Toronto.

Canadiens 1; Maroons 0

MONTREAL, Jan. 17 — Aurel Joliatt heralded his return to play in the National Hockey League, after a one-game suspension for fighting, by scoring the goal which gave Canadiens a 1-to-0 victory over the Montreal Maroons before a capacity throng of 12,000 here Saturday night. After two periods of fast, open hockey, a contrast to the heavy, man-to-man play which has characterized previous meetings between the two teams in the past three season, the third session started with the vast crowd nerve-wracked as it awaited the inevitable break and the goal which was certain to bring victory to one side or the other.

JOHNSON SAYS LANDIS GUILTY

Blames Commissioner For Blacking Reputation of Two Stars.

CAN'T PLAY AGAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—The Chicago Tribune today said that Ban Johnson, president of the American League, openly charged that Baseball Commissioner Landis was responsible for tarring the reputation of Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb.

Breaking a silence that began last September, when the directors of the American League, meeting in Chicago, voted to give unconditional release to Cobb and Speaker, President Johnson declared that neither of the two would ever again manage or play on an American League club, although he paid a high tribute to the former Detroit manager.

Mr. Johnson, the Tribune said, declared he had accepted the "implied challenge" of Commissioner Landis to bare all the facts in the Cobb-Speaker baseball drama and would take the stand next Monday at a special American League meeting called by the baseball head. He said his testimony at that meeting would prove the American League acted to protect Cobb and Speaker and that Landis alone was to blame for the cloud of rumors about their names.

"I don't believe Ty Cobb ever played a dishonest game in his life" Mr. Johnson said. "If that's the exoneration he seeks I gladly give it to him. But it is from Landis Cobb should demand an explanation. The American League ousted Cobb, but it was Landis who broadcasted the story of his mistake.

"I love Ty Cobb. I never knew a finer player. I don't think he's been a good manager, and I have had to strap him as a father straps an unruly boy. But I know Cobb's not a crooked player.

"We let him go because he had written a peculiar letter about a betting deal that he couldn't explain and because I felt that he had violated a position of trust.

"Tris Speaker is a different type of fellow. For want of a better word I'd call Tris cute. He knows why he was forced out of the managership of the Cleveland club. If he wants me to tell him I'll meet him in court of law and tell the facts under oath."

Johnson continued that he wanted the public to know what the American League did and what Landis did.

"When Landis released that testimony and those letters I was amazed. I couldn't fathom his motive," he said. "The only thing I could see behind that move was a desire for personal publicity. I'll tell him that when I take the witness stand."

Mr. Johnson added that when he takes the stand he may tell the whole story of his relationship with Landis.

BRISTLING BATTLES of BARE FIST DAYS

(MY LIFE STORY)

By Jack McAuliffe

(Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

I pulled a lot of clever tricks on some of the men I met on my barnstorming tour with Billy Madden, my manager, but I sure got mine in Philly.

A man often took his life in his hands when he invaded a town where there was a lot of pride in the local fighter. It I went in and slapped him silly I usually had to watch I didn't get a brick bounced off my skull by the fallen fighter's brother or idolizer.

The modern Jack Dempsey gives me and a lot of the other veterans a laugh when he talks about his Shelby fight with Tommy Gibbons. Jack claimed the first row in the arena had a lot of guns in it and that he was afraid some of the cowboys would shoot him if he hurt Gibbons. Why that's the bunk. He should have gone through what we had to.

I remember well one December in 1885 I was playing Philadelphia. Bill McCarty, a rugged, rough stevedore, was my opponent. The house was a McCarty house from top to bottom. I looked over the howling mob and told my manager, Billy Madden, we were in a tough spot. He said he didn't need the information. He knew it.

Bill McCarty came into the ring and he brought his gang with him. They eyed me suspiciously and said they had heard all about my barnstorming tricks and were going to sit right and see that nothing happened to their Bull McCarty.

McCarty was a tough fellow, as I figured him to be, but he did not know a thing about boxing. He started the first round very cautiously, eyeing my seconds all the time and I had a chance to smack him quite a few times before he woke up.

In the second round he started shaling away with loping rights and lefts. I stood off, speared him with my left and cracked him on the chin with a hard right and down he clattered.

I was surprised at the lack of disturbance in the house. I thought the whole gang would pile into the ring after me although I had knocked him out cleanly. I was walking slowly to my corner when Madden shouted a warning at me.

"My God, look out, Jack!" he screamed.

I turned to see McCarty's father swinging a heavy chair down on my unprotected head. I tried to sidestep but—blooie—it crashed and I went completely out.

Note.—In the next chapter McAuliffe tells how the blow of the chair affected his brain and how he fought four rounds with Jack Hopper with his mind a total blank.

AMERICANS WIN COLLEGE SKI-ING

Pile Up Lead in the Opening Event of the Series.

AT QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 17. — The United States assumed a seven point lead in the first heat of the international intercollegiate ski competition on Saturday afternoon when Dartmouth University's representatives captured first and third place in the six-mile cross-country race out of a field of ten.

Competition in this event, which found half a score of college skiers at the starting point, was extraordinarily keen, and some excellent time was recorded. All of the skiers negotiated the difficult course without mishap, although Rollins of Colby broke one of his skiis while coming down a steep slope and had to obtain the loan of one from a Quebec skiier who was near the course, while he also negotiated the whole distance with but one ski pole.

T. T. Brittan of Dartmouth proved to be the fastest man out of the entire ten, his elapsed time being a little over a minute less than that of the second man home, who was J. Tache, of Laval University. Dartmouth supplied the third man home, in Proctor, and then Loyola came along with Beaubien, an old time skiier. Gingras of Laval University was in fifth place, with the two Colby entrants closely strung along behind him, while Loyola supplied the eighth man home, the University of Montreal team bringing up the rear with ninth and tenth. The official summary is as follows:

1—T. T. Brittan, Dartmouth University, 41.24.
2—J. Tache, Laval University, 42.16.
3—C. Proctor, Dartmouth University, 42.44.
4—C. Beaubien, Loyola College, Montreal, 45.29.
5—L. F. Gingras, Laval University, 48.18.
6—D. H. Rollins, Colby University, 52.20.
7—J. D. Allan, Colby University, 55.13.
8—H. Bison, Loyola College, 57.53.
9—J. Forder, University of Montreal, 1.04.59.
10—O. Marceau, University of Montreal, 1.07.01.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mr. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried. m-th-31-442

LUNCHEON IN HONOR OF C. S. THOMPSON

Executive of George Street Men Holds Informal Gathering.

The executive of the Men of George Street United met at Hooper's Tea Room on Saturday evening to say farewell to Mr. C. S. Thompson, who is leaving to visit his parents in the Southern States.

After a social repast, different members of the executive were called upon by the President, Dr. J. E. Middleton to tell some of their associations with Mr. Thompson. Those who informally spoke were J. E Smith, G. W. Robertsn, H. Boyle, J. H. Renwick, and Rev. Mr. Todd. All told of the great work Mr. Thompson has been doing in various organizations of the church as well as outside the church. "If seventy-five men were doing the same amount of work and with the same energy George Street Church would be a great working organization," one speaker remarked.

Mr. Thompson has been in the city for the past fourteen years and during that time has gained the friendship and goodwill of many citizens. Many of his friends will regret to hear of his departure.

LECTURE GIVEN ON MASEFIELD

English Literature Course Continued at Y.W.C.A. By Prof. Pratt.

A MODERN POET.

The subject of Professor A. E. Pratt's lecture, in the course on English literature at the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening, was Masefield, whom he characterized as one of the "New Elizabethan Poets," a name given to a class of poets who recently gained notoriety, appearing in war-time, and dealing with all-round topics in their work. Theirs was a lusty outburst, such as characterized the poetry of the latter part of the sixteenth century, but they expressed life from an entirely different standpoint, and their mode of expression may at first have startled their readers.

Masefield expresses the main characteristics of truly modern poetry. His writings carry with them a seriousness and intensity of feeling which is conveyed to his read rs through his very vivid descriptions and his wonderful success in narrative. He is not a fanatic, but is truly democratic. In his strong appeal, said Professor Pratt, he resembles Milton, Ruskin and similar writers.

As a first reading, the speaker gave Masefield's poem, entitled "Consecration," saying that, as the poet carries out the spirit of this great poem in his own life, so we, through it, get a glimpse of the heart and life of the great writer. The second selection was "The Everlasting Mercy," written in the year 1911, when Masefield became famous overnight. The poem is a type of Scott's wonderful tetrameter, and with its rhythm carries the reader into the life of the poem itself. This poem was submitted to three British editors for criticism. The first said, "We cannot publish it, the second "It will make or break the magazine;" the third, "Yes, we will publish it. It will make the magazine." On publication, it did "make" the magazine, and the British Weekly criticized it favorably. It is a wonderful, realistic poem, running true to life, and the final triumph, in the transformation of one whose former life has been one of debauchey, brings out the true poetical genius of the poet.

Masefield is credited with having written some of the finest of the war poems, the best being "August, 1914," in which there is no spirit of hate, but rather the atmosphere of brooding introspection and heart examination.

Professor Pratt also touched upon the works of Rupert Brooke, whose sonnets are perhaps the best of the twentieth century, and whose patroitic fervor is said to resemble that of Bobby Burns. Especial mention was given to a poem written in Berlin by one anxious to return home, and entitled "Granchester," in which an English village is idealized.

An enjoyable musical programme rendered during the evening, included vocal solos by Miss Helen Lytle, with accompaniments by Miss Gwen Donley, and a pianoforte selection played by Miss Olga Fowler. The president of the Y.W.C.A., Miss Margaret Hamilton, was in the chair.

TORONTO PROUD

day, Jan. 17, 1926, "Bill and Gerge" went swimming in the outdoor tank at Sunnyside, Toronto's amusement centre, when the temperature was hovering around the zero mark.

Today Mrs. Young, overwhelmed with telephone calls and interviews, is not "at home." The mother, an invalid since the Wawa Hotel fire at Lake of Bays, Muskoka, when she was injured, has nothing to say. Her heart is too full for words.

Young's return from California will be the signal for a civic welcome, when Toronto will turn out in force to greet the former poor and almost friendless boy who met some of the world's best and defeated them in one of the greatest achievements of endurance, grit, and courage in athletic history.

"The thing to do now is to help him get back to Toronto with $25,000," said J. Allan Ross, prominent Toronto business man when discussing Young's victory.

"I undersand that Mrs. Young is to be approached with a suggestion that a group of trustees be appointed to help him do the best with the money he has won, not in a dictatory capacity, but as advisers. I would be glad to act on such a board myself. With right handling $25,000 will mount up to a much bigger sum."

At Peterborough

In honor of the success of George Young in upholding the Union Jack by his great swimming feat of the week end, an old war time song was introduced into the opening exercises at the Collegiate Institute this morning. "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall" was the song, and its stirring strains were sung with a will."

Throughout the hours that her son battled with tide, waves, and cold, Mrs. Young shared with him the thrills of the race. But she was anxious lest the cold would have harmful effects. When she heard of his success, she wired simply "Congratulations—Mother" and the message reached him as he lay on a hospital cot in Santa Monica.

"He's a good boy," she said today. "I have talked to him a lot about the world, and I don't think he'll get his head turned.

"He was anxious to enter the swim, but I was afraid for him. He insisted that he'd never win if he didn't try, so I paid his expenses."

Reception Planned

Mayor Foster today sent the following telegram to George Young: "Toronto desires to tender you a reception and welcome home. When do you expect to arrive here? Your fellow citizens are very enthusiastic over the great honor you have brought to your home town."

All athletic clubs and organizations in Toronto will hold a meeting to arrange for a reception for the swimmer.

Canada's Congratulations

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—Canada today wired her official congratulations to George Young, winner of Saturday's swimming contest from Catalina Island to California, and the hero's widowed mother, Mrs. Jean Young, Toronto.

In his wire to Young, the 17-year-old Canadian winner now at Santa Monica, Calif., Premier King states:

"Canada is proud of you and of the honor which you have brought to our country as the winner of the William Wrigley Junior Prize to be given to the first swimmer to cross the San Pedro Channel. On behalf of the Government and of Canada and your fellow citizens from one end of the Dominion to the other, I extend to you heartiest congratulations and the best wishes for the future. I might add that our country shares with equal pride in your success, your beautiful tribute to your Mother and all that it discloses of the secret of your splendid achievement."

The Prime Minister's telegram to Mrs. Jean Young, the winner's mother at Toronto, reads:

"On behalf of the Government and people of Canada I extend to you heartiest congratulations upon your boy's great achievement. We are all rejoicing with you in the honor he has brought to his mother and to his country."

Little Activity To-day In Toronto Stock Market

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— Business was decidedly slow on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day and activity was confined to two or three issues, with little change of importance noted. International Nickel was the leader in point of activity, the issue declining 1-4 at 41. Industrial Alcohol was up 1-4 at 2 2and B, C. Fishing up 1-2 at 80 1-2. International Petroleum led the unlisted market with more than one thousand shares dealt in. Petroleum was 1-2 higher at 33. Imperial Oil, down 1-8 at 39 7-8, and Hiram Walker, down 1-4 at 32, were the only other unlisted stocks to attract attention. Little interest was shown in bank issues, Bank of Commerce showing a gain of a half at 236 1-2.

Mining Market Active Without Definite Trend

TORONTO, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—Trading was heavy on the Standard Mining Exchange today, with more than 700,000 shares changing hands. Gains and losses were equally distributed over the list. Area Mines declined 6 cents at 82, Barry Hollinger was 2 1-2 lower at 95, and Castle Trethewey down one at 105. Corona was one higher at 19, while Duprat was 1-2 lower at 27. Kirkland Hunton, one of the leaders in point of activity, was up 1 1-2 at 33. Teck Hughes gained ten at 660. Grover Daly was up 1 1-4 at 27 on the unlisted market.

Wheat Prices Go Up As Offerings Decline

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—With offerings of future deliveries here somewhat scarce, wheat averaged higher early today. Meanwhile, Liverpool reported some stocks of wheat decreasing and demand likely to improve. Opening at 1-8 cent decline to 1-8 cent advance, Chicago wheat prices scored gains. Corn showed decided strength, starting unchanged to 1-4 cent higher and then making a sharp upturn. Oats were firm. Provisions, too, displayed tendency to climb. Opening prices were: Wheat, May 139 5-8, July 130 5-8; Corn, May 81 3-8, July 84 5-8; Oats, May 48 5-8, July 47 1-2.

Railroad Shares Go Up Industrials Take Drop

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press) — Railroad and industrial shares moved in opposite directions in to-day's stock market. In the rail group, the highest prices in years were recorded by Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred, Western Maryland common and preferred, Lehigh Valley, and Wabash preferred 'A'. Coalers gave good a exhibition of group strength.

Kinney Company common broke eight points to 28, a new record low, on unconfirmed rumors of an unfavorable dividend action at the next meeting. Case Threshing Machine sagged nearly five points before the end of the third hour. Pierce Arrow preferred four, and Baldwin, General Motors, United States Cast Iron Pipe, and Radio Corporation all sold two or more points below last week's final quotations.

VACCINATION

It is claimed by medical science? that the injection of the poisonous filth, called vaccine, into the pure life blood stream of a healthy person will render his body immune against smallpox.

This medical superstition has been perpetuated in the primer of physiology, studied by school children, and inserted into the minds of the people from childhood to old age. In consequence of this vaccine propaganda, millions of people now, have faith in this inhuman practice of vaccination.

Henry Lindlahr, M.D., in his book "Nature's Cure," page 193, 20th edition, 1922, states that in the years 1870-1871, small pox was rampant in Germany.

Over one million persons had the disease, and one hundred and twenty thousand died. Ninety-six per cent of these had been vaccinated, and only four per cent had not been protected. These statistics go to show the falsity of the claim made by many of the medical profession.

Ernest Fewster, M.D., Vancouver, says: Regular medicine is not a science, it is a hodge podge of every idea and quackery ever thought of. This does not apply to surgery. Drugs of ll kinds are dangerous—vaccinis filthy.

ROTARY HEARS REMINISCENCES OF AN ENGINEER

Rotarian Max Sauer Is the Speaker at To-day's Luncheon.

GYM SUPPLIES.

Salvation Army To Receive Offering From the Club.

Interesting pages from his memory book as engineer were disclosed by Rotarian Max Sauer, in addressing his associates of the Peterboro Rotary Club to-day at the weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

Rotarian Sauer's talk was based on reminiscences of his career as an engineer, and was full of interest. Among other things he discussed the pioneer power development work at Niagara Falls, in which he was engaged and described the destruction of one of the first power plants because of a flood that rose much higher than the highest level shown in the government records up to that time.

The speaker told of a visit to Porto Rico and gave an interesting description of conditions in that island, with its mixed races and density of population, and primitive ideas of sanitation. The United States authorities had done much to improve conditions and had established a splendid school sytsem, but it was doubtful as to how the experiment would work out.

Rotarian Sauer then related experiences during a trip to New Zealand, and paying a tribute to the very fine qualities of the Maoris, who were treated by the British as equals. During Mr. Sauer's visit one of the cabinet ministers was a full-blooded Maori.

In conclusion the speaker dealt with the construction of the one hundred mile acqueduct ,which supplies Winnipeg with water from the Lake of the Woods, and previous to the construction of which the water supplied the city was so hard that it was almost impossible to make a lather out of it with soap, while kettles and pipes were heavily coated with lime. Speaking of public engineers, commissions, etc., Rotarian Sauer asked that the public should not be too hasty in criticising their actions, recalling an incident in connection with the Winnipeg construction work that had given his firm much unnecessary worry.

The committee instructed to investigate the question of gymnasium equipment for the Salvation Army, reported, suggesting the purchase of dumbbells and volley ball and basket ball equipment, and the Rotarians promptly subscribed enough to provide the desired articles.

IN MEMORIAM

BALLANTYNE. In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Robert Ballantyne, who died Jan. 17, 1926.

One year has past, our hearts still sore,
As time rolls on we miss her more;
Her loving smiles, her welcome face,
No one can fill her vacant place.
Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her troubled night has passed;
Her ever-patient worn-out frame
Has found sweet rest at last.

—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

The young man who was allowed to go on suspended sentence here on October 29 last on a charge of forgery, and who was arrested recently on another charge of theft and permitted to go on suspended sentence at Cobourg, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning.

His Worship declared that he had given a great deal of consideration to the case in view of the fact "that what is done now may seriously affect the value of suspended sentence in the future."

He did not want to be the first to send the boy to jail as he appeared to be a bright, clever boy with excellent school reports, he said, "and if counsel will consent I will grant an adjournment if the accused undertakes to appear for sentence in three months' time."

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., stated that he would consent to the adjournment in view of the facts presented to him.

HEALTH BOARD HEARS REPORTS ON SMALLPOX

Seventeen Cases in City at Present, Mostly Adults Suffering.

ESTIMATES STRUCK.

Board Asking City For $9,000 During 1927—Ald. Hancock Chairman.

Alderman W. J. Hancock was re-elected chairman of the Board of Health at its inaugural meeting this morning.

The report of Miss Price, matron of Queen Mary Hospital, was read and showed that there is no decrease in the number of small pox cases in the hospital. At present there are 17 cases in the city, either in the Isolation Hospital or quarantined in their homes. The Board of Health has done its best to have people vaccinated, and at present the cases which are reported are mostly amongst adults. Over 73 per cent. of the children in the city public schools are vaccinated, which is considered rather low by the Board.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, the Medical Health Officer, in reporting on the small pox cases that are prevalent in the city, said, "The disease is spread in most cases by people who do not know they have small pox."

The Board is going to check up citizens who fail to report contagious diseases which are in their homes or which they know of as they feel that many citizens fail to report contagious diseases to the Medical Health Officer, and that this is how these diseases are spread.

On December 1st there were eleven cases in Queen Mary Hospital, nine of small pox and two of scarlet fever. During the month twelve were admitted, ten small pox and two scarlet fever, and eleven were discharged, leaving twelve patients in the hospital on December 31st.

Estimates for 1927 were struck and the Board will ask the City Council for $9,000 as the least amount that will be necessary to carry on the work during the year. The small pox epidemic has increased the expenditure of the Board greatly, and as no abating in the disease is in sight, the members felt that they would need more money than they received last year.

C.N.R. Conductor Acts Replaces Doctor At Birth

KINGSTON, Jan. 18.—Conductor McCullough, who is in charge of a C.N.R. train running between Brockville and Westport, in addition to his train duties had to take the place of a doctor a few days ago when a baby was born on the train. It was impossible to get in touch with a doctor, as the train was between stations, and Conductor McCullough carried out the duties of doctor. Both the mother and babe are doing well.

H. B. RAILWAY SERVES MINES

The Pas Banker Says It Will Traverse Great Forests.

VALUABLE LANDS.

J. R. Neely, manager of the Bank of Commerce at the Pas, was in Peterborough on Friday and Saturday last, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Davidson. Mr. Neely is a nephew of Mrs. Davidson of Gilmour and Albertus Streets.

He, with fifteen other bank managers from the Western Provinces of the Dominion were called to the Bankers Convention, held in Toronto last week, for consultation on very important matters in the interest of the Bank of Commerce in the West.

In speaking of The Pas—the gateway and headquarters for supplies for the Hudson Bay Railway, he pointed out the large and growing business transacted by the three banks there.

The Pas is a town of nearly 3,000 inhabitants, with three large lumber mills—one the second largest in the Dominion—doing an immense business with the United States; one million and a half representing their last year's turnover. Very valuable copper mines have been discovered near the town and are now in the first stage of development.

Mr. Neely is not at all sanguine as to the value of the road as a grain carrier, but as there are some immense stretches of forest on the route, the road will likely pay while the lumbering lasts. The mines if valuable will add to the profits of the railway.

Board Of Health Member Vaccinated At Meeting

While discussing the number of small pox cases in this city at the meeting of the Board of Health this morning one of the members expressed surprise when it was said that those suffering from this disease were mostly adults, and asked Dr. Young if he carried the vaccine with him. The doctor answered in the affirmative, and the member immediately pulled off his coat, rolled up his shirt sleeve to the shoulder, revealing a fine large vaccination scar made in 1919, and had the simple little operation performed in a very few moments.

TEMPORARY ALIMONY.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 18. — (Canadian Press). — Lita Grey Chaplin, wife of Charles Spencer Chaplin, was granted $4,000 a month temporary alimony pending settlement of the divorce suit which she has brought against the film comedian by Superior Judge Gurin, in court here yesterday. Attorneys' fees of $4,000 additional and $2,150 for receivers' bond premiums also were granted by the court.

Cobham Predicts Flights Around World In One Day

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 18. — Sir Alan Cobham, the famous British aviator, thrilled the members of the Canadian and Rotary Clubs of London yesterday when, in a brilliant address, he visioned the time when aeroplanes will cross the Atlantic overnight, and sky cruisers carrying passengers will ply the air courses at a thousand miles an hour.

He explained that the use of air charges will make possible the operation of aircraft at unprecedented altitudes and at speeds never dreamed of a few years ago. The time is coming, said he, when it will be possible to go across the Atlantic in three hours and around the globe in a day. He claimed that from a defence of the British Empire standpoint aviation should never have been attempted, because when the first plane crossed the English Channel the insularity of England ended.

KELLOGG'S NICARAGUA POLICY IS CAUSING MUCH DISCUSSION THROUGOUT EUROPEAN POWERS

Role Is Seen As Silencing Criticism of Other Nations.

ARE RESENTFUL.

Little Powers Wanting To Make Issue Of It In League.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—The role of the United States Government in the Presidential controversy in Nicaragua has caused more discussion in Europe than any action by Washington since the rejection of the Treaty of Versailles. In the last three weeks the State Department has got millions of lines of advertising and Mr. Kellogg's name can now be spelled correctly in hundreds of European newspaper offices from Edinburgh to Constantinople.

Of course, the Radicals in all European countries see in America's role that imperialistic Uncle Sam is out to oppress a small people for his own benefit. It is asserted that he is violating fifty-seven varieties of principles and justifying the worst things said about him in recent times.

But putting that aside and likewise putting aside the sentiment of the Governments of the smaller countries, which, lacking big armies and navies, think much more of theoretical rules of international righeousness than do those countries which have armies and navies to protect their interests, American incursion into Nicaraguan affairs has brought many chuckles in England, France, Italy and Germany.

Why is it that landing American marines in a little Central American country causes chuckles in Downing street, in the Quai d'Orsay, in Wilhelmstrasse and the Piazzo Chigi? Why should Chamberlain, Briand, Stresemann and Mussolini find only sly pleasure in the performance? The answer is that they think the United States has put herself on record in a fashion which will bind her to silence when the occasion presents itself for European powers to take analagous steps where their interests are at stake.

Not that Europe's Foreign Offices seek to condemn in principle what Washington is trying to do in Nicaragua. How could they? America's role represents just the role Europe's Foreign Offices have so often flayed when conditions have enabled them to get away with it and the role they would willingly play now were conditions fit.

How often has England landed troops in many quarters of the globe to advance the interest of the British Empire? France has done as much, having fought two wars only last year for such a purpose. How much would Germany like to protect her interests in Polish Silesia? Mussolini would be glad to send Italian troops to protect Italian lives and interests in Nice and elsewhere along the French Riviera. But France is not Nicaragua, and as Europe sees it, if Nicaragua were France there would be no American marines on her shores to-night.

America's example thus is not without its attractive sides for European diplomacy, and there is no desire on the part of the bigger European countries to make any strong kick about it. As a matter of fact, Berlin, Paris, London and Rome are now working to dissuade the smaller League States from trying to make an issue at Geneva of American intervention in Nicaragua. At least three countries have let it be known that they would like an international discussion of America's role on the soil of one of the members of the League.

The larger powers wish to avoid this and are advising temperance and delay. There are indications that they may prevent the question arising at meetings of the Council, which they control, but there is very reason to believe that the next meeting of the Assembly of the League will record speeches about the International role of the United States.

But that lies in the future and in meanwhile if Italy sends troops to Albania, or France sends an army hither and thither, or if England decides more troops are needed to keep Suez 100 per cent. British, they expect the United States' State Department will not pester them with observations.

In other words, while millions of people in Europe who up to recent days had really believed the United States promised a new world leadership are disappointed and disturbed, the diplomats of the big European powers see no reason to regret that America wields the big stick when her interests are at stake. She has aroused a deep fellow feeling in their hearts and given them hope that she will no longer interfere in their plans by trying to save the soul of the world.

98 People Found Frozen On Stalled Russian Trains

MOSCOW, Jan. 18 (United Press).—Dispatches from the Province of Samara today said 98 persons had been found frozen to death aboard two railway trains that had been stalled in snow-drifts.

Extremely heavy snowfall has been reported from that portion of the Volga River Valley.

Hard Names Applied To Man-Fighting Bird

THREE RIVERS, Que., Jan. 18 (Canadian Press Despatch). —Such terms as "Bubo virginianus" and "Nyctaetos lacteus" are being bandied about since an unidentified, ferocious bird attacked and seriously wounded Euclide Beauce, a wood ranger, on Saturday in this vicinity. Some believe it to have been of the family of "beauboines," or of the eagle-owl "Bubo virginianus." Others say it may have been an enormous owl from Senegal, in which case it would be "Nyctaetos lacteus."

In any event, it seems to have been some kind of owl. It was killed by fellow-employees of Beauce after he had been weakened in the fight and was suffering from loss of blood.

LAVOIE KNITTERS AT HASTINGS REPORT HEAVY ORDERS BOOKED

W. A. Lavoie Returns From Trip in Western Ontario.

GOES EAST NEXT

(Special Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Jan. 18 — The new year has opened promisingly for Lavoie Knitters, Limited, the company which moved here from Peterboro last summer. Mr. W. A. Lavoie recently returned from a trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Western Ontario with a volume of orders that delighted himself and local shareholders. On Wednesday he leaves for Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City where he hopes to book business in the same bulky proportions.

"I had a remarkably good trip last week," Mr. Lavoie told the Examiner yesterday, "and I hope to have as much success down east. I found business better than a year ago, buyers keener and more optimistic, and we are looking forward to a better year than in 1926. We evidently expect to increase our sales $25,000 or $30,000 and to employ a larger staff. We paid 7 per cent dividend last year and are well pleased since coming to Hastings.

"We are working on some new lines in which we have big hopes for this year. One of them requires

Wearing Ribbons Illegally Sends Veteran To Jail

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 18.—A. W. Burt, ex-service man of Toronto, was yesterday fined $25 and costs or 30 days in jail for illegally wearing decorations to which he was not entitled. He went to jail. Burnt admitted buying the ribbons. He carried the M.C., D.C.M., M.M., and Mons Star. Captain Fordham, local barrister, appearing for the local post of the Canadian Legion, asked for a severe sentence, claiming that there is too much of this sort of thing going on.

LABOR FAVORS BEER BY GLASS

Best Thing For Temperance, Says Spokesman For Unions.

WAITS ON PREMIER.

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press) — "It is still the opinion of workers of this province that the best thing that could be done in the matter of temperance amendments is to allow the sale of beer by the glass," said William Varley in presenting a brief for the various Trades and Labor organizations connected with the Trades and Labor Congress appearing before the Ontario government to-day.

"Since our request for beer and wine was framed, we have had an election and are to get almost all we want. But we still think beer should be restored to its ancient and historic status as a beverage.

Premier Ferguson made no comment as to whether the request would be considered or not.

"I am greatly indebted to you," he said, "For the information you bring to us. I suggest that in future these presentation should be made earlier for already we have a pretty full programme for our session, which starts in a couple of weeks.

"A number of things you mention have already been dealt with by the government and in some we have gone a long way, in others I cannot agree.

"When we see the legislation we'll be able to decide," said the Premier regarding provincial adoption of the proposed Federal Old Age Pensions bill. "I note that most of the other provinces have reported against participation in the scheme."

WORKMEN SAVE FOUR CHILDREN

Carry Them From Burning House During Absence of Mother.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED.

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—Four small children were carried from a burning house at 125 Elm Street yesterday afternoon by two garagemen who saw smoke coming from the house.

The children taken from the house were: Jennie Marino, aged 6; Theresa, aged 5; Frank, aged 3½, and Mary, aged 11 months.

The fire started in a clothes closet, where one of the children is reported to have dropped a lighted paper. Mrs. Marino was out of the house at the time of the blaze, returning just as the children were carried out.

George Bambridge and Frank Rees, working in a near-by garage, rushed into the place and brought out the children.

The blaze caused a loss of $150.

Three Ex-Princes Seek To Wed Princess Giovanna Italy Favoring Hapsburg Over Two German Rivals

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Three Princes, whom the great war deprived of almost every prerogative, except, perhaps, their royal blood, a Hohenzollern, a Wittelsbach, and a Hapsburg, are competing for the hand of winsome Princess Giovanna of Italy, according to the diplomatic correspondent of The Sunday Express.

Prince Wilhelm, 21-year-old son of the former Crown Prince of Germany; Prince Albrecht, son by the first marriage of former Crown Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria, and Archduke Albrecht of Hapsburg, who is contesting Archduke Otto's claim to the crown of Hungary, all have enlisted in the service of Cupid to win consent to marry the Italian Princess, whom rumor late last year had linked with the bachelor King Boris of Bulgaria.

The Sunday Express says that Archduke Albrecht stands the best chance to win the royal matrimonial race, because he is a Catholic and because Premier Mussolini, as well as the Italian royal family, favors the match, probably in the belief that an Italian Queen in Hungary would insure Italian predominance there against France, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Meanwhile the exalted relatives of the other marital candidates are making strong efforts in behalf of their kinsmen.

COATES URGES TRADE INCREASE WITHIN EMPIRE

New Zealand Wants To Do More Business With Canada.

TO TIGHTEN TIES.

Premier Addresses Toronto Canadian Club on Dominion Relationships.

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—"After one has had an opportunity of sitting round the table and listening to all their remarks, hearing their peculiar difficulties and points on various questions, it was quite possible to realize there was no desire on the part of any one delegate at the Conference to 'pull away' from it," said Premier Coates of New England in referring to the recent Imperial Conference in London, at the luncheon given in his honor by the Canadian Club at the King Edward Hotel yesterday. "There was a determination that certain things should be done, which, in our opinion, would not disintegrate the Empire, but build it up."

Mistaken For Bruce.

Mr. Coates, in happy mood, referred to the recent visit of Mr. Bruce, the Premier of Australia, to Toronto, and said: "Why, I don't know, but I have been called 'Bruce' for more often than 'Coates.' Whether I am shining in the reflection of Mr. Bruce's glory or not, I am unable to say."

Speaking on the relationship between New Zealand and Canada, the Premier said: "It is quite true that New Zealand has a very strong and abiding affection for Canada. We have had many things in common in the past, and, I think, the Great War brought us together closer than it would have been possible under any other circumstances.

"Our Common Ourselves."

"We are members of an Empire that is, I believe, unique in history," continued the Prime Minister, "an Empire spread over the entire globe, consisting of people of different races, with different histories and different conditions of life, an Empire without a Constitution, an Empire without even a central Government, an Empire depending for its existence literally and entirely on the good-will of its component parts and on Parliamentary institutions modelled on the Mother of Parliaments in London. At the same time, we are a free, self-governing Dominion, within the Empire. New Zealand would not like to be governed from any country ten or twelve thousand miles away. We think we can govern ourselves and make our own laws. Wherever British people meet they can be trusted to govern themselves."

Referring to the great distance between Canada and New Zealand, Mr. Coates said that was one of the great difficulties and "for that reason we will have to see about arranging an interchange of representatives from each of our Dominions, and as they move about they will be able to take back the opinions of that country."

Desire to Balance Trade.

"Might I refer for a moment to our desire to do more business with you? I know you do a lot more business with us in New Zealand. We want to balance that trade somehow. The trade between Canada and Australia and New Zealand is already considerable. In the year ending March, 1925, the total value of this trade amounted to $30,940,549, while for the year ending March, 1926, it amounted to $37,764,658. In the year ending March, 1925, the value of the New Zealand trade with Canada alone amounted to $16,270,750, while in the year ending March, 1926, the total value of the trade was $19,286,579. We are anxious to increase this trade by every means within our power, but it is unfortunately a fact that Canada does not purchase New Zealand goods to anything like the same extent as New Zealand purchases Canadian goods and I would urge your consideration of the possibility of encouraging here the purchase of New Zealand goods where these are comparable in price and quality with those offered elsewhere."

Referring to the Canadian National Exhibition of last year, Mr. Coates said he hoped that the display made of New Zealand products had been interesting and might lead to good results in the future.

Mr. Coates then spoke of the beauty spots of New Zealand and the opportunities that country offered to the tourist.

Wedding Of Deaf Mute Proves Puzzle To Officials

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 18 (United Press).—Court and clerical authorities here are wondering how they can legally marry Rose Boileau, 26, of East Hampton and Louis Lamontagne, 19, also of East Hampton.

Miss Boileau is deaf and dumb, cannot read or write, and knows no sign language.

The Clerk of the Court has refused to marry her on the ground that the ceremony would not be legal.

V. M. EASTWOOD INDIAN AGENT

Succeeds R. J. McCamus in Administering Reserves of This County.

A WAR VETERAN

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—The Civil Service Commission announced today, among its appointments, that Vincent M. Eastwood, the Sales Agent of the Dodge Car at Peterborough, had been appointed Indian Agent for Peterborough district in succession to R. J. McCamus, who retired on reaching the age limit.

Mr. Eastwood will now have charge of the administration, under the Indian Act, of the Reserves at Rice Lake and Curve Lake.

The new Indian Agent was formerly a Captain in the 18th Battalion and went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, of Peterborough. A number of Indians were in his Company.

The Commission followed its usual practice of considering first all applications of ex-service men. The position is a part-time office and Mr. Eastwood, in addition, has the powers of a magistrate to deal with offenses committed upon the Indian Reserves.

MISSIONARY DIES IN PEKING

Cause of Death of Dr. Jean Dow Not Reported To Board.

VETERAN WORKER.

TORONTO, January 18. Canadian Press. — Miss Jean D[illegible], M.D., Changle, Honan, thirty one years a missionary in China, first with the Presbyterian church in Canada, and latterly with the Honan Mission of the United Church of Canada, died at Peking yesterday, according to a cable received last night by Rev. W. E. Armstrong of the Board of Foreign Missions. The cause of death was not given.

Rev. J. A. Dow, of Kelowna, B.C., Dr. W. G. Dow of Owen Sound, Ont., brothers, and Mrs. (Rev.) J. A. Cranston, a sister, survive. She was born at Fergus, Ont.

The late Dr. Jean Dow had a remarkable scholastic and missionary career. She had passed into the high school at the age of ten and when fifteen years old became a school teacher. Graduating from the Toronto Medical school in 1895, she was designated a missionary that year and was sent out by the Montreal section of W.M.S. of the former Presbyterian church.

DREAMS, THEN DIGS.

FRANKLIN, N. C., Jan. 14. — "Fiddlin' Jim" Corbin dreamed of finding a beautiful sapphire buried in an old mine near his home. Next morning he went out and found the stone in the exact spot his dream indicated. Mr. Corbin vouches for the story.

Buffalo Girl Of 3 'Phones Father In London By Radio

LONDON, Jan. 18. — Little Miss Wood of Buffalo, N.Y., aged 3 years, holds the record of being the youngest talker over the transatlantic wireless telephone.

Last night her father, L. E. Wood, staying at the Savoy Hotel here, took up the telephone receiver in his room and found himself speaking first to his father in Buffalo and then to his little daughter. Mr. Wood, who is in London in connection with ivory sales, said the call was a complete surprise to him.

"As soon as I took off the receiver I recognized my father's voice, for he spoke first," he said. "Then my little daughter spoke. She told me about playing outdoors in the snow. The line was perfectly clear."

START INQUIRY INTO CAUSES OF COAL STRIKE

Trades Union Congress Will Open Inquiry on Next Thursday.

COMMUNISTS OPPOSE.

Believed Possible That Constructive Policy May Be Obtained.

LONDON, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press Cable).—The long-anticipated enquiry by the Trades Union Congress into the causes and conduct of the coal strike and the resultant general strike last May, opens on Thursday next. The common impression is that the enquiry can produce nothing which could be destructive at this time, while quite possibly a constructive policy may emerge.

Last week the general council of the Congress issued amongst the unions and the press detailed reports of its action in connection with the strike. This was intended to give delegates to the Congress a fair opportunity of studying it before the enquiry opened. At the same time the council requested the press not to publish the same until the conference of enquiry had assembled. The request was complied with but for one exception, a Sunday Communist paper.

"Such a breach," a well-known Labor writer comments, "is part of a deliberate and carefully-planned Communist campaign to make further trouble among the trades unions, and especially to divide the miners from the remainder of the movement."

The Congress, in appealing to the general press to continue to observe "silence" on the report, remarks: "We regret that our confidence has been violated, and not by any of the so-called 'capitalist' newspapers, but by a journal claiming to be an exclusively trades union paper. The publication reflects discredit on Labor journalism." The general press remains silent on the documents.

Concerning the forthcoming inquiry, or inquest as it is termed in some quarters, the common impression is that it will produce nothing which at this time can prove very destructive. The general strike is now eight months old, and passions have cooled. Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Parliamentary representative of Labor, who was dead against the general strike from the beginning, although at the time he evidently considered it inexpedient to say so publicly, has since received an overwhelming vote of confidence from his own union, the National Union of Railwaymen, of which he is political secretary.

The assembly will doubtless offer some candid criticisms of the Miners' Federation, and much will depend on the answer offered by the miners' leaders, which will indicate whether the assembly degenerates into a mere handying of recriminations, or resolves into an attempt to compose the congress into a

Attending Physicians Announce That She Cannot Live Long.

HAS PNEUMONIA.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—Empress Charlotte, 86-year old widow of the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico, was in a dying condition at eleven o'clock this morning, influenza from which she suffered for several days having developed into pneumonia. Attending physicians, after a consultation, announced that death might intervene at any moment. Charlotte has hardly touched food for the last five days.

Incorrect reports of her death early to-day were sent out.

Slot Machines Illegal, Says Kitchener Judge

KITCHENER, Jan. 18.—The slot machines operated in many Twin City cigar stores are illegal as they are gambling devices within the code. This is the substance of a judgment handed down by Judge Hearn in County Court here in the case of the Crown vs. Arnold Bros. The latter, as a result, were fined $5 and costs. The case will be appealed.

SOVIET RUSSIA DENIES CHARGES OF KELLOGG

Regarding Mexico as Base for Communist Activity Against States.

ARE INDIGNANT

Issue Statement Characterizing Imputations as Both Fantastic and Ridiculous.

MOSCOW, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—The Soviet Government, through Acting Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff, yesterday issued a tart denial of charges made by Secretary of State Kellogg recently that it regarded Latin America and particularly Mexico as a base for Communist activity against the United States.

After five days of deliberation and consultation with his colleagues at the Foreign Office, M. Litvinoff, who is acting as Foreign Minister in the absence of M. Tchitcherin, now in France for his health, issued a statement characterizing as "fantastic and ridiculous," the imputations made by the United States Secretary of State on January 12.

Interpreting the Secretary's statement as implying that it was because of Communist plots and intrigues in Nicaragua and Mexico that resulted in intervention in Nicaragua by the U.S. Navy, the Soviet official declared that it would be as reasonable and logical to attribute floods in the United States or earthquakes in Japan to such "intrigues."

"Statesmen in capitalist countries," the Acting Foreign Minister said, "lately have taken to the habit of covering their incompetence in internal affairs or their aggressive aspirations in the field of foreign policy by playing up so-called Bolshevik intrigues or plots. Whether the question at issue is the miners' strike in England, or an attack by the United States Navy against the independent republic of Nivaragua or the shooting of the people of Java in Sumatra by the Dutch police, there is always the same justification—the plots and intrigues of the Bolshevist Government. It would simply be an insult to public opinion were I seriously to repudiate such fantastic explanations."

Turning to a quotation made by Secretary Kellogg from a report by Foreign Minister Tchitcherin, saying that Mexico gave Soviet Russia a "convenient political base in America for the development of our further ties," M. Litvinoff said: "M. Tchitcherin was perfectly right in welcoming the restoration of normal relations between the Soviet Union and Mexico. The Soviet Government will continue every effort to restore normal relations with every state in America. The Soviet Government cannot have and has no relations with Mexico except relations of loyalty and non-intervention."

NORHAM NEWS

NORHAM, Jan. 18—Bethany Ladies' Aid met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Samuel McCall. There were twenty members and three visitors present. It was decided to have the Dartford Dramatic club give the play, "The Merchant of Venice" in the Orange Hall at Codrington early in the week, beginning January 23rd. The following committee was appointed to make arrangements—Rev. J. F. Everson, Mrs. Lloyd Ames, Mrs. Robert Ryckman, and Mrs. John Loomis. Laura McCall and Irene Hazelwood are to print posters.

Robert Hazelwood, Llyle Carr, Mrs. Harry Reddom, Ora Goodfellow, Mrs. John Dinner, and Mrs. Hugh McCall were chosen to select a play to be given at the Sugar Social in March. Several blocks of an autograph quilt upon which the names had been worked were handed in and others given out to have the names worked. Lunch was served at the close.

William A. Goodfellow, a County Master and Cecil Goodfellow, Master of Codrington Loyal Orange Lodge, attended the county meeting held in Brighton, on Tuesday afternoon.

Maurice Ames and three men are busily engaged building a new house in Codrington.

Television Is Reported Making Rapid Strides

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (Associated Press).—The time is not far distant when family groups may remain by the fireside and see events in any part of the world being depicted simultaneous with their occurrence, members of the Institute of Radio Engineers assembled in convention were told.

Dr. Donald McNicol, retiring president of the Institute, said that radio television was making rapid strides despite the fact that concentration of scientists on problems of broadcasting had slowed the work down on developments of the television. Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, consulting engineer of the General Electric Co., speaking on the technical problems of television, said the transmission of photographs soon will be a regular feature of broadcasting programmes.

MILLBROOK FAIR BOARD MEETING

H .Tate Elected President—Reports Show Successful Year.

WINTER FAIR FEB. 17.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 18.—The annual meeting of the Millbrook Agricultural Society was held in the Council chamber on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. and, considering the extremely cold weather, the attendance was most gratifying.

H. A. Fallis, the retiring president, occupied the chair. The report presented by the treasurer, J. N. McGill, showed finances in a good condition; classes in every department of exhibits at the fair last October were so well filled, the obligations in prize money had been very heavy.

An excellent report of the annual convention of the Ontario Fairs and Exhibitions Association was given by the delegates, Messrs. J. A. Vance and N. Belch, and Messrs. J. H. Paul and R. I. Fallis were appointed to attend the gathering this year.

After considerable discussion it was decided, on motion, to hold the annual winter fair on Thursday, February 17, and committees were appointed to look after details of prize money, printing, etc.

It was also decided to enter the competition in Standing Field Crops of wheat and oats. The annual fall fair will be held, as usual, on the first Thursday and Friday in October, the 6th and 7th being the dates this year. Six departmental judges will be employed.

The officers for 1927 are: President, H. Tate; Vice-Pres., G. A. Fair; 2nd Vice-Pres., R. O. Larmer; Sec.-Treas., J. N. McGill.

Honorary Directors: John Tate, William Hanna, George Berry Sr., F. W. Bowen, M.P.; A. J. Fallis, ex-M.P.P.; Stuart Fallis, Reeve of Cavan; W. T. Wood, Reeve of Millbrook; W. H. Lough. Lady Directors: Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Miss M. E. Needham.

Directors: H. A. Fallis, W. T. Donaldson, L. W. Smith, I. W. Larmer, A. J. Henderson, J. Whittington, R. I. Fallis, J. L. Fair, P. Stinson, L. C. McNeil, L. H. Winslow, H. Seymour, R. McCamus, T. W. McCamus, J. W. Hamilton, J. A. Vance, J. H. Paul, V. R. Hunter, John Greer, W. E. Ball, R. Belch, R. J. McKnight, J. L. McCamus.

Auditors: D. Hampton, T. H. Collins.

Executive Committee: A. J. Henderson, H. Tate, L. W. Smith, H. A. Fallis, R. J. McKnight.

Finance Committee: W. T. Donaldson, A. J. Henderson, J. L. McCamus, L. H. Winslow.

Grounds Committee: A. J. Henderson, W. T. Donaldson, J. W. Hamilton, N. Belch, R. J. McKnight, I. W. Larmer, W. E. Ball, H. Tate.

Committee on Speeding: H. A. Fallis, A. J. Henderson, P. Stinson.

Printing Committee: A. J. Henderson, J. A. Vance, G. A. Fair.

Entertainment Committee: R. J. McKnight, H. Tate, P. Stinson, H. A. Fallis.

Superintendents: Light Horses, J. A. Vance; Heavy Horses, J. H. Paul; Booths and Stalls, L. H. Winslow, A. J. Henderson.

The annual Sports' Day, which has been omitted for the past two years, will be held on Friday, June 3; committees to be appointed later.

PETERBORO' BOY AWARDED PRIZE

Arthur A. Long Wins Contest For Essay Writing.

PHARMACY STUDENT.

Arthur Alexander Long, whose parents reside at 458 Driscoll Terrace, and who is now attending the Ontario College of Pharmacy, was recently awarded the first prize for an essay entitled, "The Kent-McClain Way to Success."

Mr. Long, prior to leaving for the college of Pharmacy served his time with McDermid and Jury of this city.

The prize winning essay is as follows:

"I knew I was dreaming, but it is so nice to dream when one's dreams are interesting, that I closed my eyes and allowed myself to slip slowly back to sub-consciousness.

"I was in a strange world surrounded by, undoubtedly, human beings, but each so large in comparison to myself, that I felt very small indeed. Upon enquiry, I found I was in a country called 'Success', in the Land of Dreams, which was ruled over by a very wise king named 'Experience.' Many years had King Experience reigned, and each day his kingdom grew larger, because each day new citizens found the secret of his kingdom.

"Now King Experience had a very famous balance upon which the merits of the members of the Business World were weighed before being alolwed to enter the land of Success. This balance was situated in the centre of a huge square, and was so large that men had to ascend steps to the platform, to be on a level with the scale pans.

"As I watched, two men ascended the platform together, and by placing weights on the scale pans endeavored to sway the balance in their favor. The weights used were bundles of their own making, and as I took notice, I perceived that the two young men angling for Success were Pharmacists. Each placed a small bundle named Personality upon the pans, but neither was heavy enough to outweigh the other. Then followed more bundles labelled Efficiency and Capital, but still the balance refused to sway. One placed a bundle 'Cut Rate Prices' upon the scale pan, but this was evenly counterbalanced by the bundle 'Quantity and Quality.'

Then opening their last set of weights, which was labelled 'Shops' they produced the bundles 'Location, but the equilibrium of the balance still remained. Till at last in desperation they placed on the scale pans their last weights, a small bundle named 'Appearance', and lo! though seemingly equal, the balance swung slowly in favor of the one, whose bundle 'Appearance' carried the most weight."

Air Line To Canada Discussed In Berlin

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The possibility of an air service between Germany and Canada, via Greenland, is being discussed in Berlin, according to the Westminster Gazette. The paper says arrangements have already been completed for the Luft Hansa Air Transport line to connect Hamburg with Iceland by air, a distance of 1,200 miles, which, it is expected, will be covered in two days. If the experiment proves successful, the line will be extended to Canada.

FIRE SWEEPS WHOLE BLOCK

Heavy Property Damage Wrought When Gasoline Torch Explodes.

FIREMEN INJURED.

ST. BONIFACE, Man., Jan. 18.—Six firemen are in hospital, eighteen persons were rendered homeless and property damage of $25,000 resulted when fire swept through the Landen Block, on Marion Street, yesterday. The firemen, all members of the St. Boniface fire department, were injured by falling debris when the roof and a wall of the combined store and apartment block collapsed. Their condition is not serious. Captain Charles Spence and Captain H. Gauthier and two of their men were injured when fighting the fire in the interior of the building.

Captain Gauthier was pinned beneath a beam when the roof caved in, and was rescued by his companions.

Occupants of the block, including several children, had narrow escapes.

Yielding to the tears of her children, Mrs. A. St. Jean, after making a successful escape from the block, entered the burning structure and rescued the family parrot before firemen arrived. When carried from the building, the parrot greeted onlookers with a cheery "Hello."

The fire is believed to have been caused by the explosion of a gasoline torch which was being used to thaw out a frozen water pipe.

RESUME SITTINGS OF CUSTOMS PROBE

Royal Commission To Resume Investigation Sittings on Wednesday.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Members of the Royal Commission investigating the Customs Department arrived in the city to-day, and the Vancouver sittings will be resumed to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, according to Major C. E. Nash, attached to the commission staff, who arrived here Sunday night. It will probably be two weeks before the commissioners complete their work in Vancouver.

When adjournment was taken just before the Christmas holidays, the commission was engaged in probing rum-running out of Vancouver and Victoria, the entire proceedings of the commission being almost entirely confined to this question, but whether more evidence would be taken on this subject was not known. The matter of political campaign contributions may be investigated, but nothing official on the subject, however, has been given out by Ottawa.

WILL USE CAMELS IN SASKATCHEWAN

German Farmers Will Import Animals as Beasts of Burden.

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 18 (Canadian Press Service). — Camels from Northern Russia are to be tried out in lieu of horses by a number of German Lutheran farmers of the Rosthern district, who plan to import between 60 and 100 of the animals. They claim that the camels are longer lived, can subsist on hay and straw without grain, are faster walkers than horses, and can work longer hours. A camel is in its prime at the age of 50.

Henry Doering, who heads a syndicate of eleven farmers, has written to Hon. W. R. Motherwell, federal Minister of Agriculture, asking him to facilitate matters by opening negotiations with the Soviet Government, now buying Western Canadian horses, for permission to export the camels from Russia.

SUE ORMISTON FOR DIVORCE

On Way From Australia To Start Proceedings Against Radio Operator.

COLLECT EVIDENCE.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 18.—With the avowed intention of instituting divorce proceedings against her husband, Mrs. Kenneth Ormiston, wife of Aimee McPherson's radio operator, has left here for Los Angeles.

Interviewed prior to her departure Mrs. Ormiston, a pretty brunette with two children, declared she would "fight to the utmost" to free herself and that her atorneys were in possession of sufficient evidence. While she refused to divulge the names of those who are to be named as co-respondents, she admitted that several would be so named. Whether or not Aimee would be among them, she would not say.

Mrs. Ormiston was formerly Miss Ruth Peters, a daughter of Australias largest ice cream manufacturer. Since her arrival here last February she has remained in strict seclusion, apparently awaiting the outcome of the conspiracy case against the Los Angeles evangelist.

"The Canadian demand for them is limited," he said, "but if we get into the American market with them I'll give you the whole shop in two years. We have six new lines on the market right now and they are taking hold remarkably well.

That is what we are doing and also what we hope to do. We look for a good year, and I would like to add that we have some stock left in our treasury and if anybody is interested we would be pleased to hear from them."

THOMASBURG NEWS

THOMASBURG, Jan. 18.—Three of the Orange Lodges, Thomasburg, Elliott's and Moneymore Lodges, gathered together on Wednesday evening for their annual At Home. The first part of the evening until about ten o'clock was spent in games, and visiting, after which lunch was served. The rest of the evening 'till about one o'clock was spent in dancing. A number of the Oddfellows were invited to Tweed on Monday evening to hear Mr. J. A. Tully, P.G.M., of Toronto. A splendid time was enjoyed by all, and a sumptuous supper was served by the Rebeckahs.

NEW RECTOR IS INDUCTED

Rev. A. B. Caldwell Installed at St. Paul's, Marmora.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

MARMORA, Jan. 18.—At St. Paul's Church on Thursday evening, in the presence of a good congregation, the Rev. Arthur B. Caldwell was inducted by the Ven. Ogilvie G. Dobbs, M.A., Archdeacon of Kingston, into the incumbency of the Parish of Marmora. The latter was assisted by the Rural Dean, Rev. B. F. Byers, M.A., of Stirling; other clergy present being the Rev. G. O. Davies, B.A., of Rawdon, the Rev. Albert Redding, of Bannockburn and the Rev. A. L. McTear, L.Th., of Trenton. The choir, augmented for the occasion, rendered Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light." A powerful sermon was preached by the Rev. A. L. McTear, on the words, "As the Father hath sent Me, even so send I you." The reverend gentleman prefaced his sermon with words of congratultaion to the parish on obtaining the Rev. Caldwell as rector, and also on its past honorable record. He trusted that the happy relations of the past between rector and congregation might continue.

He then referred to the service of induction as unfamiliar to many, yet full of meaning. Dwelling on the subject of worship, he mentioned that whereas the Scriptures do not attempt to tell all the history of the ancient world, they do indicate such things as are necessary for our being brought up in the faith of God. In the story of Cain and Abel we are told of worship. Each brought his offering to a holy place. What was Cain's punishment? A brand? No! He was given a token of mercy that he would not be slain, but his punishment consisted in his being banished from that presence of God, where God might be supplicated.

"Genesis," continued the preacher, "tells of the preservation of worship. Joseph was given the coat of many colors because he was marked out to be the priest of his family. You know how the priesthood passed to Levi through unworthiness of those of the tribe of Joseph."

Coming to the New Testament, it might be asked, What brought the wise men from the East? Was it the star? Was it not worship? Descendants of Cain, all wilful sinners may now return to God. What part had Jesus in worship? He honored the services of the temple. He sent out ministers. He sent them out on a mission that was gothing less than service in the Temple. They went out just as they would be in taking part in the temple worship. This sending out of the seventy is not to be taken as an indication that a minister is not to be supported. At that same time jesus remarked that the laborer was worthy of his hire.

All the ministries of priests and Levites, all the missions of the prophets of olden time were to centre in the work of the apostles whom jesus had chosen. The coming of jesus Christ was an exhibition or manifestation that the corner stone of creation was being sacrificed. All ideas of Church and authority must reach back to the words of jesus Christ or they are in vain. The ministers of the Church must not be set apart and known as the Church. If the relation of Christ to man is to mean anything, it must have reflex action upon the clergy and the people. In the closing part of his sermon, Rev. Mr. McTear touched strikingly on the regard a parish should have for its clergyman and vice versa. The offertory was given to the mission fund of the Church.

40 Below In Moscow Trees Bud In Crimea

MOSCOW, Jan. 18. — The worst blizzard in thirty years raged in Western Siberia and East Russia last week, according to reports published here yesterday. Freight traffic was almost paralyzed from Omsk to Perm and passenger trains were from twelve to thirty hours late.

The work of clearing the lines was hampered by the terrific cold which reached 50 below zero over the whole area.

Moscow also was gripped by record cold, at midnight the temperature being 40 degrees below. Stalingrad, on the lower Volga, reports that deepest snow in thirty years and trains are snow-bound in Central Russia as far south as Karkof.

In the Crimea there is warm and sunny weather with snowdrops and almond trees flowering.

MISS E. FOWLDS BURIED MONDAY

Funeral at Hastings Largely Attended—Prominent in Community Life.

PEOPLE'S TRIBUTE

(Special Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Jan. 18—The funeral of Elizabeth Steele Fowlds here Monday afternoon assumed all the silent grace and sorrow of a community's mourning. Business was hushed and store window blinds were drawn as the funeral passed along the streets which had known Miss Fowlds since her girlhood many years ago. And on every hand were heard unanimous expressions of respect and affection for a life that had been unselfishly shared in good works for public and neighborhood needs and enterprises; tributes also to a kindly, vivid personality that seemed to survive death itself.

Her death on Saturday evening had been so sudden that the townspeople at the hour of her funeral scarcely realized that she had gone. This elemnt of shock and unexpectedness tended to sharpen the recollections from the memories of old friends. It was recalled that Miss Fowlds had been organist and choir leader of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church until a few years ago, and that she had succeeded her mother who had been organist from that dim time when St Andrew's was formed as a branch of the church at Norwood. Gifted with a soprano voice of exceptional quality and culture Miss Fowlds had always been a prominent figure in the musical affairs of the village. During the war she was a tireless supporter of the manifold activities of the Daughters of the Empire of which she was a charter member. She was not only anxious for her country but particularly for the comfort of the Hastings boys whom she had known and whom she had seen march off to enlist.

Neighbors testified to her kindness and care in sickness and trouble, and friends spoke of her loyalty and love for her brother, Mr. Charles R. Fowlds, as one of the most appealing elements of her fine character.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. D. A. Thomson who in an affecting eulogy reviewed the life and service of Miss Fowlds as a member of St. Andrew's church and of the broader community of Hastings as a whole. The pall bearers were Messrs. A. U. Bailey, C. P. Doughty, Alex Wilson, W. R. Learmonth, R. C. Doxsee and Dr W. E. Wilson. Among the mourners were Mr. and Mrs. John E. Roxburgh of Norwood and Dr. J. D. Berry and his two daughters of Toronto.

Mrs P. M. Howard of Toronto an old Hastings friend, was also present.

GERMAN SAILORS AVERT DISASTER

Turn Hose Upon Crowd That Thronged Ship at Capetown.

MANY FAINTED.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—An eager rush to board the German cruiser Emden nearly brought about disaster yesterday. The officers of the cruiser, which was launched at Wilhelmshaven, Germany, in January, 1925, and christened after the famous wartime German raider, had invited the public aboard, but the vessel could not accommodate the unexpected thousands who thronged the quay.

It seemed for a time as though many persons would be pushed overboard by the pressure of the crowd, which was relieved only when a hose was brought into play. There was a momentary panic, in which many persons fainted.

The incident marred the good feeling which had been displayed since the Emden came into port for a visit.

U. S. REFUSES TO ALTER POLICY UPON NICARAGUA

Government Is Unmoved By Severe Criticism of Foreign Critics.

EXPECT CHANGES.

Senator Demands Withdrawal of United States' Recognition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. United Press. — The administration is determined to continue its present Nicaraguan-Mexican policy, regardless of criticism.

Indignant of reports that the state department is preparing to modify its Central America policy to conform with the demands of foreign critics and congressional opposition led by Senator Borah, Secretary of State Kellogg yesterday issued this statement:

"There has been no change whatever in this government's policy toward Nicaragua as offered in the president's message.

"From the beginning of the trouble over a year ago, the United States has offered its good offices and exerted its influence to compose the difficulty.

"The same attitude has existed ever since Diaz was elected president, nor is any change contemplated."

Modification Reported.

The Kellogg statement came after the Washington Post—generally regarded as a weather vane on the administration's Latin-American intentions—had published reports that the administration was tending to modify its position under fire from Congress. Last we the Post predicted a break with Mexico, and its general tone indicated the administration intended to maintain its position in Nicaragua and Mexico without alteration, despite objection from Capitol Hill.

Kellogg refused to discuss his conferences with Senator Borah and Charles Beecher Warren, former ambassador to Mexico, which were interpreted in some quarters as foreshadowing a change in policy. Borah demands withdrawal of United States recognition of the Diaz-Nicaraguan faction and arbitration of Mexican oil land disputes, while Warren has advised the President that the United States-Mexican general claims commission should handle the oil dispute.

Kellogg declined to commit the department to the Warren interpretation of the powers of the claims commission which is similar to the Mexican interpretation.

Despite Kellogg's insistence on his present Nicaraguan-Mexican policy, it is generally believed President Coolidge would favor modification of the Kellogg policy if foreign and congressional opposition increases.

The White House and State Department, however, expect the opposition to diminish rather than to grow.

INCREASED TARIFF ON COAL AND COKE

Application to be Placed Before Canadian Tariff Advisory Board.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—An application for a substantial increase in the Customs tariff on coke and coal imported for coking purposes will be presented to the Canadian Tariff Advisory Board at a formal hearing here today. The argument in favor of the increased duty will be presented by the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company and the Dominion Coal Company of Nova Scotia.

Coke enters Canada duty free and a drawback is granted on bituminous coal and anthracite screenings brought in for manufacture into coke in by-product ovens or for the smelting or melting of metals. It is understood that the coal companies of the Canadian Maritime Provinces will ask for a revision of the Canadian Customs tariff which will remove the competition of foreign coal and cake and encourage the use of Canadian bituminous coal for coking purposes. The application is the most important one on the list which awaits the Tariff Board at the three-day hearing which begins to-day. Senator the Right. Hon. George P. Graham, who resigned from the chairmanship of the Tariff Board recently when he was elevated to the Senate, will preside at the hearing, pending the appointment of his successor.

TO FORM CABINET

BERLIN, Jan. 17 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Wilhelm Marx, former Chancellor and leader of the Centrist party, has accepted a call from President Von Hindenburg and will endeavor to form a new cabinet.

His acceptance came after a conference with Centrist leaders and he will negotiate with the political parties on the basis of the Centrists' proposal for the formation of a government made up of a coalition of the Middle parties.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE FIRST FORMAL

She's going to a party, quite alone,
Except the boy who's taking her, of course.
And then, of course, there'll be a chaperone,
A chaperone that Mother can endorse.
But Mother won't be there herself to see.
And Father will not come to bring her home,
And Daughter's feeling suddenly as free
As any birdling first allowed to roam.

There will be other parties, many more,
And grist affairs, with taxicabs and all,
And other fellows standing at the door,
To take her to the promenade and ball.
But there will never be another day,
Another party quite the same as this,
And Mother's happy as they start away,
But there's a little sadness in her kiss.

She has been ours entirely, only ours,
But now the world is calling her out there,
As strangers come, attracted by the flow'rs
That other hands have 'tended with such care.
The florist sees an opening bud depart,
His fairest blossom from his garden goes;
The florist sighs, yet pride is in his heart,
To give the world around him such a rose.

INSTALL OFFICERS.

At Regular Meeting of Stirling Encampment, No. 80, I.O.O.F.

STIRLING, Jan. 18.—D. D. G. P. Isaac Baker of Picton, accompanied by Patriarchs Minaker and Kinsley were present at the regular meeting of Stirling Encampment No. 80, I.O.O.F., last Friday night for the purpose of installing the following officers for the ensuing term: W. H. Farrell, C.P.; Harry Hulin, S.W.; E. J. Pyear, H.P.; M. W. Sine, R.S.; Ernest Carlisle, F.S.; J. W. Sarles, Treas.; John Carlisle, J.W.

At this meeting arrangements were made to properly commemorate the birthday of Thos. Wildey, the founder of Oddfellowship in America. At the meeting on January 21st, a program will be carried out with this end in view.

After the installing of the officers, those present were treated to a sumptuous supper at the Empire Cafe.

Several of the local Oddfellows visited Tweed on Monday night, when their new hall was dedicated in the presence of a large attendance from the various lodges in the district.

Town Council.

The new council for the village, signed the declaration of office and were sworn in by Clerk Luery on Monday forenoon, and immediately adjourned to meet at 8 p.m. in the Public Library. In the evening all the members were present, viz., Thos Montgomery, Reeve, and councillors, L. Meiklejohn, Jetty Thompson, Samuel Hatton and W. H. Patterson. The principal business was appointing the various officers for 1927, and are the same as held office in 1926: as follows—G. H. Luery, Clerk; T. G. Clute, Treasurer; John Tanner, Assessor and Village Constable; M. W. Sine, Tax Collector; Electric Light Collector, H. C. Martin; F. Sprentall, Sanitary Inspector; Truant Officer, Cow by-law Officer, Village Engineer, Caretaker of Fire Hall and Opera House and Village Electrician. Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Potts; Pound Keeper, Wm. Chambers; Fence Viewers, George Eggleton George Belshaw and John Richardson; Caretaker of Cemetery, Joseph Bronson. Mrs. (Dr.) Potts on Library Board, J. S. Marshall on Board of Education, for three years. R. P. Coulter was appointed to Board of Health, for another term.

The following are the Committees of the council Streets, Jetty Thompson, W. H. Paterson and Thos Montgomery. Electric Light and Property Committee Samuel Hatton, L. Meiklejohn Reeve Montgomery was appointed manager of the Opera House. The clerk was instructed to write to the liability insurance agencies, regarding insurance, covering accidents on the streets and in the electric light work for the corporation. A committee of the whole council were appointed to secure a site for the proposed new town hall. Council adjourned at 11.30 p.m., to meet hereafter on the first Friday of each month, instead of Monday as heretofore.

Team Runaway.

Mr. Fred McCutcheon's team created considerable excitement last Monday evening when they started west on Mill St., from in front of Walter Wright's grocery, at a furious gait. They were halted somewhat at the drug store corner as the platform of the sleigh struck the electric light pole. The platform was left at this spot but the team continued their course up Front street until they crashed into the rear of a car standing in front of Dr. Alger's. Here the race ended. The car was badly wrecked, otherwise not much damage done. The car was owned by Mr. Chisholm from near Tweed.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie of Burnbrae was the preacher at both services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church last Sunday. Before the morning's service began a pleasing function was performed when Mr. Robert Eggleton and Allen Meiklejohn, the Superintendent and Secretary of the Sunday School presented books to about twenty of the pupils for their regular attendance at church service during the past year.

The annual meeting of the W.A. of St. John's Anglican church was held in the vestry of the church on Tuesday afternoon. The following are the officers for 1927: Mrs. Hiram Rodgers, President; Mrs. (Dr.) Alger Secy.; Mrs. Geo. Bailey, Treas. As part of their work for this year they are to provide clothing for a boy in one of the Alberta mission schools.

The W.M.S. of the United Church met on Tuesday afternoon in the school room of St. Paul's church, with a fair attendance. Miss Donnan gave the Scripture reading. Mrs. Vanderwater commented on the passage, the topic was taken by Miss Hume and Mrs C. F. Walt, the subject being on China. The keyword was "Prayer."

The Prayer Service for Presbyterian Women of Ontario Provincial W.M.S. was observed at the regular meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Bailey on Tuesday afternoon when 20 members and 2 visitors were present. During the past year this local auxiliary raised $201.00 for missionary purposes.

Horticultural Society.

The Annual meeting of the Horticultural Society was held Wednesday night in the Agricultural Rooms. Mr. J. B. Belshaw, President, for the past year gave a report regarding the work of the Society during the year. This was followed by the Secretary-Treasurer's report which showed the Society had received from legislative and municipal grants $60.00, Members' subscriptions $108.00, Donations $19.00, Sale of seeds, flowers, etc., $134.38; other receipts $2.65. Total $375.99. The expenses incurred were: for Civic improvements, $38.42, announcements $3.00, horticultural periodicals $41.20 salaries $10.00, cartage of flowers to and from fair grounds $2.00, Miscellaneous $11.80. Total expenditure $301.76; balance to 1927, $74.23.

The election of officers for 1927 resulted as follows: Mr. J. B. Belshaw was re-elected as President; Mrs. Annie Bissonnette, 1st Vice-President; Mrs. C. F. Walt, 2nd Vice-President; Mrs. M. W. Sine, Secretary-Treasurer; Directors, Mesdames Nolan, Geo. Bailey, Annie Bailey, Handy, J. M. McGee, Potts, E. T. Ward, Hammond. Messrs. C. B. McGuire, L. Meiklejohn and J. S. Morton. Auditors, H. C. Martin and J. D. Mills. Representatives to Toronto Convention, Mr. J. B. Belshaw and Mrs. Hammond.

The premiums are to be seeds, bulbs, ferns or shrubs. The society assumes responsibility for work done at the Library grounds also the park, and furnish plants for the flower beds in the cemetery.

A new electric transparent sign at the Oddfellows' Hall is being installed today. It will supply a need and announce the meetings of the various lodges—when the "juice" is turned on.

Rub a little Zam-Buk over your hands and arms to check and heal all roughness and chafing. It's wonderful.

Zam-Buk contains valuable herbal extracts which lubricate the tissues, soothe pain, allay inflammation and grow new healthy skin. Cold sores, 'chaps', frost bite, chafing and similar troubles are quickly ended by Zam-Buk.

It provides the handiest and safest antiseptic dressing for all injuries and skin troubles.

COLDS—For cold in the head, smear a little Zam-Buk over the palms of the hands, and inhale. For colds in chest or back, rub briskly with slightly-warmed Zam-Buk night and morning.

Personals.

Mr. Cameron Montgomery, who is employed at J. S. Marshall's box factory, met with a painful accident when he slipped and scalded one of his legs badly in the tank where the veneering is steamed.

Rev. F. A. Robinson, a former pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was a visitor in town recently on his way to Brockville, where he conducted special evangelical services on Sunday.

The neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. George McCutcheon surprised them on the eve of their departure for their new home in the village and presented them with an electric table lamp.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rosebush returned home this week after being in Toronto for some time.

Mrs. R. H. Chambers left Friday morning for Montreal, to visit her daughter, Miss Nellie Chambers R.N.

Mrs. W. L. Fox has been confined to her bed for several days.

AUCTION SALE.

Held at Mr. John Stile's, at Wellman's Corners, on Wednesday.

BURNBRAE, Jan. 18.—Farm auctions have been few and far between around here this season, and a large number of local farmers attended the sale of farm stock and implements held by Mr. John Stiles, Wellman's Corners, on Wednesday, January 12. Mr. C. W. Clancy was auctioneer, and started the sale at 10 a.m. With a short intermission for lunch, selling went on until after four o'clock in the afternoon during which time a tremendous quantity of goods were sold. The implements were, to a large extent, quite new and all in good repair. Prices were fairly high, the one bargain noticed being a corn binder which had only cut ten acres selling for $122, just half the original price. Several brood sows sold for good prices. The demand for hogs seeming fairly brisk. Five horses were offered; two of these being good, young general purpose geldings selling for $100 each. The older animals brought from $45 to $50 each. A fine, large herd of grade Holstein cows was the premier attraction of the sale. While a few sold from $50 to $65, the outstanding cows in the herd sold around the $75 mark, with one reaching $82. A nice pair of dairy calves about nine months old were keenly contested for, the successful bidder parting with $48 to secure them. Feed oats brought 67 cents a bushel, and barley 84 cents a bushel.

Altogether the sale could be counted a very successful one, prices showing that farmers still have confidence in their industry.

YOUNG'S POINT

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 18.—On Thursday, Jan. 6, the Christmas Tree and Supper of the Anglican Church was held in the basement of St. Aidens Church. Supper was served to the children at 4.30, after which a goodly number of the parents and friends of the children partook of supper.

An enjoyable evening was spent in music and games, after which the arrival of Santa Claus, with his abundance of gifts for young and old, brought the happy evening to a close.

INDIANS KEEP OLD WHIPPING TREE

WEWOKA, Okla., Jan. 14.—The Seminole Indians went on the war path again recently. The cause was a move to cut down an oak tree on the Court House lawn. The tree is known as "the whipping tree" and was used by the Cherokees and later by Seminoles as a place for punishment by tribal laws.

A WELCOME GIFT.

The Rotary Club's donation of a quantity of gymnasium equipment to the Salvation Army will be of great assistance to that organization in its work for young people, which has been steadily growing.

It may not be generally known that the Temple accommodation includes a gymnasium, which through lack of funds has been without apparatus or other equipment.

Rotary's assistance—a belated Christmas gift to the Salvation Army—will make it possible for the gymnasium to be much more generally employed, and the equipment will be appreciated by the many youngsters who find in the Army Temple their chief social centre.

Most of these children are unable to take advantage of the facilities offered by other institutions in the city, and the basketball outfit, dumbells and other equipment that is now to be furnished will bring joy to many young hearts and fresh vigour and health to many youthful bodies.

LEFT ALONE—TO DIE.

Four Toronto children, the eldest but four years and the youngest an infant of two, lost their lives early Sunday morning in a fire which destroyed their home while their parents were playing cards in the house of a friend.

The average man or woman will be at a loss to understand how parents could leave four little children alone under any conditions, and least of all, to understand how a father and mother could desert youngsters of such tender years merely to spend a social evening elsewhere.

The loss of their children brings the keenest punishment that could be meted out to parents guilty of such callous neglect, yet an indignant public opinion demands that such conduct should receive the attention of the law.

Unfortunately, this terrible accident is not an isolated case; within recent weeks there have been other young lives lost when children were left alone.

If there are parents in Peterboro who have been guilty of leaving their young families under such conditions, the details of the Toronto tragedy should cause them to speedily and permanently abolish the practice.

HERE IS ROMANCE.

The story of George Young's triumph in alone accomplishing the passage of San Pedro Channel in the famous Catalina marathon reads like one of the Frank Merriwell stories most of us used to peruse carefully folded in the big school geography—always the most popular of school books because it afforded such admirable camouflage for illicit literature.

This is true not only of the race itself but of the incidents that led up to it.

The whole story teems with romance.

The youthful Canadian with his ramshackle motorcycle as his means of transportation out to where the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow beckoned; the invalid mother scraping up $135 to finance her boy's adventure and handing it over with the admonition, "Don't fail—whatever you start, finish;" the weeks of training unnoticed in the glamour that surrounded better known stars; then the battle against the tides and currents and cold water, hour after hour of it, the strong arm rising and falling 54 strokes to the minute; the bon-fires on the California shore; the last struggle with kelp that tried to hold him back; and then fame, $25,000 in gold, vaudeville and movie offers, and best of all, a chance to win back the health of the grey-haired mother back in Toronto.

The Queen City's welcome to George Young should be worthy of the occasion.

ABOUT THE INCOME TAX.

The deputation from the Ontario Municipal Association which waited upon the Ontario Cabinet the other day opposed the Government's proposal to increase the exemptions allowed under the Municipal Income Tax Act.

In taking this position the Municipal Association is by no means speaking for all the municipalities of the Province.

In some cities—Windsor is a notable example—the Municipal Council has been for some time endeavouring to secure abolition of the income tax, or at least the right to impose it or not as the city may see fit.

It is the opinion of the Windsor Council that the tax is unfair and unjust because it cannot be equitably collected; some people pay and many others do not.

And in connection with the deputation from the Municipal Association The Border Cities Star raises a very interesting point.

Remarking that one of the complaints against the association is that it is dominated by municipal officials rather than by the elected representatives of the people, The Star asks:

"Are matters of taxation to be settled by officials appointed to do assessing and collect taxes or is this the duty of the Mayors and Councils the people select to handle their affairs for them? It does seem presumptious, to say the least, when one sees municipal officials attempting, or at least apparently attempting, to say what taxes should be collected and what not, and even carrying their proposals to the Government of the Province."

Some of those big American cities with huge stocks of holiday rum can quite properly be designated as hic towns.—St. Catharines Standard.

BOLSHEVISM HAS PAID THE LEADERS.

The infinitesimal few "reds," if there are any at all such remaining in Canada, should, if they are conscientious, be pained to learn that Krassin, that accomplished Bolshevik who recently died, left an estate of a million dollars. It is also said that other of the Bolshevist leaders have been able to feather their nests a great deal more handsomely than did Krassin. When Trotsky and others are reported as kicking over the traces, what brings them into line is the threat that they will be made to disgorge their ill-gotten gains or face the scorn of the multitude.

Krassin did not earn a million dollars nor did he have, like some industrial Colossus, others earn it for him. When the bourgeosie in Russia were murdered—actual records shown more than a million people were put to death—these Bolshevik leaders plundered their wealth, money and jewels. Private corporations and banks suffered similar plundering.

Could it be expected that this band of murdering thieves, once they attained power, would honor Russia's pre-war debt owing to the peasantry of France? Where is the Communistic principle in this accretion of ill-gotten wealth in the hands of a few? How does the condition survive?

A Bulgarian correspondent casts some light on the matter when he writes: "The crowds of Communist workers have reason for closing their eyes before these flagrant infractions of Communist principles; willing or unwilling, they must permit their chiefs to do as they like, for they risk otherwise seeing themselves abandoned by all their leaders."

One of the finest things ever done for international morality was the refusal of the United States, a refusal persisted in, to recognize Soviet Russia. One of the stupidest things in the name of an honorable and proud nation, inspired simply by possible sordid trade gains, was the recognition of Moscow by the Ramsay MacDonald Labor Government of Great Britain. But Britain has paid dearly in labor strikes and industrial dislocation which that recognition encouraged, although the Bolshevik menace is not yet entirely removed from British soil.—St. Catharines Standard.

FOR A BETTER RURAL LIFE.

Among the various women's organizations of Ontario and Canada the Women's Institutes may fairly claim a foremost place both because of their large membership and their widespread activities and definite usefulness. From small beginnings a little more than a quarter century ago they have grown into a widespread organization with many branches in all the counties of old Ontario, in which the movement originated, and with steadily growing strength in the other Provinces of Canada. The movement has been adopted also in Great Britain where it has made substantial progress.

In face of the serious problem of rural depopulation and the loss of interest in farming due to its lower or less apparent rewards, as compared with urban occupations, and due to its fewer comforts and opportunities for pleasure and recreation, the work of the Women's Institutes is of real national value. The purposes of the organization are broadly the betterment of rural life which it seeks to effect by maintaining and raising the standard of home life, by safeguarding the interests of children in home and school, by increasing the efficiency of women in the home and by widening their interests and broadening their social life through the co-operative opportunities afforded through the institute branches.

Their programme is widely comprehensive, but no one who follows even casually their activities in a given district can deny that they are giving a worthwhile service to their members and to the communities in which they function. Every month the district news published in the R. and T. bears testimony to their value. Here they have provided for a community hall; there they have purchased equipment for a school or established a circulating library; elsewhere they have arranged courses of instruction in cooking or sewing or arranged for singing classes, for debates or for the presentation of plays or the preparation of concerts. Their activities are directed toward definitely practical purposes and toward recreational and cultural aims and not the least of their benefits is that in the pursuit of these activities they bring the rural women into closer contact, give them common objects of endeavor and thus help to break down the isolation and reserve which can easily arise in rural life.

The services of the institutes is not confined, however, to purposes of general public benefits and education. They perform also many of the functions which in urban centres are performed by charitable associations, service clubs and church organizations. They take thought for the sick and aged and for the poor. Our news columns reveal a variety of service in this respect during the past Christmas season. A fine instance of their thoughtfulness is afforded by the action of a branch in Leeds County in installing a telephone in a home where there was serious sickness so that the doctor or other assistance might be quickly summoned.

It is difficult to estimate at all adequately the value of the Women's Institute in Canadian rural life. They have been already an agency of great positive benefit and their strength appears to be waxing rather than waning. They have difficult problems with which to contend, but they are making earnest, courageous efforts to solve them. They deserve every encouragement and they have earned a large measure of praise.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is evident that it will be some time yet before swimming will be regarded as the best means of crossing the San Pedro Channel.

An Examiner correspondent reports that "an orchestra furnished music." Before you laugh just remember that in these days of "hot" harmony and jazz there are orchestras that furnish everything but music.

It was Canada first and the field nowhere at Catalina. But probably some newspapers across the line will discover that it was United States axle grease that really won the race.

Probably the one hundred unsuccessful Catalina swimmers will receive chewing gum as consolation prizes.

George Young's swimming education was carried on in the Toronto West-End Y.M.C.A. pool. His success is a great boost for those who have been advocating swimming facilities as a necessity for every Canadian city.

A pessimist remembers that the lily belongs to the onion family; an optimist that the onion belongs to the lily family.—Washington Post.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press). — There was some demand from foreign buyers for wheat over the week-end on the Montreal market and sales of a few loads were made to both the United Kingdom and the Continent.

The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was again of a limited character, the demand being only for odd cars to meet immediate wants. The market in oats was weaker and prices were reduced 1 1-2c per bushel.

Prices for all grades of Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour were well maintained under a quiet demand.

The millfeed market was fairly active and the undertone was firm. The market for standard grade of rolled oats was quiet but steady.

The undertone to the egg market continued firm on account of the light receipts and prospects are that prices will go higher shortly. A fair business was done yesterday. The receipts were 252 cases.

The demand for potatoes was fair and values were steady. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.85 to $1.90 per bag of 90 pounds, and Quebec White stock at $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The butter trade was quiet but firm. The receipts were 58 packages.

Extreme dullness marked the cheese trade, but the feeling was firm. The receipts were 76 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—With export demand proving negligible, wheat turned weak yesterday near the finish. A decrease of 1,567,000 bushels in the United States visible supply failed to act as more than a temporary incentive to buy. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, at the same as Saturday's finish to 1-4c and 3-8c lower. Corn 1-2c to 5-8c up; oats at a shade to 1-4c advance, and provisions showing 5c to 25c gain.

Unfavorable weather put strength into the corn market. Speculators led the buying. Oats followed corn.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 1-2.
Sterling cables, $4.86 1-2.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

"SHEBANG"

"I was in a car the other day," writes a correspondent, "and I overheard one young man ask another, 'Well how do you like your new job?' The other one answered, 'Oh, fine; I like the boss, and the people there; in fact, I like the whole shebang.' Please tell me if there is such a word as 'shebang,' and if so what it means. Is it good English?"

There is such a word as "shebang," and it is found in some of the large dictionaries. But it is not good English. It is a slang term, and it is defined as "a dwelling or shop; institution; concern." As it is not recognized among the words in good standing, it is better, of course, not to use it.

In some parts of the United States the slang words "jimbang" and "jingbang," with a similar meaning, are sometimes used.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

YOUR FINEST PIECE OF PROPERTY

Have you, who are so concerned about investing in valuable real-estate, ever considered what a fine piece of property you possess in that body of yours, which you have failed to cultivate and improve?

Our capabilities for accomplishing and enjoying ourselves during our life, depends almost entirely upon the health of the physical body. No wealth we can obtain, or honor we can receive, can make us happy any further than we have health with which to enjoy them, and the value of all we possess diminishes in proportion as we become sick. The efficiency we develop, and our ability to commune with our fellows, depends upon the way we can express ourselves through the physical body. We speak with our mouth, we see with our eyes, we hear with our ears, and through these mediums of expression we are able to make our contact with the world about us.

Who would take a million dollars for the loss of an eye? And yet how true, that every day we thoughtlessly do things which hurt our eyes. Bad habits, and practices which impair our sight; cut down our enjoyment of the things about us, which we might see and understand. Our ears become stuffed up with catarrhal diseases, so that we cannot hear, and learn as much through the sense of hearing. When in health, with what zest we enjoy, delicious food, which only nauseates when disease has destroyed our appetite. All who are healthy are, therefore, rich because their fund of life turns all surroundings to means of enjoyment. The poorest servant who is healthy is so much richer, than the feeble millionaire master, who has no means by which he can enjoy his riches, if he does not have health.

If you were sure you were going to die tomorrow, how much would you not give for one more year of health and happiness? You would no doubt give every dollar and every piece of property you own if when sick you could once again regain health, and all of its pleasures.

Health is a fortune at interest, the income from which economically used, will support you. Spending health foolishly draws on the principal, and you will soon find yourself bankrupt. The more you draw on the principal the sooner you will exhaust it, so all over-eating, over-working, loss of sleep, improper habits, and whatever injures the health will expend your fund of life and death will summon you to your final reckoning.

A strong body is a natural heritage, but you can develop even a stronger body than you now have, if you have lived haphazardly up to the present time. There is a science to physical development, and you can learn it, the same as anyone else. If your desires run to mental work, and you are occupied in some sedentary occupation, such as practicing one of the professions, this does not keep you from also exercising the physical body, and developing it to its utmost perfection.

We have departed so from natural living, it is necessary to make a scientific study of health building, if we would obtain the highest possible mark of perfection.

The great thing for each of us to remember is that we have a body for development, and that this body is the finest piece of property we will ever possess, the cultivation of which will bring us far greater dividends than any real estate, or business we can develop.

Make the preservation, and development of health the paramount interest in your life.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

EVOLUTION NOW
By Dr. Frank Crane.

Dr. Chester Stock, a noted paleontologist of the California Institute of Technology, said the other day in a lecture:

"The history of the evolution of man to the present day is a very small chapter in the history of the earth's development as a whole. The entire evolutionary process is going on at the present time as in the past, and it is only logical to assume that it will continue and that modern man represents only one small stage in the great process through the past to the greater growth of the future."

A point that many people forget is that evolution is not a thing of the future and it is not exclusively of today, but it is going on now. Perhaps mankind of the year three thousand will differ as much from us as we do from the anthropoid apes.

Just what mankind will be in the remote future is an interesting subject of speculation. Mr. Wells has indulged his inventive faculty on this point.

It is rational to suppose that man may practically discard clothing, that almost all drudgery will be performed by machinery, that man's memory will be trained to a prodigious degree, and that there will be some sort of unified religious effort which will take the place of the present-day sectarian endeavors.

About these and other subjects, however, any one is free to speculate. The main thing to remember is that we are now undergoing a stage in evolution and that the process has not ceased. It is simply so slow that it seems stationary.

ITALIAN SCOUTS NOW FASCISTS

Restrictions Placed on Further Organization by New Decree.

GIVEN EMBLEMS

(By John T. Burke, Universal Service Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, Italy, Jan. 18.—The issuance of a sweeping ukase incorporating the Catholic Boy Scouts in Italy as members of the National Fascisti and ordering the inscription of the scouts' ensigns and flags with the Fascist emblem, caused great surprise.

One clause of this remarkable decree declares that it does not apply to any Catholic societies organized for purely religious or charitable purposes. This clause is designed to conciliate the Pope.

The decree not only mobilizes the Catholic scouts in the junior army of Fascism but it expressly forbids the further organization of the Catholic scouts in communities of less than 20,000 unless it is a chief town and then only in accord with the rules governing the national baptilla.

Prefects have been ordered to disband all scout bodies not complying with the decree, which is designed to give Fascism absolute control of the moral, physical and spiritual education of the youth of the land and make them work harmoniously for the good of the nation.

It is believed that the decree was issued only as a result of an understanding with the Vatican.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

SYNOPSIS

Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce. Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her, but secretly knows that she loves Abner Gratman. Unnerved, Ranny loses the International Cup Match for America. Lacking proof that Joan is faithless, he plans to trap her and Abner while they are all on a week-end trip on the yacht of Stivner, a billionaire lumber king, with whom Ranny is trying to consummate a big business deal. Joan is jealous when Ranny flirts with Clare, a widow.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

The cool contempt that sprayed from Joan's eyes was more chilling than bitter winds from the glacier limned Himalayas.

Ranny, catching Clay's eyes, furtively winked and pretended to turn up his coat collar, as a man suffering from the cold.

But Joan was far from acting just for the effect. She was profoundly shaken in her heart of hearts by the realization that a serious crisis in the even moral tenor of her life was at hand.

For the dozenth time Abner perfervidly whispered his daring plan for the night's spicy trysts, suffixing it, "Why should you have scruples about being true to him."

Joan drew a long breath—and took a long step in the direction that, up to now, she had felt was wrong. But now!—?

"When he's in bed I'll go out on the private sun deck and tap on the stanchion. Then you—climb down!"

Straightway Abner's manner was shot through with a furtive sense of triumph. He settled back in his chair—a slight and involuntary gesture of smugness—and stared upon the side of Ranny's head with such an overbearing and dominant disdain that Ranny, subconsciously impelled to turn and meet the fellow's gaze, was assailed by acute suspicions, and scowled darkly.

He could not stand that impudent gaze of contempt, of obvious victory. Drat the fellow! He was an insufferable cad. Might as well throw him overboard now as any other time.

Feeling distinctly homicidal, Ranny started up from his chair.

Abner wilted and whitened suddenly and seamed to shrivel.

Joan felt a curious tightness around the base of her spine, but gave no other sign of her agitation than a waiting, quizzical half smile.

Clay deftly, and with seeming unconcern, transferred himself to the arm of Ranny's chair, barring him from further rising and—more important—shutting the offending sight of Abner from his blazing eyes.

Clare, after her quaintly dumb fashion, lisped:

"Why, what's the matter, Ranny? You look as though you want to jump down somebody's throat. Oh, I just adore seeing strong men angry!"

Stivner was staring at Ranny's flushed face in amazement. The other guests, eyes as wide and mouths as agape as the etiquette book allowed, drank in the scene avidly. Especially the women. They looked at Ranny, at Abner, at Joan—and built mountains of scandalous hope. Truly, his WAS going to be a yachting week-end to talk about over many coffee cups still to be filled, across many bridge tables still to be played.

Blue blood tingling for a shedding of red blood!

Ranny, who had never lost his head in the fiercest polo scrimmages, reined up his emotions sharply. He would have to learn to ride his social temper with a curb bit!

He laughed, and lied like a gentleman:

"Ever since that game the other day my nerves have been unstrung, jumpy. I've been getting balmy spells. Always thinking I see an Argentine hitting one over, don't you know?"

"Good old fraud!" whispered Clay.

"Maybe this trip will do you good, then," said Stivner dubiously: a little ruefully, thinking of his lost bet, he added, "Wish I'd taken you for a dose of sea air before the game!"

"Maybe you're going to get asphasia," lisped Clare. "I just adore men who can't remember anything!"

"They are safest!" said Joan, with malicious sweetness. She just could not overlook the chance.

"Are you sure you were seeing an Argentine?" guffawed a witty old boy who had made his millions in nailproof socks and had never read the etiquette book. But his dumpling wife—who had—shut off further conversational indiscretions from him by the simple expedient of grinding a French heel into his angle bone.

Ranny, however, was not loath to reply.

"Not quite sure," he said slowly, "for the Argentines, after all, were men!"

The continued references to the manly prowess of the Argentine polo-ists aroused such painful recollections in Stivner that he summoned his steward and ordered iced drinks.

Noiselessly, the moon-faced man-boy went, and noiselessly he returned, his lean olive hands holding a trayful of tall tumblers steady against the urge and recession of the broad Sound's bosom.

"Where does Master wish dinner served," he murmured, as Stivner took the last glass, "in the dining salon or on deck?"

Stivner instantly jovial as his spatulate fingers caresses the clinking glass, left the decision to his guests.

"Might not the dining salon be more—er-r—regular and appropriate?" asked Joan, with a slight shrug.

"Oh, but I just adore dining on deck!" pouted Clare prettily, as bland as contrary. Under the golden valance of her lashes she covertly shot a defiant look at Joan.

Ranny seconded Clare enthusiastically.

"It will be keen out here. Put snap in our appetites. Great for digestion, and all that."

His approval could not have better prevailed with the crowd if he had been a star salesman. Joan found herself alone, and in the position of appearing an old fashioned kill-joy. Only Abner agreed with her. Her acceptance of defeat was superbly indifferent, rather than merely gracious.

Climaxes were Clare's specialty, as essentially a part of her surfaceness as her lisp. Smiling languidly, even loterantly, upon Joan, she murmured:

"It's so romantic upon the deck here, my dear Mrs' Forbes—and it is up to we women, you know, to cling to the sentimental and oft times silly things of this drab world!"

Dropping her gesturing hand to her lap, she allowed it to tap fleetingly again over Ranny's hand—a caressing octave, as one might measure love chords upon a pianoforte.

Ranny, settling deep and luxuriously in his chair, took time now, as he had not done before, to survey his immediate surroundings. He recognized an unconscious truth behind the blonde prattle of Clare. In truth, a more romantic background and setting would be hard to imagine.

Eastward the Speedwell raced its pleasure bound way, knifing the Sound waters into a long, opalescent furrow powdered with hissing white suds. A blended panorama of dappled sky, verdant shore, emerald water; tune of wind in time to the lilting dip o f boat flank to sea cheek.

No other place in all the world are the music of the spheres and the conscious ryhthm of Nature more manifest than on a swift, man-made craft of grace and beauty abroad upon the open waters of the world.

Here was grace. Two hundred odd feet of it, and thirty knots an hour without apparent effort or sense of motion.

Here was beauty. The lounge deck alone, set off by brass rails, was a lavish and sheer exposition of boundless opulence. Slender staunchions, rising straight as birthday candles from a classic patterned inlaid rubber tile deck, upheld the gayest of yellow awnings, striped alternately in bright blue and black. Plate glass sides offered no discouragement to the clearest, freest vision. A wicker "hourglass" table, with Italian marble top, held cigarettes and bonbons. Fresh cut flowers nodded from tall crystal vases, set upon glass tables over ventilator grills. Leather divans outlined the dining salon superstructure, opening off one end. But the chairs were the ultimate touch—great, yielding caverns of luxurious comfort, smartly upholstered to match the awning.

Viewing them against the setting, Ranny realized with a pang that Joan and Abner, seated side by side on a wicker love-seat at the extreme opposite edge of the lounge, fitted perfectly into the picture.

First Aerial Suicide Reported Near Toulouse

(By Universal Service, Special Cable Dispatch.

ALICANTE, Jan. 18.—The first aerial suicide on record occurred here on Saturday.

Maurice Coucher, French citizen, is reported to have jumped to his death from a passenger aeroplane flying from Toulouse, to Casablanca.

The pilot of the 'plane did not see Coucher jump.

He felt the machine lightened. Looking around, he saw Coucher's overcoat hanging to the rudder of the plane.

There was no sign of Coucher.

CAN'T EAT ACID FOODS, TOO MUCH GAS

"I suffered from gas and acid stomach, and could not eat anything that contained acid. Since taking Adlerika, I feel fine,"—James Fest.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Unlike most medicines, it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in your system and which caused sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury and other druggists.

TRAVELLER TELLS ABOUT WEST INDIES

Rev. Rufus Garratt Gives Lecture To Pupils of Hiawatha School.

HIAWATHA, Jan. 18.—Jamaica meaning "a land of wood and water," was the theme of the address given at the Hiawatha public school on Tuesday afternoon of last week by Rev. Rufus Garratt, who was stationed there some twenty-five years ago as a missionary.

This interesting island is ninety miles from the greatest of the West Indies, Cuba, and one hundred and fifty miles long and fifty miles wide. It is one of the oldest of Britain's possessions.

The Boston Fruit Company, whose ship carried Mr. Garratt down there from the port of Boston was spoken of briefly. This company had a plantation of sixteen thousand acres. It was calculated then that each acre yielded produce to the value of $100. The land was very fertile but would deteriorate if not given a rest. For this reason every eight years the crops are cut off close to the ground and the land runs wild. There is nothing in Jamaica to hinder growth. Frosts are unknown, even on the mountains which are five thousand feet in height.

The natives, who are largely negroes, own their own farms of two acres, and only one is used at a time. The other one is allowed to go to shrubs or weeds for two years. At the end of that time there is a great growth, and it has to be re-broken. One acre of land supplies all the food required for one family.

Bananas, sugar-cane and cocoanuts are the principal sources of revenue of the islanders. The speaker carefully explained the planting and harvesting of these to the pupils, who listened with intense eagerness.

Sugar cane is like field corn, tall and juicy. To prepare it for planting, a long stalk is cut up into three or four pieces. A long trench, or ditch, is dug in the rich earth, and the sections of the cane are literally buried. This long trench is then moistened and left. Tiny shoots soon commence to appear. The planting of the cane is done only once in sixteen years. Each year, at the end of the harvest, it is cut off short to the ground and left till spring, when it is again moistened. The growing of sugar cane was not as popular in Jamaica as the raising of bananas. The reason for this, Mr. Garratt stated, was that, owing to the passing of the anti-slave law, cheap labour was hard to procure for the planting and cutting of the cane.

Extracting the refined sugar from the cane is an interesting process. The stalks are conveyed to large steel rollers, which press the sweet juice from them. This juice is not pure but has to go through other stages which take the blackstrap, or cooking molasses, from it. It then is clear, crystal loaf sugar.

The very roughest refuse is allowed to ferment and becomes rum. Bananas are planted like slips of plants. Many slips are placed in a hill. The hills are placed in rows to allow for cultivation, similar to the Canadian method of planting corn, only the hills are farther apart as the plants grow to a great height.

The flowers are beautiful and purple in colour. The leaves are as wide as eighteen inches and very long. Once during a rainstorm when he and his party were up in the hills for a trip their guide gave them each a banana leaf and it served very well for an umbrella. Another time his church was decorated with leaves and roses. The two leaves that formed the arch over the pulpit were at least thirty feet long. The stem of each was placed in the front corners, making an arch.

The fruit of this plant grows up to the sunshine, not down as it hangs in the fruit stores. It is always picked green, either for market or home consumption.

When Mr. Garratt first went to the island he was eager to find out how the fruit tasted when it was allowed to ripen naturally. He found that he preferred the bananas that had ripened in the dark shaded places.

In those days the bunches or "hands," as they are termed by the people that grow them, were sold for from twenty to thirty cents, according to their quality.

The fruit was taken to Bowden Harbour and stored there in cooled warehouses till there was a shipload. The Boston Fruit Company then had only three ships. They carried twenty passengers and eight thousand bunches of bananas. Cheapness of labor can be seen, in that it only cost the company twenty dollars to load their fruit. The rate was one shilling, or twenty-five cents, for a hundred bunches. One hundred men took part in this work.

The fruit ship was divided off like a cow stable. The hands, or bunches, were placed on end and pipes that kept the temperature low and constant ran all through the ship. When the fruit reaches its destination it is best to have it still green.

Cocoanuts are very useful, and supply the only cold drink that the island affords. Even the clearest spring water there, flowing out of the earth, tastes warm. The green nut has delicious milk juice in it, which is very refreshing to one living in the warm climate.

Before the nuts are planted they are left lying in the sun for some months till they sprout. Then they are placed in the orchards. It takes six years before they bear fruit. The tree grows to a great height and has twenty or thirty nuts each harvest. Every year the leaves of the tree drop off and leave deep scars in a ring around it. These indentations are used by the coloured people as steps, when they climb the tree after nuts for the owners. The pay they exact is an extra one for themselves.

On the plantation of the Boston Fruit Company each cocoanut tree is tagged and a record kept of its harvest. One of the officials told the speaker that often they bought nuts that were stolen from their own trees.

These trees will grow only on land that is exposed to the salty air of the sea.

Snakes are very scarce in Jamaica, as the mongoose, a little animal similar to a weasel, was introduced and has killed most of them. Wild animals are few, as the island has a very large population. The mongoose is very fond of chickens and for that reason it is hard to raise hens. Some alligators live in the marshy low lands.

Mr. Garratt was heartily encored and replied by telling how a friend of his down there tried to put him in a position to let the surf of the sea give him a ducking. He did get wet and so did the friend.

THE WRONG ROOM

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 18.—They tell this one at the marriage registrar's office:

A muscular young fellow presented himself at the surgeon's office in the town hall of a small town. He was told to strip to the waist. He complied and was duly measured.

"Skip over that chair," the surgeon directed. "Knees back, touch the floor! Now run around and let me test your heart and wind."

"I'm hanged if I will!" the man exploded. "I'd rather stay single."

He had strayed into the office of the army surgeon.

BRITISH FIRMS GOING TO COURT

With Americans, Ask for Injunction Against Mexican Oil Laws.

RIGHTS INJURED

By GEORGE WHINMAN Jr.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

MEXICO CITY, January 18.—Taking the lead among the American interests fighting the so-called retroactive, confiscatory features of the Mexican laws under controversial Article 27, the Transcontinental Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, asked the courts to grant an injunction forbidding the Mexican government to injure its rights by the enforcement of the petroleum law.

While the Transcontinental is the first to act, other great American and British oil groups, opposing this application of the law, are following suit. In accordance with the decision reached, all injunctions must be filed before midnight on Monday, thus assuring a general rush to the courts seeking protection.

The companies' suits constitute the answer of American and British interests to Calles' orders directing the Federal Attorney-General to take immediate action for compelling "the rebellious" companies to comply with the law or accept the consequences.

The companies are also prepared to meet the possible refusal of Morones to grant drilling permits on lands where "confirmatory concessions" are not applied.

While reports from Tampico are saying that some permits affecting these lands have already been cancelled—this cannot be verified here by either the government, companies or the Embassy.

Such action by the government would bring to a head the controversy, as a refusal to grant drilling permits would be held by the companies equivalent to a denial of property rights, thus furnishing grounds for diplomatic action.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE BETTER 'OLE"

Old Bill and his side-kick, Little Alfy, do their best to entertain Capitol theatre audiences this week. There were few quiet moments after the big picture got away to a good start last evening. It is a clever production, that has an odd flatness to the opening which fades away entirely once the onlookers get into the spirit of the action, which is really somewhat of a burlesque of the war, but still has a happy faculty of combining fun and frolic with a delineation of the serious side of the great conflict. There are no bloody scenes, but there are plenty of true to life episodes. The figure of Old Bill dominates the picture, and he is a very real reincarnation of the figure made famous by Bruce Bairnsfather. He lacks only one quality, the extreme "fed up" characteristic of the pictured Old Bill. It was this attribute that made the trio so attractive to their patrons in the Bairnsfather books issued during war time, but Syd Chaplin certainly does his best in the role of the stellar performer in "The Better 'Ole," helped out by "Little Alfy" and the bullying Corporal.

A picture like this must be seen to be properly appreciated. It is impossible to give any idea of the funniness of Private William Busby ("Old Bill") and his companions, in a written review.

In his role of spy-catcher, as a helper in a dramatic performance, as the fore quarters of "Black Beauty" the horse with the rolling eye, who gets drunk and loses his head, as a servitor to a couple of enraged German officers, as the saviour of a beleaguered town, "Old Bill" is at his best. He never loses his characteristic demeanor, even when he is speeding to the rescue of his comrades on a motor-cycle, with his own pals mistakenly bombing him from a flying aeroplane, nor even when he faces a firing squad as a spy, in place of a treacherous major. He is always old war horse with twenty odd years of service behind him, "interested in the war" as he puts it, even when the odds are mightily against him. And he blunders his way to a final victory, when he asks a grateful Colonel to make him a "Sergeant," so that he can give the bullying Corporal a long-wished-for kick, just where it will be most effective.

HOW TO HAVE A CLEAR HEAD

End Stuffiness, Sneezing, Huskiness, Inflammation.

Do you get up in the morning with a stopped-up nose? Are your breathing passages clogged with a cold? Are you subject to catarrh, bronchial irritations, asthma or hay fever? Have you that mean, low-spirited feeling which comes from lack of proper oxygen? If so, here is a pleasant, harmless cigarette that will clear out the head, nose and throat.

These cigarettes are the formula of Dr. J. W. Blosser, and are composed of medicinal flowers, herbs and berries.

Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes contain no tobacco, no cubebs, nothing habit-forming, and are entirely harmless. They are used by women and children as well as men.

It is so simple to inhale this pleasant and soothing smoke. Much more convenient than using sprays, washes, douches, etc.

If you suffer from any catarrhal trouble, catarrhal deafness, asthma, hay fever, bronchial irritations or frequent colds, get from any druggist a convenient, pocket-size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes, and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effects.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY REPORT

Hastings Association Had Very Successful Season During 1926.

HAS SMALL BALANCE.

HASTINGS, Jan. 15.—A splendid report is given by the Hastings Horticultural Society.

The income during 1926 was $267.53, and expenditures, $266.78, leaving a balance of $0.75.

A decrease in membership of 50 is listed at present from the previous year, these members being from outside the village, while the latter shows a slight increase.

Mrs. Ewing of Dartford and Mr. John MacMillan of Roseneath, have received and distributed all parcels of plants and bulbs to these places.

Beds were planted at the Town Hall, with annuals in the spring, and with bulbs in the fall, also the bed in the triangle on the Peterborough Road. This place was kept in shape, and repays any work done as the shrubs are doing well.

Flowers were planted at the War Memorial in the spring and again in the fall.

Tulips were given Mr. Jeffries for the beds at the Railway Depot, and a beautiful display appeared last spring, and it is hoped, thanks to Mr. Jeffries' interest in flowers, that the beds show an even better display this spring and summer.

A Junior Horticultural Society was started among the school children, with a membership of over 40, and an increase this year is looked for. Plants, seeds and bulbs were distributed, and after the gardens had been judged, small cash prizes and candies were given all competitors. Mrs. J. A. Brown and Miss R. Tevins acted as judges for the younger society, and looked after the arrangement of the prizes, while Mr. Chaplin, Miss Spiers and Miss Moran co-operated.

The following directors retire by rotation, and are elegible for re-election for the years 1927-1928. Mr. J. A. Brown, Rev. W. A. Pippen, Mrs. F. W. Fowlds, Mrs. W. R. Wilson and Dr. J. H. Hess. There is a vacancy for the year 1927 in place of Mrs. J. A. McGrail, whose death took place during the year.

HIAWATHA NEWS

HIAWATHA, Jan. 18.—Mr. Henry Cowie, proprietor of the Lakeshore house, has finished his harvest of ice. This year he put in six hundred cakes, which were fourteen inches thick.

On Thursday of last week some boys from Peterborough were down on Rice Lake with their skis. They had a motor-car and one of their number drove the car while the others were pulled or towed along. This is a new sport for Hiawatha. It is called ski-joring in Norway and Sweden.

The weather during the month of December was great for the fox hunters of the village. A number of the wise creatures were taken.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Stevenson and daughter, Hilda, of Harwood, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cowie on Tuesday last.

Mr. Blarney Blastorah, of Harwood, government lumber scaler, visited friends in Hiawatha recently before going to Bobcaygeon to scale some timber of the Macdonald Lumber Company. He was for many years in the district of Rainy River working for the government.

Hiawatha has one very active industry and a very useful one. It is the making of baskets. It is not generally known that Mr. and Mrs. Ben Taylor do this work. Large clothes baskets, market baskets, and birch bark work, decorated with the quills of the porcupine, are some of the products they make.

The lighthouse, which so faithfully performed its duties, has ceased to operate.

HAD BAD SPELLS WITH HER HEART

FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

Sir Herbert Holt, President, Believes No Other Country Offers as Good Opportunities as Canada — Dominion Must Reduce Taxes, and There Must Be Further Elimination of Unnecessary and Unproductive Government Expenditure.

C. E. Neill, General Manager, Stresses Valuable Assistance Given By Bank in the Development of Canada's Foreign Trade—Royal Bank Has 900 Branches, and 11,656 Stockholders—Shareholders Authorize Increase of Capital to $40,000,000—C. E. Neill Elected a Vice-President of the Bank.

The 58th Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders was held at the Head Office of the Bank in Montreal.

President's Address.

Sir Herbert S. Holt, Chairman, said in part:

The Report and Balance Sheet of the Bank, which it is my duty to present to you to-day, disclose a most satisfactory position.

You will be interested to learn that the erection of our new Head Office building, which was announced last year, is being proceeded with as rapidly as possible and we expect that it will be ready for occupancy by May 1, 1928. The foundations have been completed and the steel structure should be finished during the early summer. The building—will cover the whole block bounded by St. James, St. Peter, Notre Dame and Dollard streets, and will rise nearly four hundred feet above the street level.

The record of Canadian external trade in the past three years reflects both the increased buying power resulting from increased stability abroad and the recent growth of Canadian production.

The relatively large increase in imports is a direct reflection of the improvement in our exports, our larger purchasing power and outside capital investment. The greater volume of manufactured goods coming into the country, however, indicates another aspect of the situation which may legitimately suggest some misgiving.

With the improvement in trade, there has been a steady betterment in Federal Revenue during the year and some reduction has been effected in our national debt. The last fiscal budget wrought a measure of relief to certain classes of taxpayers through the revision of the basis of assessment and extension of the system of double taxation. It is the natural tendency of governments to follow the lines of least resistance and impose taxation where it can be most easily exacted, whether it results in the punishment of thrift or the discouragement of productive enterprise. What Canada needs is to follow the example set by the United States in the reduction of all taxes and in the cost of government, so that by economies due to the efficiency of administration we may secure a substantial reduction in the total burden of taxation rather than a change of incidence. Canada has frequently shown that she is not without courage in facing her economic problems and there are indications that a bold co-operative policy of administrative economy on the part of all governments would meet with strong public approval and support. Entering, as we believe, a period of more rapid development, it is essential that a tight rein should be held upon new borrowing and capital expenditures severely restricted to purposes which will add to the productive power of the country.

Steady Improvement in Business.

We have definitely emerged from the discouraging conditions of the post-war period. The year just closed has been one of steady and substantial improvement in almost every department of Canada's business life, and it is gratifying to know that our greater prosperity is well grounded on the sound foundation of expanding production and commerce.

Country Offers Great Opportunities.

The world over, capital is seeking profitable investment and enquiries concerning Canadian conditions are coming from the United States, the United Kingdom, and all parts of Europe. It has been estimated that three billion dollars have been invested in Canada by the people of the United States. Far from deploring this large volume of foreign investment, Canadians should welcome every assistance in the task of developing our latent resources; but there is now sufficient capital in Canada so that we shall expect to finance a steadily increasing proportion of the new undertakings within our own borders. The economic strength of the Dominion lies in its vast potential resources of arable lands, its forests and fisheries, its immense mineralization and reserves of water power. The more rapid flow of capital and labor into the basic industries of the country which has taken place in the last two years is additional evidence of the increased confidence in the country and its progress. However, Canadians should not become so thoroughly immersed in the work of the moment that they fail to appreciate the fact that no other country in the world affords the same opportunities which surround us, nor that any fully developed country can hold forth the promise of the rapid expansion which lies ahead of Canada.

General Manager's Address.

The General Manager, C. E. Neill, said in part:

At our last Annual Meeting, before consideration of the Balance Sheet, I referred to the acquisition of the Union Bank of Canada, and spoke of the benefits we expected to derive therefrom. I am glad to be able to report that our expectations have been fully realized. The Union Bank of Canada had an exceptionally good business in our Canadian agricultural communities. We have already succeeded in increasing this connection and we expect to develop it still further under prosperous agricultural conditions.

The strong position of the bank has been fully maintained. Our cash, including bank balances, equals 23.30 per cent. of liabilities to the public, while our liquid assets are 54.30 per cent. of liabilities to the public.

It will interest you to know that in order to provide facilities in the West End of London for the convenience of overseas customers we have arranged to lease an office in the new building of the Sun Life Assurance Company, which is now in course of erection. The building faces both on Pall Mall and on Cockspur street and directly adjoins the Canada Building. The site is a splendid one and our West End office will fill a long felt want.

Banks Help External Trade.

The service rendered by Canadian chartered banks in facilitating the internal and external trade of the country is of outstanding importance to the business community, and I regret to say the value of this service is not always recognized. The gathering together of accurate credit information, the work of making collections, trade enquiries, and various other facilities made available are invaluable, and the basis of competition between the banks should to an increasing degree be the quality and extent of such services. In this connection perhaps the most noteworthy development in Canadian banking efficiency has been the improved facilities offered for assisting our foreign trade.

Since this bank first commenced to establish branches abroad over twenty-five years ago, we have acquired an intimate knowledge of many foreign markets. We have done our utmost to use this knowledge for the benefit of Canadian trade by placing foreign buyers in touch with our exporters and locating advantageous sources of supply for Canadian importers. The managers of our foreign branches are familiar with Canadian products, and it goes without saying that our opportunities to be of service have been numerous, more particularly since the majority of our foreign branches are located in countries which are not competitors of Canada, but rather, buyers of our products and suppliers of our necessities. Seven years ago, we found that the volume of enquiries passing through head office rendered the creation of a special department advisable, and our Foreign Trade Department was then established. The period that has marked the greatest expansion of the bank abroad has also been one of great development of Canadian foreign trade, and I know that during this past quarter of a century we have been able to facilitate the movement of Canadian goods to the extent of many millions of dollars, and at the same time serve the interests of the foreign countries where we are established, by putting their exporters into contact with Canadian firms interested in their products.

May I add that we hope the shareholders of the bank will not forget how great a part they may take in the extension of the bank's business and profits, by giving the Directors and Management their individual support. We have now no less than 11,656 shareholders. The active support of such a large and influential body is of the greatest value to the bank, and we do not hesitate to ask for this support, both in their individual interests and in the interests of the bank as a whole.

Authorized Capital Increased.

A resolution was passed increasing the authorized capital of the Bank to $40,000,000.

New Vice-President Elected.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, Sir Herbert S. Holt was re-elected President and Mr. E. L. Pease, Vice-President, for the ensuing year. Mr. C. E. Neill was also elected a Vice-President of the Bank.

MANY RAIDS IN POLAND

Nearly Five Hundred People Arrested as Result of Activities.

SOVIET MONEY

By O. D. Tolischus, Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

BERLIN, Jan. 18, (Special Cable Dispatch).—Four hundred and twenty persons, including three Ukranian deputies and one alleged Soviet emissary, were arrested in wholesale raids throughout Poland. Those arrested were charged with planning a communist revolt to be financed with funds from the Soviet headquarters at Moscow.

MRS. YOUNG AND SON HAVE TALK

Mother Overjoyed at Telephone Conversation This Morning.

WANTS HIM HOME.

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—At 1.55 this morning joy came to the heart of Mrs. Jennie Young, for she spoke to her boy across the broad spaces of a continent.

Telephone officials offered to bring her into personal touch with her son, and after two hours of attempts to get calls through, success came, and the mother and her champion were in conversation with each other.

Cannot Come Just Yet.

The mother, first having exclaimed joyfully that her son's voice sounded as normal as if he were in Toronto, spoke to him of the civic reception planned for him here and besought him to come home immediately.

But the boy explained that this was not quite possible, and promised to send a night telegram explaining the situation.

The two were in touch with each other for fifteen minutes. There was at times interference on the line and parts of the conversation were relayed by the operator, but the mother had the joy of really speaking to her boy.

"I heard his voice beautifully," she said later. "It was quite normal."

Asks Mother to Come.

As soon as the two were in conversation the boy wanted to know when his mother would be with him in California.

"Listen, George," she replied, "I'd rather you come back here. There is to be a great civic reception. You come back and then I'll go on to California with you."

Later she stated that she had the impression that he had not really thought of coming home, but that now with her words in mind he would probably be back in Toronto as soon as possible.

For a moment or two the boy's voice was indistinct and an operator relayed his words that he could not start back right away. Then William Wrigley, Jr., spoke for a moment for George. Interference again spoiled his remarks.

Finally Mrs. Young turned away from the phone with the words, "He's going to wire us all the particulars."

RESENTS FOREIGNERS

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Vincent Dindy, one of the leading French composers, has joined the group opposed to foreign artists in Paris. He expresses the opinion that there are too many foreign singers, musicians, orchestra conductors and other artists—outnumbering the French by 10 to 1.

ENGAGED TO COUNT

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Announcement of the engagement of Count Gaston de Bearn, of Paris, to Monica Avery, daughter of the late Sir William Avery of England, was made recently. Both are 19. The count is the son of the Prince de Bearn and de Chalais and the late Princess de Bearn, daughter of the late Ross Winans of Baltimore. The ceremony is to take place in March.

SOUTH MONAGHAN DEBATERS TRIUMPH

Beat Indian River in Debate Between U.F.Y.P.O. Clubs.

In spite of the severe weather on Friday evening, January 14, there was a good attendance at the Peterboro U.F.Y.P.O. Club meeting, over one hundred being present to hear the first debate of the season.

The debates this year are doubly interesting in view of the fact that the Kiwanis Club has also offered a trophy to the winning team and is supplying the judge for each debate.

The meeting opened with community singing, ending with the U.F.Y.P.O. song. After the business for the evening was discussed a fine programme was rendered as follows: Reading, Miss Jessie Tully; piano duet, Misses K. Isbister and M. Jackson, reading, Miss Mary Mills.

The debate then took place between South Monaghan and Indian River Clubs on the subject: "Resolved, that life imprisonment should take the place of capital punishment."

Messrs. W. R. Waterman and H. Campbell upheld the affirmative for South Monaghan club, and Misses A. Carlow and R. Bolton for Indian River, the negative.

This debate was both interesting and instructive, and some fine points were put forward by both sides, resulting in the affirmative winning the decision.

The judge, Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, in giving the decision, gave some good pointers which will be helpful for future debaters.

Mr. Isaac MacNabb, president of the Kiwanis Club, who was also present, spoke a few words. After refreshments were served the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Every Man Past 40 Should Make This Test

For Amazing and Lasting Relief From Middle-Age Ailments That Cause Daily Annoyance and Sap Vital Force.

No longer need men near or past the prime of life put up with these painful and often embarrassing conditions brought on by overworked, sluggish Kidneys, Bladder Weakness and Prostrate Gland Trouble, with their distressing symptoms of Lameness, Pains in back and down through groins, scanty but frequent and burning urination, "Getting-up-nights," Nervous Irritability and lack of force—because a ten-day test of Dr. Southworth's URATABS will convince the most skeptical of the value of this special treatment for their particular case.

Amazing testimony of Physicians and users gives convincing proof of the power of URATABS to restore Health and Strength to a weakened, inflamed or irritated Bladder and Urinary Tract. A multitude of alarming symptoms seem to quickly disappear—and you see and feel a truly genuine improvement often within two or three days. "No more Backaches, no more pain, no more embarrassment or Getting-up-nights. I now sleep soundly and get up in the morning full of pep—thanks to URATABS!"

While new to the general public the wondrous value of URATABS has been thoroughly proven by nearly 40 years of successful use in the private practice of Dr. H. C. Southworth. And now for sale by Bond's Drug Store and all good druggists will supply them on a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Try URATABS today."

ARCS IN OLD CASTLE

LONDON, Jan. 18.—For nearly 1000 years Dunvegan Castle, in the Isle of Skye, was lighted by torch and lanthorn. Now it has been refitted with modern electric light. Dunvegan is said to be the oldest inhabited keep in Scotland, and is known as Macleod of Macleod. One of the castle's treasures is a drinking horn bearing the date 993.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED IN HOME

Parents Make Frantic Efforts To Rescue Little Ones From Fire.

FATHER OUTSIDE.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 18.—While their mother and father tried frantically to rescue them, three young children were burned to death yesterday afternoon when fire destroyed a frame, two-storey house at 2386 Twenty-Fourth Street. The children were: Martin, five; Valentine Jr., three, and Carl, 11 months, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Ziber.

The fire started on the second floor while the father was shoveling snow and the mother was at a nearby grocery. Ziber noticed flames shooting through a window. He attempted to enter through the rear door but was met by a wall of flame. He encountered the same difficulty at the front entrance. Meanwhile Mrs. Ziber returned from the store and joined her husband in an attempt to enter the house, which was soon a mass of flames. It was virtually destroyed before fire apparatus arrived.

The fire was caused by an overheated stove.

'Y' ELEMENTARY BEATS BRINTONS

Score of Fast Basketball Game Last Night is 24-12.

One of the Y.W.C.A. basketball league games was played off last night between the "Y" Elementary and Brintons.

"Y" Elementary, 26; Brinton, 12.

Line-up:

"Y" Elementary.—G. Ecobichon, C. Long, G. Butcher, R. Budd, D. Roberts.

Brintons.—A. Shaw, F. Pavy, M. Doucette, B. Doucette, M. Simpson. Sub. D. Delorme.

The first period was speedy with the score tied at the end of three minutes, then Miss Ecobichon got in some fast shots and the "Y's" were off to a good start. The Brinton's team work was good and gave opposition to the "Y" Elementarys.

In the second half the Brinton did a great deal of checking but Miss Ecobichon again put in her usual run of baskets.

On the whole it was a splendid game, and keenly enjoyed by the spectators.

W.M.S. MEETING

Welcome Ladies Hear Good Paper on New Year.

WELCOME, Jan. 18.—The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. W. E. Lewis.

The question of sending a bale of clothing was discussed when attention was drawn to a needy family in the vicinity. Mrs. Kellogg and Mrs. E. H. Martyn were appointed to find out what was needed and report to the auxiliary.

It was decided to send birthday greetings to Miss Luella Rorke.

At this point, Mrs. Martyn (Miss Rorke's sister), read a letter received that day from her, telling of the serious illness and death of the Emperior of Japan, and as a result, the cancelling of all Christmas festivities in the school. She told how bravely the little tots bore their disappointment because from infancy, they are taught patriotism and how the teachers could not even give candy for fear the foreigner would be accused of lack of respect, at this time of bereavement.

Reports were heard from the Strangers', Baby Band, and Christian Stewardship secretaries.

Mrs. W. E. Lewis gave a brief New Year's talk, based on 3 quotations:

From Longfellow's poem—

(1) "Ring out the old, ring in the New."

At the New Year there are many things to forget and many to remember. Let us start with a clean sheet.

(2) "Build ye the walls."

We all are building walls of character, let each endeavor that his or her building be the best possible.

(3) "Bring ye all the titches into the storehouse."

The beginning of the year was the time to study a person's income and decide what each can give. The Bible says "Bring the tithe."

The Watch Tower had for its subject, "China," and was responded to by Mrs. R. C. Symons, Miss Elva Pearce, and Mrs. Arthur Lewis.

The suggestion was made that the auxiliary take a special missionary, learn of her life and work, and have her for special prayer. This was left for future consideration.

Mrs. G. Kellogg took charge of the program for Group "A."

She gave an excellent paper on New Year's Resolutions.

"We have a clean page to write on, and, although it may only be filled with the petty round of duties of the house wife, if they are done with patience, steadfastness and truth, our page is being well-filled. We do not have to do great things in life, in order to fill the page worthily.

"Some resolutions for W.M.S. workers were given as follows:

(1) Let us attend regularly and be punctual at the meetings of the Society.

(2) Let us be loyal to each other and loyal to our leaders, 'In Unity is Strength.'

(3) Let us perform, to the best of our ability, any task assigned us.

(4) Let us pay our fees punctually.

(5) Let us try to give systematically."

Mrs. Kellogg closed with two quotations:

FAITH.

"A small ship launched upon an unknown sea,
A small seed planted by an unknown tree,
Such is this strange New Year to you and me.
Whither the vessel goeth,
Or how the tree up-groweth,
God only knoweth:
But sail the ship and plant the seed;
What is done in faith is done indeed."

A RULE.

"I asked the New Year for some motto sweet,
Some rule of life with which to guide my feet;
I asked and paused, he answered soft and low—
God's will to know.
Will knowledge then, suffice New Year? I cried,
And ere the question into silence died
The answer came, 'Nay, but remember too—
God's will to do'."
Once more I asked, 'Is there no more to tell?'
And once again, the answer softly fell;
'Yes, this one thing, all other things above—
God's will to love'."

The subject for the devotional leaflet was "Faith in our Fellowmen."

Chapter 4 of the Study Book, "In the Steps of the Great Physician" was introduced by Mrs. Lewis and reviewed by Mrs. Frank Bamsay, Mrs. Elford and Mrs. J. Pearrce.

Mrs. Sculthorpe gave a paper on "Medical Work in India."

Personals.

Miss Violet McCarn is attending the Winter School of the Bay of Quinte Conference at Cobourg this week.

The school has been closed for several days this week on account of the illness of Miss Preston, the teacher.

Mr. Wilfrid Boyd, of Frobisher, Sask., is visiting his cousins, W. and A. Lewis.

BRIDGENORTH NEWS

BRIDGENORTH, Jan. 18. — Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Nicholls and son, who have been spending the past ten days visiting relatives in Lindsay, returned home on Saturday last.

Mrs. Robert Tedford has been confined to the house during the past month. At present, there is very little improvement.

Mrs. Harry Jopling and family have returned home from Detroit after a month's visit with her parents, who reside in that city.

Rev. McNeely has been forced to put his car away for the winter on account of the bad condition of the roads on the side concessions. He is now making his regular trips with a horse and cutter.

Mr. Melville McWilliams has purchased a pony, harness and cutter outfit, partly for pleasure and partly for business, in connection with the milk and ice business, which is increasing each year.

Bridgenorth can boast of a number of empty homes just at present, as a number of families have moved into the city for the winter months. The homes of the following are vacant: Mrs. Abram Bulla, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young, Mrs. G. J. Jopling, Mr. and Mrs. Peterson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Telford and Mrs. Lean, and Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Mann. Mr. and Mrs. Percy T. Udy were the last to leave and have taken up their quarters on Hunter street. Miss Louisa Sturm also closed her home up for the winter a short time ago and went up to Toronto.

Mr. Peter Nicholls and Miss Minnie were among the first to move into Peterboro' for the winter. They are living on Harvey street.

Melville McWilliams hitched his team to the grader on Friday and snowploughed the street in Bridgenorth, and it certainly made a good road.

Fred Jopling and party were out for a fox hunt one day this week.

The roads are at present very heavy for car traffic. Tom Dutton got stuck on the lake on Thursday on his way to Ennismore with a load of bread for Mr. Crough. He transferred it to a farmer's sleigh and went back to the city.

Mr. William Ball, who had the misfortune to fall on the ice on one of the streets in Bridgenorth, is still walking with a cane. He has been off work for three weeks.

Harry Jopling, while mounting a large snowdrift, ripped the rear gear out of his car on Friday afternoon.

A local blacksmith advertised that he purposed distributing coat hangers and cigar lighters this year instead of calendars. As his customers came in he handed each a nail and a match.

Mr. Eli Burston had a hay pressing outfit at his farm on Friday pressing hay. The outfit is being towed by a tractor. One team goes with it. It came down the lake from Victor Fife's farm. It is indeed a complete machine. The owners live in Otonabee.

At the municipal election last no municipality in Peterboro' followed the example set by Tisdale township, where a woman has been elected as reeve. She is the first of her sex so honored in Ontario. However, as women are serving in all sorts of offices, from M. P. down, it may not be long before some of Peterborough county's enterprising and public spirited ladies find their way to the county council.

HAIR TELLS IT

TOKIO, Jan. 14.—You can tell if a Japanese girl is engaged by looking at her hair, according to Miss Constance Duncan, of the Y. W. C. A. in Kyoto. When the girls become engaged they "do" their hair in the old Japanese style, training and greasing it to stand out from their heads in graceful curves.

Prince William of Sweden, brother of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus, arrived in New York City aboard the S.S. France January 5, without the formality that generally accompanies the arrival of one of his station.

NEW AIRPLANES BEING TESTED

Clustered about a marvelous electrical instrument in a laboratory in Washington D.C., a group of engineers eagerly watched the flickering dials. Beneath the flood under their feet, a gale of wind roars through a man-made tunnel. In the center of the tunnel, communicating with the instrument in the laboratory above, is suspended a tiny airplane—a mere toy, only two feet in wing spread. Yet on this little model hangs the fate of an inventor's hopes, for it represents a strange new plane of revolutionary design.

Not a life is endangered, nor is a costly giant of the air built only to be scrapped, in this triumph of science, the latest way to test new airplanes at the Washington Navy Yard. When an inventor offers Uncle Sam a new idea for an airplane, writes G. H. Dacy in the January Popular Science Monthly, this method enables tests to be made at a total cost of $500, as compared with perhaps $50,000 if the actual machine were built. Engineers say they can learn more from these wonderful little models than from many hours of actual flying.

Following the inventor's plans expert craftsmen in Uncle Sam's workshop carve the diminutive craft out of mahogany. From time to time as the work progresses, they measure the model and compare it with the dimensions of the large-scale plans. When it is completed it is a perfect miniature model of the machine conceived by the inventor—except that it lacks motor and propeller.

Now it goes to the proving ground—not to a flying field, but to a dim square tunnel that a man can enter erect with plenty of room to spare. An immense, centrifugal fan, twelve feet across and many bladed, is whirled by a 500-horsepower motor. It sends a blast of air through the passage, cyclonic gust of 160 miles an hour if necessary, circling the 200-foot length of doughnut-shaped tunnel. From the ceiling descends a steel shaft. At its lower tip are sensitive fingers which, grasping the model, relay to the scientists in the laboratory above news of exactly what happens as rushing air meets plane.

A masterpiece of ingenuity, it reveals all conceivable actions of the baby plane. How much the planes will life; whether it will "skid" in banking for a turn; whether it will fly in a straight line or veer to left or right; and whether it is likely to take a sudden unexpected nose dive or turn up its nose and stall—these are some of the questions answered by the machine with almost human intelligence.

Several hundred new airplane types have been tested in this tunnel.

CANADA LIFE SUCCESS

Policyholders Now to Receive 95% of Profits

Business Maintains Remarkable Momentum

Entry Into New York State Announced—New Division Surplus Earnings Approved

THE Annual Meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held in Toronto on 13th January. The President, Mr. Herbert C. Cox, reviewed the affairs of the Company, as follows:

Before proceeding to move the adoption of the report it is fitting that reference should be made to the absence of our dear friend and colleague whose presence has been so familiar and so grateful to all who have attended the annual meetings of this company during the past four or five decades.

Mr. Adam Brown took part in our annual functions each year for more than seventy years, and had served as a Director of the company for forty years. He watched its growth with an eye jealous for its reputation and soundness, and aided each successive President with his counsel and active co-operation. His personal interest in each employe was intense and intensive, and all who had the privilege of coming within his orbit must, I am sure, reflect in some measure his compelling faith, his constant cheerfulness and his always hopeful vision of the future of this country and its institutions. We shall miss him, but we are more than grateful for the long association allowed us and for his helpful example.

National Progress.

From information available it would seem that 1926 has been a year of prosperity on this continent and that business generally is on a sound basis. There has been a movement towards expansion, and great activity has prevailed. Manufacturers have for the most part increased their output, and their earnings have been larger, although in many instances competition has been keener. Great progress has occurred in the development of natural resources—the production of gold, silver, nickel, coal, lumber, pulpwood, and in the installation or inauguration of enormous hydro-electric undertakings which will not only supply power to existing industries, but will, in some instances, also create new towns and new enterprises to absorb the power so produced.

Very important sums of new capital have found their way into these developments, indicating a public confidence which is altogether encouraging.

Cereal crops, and more particularly in our country, have again been abundant, and, while on account of various unfavorable circumstances the grade has not been so high as usual, the demand has been sufficient to ensure an excellent price with a consequent very satisfactory return to the farmer. This, coupled with a continually widening resort to mixed farming in the Western Provinces, has once again enabled him to meet his current expenses and to add to his surplus or materially reduce his indebtedness. Our agricultural situation is steadily improving, but its progress will be more pronounced when we are able to place a greater number of desirable people upon the land. This problem is receiving most intelligent and sympathetic attention from the Government and the railways, and has already been solved in part, but its magnitude and importance require heroic measures. The selection, securing and thorough establishing of settlers entails heavy outlay, but the ultimate advantage to the country is such as to command cordial public support of any reasonable course which Parliament may propose.

Savings of the People.

The flow of capital from the United States continues, and since our own means are inadequate we welcome its assistance in developing industry and in providing employment for our people. Fortunately, unemployment is almost non-existent in both countries, and high earnings are enabling a greater spending power than usual, but it is most encouraging to know that this expenditure is accompanied by a very important provision for saving by way of life assurance, as approximately one-half the combined peoples own more than eighty billions of dollars of assurance for which they pay upward of two billions of dollars a year. The investment of these vast sums takes them into almost every phase of the life and business activity of the country and eventually back by way of wages to the original owner to be again launched by him upon the circle, the process continuing indefinitely.

Group Insurance Increased.

While the individual is indulging in the purchase of life assurance to a greater extent than ever before, there has also been a very marked increase in the more recently developed plan of group coverage by which the employer provides protection for those in his service.

This has an important bearing upon all the relations between employer and employee, and has already had a pronounced effect in reducing the turnover of labor, which is always costly and distressing. Its best recommendation is its adoption by the greatest industrial and financial corporations of the continent.

Spirit of Co-operation.

The common desire and effort of the life companies to supply the assurance needs of the people has brought about an unusual measure of co-operation which, without depriving the prospective assurer of the advantage of competitive buying, is eliminating wasteful controversy on many points, and is permitting a free interchange of information upon the multitude of items which enter into the successful management of a company. This spirit, which has expanded in a remarkable degree in recent years, is in a large measure responsible for the rapid growth of the business, and I am happy to say it permeates the selling forces as well as the home offices. It is promulgated and fostered by associations of Presidents, of office executives, of agency officials, of actuaries, of medical directors, and of underwriters in the field, and I venture to hope we may one day have a similar official channel for the exchange of views upon investment policies and securities, since, the employment of life assurance funds with safety and profit is one of the most important problems confronting us, bearing as it does such an integral part in the carrying out of contracts extending far into the future, and affecting coming generations.

Preservation of Health.

Health preservation and the prolongation of life have of late engaged the attention of many societies and life assurance companies, and enough has been accomplished to prove that very far-reaching results may be obtained by systematic and scientific effort. Deaths from tuberculosis, typhoid fever and other contagious diseases have been greatly reduced, but there has, unfortunately, been an increase in organic diseases of the heart ascribed to the growingly high tension under which many live in the pursuit of both business and pleasure. It is, perhaps, not too much to hope that the good common sense of a successful and well-balanced people will again assert itself in this regard, and that we may return to more normal levels before utter exhaustion overtakes us.

Insurance Cost Reduced.

It is apparent then that the life offices are carrying on their undertakings and rendering their service intelligently and faithfully, and it is worthy of particular emphasis that in a period when the cost of all commodities has been extremely high the cost of life assurance has been reduced to an extraordinary degree accompanied by a liberalization of the policy contract undreamed of ten years ago. The modern policy is so comprehensive in its character and provisions that it may, in many instances, be made to replace the old-time executor in carrying out the plans of its owner. Where one's plans and desires are more intricate the aid of a trust company may be invoked, and so generally recognized has this co-operation become that many of the leading trust companies are urging upon their clients the feasibility and desirability of incorporating in their estates important sums of life assurances to supplement and protect other investments and to provide for the carrying out of trusts which can be best accomplished by this means. This is a channel which presents great possibilities and we appreciate the opportunity of exploring it in conjunction with the trust organizations.

Selling Methods Improved.

This broadening of the application of life assurance has demanded and developed a more fully equipped, more intelligent and more reliable body of salesmen, and I am happy to say that today the purchaser of assurance may have the utmost confidence in the representations made to him.

Canada Life Progress.

For our own Company, the past year has been altogether encouraging. Our associates in the field have again through unremitting and well-directed effort reached the objective fixed by the General Manager and have paid for $136,939,201 of new assurances.

This is well in excess of the previous year and is eloquent of the character and vigor of those who claim the confidence of the public as your representatives. Our success has not been entirely local, although several Canadian branches have surpassed our expectations. Our offices in the United States have, through the loyalty and perseverance of their personnel, secured a very gratifying share of the business offering there, our associates in Great Britain have, despite the unhappy experiences of the greater part of the year, largely exceeded the amount asked of them, while Ireland has as usual contributed very materially to the general result. When all is said and done a company is known by the men it keeps, and our success lies now, as always, in the true worth and ability of the men whom good fortune has given us to constitute the great and indispensable link between the Home Office and the prospective assurer. The confidence so engendered begets a permanency in the relationship between company and assured which makes for the profit of each. One concrete demonstration of this is the allotment to policyholders during 1926 of cash profits amounting to $2,510,015, and reversionary bonuses of $1,371,444 provided by accumulated surplus, while the total earnings for the same year were $4,213,-898. These earnings have as usual been assisted by a favorable mortality or death rate, which was, in turn, influenced by the constant influx of new lives and the careful selection of earlier years, the responsibility for the latter being shared by the field representatives and the selection committee in the Home Office. It will be seen that in this respect the Company is excellently served.

New Division of Earnings.

In this connection your Directors have recently arrived at an important decision which will, I believe, carry the judgment of this meeting as it will, I am sure, that of the great body of policyholders of this Company and of public opinion generally. As you are aware, there is in a life assurance company having a share capital a division of the earnings as between the shareholders and the policyholders. Originally the proportions of this division were determined by the charter of the individual company, but in 1910 a clause was introduced in the Dominion Insurance Act fixing them at 10 per cent. and 90 per cent. respectively. In the early years of this Company its capital, under its own charter, was entitled to and received all the earnings of the non-participating branch and 25 per cent. of those of the participating branch. As the Company prospered and its earnings grew, the Directors for the time being voluntarily reduced, as they had the power to do, the portion applicable to the capital and increased the share allotted to the policyholders until in 1879, or 31 years before the legislative action to which I have referred, the shareholders of the Company had of their own volition not only adopted the ratio of division later prescribed by Parliament, but had also given to the participating policyholders 20 per cent. of the earnings of the non-participating branch. With the great expansion of the Company and its largely increased earnings each year it has again appeared to your Directors that a readjustment of these percentages would be desirable, and they have, with that breadth of vision and generous mind which characterized their predecessors, and which, I am proud to say, actuates them always in the conduct of your business, authorized a change which, from the first of January instant, will allocate to those holding participating policies in the Company 95 per cent. of the earnings from all sources, while only 5 per cent. will hereafter be apportioned to the holders of the share capital. This action must needs carry the cordial and grateful approval of policyholders the while it has the sympathetic endorsation of the shareholders. The change will immediately benefit the holders of dividend-bearing policies, as it enables a material increase in the bonuses allotted to them for the current year.

Policyholders Are "Partners."

As a further indication of the care of this Company for its policyholders, may I remind you that it was the first Canadian company whose shareholders extended to its policyholders, per se, the privilege of a fixed number of seats upon the Directorate. This privilege, which appealed to public opinion, was afterwards established as a right in all companies by Federal legislation.

It is therefore clearly evident that while this is a proprietary company, with the major responsibility for its success resting upon the proprietors, there is ample recognition of the other parties to the undertaking, who are virtually partners in it and as such receive every possible consideration. We may therefore claim, without undue bias, that the owner of a Canada Life policy occupies a favored position, and that nothing should be allowed to interfe with his continuance of that ownership. There is everywhere a tendency, if personal finances are a bit overstrained, to lapse or mortgage assurance protection, and companies the world over find the combatting of this tendency one of the most difficult problems confronting them. Legislatures have from time to time increased the so-called privileges of the assured, but in reality have made it too easy for him to undo in a thoughtless moment, by borrowing practically his full reserve, what it has taken years to accomplish in the creating of an estate by way of assurance. Warnings have become hackneyed, and there is evidence of their not being appreciated, but the wastage from this source is in the aggregate so enormous and the economic loss to the assured so great that executives must continue to point out the danger even at the risk of being thought boring.

Utility of Life Insurance.

New uses are being continually evolved for life assurance, resulting in its purchase in amounts that only a few years ago would have appeared fantastical even in suggestion, but we must not forget that in spite of any ultra-modern adaptation it is the time-honored application of it in moderate amounts to the protection of the average home and family which is its proper sphere—homely if you will, but nevertheless powerful for the good of the State and her people, with all the greater necessity for its permanency and freedom from encumbrances.

Entry Into New York State.

This Company had been for a considerable time established for business in the State of New York when, some years ago, certain restrictions and limitations were imposed upon the companies in that State, compliance with which would have seriously handicapped us in carrying on at home and in other States of the Union in which we were also entered. More recently modifications in these limitations and changes within our own institution have gradually eliminated the obstacles in the way, and your Directors have authorized re-entry into New York, which has been completed as at December first. Not only is there a vast field for us there, but it is felt that our success in other States will be enhanced by the fact that we are again actively represented in the premier State of the Union. Already this return has been of advantage. More and more the growth of our business and connections in Great Britain and the United States stamps the Company as international in character, and the greater selection of lives which this widening field makes possible is highly beneficial. At the same time the reputation for soundness and conservatism in investment built by the Company abroad through many years of careful and steady development not only facilitates its own progress, but adds sensibly to the credit of Canada as a nation. It is natural that, with the flux of time, we should look to these countries of greater populations for an increasingly large portion of our business, and I am happy to say that the very excellent foundations already laid enable us to do so with confidence.

Investments Abroad.

This extension of our field is, as was stated a year or two ago, not without its effect upon our investment policy, and it has been found desirable and reasonable to include within its enlarged scope well-selected securities of the countries in which we are represented, as well as others. The effort of your Directors will be to maintain the unusually high standard of our investments, and to preserve, as far as possible, the satisfactory rate of interest earned upon them.

The result submitted in the statement before you indicates a highly successful treatment of our funds which now total $120,238,879, an increase of $12,450,341 for the year. The average interest yield (5.96%) is most gratifying, and the very splendid record of our real estate mortgages discloses an excellent and healthy condition in that branch. The farmers of Western Canada have again realized handsomely on their crops and have made further important reductions in their current or accumulated liabilities. For unavoidable failures ample provision has been made, but these are negligible in relation to the aggregate of our mortgage loans.

In addition to the loss of Mr. Brown, I regret exceedingly to have to say that the Company has also suffered through the death of Mr. Robert Stuart of Chicago, who had been a most valuable and helpful member of the board for fourteen years. His large business connection and experience in the United States was of great value to us, and we are fortunate in being able to retain this in some measure in the person of his son, Mr. John Stuart, who has succeeded his father in his various business associations, and has been good enough to accept a seat upon this board. Mr. Stuart has already displayed a very keen interest in the success of the Company and will, I am sure, be of great help in furthering its progress. The other vacancy has been filled by the election of Mr. Arthur V. Davis of Pittsburgh. Mr. Davis is President of the Aluminum Company of America, and is internationally prominent as a builder of great industrial enterprises and in his relations with the important Mellon banking and financial interests of Pittsburgh. The great development undertaken by his company in Canada identifies him strongly with this country, and we are particularly fortunate in having him associated with us.

BRIGHTON DISTRICT ORANGE MEETING

L. Fox, Of Orland Lodge Elected Master—Date Change Sought.

ORLAND, Jan. 17.—The L.O.L. District Lodge of Brighton district assembled in the Union Lodge room, Brighton, for the transaction of business, with the W.D.M. in the chair, at 2 p.m., Jan. 11.

Considerable general business was put through, and much was done in the way of improvement by the officers of the primary preparation of their several lodges for the meeting before hand and having all about an exception in the hands of the District Secretary.

One important measure was passed unanimously requesting the county L.O.L. at their next sitting to memorialize Grand Lodge to change the dates for the annual meetings of Primary, District and County, having them each to come two months earlier in the season.

The object has a double purpose, viz., enabling the members, especially in rural communities, to get to the meetings by auto which is generally impossible at present dates on account of the conditions of the roads and weather; and, further, it will give the Grand Secretary two months extra to get in reports and prepare his for the Grand Lodge meeting in March.

Wor. Dist. Master — L. Fox, L.O.L. 620.

D.D.M.—Cecil Goodfellow, L.O.L. 1363.

Chap.—George Dunnett, L.O.L. 186.

Rec. Sect.—W. J. Latimer, L.O.L. 620.

Treas.—W. E. Davidson, L.O.L. 1363.

Fin. Sect.—R. J. Ross, L.O.L. 186.

Mar.—William Campbell, L.O.L. 1363.

1st Lect.—Peter Kilbank, L.O.L. 186.

2nd Lect. — Roy Dusenbury, L.O.L. 186.

After installation, under P.D.M. Bro. W. A. Philip, of L.O.L. 903, the members retired to the Clarendon Hotel, where a well prepared banquet was prepared.

I.O.O.F. INSTALLATION.

Tweed Oddfellows and Rebekahs Hold Installation Ceremonies.

TWEED, Jan. 18.—Tweed Lodge, No. 290, I.O.O.F. elected the following officers:

P.G., J. D. Taylor; N.G., W. Courtnay; V.G., R. E. Houston; R.S. John Stokes; F.S., Edgar W. Jones; Treas., Harry Rollins; R.S.N.G., S. B. McGee; L.S.N.G., Austin Francis; Warden, Earl Graham; Con., H. Countryman; Chap., J. A. Thompson; R.S.V., J. L. Minorgan; F.S.V., Stanley Lee; R.S.S., Harry Austin; F.S.S., Albert Sherry; Outside G., A. C. Blakely; Inside G., Albert Logan.

The officers were installed by the D.D.G.M. Wor. Bro. Hough of Madoc, after which Past Grand Master Tully of Alberta addressed the brethren and gave them a very interesting talk on his work in the Western Provinces. This was followed by a banquet which was in the hands of the members of the Rebekah Lodge, and needless to say was a big factor in the success of the evening. A number of visitors were present from Stirling, Madoc, Thomasburg, Springbrook; J. F. Houston, Past N.G., acted as toastmaster, and the toasts and responses were as follows:

The King—Responded to by singing God save the King.

Canada — Proposed by J. A. Thompson, responded to by George H. Stokes.

The Grand Lodge of Ontario—Proposed by Deputy Grand Master Hough, responded to by Past Grand Master Tully.

Our Visitors—Proposed by Clarence Graham, responded to by A. C. Porter.

The speeches were interspersed with community singing and readings. The Madoc quartette also contributed very much to the success of the evening.

Rebekah Lodge Officers

Tweed Rebekah Lodge, No. 236 held its regular meeting on Friday night. The District-Deputy President, Sister M. Logan, with her installing staff, installed the following officers for this year:

N.G., M. Wallace; V.G., L. McGee; R.S., J. Houston; F.S., I. Trumpour; Treas., M. Meiklejohn; War., C. Meiklejohn; Con., B. Countryman; I.G., F. Hammett; O.G., A. Stewart; R.S.N.G., V. Brown; L.S.N.G., A. Brown; R.S.V.G., M. Logan; L.S.V.G., M. Elliott; Chap., E. Richardson; I.P.N.G., F. Mewton.

Little Black Water Spaniel Saves Master From Wolves

HULL, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press). — Edouard Duquette, miner, of the small town of Perkins, near here, is alive after being attacked by three huge timber wolves, and he vows he owes his life to the family's little water spaniel.

Crossing Perkins Lake on his way to work in the mines on the opposite side from the town, Mr. Duquette said the wolves suddenly appeared from behind and, apparently famished, were fast encircling him, when the small dog began snapipng at their legs.

The miner was armed with a stick, but could not get close enough to the animals to strike them. He ran to a near-by tree and climbed to safety, meanwhile the wolves turning in their tracks and retreating before the howling of the canine, which was badly bitten and scratched in the tussle.

COLOR COMBINATIONS.

Black, combined with silver or gold or high colors, is a favorite for evening.

GOSPEL CARRIAGE
(Contributed)

The Peterboro gospel carriage, that will be remembered by a great many in the city was seen on the streets of the city yesterday. It was a bit changed for enterprising Christian young people had taken it off its wheels and placed it on bobs. It is still, however, being used to convey young people to places of Christian service.

Years ago, under the ministry of Rev. E. E. Johnston in Bethany Tabernacle, the Peterboro gospel carriage was used in open air gospel work in Peterboro and surrounding places. Those who remember standing in the open air listening to the gospel given in song and sermon by the earnest occupants of this carriage will recall many blessings received, and will no doubt breathe a prayer for it in its renewed service. It was taken from the place where it has stood for years, on Saturday, and placed on runners and yesterday when seen was bearing a group of young people from Bethany to Sunday school service conducted by them on Orpington Road. Its presence again on the streets of the city created no little interest, many people stopping to read the scripture passages painted in yellow on its sides.

Orpington Road Sunday school is one of a number of Christian activities carried on by the workers of Bethany Tabernacle. It is hoped by the workers of Bethany that when it is taken off the streets of Peterboro it will be replaced by a gospel motor truck that can go further and faster, with the gospel of salvation bringing blessing in many of the neglected places near-by.

Bulle Rock was the first race horse imported into the United States. The horse was brought to Virginia in 1730.

MOTHERS' PENSION BOARD MEETING

More Beneficiaries on Lists of Durham Board Than Last Year.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 18.—A semi-annual meeting of the others' Allowance Board for Durham County was held at Bowmanville on Saturday at 10 a.m., F. W. Galbraith, chairman of the board, presiding.

The secretary, Mrs. A. L. Nichols, of Bowmanville, reported seven new applications received since the last meeting, and two others were also handed in at the session. One of the latter was returned for further details, the necessary information being incomplete. The applications were considered and necessary action taken.

Fifty-four applications have been received by the board since its inception in 1920, and the present list of beneficiaries now numbers 27, as as against 25 this time last year. The list of beneficiaries, with the amounts paid,was carefully scanned. The first mother to receive the allowance in Durham County is still a beneficiary under the Act, and there are some others who have been receiving the allowance for a period almost as long.

The board considered the advisability of meeting more frequently in order to keep fully informed on the work, and arrangements to this effect were made.

There are in the province 100 local boards, with a membership of 500 ladies and gentlemen who give voluntary service in the administration of the Act. An appropriation of $1,800,000 was asked for last year, and $1,781,281 was expended, an increase of $73,387 over the previous year, yet the cost of administration was reduced to 4 per cent.

The municipalities and the province each pay 50 per cent. of the allowances for beneficiaries, and in 1924-25 (the last report issued by the Commission), the municipalities contributed $814,967.50.

There are 17 investigators in the province, working often under severe handicaps, but giving faithful service. Each must cover a large territory, whether roads are good or bad, and visit regularly the beneficiaries in her district, meeting as fully as possible the obligations of the office, though hours of hard, and at times discouraging, work are entailed.

Miss J. M. Burry, whose headquarters are at Port Hope, is the investigator who covers Durham County, Northumberland, Peterboro County and city, and Prince Edward County. A comparison of the number of beneficiaries, and the amount expended in each, is of interest: Durham, 23 beneficiaries with $9,270 paid out; Northumberland, 32 beneficiaries, $13,558; Peterborough county, 29 beneficiaries, $11,295; Peterborough city, 45 beneficiaries, $20,694; Prince Edward, 21 beneficiaries, $7,997 paid out. The figures are for 1924-25.

The investigators have a social opportunity to see the results of the Act, and the Commission is justified in reporting that the expenditure involved, though increasing each year, has been fully warranted; better homes, better home conditions, better health and education, and a chance given, in several instances, for a widow to remain on the farm and raise her family under circumstances conducive to finer physique and morals, are some of the benefits that have accrued.

The total number of beneficiaries in the province, according to the last report, was 7,300.

The personnel of the Durham Board is: F. W. Galbraith, Port Hope, chairman; Mrs. A. L. Nichols, Bowmanville, secretary; Messrs. C. J. Thornton, Orono; T. H. Chalk, Port Hope; A. Van Camp, Burketon; H. Bland, Ida; Miss P. Burnham, Millbrook.

Rev. Peter Bryce is chairman of the Commission which administers the Act; Mr. John McCullough, secretary; Dr. Elizabeth Shortt, vice-chairman; Miss Dorothy Farncomb, chief investigator; Miss Elizabeth King, senior investigator; Mrs. Minnie Singer, Mr. A. J. Reynolds, and Lieutenant-Colonel T. J. Murphy, K.C., are members.

The Honorable Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, gives at all times a sympathetic and active interest toward all matters pertaining to the Mothers' Allowance Act.

MANY SOCIETIES MEET AT WARSAW

Church and Other Activities Call People Together.

WARSAW, Jan. 18.—Zion "Willing Workers" held their regular meeting at Mrs. William Crowe's home on Wednesday afternon.

Couteloe Missionary Society met on Wednesday afternoon.

The Anglican Ladies' Guild met on Wednesday afternoon. They plan to hold a bazaar at Easter.

Very few attended the United Church Women's Misisonary Society, but they decided to hold a pancake social and debate on February 14, to try to make up the objective of one hundred dollars, which has been sent to the missionary fund for some years back.

The Warsaw Women's Institute met on Thursday afternoon. The class in nursing and first aid will begin on Monday, February 14; with Miss Florence Maclean Alexander as instructress. All willing to attend the classes, which will be in the afternoon, are asked to give their names to either Mrs. J. Sayers or Mrs. D. Miller. These classes are not for young girls only. They are open to any one over 15 years of age.

The afternoon's talk was on "some qualifications of a nurse"—and some of the main qualifications with reasons, and experiences explaining these reasons were given; some points were that a nurse is not a doctor, she needs education, refinement, a great love for and understanding of humanity; physical and mental strength, adaptability, and absolute truth always.

The U.F.O. and U.F.W.O. held a joint meeting on Wednesday evening. Mr. David Payne and Mrs. R. Hamblin gave reports of the convention. One strong point was that they should tolerate the opinions of others. She explained several points dealing with co-operation.

On Friday evening next, the clubs will hold a social in the Town Hall, with the idea of getting more members.

Messrs. T. Clements and Uriah Payne have been canvassing for the United Church Maintenance Fund.

Skating on Saturday evening failed to attract, as it was so bitterly cold.

A good deal of wood is being drawn to Peterborough from woodlots near Warsaw, and there are but few who are not, at least, getting out their own wood.

Cars are still quite frequently seen. Especially do those who are on the road often use them.

Mr. and Mrs. Pack motored from Madoc on Thursday; they visited Rev. and Mrs. Herrington, and returned on Friday.

Miss Elsie Cooper has secured a position in Peterborough.

Harry Chamberlain, wife and child have moved to Norwood, and Charles Storm is in the house vacated by them.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BRITISH CAPITAL SADLY DEPLETED

Estimated Only Ten Million Pounds Sterling For Export.

DOMINIONS SHORT.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—It is estimated in trading and financial circles that Great Britain will only have ten million pounds sterling capital available for export next year.

Thus Canada, it is pointed out, will be more dependant than ever on foreign sources, a fact that is causing much alarm among those imperialists who believe Great Britain should strengthen its financial hold throughout the Empire. The heavy trading losses suffered during past years are held responsible for this dearth of capital. Indeed it is considered doubtful whether Britain will have any capital at all for export to Canada next year.

Premier Says She Will Defend Her Legal Interests in China.

REMAINS FRIENDLY.

TOKIO, Jan. 18.—(United Press)—In an address before the eleventh annual meeting of the Kenseikai political party, of which he is the head, Premier Wakatsuki today sympathized with the legitimate aspiration of China but said Japan was prepared to defend its legal interests.

Japan, through consistent friendliness toward China, the Premier said, is now in an excellent position to act as a conciliator in the present disputes and to shape American and European policies toward China.

Japan, he siad, is "dutifully ready to do this."

AGED EX-EMPRESS IS CRITICALLY ILL

Charlotte of Mexico Cannot Live For Many Hours More.

BERLIN, Jan. 18. — (United Press).—Charlotte, ex-empress of Mexico, is critically ill and was not expected to live today. A severe attack of heart disease has stricken the aged former Empress. Physicians announced at 9.50 a.m. today that she had little chance for recovery. Charlotte, who ruled with Maximilan during three turbulent years that ended in his assassination, has been in seclusion for many years, troubled with mental illness.

TWO MEN KILLED DURING QUARREL

Neighboring Farmer Held For Manslaughter Near Calgary.

FIGHT OVER WOMAN.

CALGARY, Jan. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Andrew Van Cene, farmer of Patricia, Alta., and Harry Houge, his hired man, are dead, and Robert Irwin, a neighboring farmer, is charged with manslaughter, following a triangular shooting near Patricia, Alta., on Saturday night, according to word received here to-day.

According to the story told to the Provincial police, Van Cene and Houge came to open warfare over the former's wife. Houge, according to the police, was accused by Van Cene of acting as the "third party" in the marital triangle. Threatened with a rifle, Houge left the farm, police say, and returned with Robert Irwin, who was armed with a shotgun.

An attempted parley by Irwin broke down when Van Cene refused to discuss the matter with him, it is alleged, and the battle started.

SCOUT NEWS FOR DISTRICT

MARMORA, Jan. 18.—Deloro is to have a Boy Scout Troop. That was the decision arrived at, at an enthusiastic gathering of parents and adults in Deloro Hall on Friday evening. The aims of scouting having been fully discussed, the following were elected to act as the Boy Scout Association of Deloro: Messrs. S. B. Wright, F. A. Bapty, R. A. Elliott, W. R. Reynolds, R. Hunter, F. Paquet, F. Craig, M. J. Tamplin, W. Simmons, H. Loveless, W. Kerr, Jr., H. F. Berry and S. B. Cheeseman.

Upon motion, Mr. Bapty was elected chairman of the association and Mr. Craig was allotted the duties of secretary-treasurer. The association then elected a troop committee for the organizing, directing and fostering of a boy scout troop for boys of ages ranging from 12 to 18 years, and the following were chosen: Messrs. Tamplin, Paquet and Hunter, together with the chairman, Mr. Bapty.

A committee to take over the organizing of a Wolf Cub pack will be elected as soon as the movement is well under way.

The Troop committee, meeting in quorum moved and carried that an application form be requested from Provincial Headquarters for the registration of the Deloro Troop and that the name of S. B. Cheeseman be submitted to that body for approval as Scoutmaster.

This committee subsequently fully discussed its obligations, the making of arrangements for meetings and the obtaining of financial support until the Troop becomes self supporting.

ACQUAINTANCE OF LUMBERMAN TELLS OF HEARING HIS THREATS

F. D. Holland Says Chipps Announced Intention of Killing Norris.

PROBABLY DRUNK

Witness Adds That He Never Saw Chipps Sober.

BY GENE FOWLER
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1927, Universal Service, Inc.)

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 18.—Ghostly police whistles were blown this week-end over the ashes of Dexter E. Chipps, slain by the Rev. J. Frank Norris last July 17. Counsel for Norris set up a self-defense theory through the testimony of L. H. Nutt, Fort Worth bank auditor. Nutt was in the Norris study when the pastor shot Chipps. The first day of the trial ended in a loud wrangle.

After Nutt had pictured his fundamentalist pastor as the aggrieved party in the Chipps-Norris death debate, he indicated that Chipps had said—"I'll kill you."

A stormy cross-examination of Nutt ended, and former patrolman Fred. D. Holland of Fort Worth began to testify to Chipps' many alleged moral lapses.

Holland said he had heard Chipps, presumably drunk, tell what he intended to do to the Rev. Norris.

Holland, who said he never had seen Chipps sober, was parking his car in front of the Texas Hotel, Fort Worth.

Q—When was that.

A—July 15, late, about 10 o'clock at night.

Q—Whom was Chipps talking to?

A—Harry Connor, city detective.

Q—What was the conversation?

A—Chipps was telling Connor: "I'm going to kill a blank, blank, blank." Connor added "Who?" Chipps said: "Frank Norris." Connor asked,—"when?" Chipps answered, "Either tonight or tomorrow night."

This was two days before the slaying. The witness went to Norris' study the next day after the alleged threat and warned Norris, he testified. In detail he outlined to the pastor the lumberman's purple past.

Here the witness gave to the jury a list of Chipp's lapses in righteousness. It seemed that the echoes of many police whistles, the whack of night sticks and the plop of knuckles was being wafted toward the court room from Chipps' grave. For, according to Holland's testimony, Chipps was constantly trying to slug policemen, becoming over-served with liquor; getting ejected from hotels; suffered frequent arrest and giving vent to gun-play and homicidal threats.

Holland's introduction to the late Mr. Chipps 2½ years ago led to a fight. Chipps said Holland was drunk. Holland tried to persuade Chipps to go home, but finally had to do this by knocking Chipps down.

So big was the crowd that witnesses had to use a window to get to the stand.

During recess, the jury was piloted through the throng by sheriffs who toiled like subway guards in the 5 o'clock rush at times Square. But it took 10 minutes to get the jurors out of the room.

During the testimony of Holland, near the session's close, Dayton Moses, for the defense, rose and roared at Red Reed, Texas Ranger and writer. Reed was sitting in front of the Bench. Moses shouted:

"I want the Court to instruct that man (Reed) from sitting there and smirking at witnesses for the defense."

"Wild Bill" McLean was up on his feet immediately. Wild Bill allowed that a private citizen was being attacked. It was a life-sized row. Several attorneys were trying to talk at once.

Feared Chipps.

When the big-bodied Chipps placed himself on a settee in the study of the Rev. Norris, he impressed Nutt as a desperate person, Nutt testified during the day. Nutt's word-picture of the Fort Worth lumberman a few minutes before Chipps reeled in his death throes, described a man of thunderous, evil manner. As he told the jury: "My impression was that he would kill Dr. Norris unless prevented." And again: "Chipps appeared angry, determined and dangerous."

Chipps seemed vicious to Nutt, Fort Worth banker and trustee of the Rev. Norris' First Baptist church. In contrast to the menacing, threatening Chipps—as Nutt depicted him, the Rev. Norris was calm and mild. He sat at his desk, solemn but unmoved, when Chipps hurled at him this imprecation:

"If you don't let up on Meachon (Mayor of Fort Worth), I'll kill you."

The Rev. Norris had replied to Chipps—perhaps with a trace of irony—"Well, my sermon has been announced. Perhaps you should come around and hear it."

This was on Saturday, July 17 last. The sermon would be preached the next day. It was here that Nutt, who said he was the only person present at the Norris-Chipps death interview, addressed Chipps. He said:

"The Rev. Norris has heard that kind of threat before."

Nutt had testified before a grand jury shortly after the supposedly blustering Chipps toppled to the pastor's study floor. This, however, was the first time his version of the slaying was given in public.

He had left his bank at 4 o'clock on the afternoon that Chipps was killed. He had called at the church to arrange for a substitute Sunday school teacher assigned for class next day. He had called on the Rev. Norris.

Nutt had stopped enroute to the church to purchase grapes and cherries. His arrival at the study was at about 4:30 o'clock. Shortly thereafter, Chipps unannounced, bulked through the door from an ante-room.

Nutt added:

"Chipps entered the west door. I was sitting to the west of Dr. Norris' desk at the time Chipps came in."

Q—What were the first words he said?

A—He said: "I'm Chipps." I rise up and he said: "I know this man; I know him down at the bank." He started to the settee in the northwest corner of Dr. Norris' study. As he took his seat he addressed himself to me and said: "I'm D. E. Chipps, the lumberman who sells lumber all over the country, and lots of it." Immediately after he was seated he said: "I'll say to you," looking in my direction and then turning to Dr. Norris: "If you talk about Meacham, Austin and Roach any more, I'm going to kill you." He had his fist clenched and a determined, defiant, mean look and—

Prosecutor McLean objected, saying that the witness might be trying to make a speech. The court ruled: "You may state the facts."

When the Rev. Norris informed Chipps of his intention to preach a sermon and that Chipps might want to hear it, the lumberman was quoted by Nutt as follows:

"If you do that I'll kill you," Nutt continued:

"Dr. Norris said: 'I don't want any trouble with you. There's the door.' Mr. Chipps refused to go. He remained standing there, his lips purple, and he was looking toward Dr. Norris."

Q—What else took place then?

A—I can't recall what Mr. Chipps said next except Dr. Norris had to tell him a second time, maybe three times, to go. Finally, Mr. Chipps reluctantly walked out.

Objection by the prosecution to the word "reluctantly." The objection was sustained.

Q—What did Mr. Chipps Do?

A—He went out slowly through the west door, the one where he had come in.

Q—Who opened the door?

A—I don't remember.

Q—Can you tell where Dr. Norris was standing at the time Mr. Chipps passed out the door?

A—He was just about in front of me.

Q—How far from you?

A—Possibly two or three or four feet.

Q—What took place, if anything, after Chipps went out of the door?

A—Dr. Norris said: "I repeat what I've said."

Q—What did Chipps say?

A—He said: "I'll kill you."

Dr. Norris, the witness continued, then resumed a seat at his desk. Just then Chipps returned to the door.

Q—What did you hear before you saw Chipps?

A—I heard Chipps say: "Let's go to it."

The witness explained that he could have seen Chipps before he heard his voice, but had not looked in that direction until he did hear the supposed threat. Nutt was asked to describe Chipps exact motions and appearance. Nutt stood down from the witness box. He reached with his right hand in the general direction of his hip. He raised his left hand level with his chin. He explained he did not know just what gesture Chipps intended or accomplished with that movement. He added:

"He made a motion with his right arm and I saw his coat roll back. I could see part of his chest or shirt. He made some motion over his left shoulder. Just what it was I can't explain."

Q—What happened then?

A—Next thing; shots rang out.

Q—How long after the words: "Let's go to it" did those shots ring out?

A—Almost immediately. Dr. Norris was to my right and to my rear. I don't know how many shots, but as many as three.

Q—Rapidly?

A—Very rapid.

Q—What did Chipps do?

A—He backed out to the ante-room, almost two or three feet beyond the outer door, and, facing almost south, he stooped over to pick something up. Then, he walked back to the study at the east end and fell over, facing the west.

Q—Did you see what he was attempting to pick up?

A—I saw something. I don't know what it was. It looked something like a brown case. My recollection is it looked like a brown case.

Meanwhile, Dr. Norris had left the study and had gone to the main office. There Nutt followed him. Dr. Norris told Nutt to "Get an ambulance." Nutt was excited. He fumbled with the telephone. Miss Jane Hartwell, secretary to the Rev. Norris, and a witness for the defense, called the ambulance. Cross-examination drew from Nutt the statement he had not returned to the fallen man. He did not then know whether Chipps were alive or dead. He had not administered to him. Neither, he said later, had he made any attempt to go between the pastor and Chipps during the death debate.

Nutt did not see a woman at the ante room door during the shooting incident. This was meant to refute testimony of Mrs. Roxie Parker, 70-year-old widow, who yesterday said she had witnessed the slaying.

CAROL'S RETURN FORESHADOWED

Reconciliation With Wife and Reinstatement to Rank Expected.

CREDIT TO SISTER

(By Karl Von Wiegand, Universal Service Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (Special Cable Dispatch).—A reconciliation between Princess Helen, of Greece, and her husband, former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, and probably the latter's reinstatement to the royal rights and his succession to the Roumanian throne is foreshadowed in the news from Bucharest.

Princess Helen, with her five-year-old son, Michael, the legal crown prince at present, left the Roumanian capital yesterday for Florence to meet Carol.

Carol's sister, Queen Marie, of Jugo-Slavia, is credited with having accomplished the difficult negotiations, together with Professor Jorga, now in Paris, to gain Carol's consent to meet his wife and son.

Princess Helen, if advices from Bucharest are trustworthy, will appeal to Carol's patriotism to return for the sake of his country and the future of his son, even if not for love of her. The princess will express, at the same time, the earnest entreaties of the king.

It is just one year since Carol threw over his wife, son, the crown and the throne for love of Madame Lupescu, an intelligent and attractive Bucharest Jewess, and because of certain conditions existing in the royal court and Bucharest political circles.

CAROL IS SILENT

PARIS, Jan. 18 (By Universal Service, Special Cable Dispatch).—Former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, was at his Neuilly home to-night. No comment was forthcoming of his reported, intended departure for Florence, where, according to dispatches from Bucharest, a possible reconciliation with his wife, the Princess Helen of Greece, may be effected.

NO WITHDRAWAL OF LIBERAL ARMY

Says Dr. Juan Sacasa, Leader of the Insurrectionists.

PRESSURE WORSE

(Special Cable Despatch.)

PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, Jan. 18 (By Universal Service).—Dr. Juan Sacasa, leader of the liberal insurrectionists, denies rumors of the withdrawal of the liberal army.

Declaring that his government would stand firm in its present attitude despite the action of the United States, he said:

"Reports that the liberal army is withdrawing and giving up the fight are incorrect. As regards American intervention, certainly, the pressure increases daily.

"Puerto Cabezas, Prinza Polka, Rio Grande and other ports in our control have been declared neutral zones by the United States, thus impeding not only our movements, but even the introduction by land or sea of provisions, medicines, and surgical supplies for our troops.

"We are not allowed to collect taxes in the territory which we control. United States marines have seized and thrown into the river about 2,000,000 rounds of cartridges, our property, thinking that in this way our resources would soon be exhausted.

"We are in reality suffering from a blockade, which has as its purpose our destruction and the protection of Diaz (recognized as President of Nicaragua by the United States).

"But in spite of all this my government will remain firm to the last extreme. As an example of what we are up against I quote orders received from the commander of the United States landing forces:

'Neither arms not ammunition nor any other supplies, including provisions, gasoline, etc., destined for the revolutionary forces will be permitted to pass through or to be shipped from your neutral zone. No recruiting will be permitted in this zone. Should any vessel land arms or ammunition these will be sized and held for safe keeping, and a report made to the commanding officer. Signed, E. G. Hanson.'"

LOST TRIBES

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The two lost tribes of Israel are the Basques of France and Spain and the Japanese, according to Sr. Yoshitomi, ethnologist. As one proof he points to the similarity between the Japanese language and the Basque dialect.

GOES TO PENITENTIARY.

FORT WILLIAM Ont., Jan. 18. (Canadian Press).—A quarrel over the merits of rival Ukranian organizations at the Head-of-the-Lakes, resulted in the sending of Michael Stowoski to penitentiary. Yesterday he was sentenced to a two-year term for stabbing Thomas Durnoski. He wielded a jack-knife during the quarrel. Durnoski is in hospital.

START JAIL FARM.

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—Cape Breton County has decided to start a jail farm, a step that has been under consideration for several years. The joint expenditure commission yesterday voted $1200 to buy rough land which will be cleared by convicts and put in shape for cultivation. The choice of a suitable site was left to the jail commissioner and Warden D. H. MacLean.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith, flushed with excitement, ran down the weed-grown path to the open, unhinged gate and sprang upon the running board of Bob Hathaway's car.

"Slide over into the driver's seat and get the engine going!" she commanded Cherry breathlessly. "Pete Gonzales was in that house and refused to come out when his mother called him. Bob's scouting around the back. Pete was probably watching from the window and will make a bolt for it through the front door. If he does—oh, there he is now! See—dropping out of that window! He'll jump the fence and make a run for it. Quick! Can you turn the car in this narrow street?"

"I can turn on a dime!" Cherry boasted, her eyes glittering with excitement. She swung the car at an almost exact right angle into the road, backed a piece, then, with a great wrench of the wheel with a tiny, frail-looking hand, headed it toward the fleeing figure of a short, thick-set, long-armed man, clad in soiled dark trousers and a frayed old red sweater. He was bare-headed, and he ran like an ape, his bowed legs incredibly awkward, his abnormally long arms swinging.

"There's Bob!" Faith gasped. "Wait him."

Hathaway was running fleetly across the vacant lot next to the Gonzales home. Pete Gonzales was a block away, but Cherry threw the car into reverse and backed swiftly toward Bob, who did not lessen his own speed as he ran to meet it.

"Good girl!" he panted, as he sprang to the running board. "You keep the wheel, Cherry. I'll stay here, ready to drop off and tackle the big bum when we catch him. Wouldn't be surprised if he's got a gun, but there's one in the pocket of my car, and I won't hesitate to flash it on him. Hand it to me, Faith. It's on your side; just lift up that flap. Don't be afraid of it," he laughed tenderly as she drew out the gun gingerly.

"Don't use it, Bob!" she begged. "Oh, look: he's fallen down!"

"It's a ruse," Bob told her grimly. "So he can get his gun out without being seen doing it. Stop the car, Cherry, quick! Give me that gun, Faith!"

Cherry stopped the car almost within its own length, and about a hundred feet from the huddled figure in the road. Faith, her hands trembling and her eyes agonized, passed the blue, snub-nosed automatic pistol to Bob, who immediately jumped from the running board and ran toward the fallen man. He carried the pistol conspicuously, in extended right hand, so that it must be plainly visible to the man who groveled in the dirt, as if unable to rise.

"Stick 'em up, Pete!" Bob's voice crackled sharply in the chill October air. "I'm not going to use this toy if you behave yourself. Just want to have a little chat with you. Why did you run away?"

The dust-covered figure writhed; the head reared slowly, like that of a snake about to strike; inch by inch the hands went up, and out of the clenched right one dropped a small automatic. Pete Gonzales was an evil thing to look upon, with his greasy thatch of long, uncombed black hair, his little pig-eyes glinting malevolently at the man who had him cornered.

"Aw, dry up and blow away!" his hoarse, croaking voice rasped out "What right you got to come snoopin' around a guy's house?"

Bob Hathaway laughed shortly and stooped to pick up the automatic which Pete Gonzales had dropped, taking care to keep him covered as he did so.

"Stand up, Pete. I'm not going to hurt you if you answer my questions. If you don't, I'll take you into police headquarters and let you explain this gun—concealed weapons, Sullivan law, you know, and a few other little things I can think of."

"Sullivan law yourself," the other man growled, his evil eyes fixed on the Colt in Bob's hand.

"Oh, no, buddy. I have a permit to carry a pistol. Didn't know I was a deputy prohibition enforcement officer, did you? Now, don't talk back or get fresh, but answer my questions. That's all right, girls," he called over his shoulder, as he heard the approach of his car. "Sit still. This baby won't give any trouble. And I'll be glad to have witnesses to what he's got to say. Now, first of all, where does that precious sister of yours hang out now?"

"None of your business," Pete Gonzales began, but at the prod of Bob's gun in the pit of his stomach, he answered sullenly, "Got a furnished room at 3518 West Tenth Street."

"All right," Bob Hathaway snapped. "Now, why have you been annoying this young lady—Miss Cherry Lane? Following her about everywhere she goes? Make it snappy, Pete. I haven't got all day to waste on you.

"It's a dirty lie!" Pete Gonzales growled, but again at the prod of the gun mended his speech and his temper. "It was a job o' work for me, see? An' I ain't squealin', see?"

"Your sister's going to be arrested before night, for writing poison pen letters to Miss Lane," Bob lied without a flicker of an eyelash. "Now, Pete, if you want to help your sister, you'd better come clean and tell us who's behind this thing. It isn't you or your sister, Lola. Who's paying you two to do this—you to shadow Miss Lane and report every move she makes, and Lola to write blackmail letters? Lola's been caught with the goods, and I advise you to save your own hide and help save hers by coming clean. How about it?"

"You won't let 'em send me up if I come clean?"

"I'll do all I can for you," Bob Hathaway told him curtly. "Now, who was it?"

(To be continued.)

YOUR HOME AND YOU

A very newly married woman observed the other day with an air of great experience that one thing that made many marriages unsuccessful was that husbands and wives didn't keep up the forms of politeness in private after marriage as they had done during courtship and engagement. It is, she thought, the little courtesies when no one is about that count for so much.

An amusing argument ensued. One woman who had been married ten or twelve years, the mother of four children, notably happy in her married life, argued that the little forms of courtesy that had been the rule before marriage were frequently impossible and absurd after marriage. It was, she said, important for her husband to read the paper before he reached his office which was only a block from home. So he propped it up before him at the breakfast table and she let him read it undisturbed. "Bill used to rise whenever I rose, before we were married. Now wouldn't that be absurd now! He is tired when he comes home at night, and if he is comfortably seated in his easy chair, wouldn't it be foolish for him to jump up every time I got up to answer the telephone or monkey with the radio?"

"It's being polite in company that makes the difference," observed the woman who had celebrated her silver wedding anniversary. The newly-wed muttered her disapproval of this theory, but the older woman continued. "It is many times more important for a man to be polite to his wife in public than in private to his wife in public than in private—I mean observably polite. If John doesn't think to seat me when we sit down to dinner at home I don't mind. The chances are I'll be up again in a minute to get something I have forgotten. But when John takes me to a restaurant for luncheon or dinner he never fails to seat me, and when we visit my mother-in-law he remembers to rise when I leave the room. Of course, it is company manners, but it's a great comfort. Sometimes we argue a little when we are together, but we never argue when a third person is around."

FOOD AND HEALTH

FOOD LEGISLATION AND ENGLISH HISTORY

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

Having discussed with my readers the possibilities for co-operation between the housewife and the legislator, I cannot resist letting these same housekeeper readers share my pleasure in some material which has recently come my way. Every intelligent person is more interested in administrating his job if he knows something of the forces and influences that have been at work to make his job possible. Before the housewife of today could have made her contacts with the legislators who make pure food possible, English law had accomplished much. There is a social value attached to such a summary as I have just received from Charles Wesley Dunn of the New York Bar. Mr. Dunn, an authority in his field, has compiled facts about the early English food laws that make choice reading!

The English law, Mr. Dunn tells us, consists of the common or unwritten law of conscience and custom and a longer series of statutes enacted by Parliament. This official legislation, he continues, opened in 1215, more than seven centuries ago, in the Magna Charta. McCaulay has recorded that the history of the English nation began at this point and we read that in Magna Charta it is declared that "there shall be one measure of wine, ale and corn for the realm."

Then comes an Assize of Bread Act at about 1225, regulating the weight and price. From this point Mr. Dunn proceeds to give us a brilliant summary of all legislation that has been enacted in the interests of pure food. We find reference to laws governing weights and measures as early as 963. Those of us who think that we are among the first to be concerned with the question of wholesome food must remember that in 1225 there was a law which forbade the sale of unwholesome flesh by butchers.

Another example quoted by Mr. Dunn is that of the comprehensive bread legislation, its activities, extending from 758 to 1921. Naturally, I am not trying to even approximate a complete transcription of Mr. Dunn's work. It does seem probable fitting, however, that a group of readers such as mine, might be inspired in their work with modern food legislation by the realization that they are helping to carry on work which was begun centuries ago.

When the children, for example, come home from high school or college and talk about their work in civil law and government, they may be surprised to find that their mothers are as well or better informed along these lines than they are themselves. There may be fresh interest, in the question of food standards in one's own community if various members of the family are simply bubbling over with interesting facts about food legislation that is, as on e youngster expressed it, "all mixed up with English history." The fact that it is mixed up with English history means that it has an equal share in the development of our own standards regarding wholesome food and complete nutrition. American health of today is closely tied up with early English law.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1927

Astrologers see in the skies many menacing aspects, which should cause inhabitants of the Earth to be exceedingly cautious.

Under this planetary government women will be variable and difficult to please. It is well to avoid them in the early morning hours.

There is a sign that indicates easy entrance to a quarrel and for this reason it is wise to beware of disturbing the domestic peace.

Military matters at this time may cause heated discussions in legislative bodies and there will be criticism of army policies, it is foretold.

An accident to a bridge or a battleship is indicated by the stars, which presage strange and unusual disasters.

All the signs appear to foreshadow earthquakes in many places and high winds will be frequent in many parts of the country.

Keen competition between British and American trade is prognosticated and our commerce is to be the cause of anxiety in high places.

Uranus is in a place supposed to afflict Turkey, which may be precipitated into war.

In Great Britain there is to arise a towering political figure with the tendencies of a dictator, although he will wear the title of a minister, astrologers prophesy.

According to a London authority "the slow trail of Saturn" will leave a bloody path in many parts of Europe.

Neptune in Leo is supposed to threaten France with some sort of an upheaval. Earthquakes as well as severe storms may sweep over the country.

Accidents at sea will be numerous from this date on, the seers warn, and they foretell dangers from storms, icebergs, and many unseen perils.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year in which there is an unusual amount of romance. The young will marry.

Children born on this day will probably be gifted but a bit erratic. They should be most carefully trained.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

A black velvet angel sleeve is shown above at the right with wide gold cuffs and gold embroidery. To the left is a sleeve of moire with an arrangement of chiffon at the side that suggests petals of a half-open flower. The sleeve in the center, suggesting the fashions of the Renaissance, is of blue and rose satin. Below at the left is a full sleeve with deep cuff trimmed with a strip of lace tied in a bow, and at the right is a close-fitting sleeve of georgette trimmed with fringe just bleow the elbow.

• • •

To make a last season's frock look up to date women are having the sleeves remodeled. In some cases frocks bought at the beginning of the season have been sent to the dressmaker's to have something done to make the sleeves a little newer, and women who devote their own energies to such matters figure out for themselves how best to impart a touch of newness to a frock by changing the sleeves.

So it seems that dress history repeats itself, for in the late nineties the sleeve was the thing which dated a frock most easily. A woman who cared about fashion wouldn't think of wearing last season's frock unless the sleeves had been done over.

Deep gauntlet cuffs have been worn all the season and they still are considered smart. Close-fitting cuffs are growing very much in favor. Sometimes the cuff extends from the elbow to the wrist and sometimes it is much shorter. In either case it is quite close-fitting and often extends over the wrist, covering a little of the hand as well. These close-fitting cuffs, have remained a fashion for the few, because they are extremely difficult to make use of in frocks bought and sold ready made. The close-fitting cuff is one of the things that really must have individual attention from start to finish.

However, if you have a last year's frock with open bell sleeves you can gather them in a close-fitting cuff of some contrasting material to give a distinctive new touch to your frock. The same material may be used to form a new collar finish. There is really no reason why sleeveless evening frocks should be made into the sleeved sort for sleevelessness is certainly not passe. Still, for the sake of variety you may want to add some sort of sleeve to a last season's evening frock.

One hears sometimes nowadays of "picture sleeves"— by which is meant any of the more elaborate, ingenious sleeves of the moment. And the very fact that they are so called indicates that we do not look upon them as part of the practical, every-day mode—but something that we wear just occasionally for the sake of variety as we do picture hats or period frocks.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

"Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas!" Three times and more the joyous shout rang through the hollow stump bungalow where Uncle Wiggily lived.

It was early on the morning of one of the gladdest days of all the year. In their soft little furry feet, so warm they hardly needed slippers or stockings, the little bunny children, forty 'leven of them—or forty twelve if you count Baby Bunty—the little bunny children ran through the hall from their bedrooms to see what Santa Claus had brought them.

"Toot! Toot! Tootity toot!" the red horn had been blown—the horn which told that Christmas morning had come. And, after waiting for the horn, Jingle and Jangle, Tingle and Tangle, Scooter and Booter—and all their brothers and sisters rushed for the tree.

For there was a Christmas tree in the hollow stump bungalow. Oh, yes, Uncle Wiggily had seen to that. He and his wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had seen to it that the tree was trimmed. And there were presents on the tree or under the tree or near the tree for every little bunny in the bungalow.

"Look at my skates!" cried Tooter.

"See my doll!" exclaimed Jingle.

"Oh, what a lovely string of blue beads I got!" laughed Baby Bunty.

Uncle Wiggily, half dressed with his pink nose only half twinkling, came out to see the presents.

"My! My!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman rubbing his eyes. Where in the world did all the presents come from?"

"Santa Claus brought them!" said Baby Bunty.

"We have everything in the world we could ask for!" sighed Tangle.

"Except one thing," her sister Jangle said.

"What in the world more can you want?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"I want Daddicums to tell us what is in the secret closet under the stairs," went on Jangle. "Ever since before Christmas that closet had been locked, and we have kept away from it."

"Except now and then," said Tooter, "we couldn't help hear, coming from it, the rattle of paper and other funny noises. I wish we could see what is in the secret closet."

"So do I," spoke his brother Scooter.

"And I! And I! And I!"-echoed the other bunnies—boys and girls.

Uncle Wiggily looked up from the many Christmas presents. There was a funny little twinkle in his eyes, as well as on the end of his pink nose.

"So you want, as an extra Christmas present, do you, to look in the secret closet?" he asked.

"If you please!" said Jingle, Jangle, and all the rest.

"Very well," went on the rabbit gentleman with a laugh. "I don't mind one more present. You shall each have a look." Bubbling over with jolly excitement, the boys and girls followed Uncle Wiggily. He stood before the closet. He looked at the door. He looked around at all the waiting rabbits. "Are you sure you want to see what is in here?" he asked.

"Yes! Yes!" called out the bunnies. "Let's see what is in the secret closet that has been kept locked since long before Christmas."

"Now for the surprise!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

He opened the door. Holding their breaths the bunnies peered in.

And in the secret closet under the stairs was just nothing at all!

The closet was empty!

"Now for the surprise!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily when he saw how astonished all the bunnies were. "Now the secret is out!" And so it was. I'm not saying there wasn't something in the closet up until as late as Christmas Eve, but on Christmas Day it was empty. You wonder what could have been in it; don't you? Well, maybe I shall tell you next holiday time.

Anyhow Uncle Wiggily had a very merry Christmas in his bungalow, and he and I wish you ten thousand Merry Christmas greetings in your bungalows or wherever you live. And may your trees be laden with many presents from Santa Claus.

"Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas!" echoed around the rabbit gentleman all day long until, when night came, Christmas was over. But the happy spirit of the day lived for a long time.

Houses

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

CHILDREN are very susceptible to atmosphere. They are far more sensitive than the average grown-up to the moods of people and the influence of surroundings. They respond happily to color and sunshine, to cleanliness and healthful activity. They shrink from gloom and drab things. The moods and voice inflections of those who care for little babies have a most decided effect upon the child, for long before he interprets a spoken language the child reads moods in the voice and the attitudes of a grown-up. Speak pleasantly, for instance, to a baby and he'll smile long before he has any idea what you're saying but scold him and there will be no such response. One may hide his mood from another grown-up, but it is very difficult to deceive a child.

ON the way to school I pass a house
Sort o' hid way back in a woody yard.
On the rickety porch there's a shutter loose,
That flaps with a bang when the wind blows hard.
One side of the steps is tumbling down,
And the windows stare with an empty frown.
On the picket fence grows a vine of brambles
And all in a clutter a rose bush scrambles.
It's a lonesome house, and I run herd past
'Cause something pushes my feet real fast.

Way up the block there's another house,
A cozy house with a friendly air.
It has beds of flowers 'round about
And phlox and larkspur growing there.
There's a porch where a cozy hammock swings,
And a wicker cage where a gay bird sings.
Close to the walk is a bird bath sunning
And around its stand there is ivy running.
It's so sweet and clean on its velvety grass
I must push on my feet to make them pass!

SHORT STORY

THE CAVEMAN AND THE HIGHBROW

By H. Irving King.

Said Mr. Rascover to Mrs. Rascover: "The trouble with Martha is that she scares off eligible young men—she's too blamed highbrow for 'em."

Mrs. Rascover gave a deep sigh. "That's it, I suppose," she agreed. "She's twenty-five now—a year older than I was when we were married. I've talked to her and talked to her; but it's no use. She's a walking encyclopedia of all the 'ologies' and talks of Literature and Art with capital letters."

"I suppose that just suits the Manchester fellow," said Mr. Rascover. "I can't bear him. He gets my goat. I wish she would marry Bart Jencks. He's all right personally, and his father has money. But fellows like Bart will stand about so much highbrow stuff and then they shy off, no matter how pretty a girl is."

Now all this regarding the relations between Bart and Martha was strictly true. But one thing—Bart wasn't afraid of her, and most young men were. Martha had tolerated the young man at first because she found him amusing; then she went on tolerating him with the idea of improving and building up his mental equipment.

That last is a dangerous phase. When a woman undertakes reformatory or uplift work with regard to a young man you can almost always hear the wedding bells tinkling in the distance. In spite of all her highbrow frills, Martha was a pretty bright girl.

Martha had not seen Bart for a week—he had got into the habit of calling at least twice a week and this hiatus puzzled her. She did hope he would call that night. Not because she was so anxious to see him, of course, but because she had an unpleasant duty to perform and wanted to get it over with. She was not going to do anything crude, you understand; not going to tell him that he must cease calling, or anything like that; but just deftly impress upon him that, as the romanticists used to say, "she could never be his," though as a matter of fact he had never asked her.

Egbert Manchester had called on her the night before. Egbert was on the same psychic plane as she. He wore glasses, taught in a girl's college and was up on everything worth while. It was a liberal education in the higher branches to hear him talk. When he had first begun calling Martha was sure she had at last met her soul-mate. But, to tell the truth, Egbert had become rather a bore. Besides, he had an unpleasant way of correcting Martha—as if he were correcting examination papers. And it must be acknowledged that, while Martha's knowledge was all-embracing it rather lacked accuracy. Subconsciously she was glad that it was Bart Jencks that she was expecting and not the erudite Egbert.

It did not take Martha long to get underway when Bart arrived. She was going to show him by a logical discourse how impossible it was for two persons so different in mentality, temperament and psychic plane to take upon themselves the relations of man and wife. But hardly had she got well started when Bart interrupted her with: "Martha, are you a good cook?" Under the unexpectedness of the attack she faltered and replied: "Why, yes, mother thinks I am. She insisted on my learning domestic science. Why?"

"Well," drawled Bart, "being able to cook, of course, isn't everything; but a woman who knows how to cook herself can supervise the kitchen department better than one who can't. You have every other qualification for a good wife. I'm glad you have a knowledge of cooking, too. It will come in handy after we are married."

"Married?" gasped Martha. "Who are we?"

"Why, you and I, of course," replied Bart. "I saw your father about it and he's agreeable."

"This is madness," cried Martha. "I have no idea of marrying you."

"Better get the idea then," returned Bart calmly, "for I'm going to marry you—and you have known it for a long time. Guess we can tip our psychic planes so that they will meet if we try. Then you know you would have years and years of married life to devote to my mental uplift." That last shot hit the bullseye. There flashed through Martha's brain two pictures. In one she was married to Bart and leading him gently to higher things. In the other she was married to Egbert Manchester who was oppressing her with his intellectual superiority and correcting her at every slip she made.

"You are going to marry me," went on Bart confidently—"and if I catch that simp, Egbert Manchester, hanging around here much more I'll punch his nose."

"I was never so astonished in my life!" protested Martha.

"Glad of it," replied Bart. "come give us a kiss." Martha struggled as he took her in his arms—but what could a poor weak woman do in the hands of a caveman?

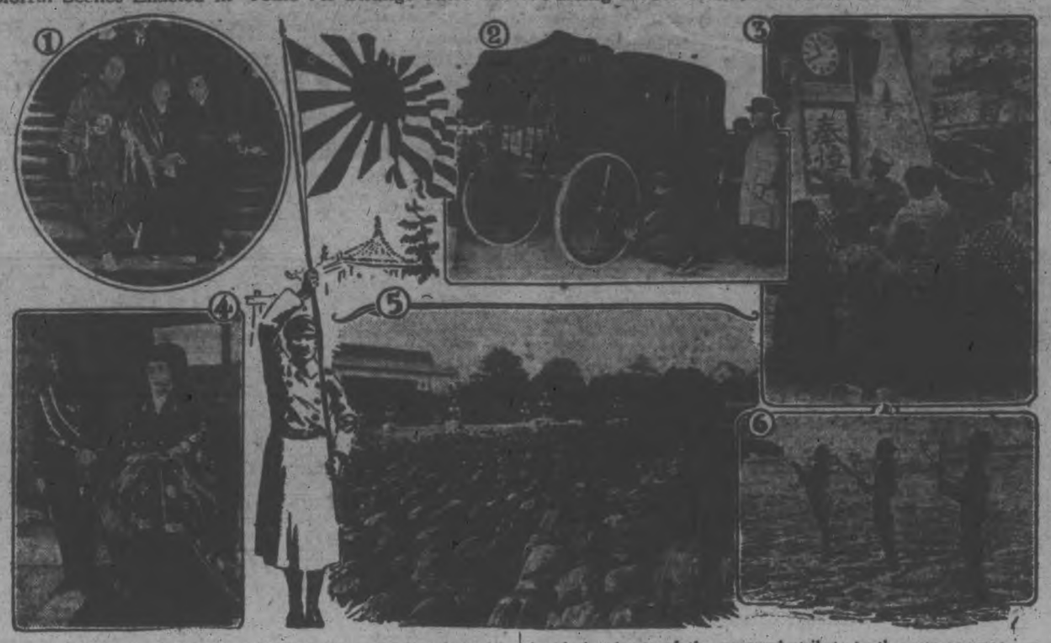
THE MIKADO DIES—FIRST PICTURES

Colorful Scenes Enacted in Tokio As Strange Rites Mark Passing of Old Ruler, Accession of New.



Here are the first pictures to reach America showing remarkable scenes in Tokio just before and after the death of the late Mikado, Yoshihito.

No. 1 shows the emperor's aged mother, Madame Naruko Yanagawara, bowed in grief, leaving the imperial palace shortly after his death.

In No. 2 is a glimpse of the glittering imperial coronation coach being refurbished for the use of the new Mikado, Hirohito.

No. 3 shows a "mourning clock" being set up in one of the main streets of the capital, with news of the emperor's passing inscribed under it.

Picture No. 5 shows thousands of Tokio school girls bowing at the gates of the imperial palace to pay tribute to the new emperor.

No. 6 gives a glimpse of the strange ceremony conducted at Hayama by the Buddhist priests of the sect of Nichiren, who stood for an hour in the surf, dashing water on themselves and beating on hand drums, while they prayed for the soul of the imperial departed.

GOOD-NIGHT STORIES

LITTLE MRS. BLUEBIRD ALMOST MAKES A MISTAKE.

When Mr. Bluebird asked Missy Bluebird to become his wife she was the happiest little creature in the whole meadow.

Together they looked for a pretty housesite and finally decided to live in one of the birdhouses put up in the back yard of the great big white farmhouse.

They were just about to begin filling it with bits of grass when a big yellow cat spied them, and that was the end of that dream.

"These five babies aren't ours."

"No, that will never do," chattered Mr. Bluebird. "We'll search a little farther," and off they flew, wing and wing into the orchard.

Mrs. Bluebird discovered a hole high up in an old apple tree, and when they investigated they found it for rent.

"Yes," drawled Mrs. Tree Toad, who had kept house for several years in the old apple tree, "this would be a lovely place for you Bluebirds to raise a family. We have no cats bothering around here. Billy Woodpecker and his wife lived there last season. They had a nice family."

So the deserted Woodpecker's hole in the apple tree was rented and for days the birds were busy around the new home. Mrs. Bluebird did the most of the nest building, while Mr. Bluebird sat on a limb near by and sang his prettiest songs to her.

When the nest was finished and five little pale greenish-blue eggs were nestled in the nest Mr. and Mrs. Bluebird were the happiest pair in the whole orchard.

While Mrs. Bluebird sat on her eggs Mr. Bluebird would sit near and sing "Tru-a-ly, tru-al-ly, dear," until even old Mrs. Tree Toad began to hum to herself.

She loved her new neighbors and every time she felt a storm coming Mrs. Tree Toad would sit on her doorstep and croak her warning to the Bluebird family.

Then one day she heard a terrible racket, and when she rapped at the Bluebirds' home she found both of them in tears.

"Just look!" fairly screamed Mrs. Bluebird, "some one has slipped her eggs under me. These five little babies are not ours. They are black, black, black!"

Mrs. Tree Toad peeked into the nest. Sure enough, from the eggs had hatched five wee little birds with their plumage almost black.

Mr. Bluebird accused his wife of leaving the nest too long to feed, while she cried that he didn't take good care of the eggs while she was out feeding.

"Why, no, my dear," croaked Mrs. Tree Toad, "don't scold each other. Everything is all right. I can see this is your first brood of babies, or you'd have known better. All baby bluebirds are hatched out black like that. Why, if they were blue like their daddy, it would turn their heads. They all start in life with a black suit on."

Mr. and Mrs. Bluebird soon quieted down. They believed anything Mrs. Tree Toad told them, and it's a good thing they did. Before many days the black began to change on the wee little birds, and by the time they were ready to learn to fly they were ready to learn to fly part of them looked just like their daddy and the rest resembled their mother. Mr. and Mrs. Bluebird were very thankful to Mrs. Tree Toad, for if she hadn't told them about their babies they would have turned them out into the grass.

FISH 40 YARDS LONG

ROME, Jan. 18.—A shark at least 40 yards long, is the tale brought by the fishermen of Anoca after a trip near the Ancona lighthouse in the Adriatic. Coastguard and lighthouse employes who first saw it took it for a submarine. The monster dived to safety after a torpedo boat gave chase and fired upon it.

A special staff of ex-sailors live in the big Westminster Tower of the British Houses of Parliament, and it is their special duty to "keep the flag flying" when the Houses are in session.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite Shawnee, Okla.

THAT Dorothy Dix says, "Woman is happiest when she has some secret sorrow," to which I will amend, "Some men are happiest when they are possessed of a pessimistic grouch."

The grouch is the man who stands on the sidewalk while the procession of progress is passing and hopes somebody stubs his toe and bursts the bass drum.

The man who beats his town's bass drum is the man who will eventually gather a procession to follow him, while the fellow who is content to shrill the piccolo will eventually have to move out of the neighborhood.

Beating the drum keeps the live ones awake and halts the moribundity of the grouch. Hence when it comes to the question of making the noise of your town heard beyond its immediate confines; the bass drum is the instrument with which to tell the world that the parade is ready to march.

George Cormack only had a washtub, belonging to his squaw, to sound the tocsin which brought the stampede to Dawson. Since then the drum has been beaten until a world has learned that Alaska is a place where modern towns have supplanted igloos and dugouts.

Therefore; if you cannot beat the bass drum and are unwilling to carry it, fall into the procession and help others carry on the work of attracting capital and development to your town.

DRIVE OUT SQUATTERS

VIENNA, Jan. 18.—More than 1000 unemployed, with their families, who squatted on a large area near Orth recently, were driven out by gendarmes. The marshy land near the Danube has been condemned as unhealthy, often being submerged for half a year.

EAT SEAWEED?

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—This ideal food for all ages is seaweed. So declares Miss Josephine Tilden, head of the botany department of the University of Minnesota, who stopped here on her return from the Pacific Science Congress at Tokio. People were healthy who used to eat it in bygone days, she said. It was the food basis for all sea life, Miss Tilden said.

JOHNSON TALKS HIMSELF OUT OF JOB, SAYS PAPER

Unless Club Owners Go Back on Promise To Judge Landis.

CRITICIZES DICTATOR.

Promise Made When He Attacked Dolan-Connel Decision.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—The World to-day says that Ban Johnson has "talked himself out of the presidency of the American League," unless seven club owners "go back on a promise made to Commissioner Landis on December 17, 1924." The club owners of the League, with the exception of Phil D. Ball, of St. Louis, signed a statement of assurance to the Commissioner on that date that Johnson's "misconduct will cease or his immediate removal from office will follow," the paper says. The action of the League grew out of Johnson's criticisms of Landis' decisions in the Connell Dolan scandal, a situation which the world compares with that now existing as a result of the American League president's condemnation of Landis' action in publishing the charges made by "Dutch" Leonard against Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker. Landis was asked to overlook Johnson's conduct "since he has been president of our League since its inception," and to accept a guarantee that his activities would be limited to the internal affairs of the American League.

TANKARD GROUP CURLING STARTS

Lindsay, Campbellford and Peterborough Play Here To-day.

LINDSAY HAS LEAD.

Three clubs were entered this morning in the Ontario Tankard at the Peterborough Curling Club's Rink,—Campbellford, Peterborough, and Lindsay being represented. In the draw this morning, Peterborough drew a bye, and Campbellford and Lindsay played. On the morning's play Lindsay was ahead by 33 points, F. J. Carew defeating F. Smith by 11 points and W. E. Reesor winning from Edward Tait by 24 points.

BOWMANVILLE TEAM DEFAULTS

Petes Gain Two Games By Decision To Withdraw For Year.

GROUP STANDING.

Due to the decision of the Bowmanville team to default its three remaining schedule games, Peterborough intermediates will be saved a trip to the Lakeshore town this week. The Edgerites had won only one game, that with Picton, and last night took a terrible beating in Port Hope, the score being 17-2. The Petes' next game, now, is with Port Hope here on January 26, when the locals fully expect to reverse the shut-out defeat they received from the Ontarios three weeks ago. The group standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Port Hope	4	0
Oshawa	4	0
Peterboro	2	3
Picton	2	3
Bowmanville	1	7

Toronto Feature Stocks All Suffer Price Drops

TORONTO, Jan. 18.— (Canadian Press.) — British Columbia Fishing was the feature of the Toronto stock exchange to-day when the issue, heavily dealt in, slumped badly. Fishing closed the morning session 4 1-4 points lower at 75 3-4. The market generally was weak and declines were registered in the majority of issues. Brazilian Traction, also attracting much interest, was one point lower at 105. International Nickle dropped 3-4 to 40 1-2. These three issues all were points of interest, and heavy sales were recorded in them. Bell Telephone was up two at 139 while Kelvinator gained 1-2 at 11. On the unlisted side of the market, Hiram Walker, up 1-2 at 32 1-2, and Imperial Oil, up 1-8 at 40, were the features. Imperial had 880 shares dealt in, the biggest day's trading in this stock for some time.

Wheat Prices Advance On Improved Demands

CHICAGO, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—Wheat advanced early to-day, influenced by unexpected upturns at Liverpool and Buenos Aires. General improvement of demand, both in British and European Continental markets, was reported. Opening ¼ to 5-8 cent higher, Chicago wheat prices scored material further gains. Corn, oats, and provisions were also firmer, corn starting at ¼ to ½ cents gain and continuing to ascend.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 140, July 130 3-4; corn, May 82¼, July 85 1-8; oats, May 48 7-8, July 47 5-8.

Price Movements Confused And Within Narrow Limits

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press)—Confused price movements again characterized to-day's stock market. Money rates held relatively firm. The annual stock holders meeting of the Lehigh Valley Railroad directors failed to reveal a reason for the recent sensational rise in the stock. Speculation in the rail group continued to center in those issues which are likely to be included in the special consolidations reported to be pending. Weakness of the American woollen issues was attributed to speculative disappointment over the slow recovery being registered by the textile industry after the post war depression. Pools were again active in a number of specialties, Internal business machines, general railway signal, Remington Typewriter, Vick Chemical and R. H. Macy standing out with gains of 1 1-2 to 6 1-2 points.

Standard industrials and rails moved within narrow and irregular limits.

General Declines Recorded During Heavy Mine Session

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press)—Heavy trading was the feature of the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, with more than 800,000 shares changing hands. The market was weaker and declines were recorded in the majority of issues. Area was 13 cents lower at 63 and Teck Hughes also lost 13 at 645. Barry Hollinger, down two at 93, Castle Tretheway, down one at 106, and Naval Quebec, down one at 38, were among the issues which attracted considerable attention. Consolidated W. D. Lake also felt the decline, dropping 1-4 at 16 1-4, with Tough Oakes burn also down 1-4 at 61 3-4. On the unlisted side of the market, Amulet, the leader in activity, was 12 cents lower at 175 and Grover Daly declined 1-2 at 25 1-2.

YOUNG TO FACE MOVIE CAMERA IN SCREEN TEST

Youthful Swimmer Considered For Leading Part in Picture.

STAYS ON COAST.

Has Signed Picture and Vaudeville Contracts For Several Weeks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—George Young, 17-year-old Toronto boy, whose remarkable exploit in swimming the 22-mile Catalina Island Channel has aroused the admiration of the entire world, will be given a screen test tomorrow by Jesse L. Lasky at the Paramount Studio in Hollywood, it was announced at the company's office here today.

The courageous youth, who was the first person ever to conquer the expanse of water separating Catalina Island from the California mainland —a feat recognized by swimmers as far more difficult than the crossing of the English Channel, is being considered for an important role in a production soon to be launched by Paramount, the details of which will be announced shortly, it was stated.

Has Signed Contracts

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (Canadian Press).—Special despatches to Toronto paper today indicate that George Young, hero of the Catalina Channel swim, will not return to Toronto for at least a month, and perhaps longer; that he has signed motion picture and theatrical contracts; and that he is emphatically standing by his contract with Henry O'Byrne, his trainer and coach, by which O'Byrne receive forty per cent of the prize money and further earnings during the year.

Sticks to O'Byrne

"O'Byrne certainly earned his share of the prize money," a despatch quotes Young as saying. "I had to have his money, his time, and brains to get across. I'd have been out of the race if it hadn't been for him."

The despatch continues that Young has been signed by a motion picture, and also that Sid Grauman, outstanding Coast theatrical manager, has closed with Young for appearances in his Hollywood theatre for five nights at a thousand dollars a night.

A special despatch from Los Angeles says "A railroad official offered Young a private car for the return trip to Toronto, but Young turned it down and declared positively that he was not going back to the Ontario city."

PRIESTS DOUBT REBELS HEADED BY ARCHBISHOP

Think He Has Gone To Country With Protective Guard.

HAPPENED BEFORE.

Government Optimism Raised By Successes Against Rebel Forces.

MEXICO CITY, January 18. Canadian Press. — Roman Catholic priests in the capital refuse to credit the report that the Archbishop of Guadalajara has taken to the field as head of a Catholic rebellion in Jalisco.

They admit, however, the possibility that the Archbishop has gone to some ranch where he is surrounded by a group of armed men for protection, as was the case in 1917, when he was also charged with rebellion.

Official circles are optimistic over the final outcome of the rebellion. This feeling is increased by the latest victories of the Federal troops in the states of Jalisco and Durango and the fact that for several days one or two rebel leaders have daily been reported killed, while others unconditionally surrendered.

Yesterday Felice Mendez and Jose Jesus Martinez, insurgent chieftains in the states of Guanajuato and Michoacan respectively, fell, while fighting the Federals.

Five rebels were killed by Federals under General Espinoso Cordova at San Antonio in the State of Queretaro.

Competent to judge

There is no better way for you to learn the true value of commodities in general use than to read the advertisements day by day—regardless of whether or not you have any immediate intention of buying.

Those young housekeepers whose first experiences in marketing began in war-time have a fixed idea of high prices. Those of an older generation have an equally strong conviction that prices should be lower.

With the shifting changes of a rapidly moving world both prices and values are bound to fluctuate. A financier studies these trends with scrupulous care in published financial reports compiled by experts.

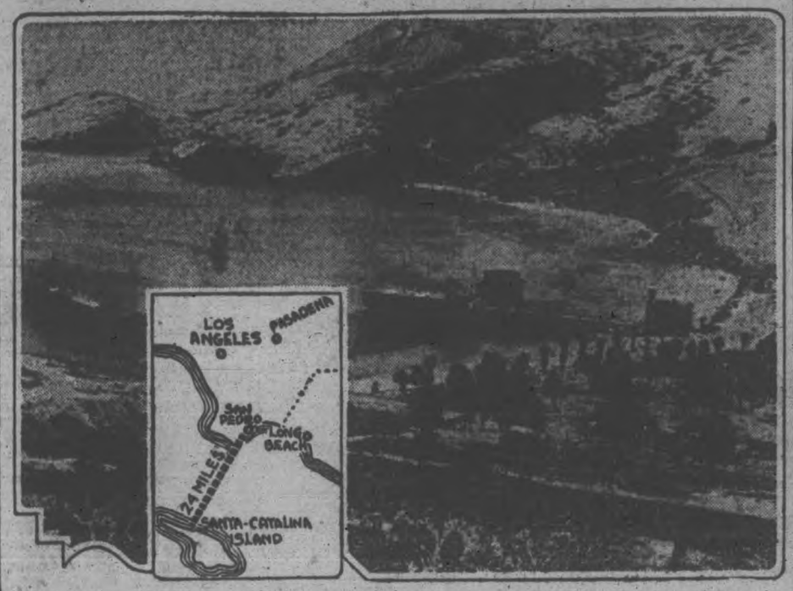
An intelligent housewife may similarly make herself a competent judge of values by studying each day's advertisements of the things she needs—just as the broker studies his stock list.

Then as she comes to buy she may do so with full confidence in her knowledge.

To stand the test of advertising, merchandise must be good

LOCAL SENIORS BEAT MARLBOROS 5 TO 4

atalina Contest Meant 24 Miles of Sharks, Cold Tides and Strain, Canada Won



And George Young of Toronto, who won.

"The glitter of the $40,000 purse hung over the blue mountains of Santa Catalina Island. It cast a glimmering sunset pathway over the 24 mile stretch of chilly, turbulent water that lies between the island and San Pedro, on the mainland.

The best swimmers in the country matched their endurance and skill against the treacherous tides of Catalina channel in competition for the prize offered by William Wrigley Jr., chewing gum magnate, which was won by George Young, a seventeen year old Toronto boy.

If a woman had reached the mainland first she would have gotten it all, but George Young gets $25,000. As no woman reached the mainland Wrigley puts $15,000 back into his pocket, this being the amount of the prize offered to the first woman that would complete the swim.

In length the swim is about equal to the English channel swim. In natural difficulties, due to tides, sharks, temperature, and the like, it is every bit as hard, some say harder.

The sharks in these waters are the real thing. Every precaution was taken by those who accompanied the swimmers in boats—but the thought that sharks might be lurking near did not tend to steady the contestant's nerves.

The waters off shore are bitterly cold. Since the waters close to the shore are warm, the swimmer encounters an abrupt drop in temperature.

In addition, the currents are confused, and powerful, and a nasty choppy sea is the rule over the greater part of the distance.

No lone swimmer ever made the trip before. A short time ago a realy of swimmers made the trip to get facts about the conditions. It took this relay nearly 21 hours. They left Long Beach at noon and reached Avalon, on the island at 11.17 the next morning. George Young's time for the swim was 15 hours and 47 minutes.

Among the competitors for the Wrigley purse were many who are well known throughout the country. Clarabelle Barrett, of English Channel fame, was one. Mrs. Delia Sullivan, of Holyoke, Mass., who won a 30-mile swim across the St. Lawrence, last fall, was another.

The sharks had no terrors for Mrs. Lottie Schoemmel of New York, who recently swam the Hudson from Albany to New York. Mrs. Schoemmel swam unclad, save for a heavy coating of axle grease, but wore a belt in which she carried an ugly knife. If the shark had attacked her there would have been a fight.

The oldest of the contestants was Mrs. Anne E. Van Syke of Santa Monica, Calif., who is 66. She celebrates each birthday with a swim of at least 10 miles. Another matron to enter was Mrs. E. L. Fourier of San Bernardino, Calif., who was seeking the $40,000 prize as an educational fund for her son.

One married couple entered as a team. Leland Moore of Los Angeles, and his wife, Alma, competed together in an effort to take both prizes.

The swim began at the isthmus of Santa Catalina island and the San Pedro breakwater was the goal

(By F. D. C.)

Peterboro's Senior O.H.A. representatives tightened their grip on second place in the group race at the expense of the Marlboros last night, beating Frank Selke's team 5 goals to 4 at Brock Street Rink after a game that was as replete with fast hockey, excitement and thrills as any contest seen here in recent years.

It was a nip and tuck affair.

The two teams divided four goals evenly in the first and last periods and the Petes' margin of victory was represented by the solitary marker they hung up in the middle session.

With second place at stake the rivals battled with every ounce they had for victory and there was not a dull moment anywhere, although the fastest hockey was seen in the first twenty minutes when the teams cut loose at top speed.

Roughness crept in as the game went along and while the quality of hockey deteriorated, as a result, there was no lessening in the excitement and the biggest crowd of the season was kept on its toes until the final bell, as the tide of battle swept up and down the ice cushion, and an epidemic of fast scoring added fireworks to the closing moments.

The Marlboros never stopped trying.

They were two goals down with only a few minutes to go but they hung on and grabbed two of the last three counters to make the finish one full of thrills.

There was not much to choose between the teams on the night's play, although the Petes had the greater number of close-in opportunities to score and the 5-4 count was earned, Marlboros getting the benefit of a couple of lucky goals, one of them being kicked in by Joe Dwyer himself.

Referee Ernie Parkes of Toronto had a rough passage from the fans who did not like some of his decisions. It was a tough game to handle and Parkes got in wrong early with the result that his every move afterwards looked bad to the sideliners.

The score was knotted 2-2 at the close of the first twenty minutes, Petes got the only goal in the second session, and both outfits found the nets twice in the final dash.

Every player on both squads contributed all he had and it was one of those hard fought battles in which there were no stars or all were. Just as you want to put it.

For Marlboros perhaps the most useful man, with the exception of Stark who played a bang up game in the nets, was not the shifty Joe Primeau, although he was always a threat, but Johnny MacPherson, the fiery headed right winger, who was a veritable pest. MacPherson checked all and sundry and when they dodged him once he was right at their heels the next moment. Besides this good checking he was a dangerous attacker. Primeau's stickhandling and skating made him prominent although the Petes kept him off the score sheet for the second time in succession while Heintzman, the left wing player, turned in a great card.

Crompton and Hedges were strong defensively, while Joe Stark in the nest foiled a host of dangerous attacks by clear cut work between the posts.

Every one of the home crew had a share in the glory. Collins, just recovering from an attack of "flu", gave one of his best performances of the year. Ranger's poke checking and fine stick-handling were a big help. Bogardis was brilliant both on the attack and defensively. Ken Kane went great guns every time he was sent out there and Williams gave a good account of himself.

Both McLeod and Rose checked well and each shared in the goal getting, a brilliant play in each case being rewarded with a counter. Dwyer got a tough break on a couple of goals, but he made a lot of clever stops, several times when his defence had been tricked.

Fast In the First.

It was lightning hockey in the first twenty minutes, the game opening at top speed with Stark and Dwyer both tested early. Four minutes after the start the Petes beat Stark for the first time this season. Ranger carried the rubber, gave Collins a pass going through the defence and the Petes' centre player neatly drave the rubber into the corner of the net.

A penalty to Bert McLeod followed soon after and with the big defence man watching the play from the timer's box the Dukes evened up the count, MacPherson slipping a pass from the corner out to Hedges, who registered from close-in.

The Petes made it hot for the Marlboros for the next few minutes, Stark making several great stops on hard shots from Bogardis and Kane.

The Marlboros went ahead on the strength of a lucky goal. Frost, the Dukes' sub. shot from the side, and Dwyer attempting to clear kicked the rubber into the nets.

Kane drew a penalty for an accidental trip but the Petes pressed and Ranger was robbed of a goal by a play that should have given Stark a penalty. Ranger stick-handled through the Dukes' defence, pulled Stark out and had the open net to shoot at when the Marlboro goalie threw his stick at the puck and knocked it away. Right after the play McLeod put the Petes on even terms with the invaders when he broke from behind his own blue line, steamed down the centre ice lane and cut loose a shot that although partially stopped by Stark was too hot to handle.

Hedges was chased for tripping, but the score remained unchanged while the Marlboro defence player was off.

Early in the second period a smart Primeau to Heintzman play was foiled by a great stop by Dwyer. Rose slashed McPherson as the latter was checking him and while the defence player was off Ranger did some great checking. With Rose back Ranger chopped Joe Primeau and he got the gate. Bogardis followed and the Petes were two men short for a short period, but the Dukes could not take advantage of the opportunity. Heintzman, the Marboro left wing player, was chased for tripping. The checking was close and strenuous at this stage and it began to look like a blank for this period.

Finally, however, Collins broke away and passed to Bogardis whose accurate shot from the side beat Stark completely. That put the Blue Shirts in front, and they nearly increased their lead when Ranger worked inside to miss the net and Stark fell in time to smother the rebound as Rose tried to snap the rubber past him. Williams was banished for hooking just before the period ended.

There was lots of excitement packed in the last twenty minutes. Right off the reel a Rose-Bogardis play looked like a sure goal, but Stark saved. Bogardis upset Hedges and when Collins fell over the Marlboro defence man he and Hedges were given a penalty. Heintzman worked right inside, only to be robbed by Dwyer. McLeod was penalized, and after he got back Joe Primeau was sent off for dumping Collins. The Petes increased their lead while the elusive Primeau was an absentee. Rose started a rush, passed to Bogardis and sailed in at top speed ot drive the Babe's rebound past Stark as the Marlboro's net guardian raced out to clear. It was a lightning play.

When Primeau came back he nearly closed the gap when he picked up a loose puck and posted in on top of Dwyer, who made a brilliant save.

Bogardis got a penalty for jumping at Hedges and Marlboros followed with a lucky goal when Dwyer in clearing a shot, shot the rubber right at Heintzman, the puck rebounding off the Duke's left-winger over Dwyer's shoulder to drop into the net.

That made it 4 to 3 and too close for comfort. However, Kane relieved the pressure with a swift shot from the side. The Toronto goal umpire did not signal for a goal but Referee Parker saw the play and awarded the counter, putting the Petes again two in front.

The Dukes were not through however, and with the Petes playing a defensive game and shotting the rubber down the ice, MacPherson picked up a loose puck at the Peterborough blue line and stick-handled in close to beat Dwyer with the final goal of the game.

A penalty to Stark for hitting Collins was a feature of the final period. While the Marlboro's goalie was off Frost went between the posts and stopped the only shot the Petes got on the nets.

MARMORA WINS GAME IN MADOC

Only Scores of Fast Game Come in the Last Period.

SCORE 2-1.

MADOC, Jan. 18.—A good crowd turned out last night to see the Marmora vs. Madoc game, which resulted in a score of 2-1 in favor of Marmora, Madoc losing the game in the last five minutes.

No goals were scored in the first two periods, though Ruport and Henderson made several good shots for Madoc, and Wallbridge in goal checked one or two near ones, shot by the Marmora boys. A couple of scrimmages took place in this period and the game showed signs of being a bit rough.

The second period opened with slow play. Early in this period Jack Henderson of Madoc got a nasty knock in the stomach from one of the Marmota players, which laid him out for several minutes, and for which the referee did not see fit to penalize the Marmora player, though it seemed an unjustifiable knock. In fact, considerable dissatisfaction was felt over the way the game was handled, as Madoc fans thought the referee showed partiality to Marmora all through. A short time after, the goal umpire behind Madoc goal was accidentally struck with the puck. No scores were made during this period.

The third period opened with the play much faster and with great enthusiasm from the spectators. Early in the period the first score was made when Watson counted one for Madoc. This put the boys on their mettle, and both sides worked fast and furiously. An excellent shot was made by Henderson, but the Marmora goalie did good work in checking. Then McWilliams, Marmora's fast player, succeeded in slipping one into the Madoc net after many attempts had been made by the visitors. This made the score 1-1, with just five minutes to go. Excitement ran high. Marmora boys succeeded in keeping the play around Madoc goal, and Wallbridge, who did excellent work throughout the game, was kept busy. About two minutes before time the visitors succeeded in scoring again. Madoc boys made a great effort to recover the lost advantage, but time was short, and the bell rang, leaving the score 2-1 for Marmora. Good hockey was played in this period.

The line-up:

Marmora—Goal, Neal; defence, Auger and Bennett; centre, McWilliams; wings, Woods and Brady.

Madoc—Goal Wallbridge; defence Ruport and Blue; centre, Moon; wings, Watson and Henderson; subs., Smith and Brady.

Referee—Clarke Brown of Tweed

The Ascot Gold Cup is probably the most famous trophy of the English turf. It is now over a hundred and thirty years since the first award of the Cup.

The lightest of all dogs is the toy poodle. The weight of this breed is seldom more than twelve pounds, and specimens have been bred weighing only three pounds.

LEAD RETAINED BY NEWCASTLE IN FIRST DIVISION

Defeats Aston Villa at Villa Park on Saturday.

LONDON GROUPED

Sunderland Brackets With Burnley as Runners-up on Leader.

LONDON, January 18. — Newcastle United retained their lead in the first division by virtue of their victory over Aston Villa at Villa Park. At the same time Sunderland, their near neighbors, took full points from West Bromwich and became bracketed with Burnley as runners-up to Newcastle, for Burnley were able to pick a draw out of their game at Cardiff, no goals being scored in the contest.

All the London clubs are grouped, running seventh, eighth and ninth in the order, Tottenham, Arsenal and West Ham. The "Hammers" were the only one of the trio to succumb, going down before the onlaught of Leicester City. Spurs and Arsenal won away from home.

Walsh of Bristol City, in the third division, created something of a sensation in the city's match against Gillingham when he recorded six of Bristol's nine goals against four in return. The total of thirteen goals in this match is the season's highest aggregate.

In the second division the feature game was at Middlesboro, where Chelsea held the home team to a scoreless tie. The game did not affect Middlesboro's leadership of the division but a change took place in the second division, Portsmouth ousting Notts Forest by a fraction in goal average.

Hull City went down to their 4th straight defeat when Wolverhampton got the better of them by 5 to 2.

England Lucky.

England started off their interesting Rugby season by defeating Wales at Twickenham by a score of 11 points to 9. The Englishmen were fortunate as play was largely in favor of the principality. Wales played for a considerable period minus the services of D. Jones, who had to be assisted from the field suffering from injuries. The standings are:

	P.	W.	L.	D.	F.	A.	P.
Ireland	1	1	0	0	8	3	2
England	1	1	0	1	11	9	2
Scotland	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Wales	1	0	0	1	9	11	0
France	1	0	0	1	3	8	0

TWO 17 SCORES IN LOCAL GROUP

Port Hope Beats Bowmanville 17-2—Oshawa Beats Picton.

SCORE 17-4.

PORT HOPE, Jan. 18.—In their rarest form of the season Port Hope Intermediates drubbed Bowmanville here last night 17 to 2. The ice was fast and for the full sixty minutes the Ontarios skated and checked the Bowmanville team to a standstill. From the outset the locals were right in on top of Colwell in the Bowmanville net, but it was not until about five minutes of play had gone by that K. Ware scored on a pass from A. Hills. From this point out the Ontarios literally went wild and the period ended with the locals leading 6 to 0.

The second session saw the two teams a little more evenly matched but even at that the Ontarios bulged the twine twice. Crossery scored Bowmanville's first on a pass from Moise. The third period was a walkover for the homsters and before the final bell had hung up an additional eight goals to make the score 17 to 2, Moise getting a nice goal in the last few minutes of play. Line-up:

Bowmanville — Goal, Colwell; defenn, Hooper and Densem; centre, Moise; wings, Crossery and Luxton; subs, Hircock, Rorobeck and McMullen.

Port Hope—Goal, Micks; defence Crossett and Hutchings; centre, K. Ware; wings, A. Hills and R. Ware; subs, W. Hills and Dawley.

Oshawa 17, Picton 4

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 17. — The Picton hockey team, a new entry for this season in the Intermediate O.H.A. group No. 4, made their bow before Oshawa hockey fandom yesterday evening and were defeated by 17 to 4 with all the players on the Oshawa team getting into the scoring column except Dick Smith, the goalie, and Dick Conlin, a sub. The puck chasers from the Prince Edward County town failed to live up to advance notices, and the fixture was merely a workout for Oshawa for the game on Friday when Peter Brown and his Port Hopers come to the Motor City to try and break the group tie-up.

Oshawa scored first, Lowe bulging the net, and Picton evened it up, Young turning the trick. Rowder, Lott, Rowden and Johnston scored for Oshawa; then Picton added their second, and Lowe again hit the twine for Oshawa, making the score at the end of the first period, Picton 2, Oshawa 6. In the second twenty minutes Oshawa scored seven, Rowden 1, Lowe 3, Johnston 2 and Lott 1, making the total score Picton 2, Oshawa 13. In the final period Picton added two to their score sheet, Young and Myatt being responsible, while Oshawa hung up four, Lott getting 1, Avery 2, and Lowe 1. The penalties for the game were Picton two, Oshawa one. The teams:

Picton — Goal, Croft; defence, Bradburn and Church: centre, Lott; wings, Rowden and Houck; subs, Avery and Conlin.

DELANEY WILL ENTER CONTEST FOR TITLE BOUT

Rickard Reaches Agreement With Manager of Canadian Heavyweight.

TO MEET MAHONEY.

Winner of This Bout Likely To Meet Sharkey in Elimination Series.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. Canadian Press. — Tex Rickard virtually closed negotiations yesterday for a match between Jack Del y and Jim Maloney, the most important yet arranged in the promoter's heavyweight elimination tournament. It is slated for the night of Feb. 18th, at Madison Square gardens.

Rickard came to terms definitely with Pete Reilly, Delaney's manager but still has a few financial wrinkles to iron out before closing with Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager. The promoter expressed confidence, however, that he would satisfy Carroll's demands at a 'ter conference.

Delaney, as a result of to-day's agreement is cast definitel, for a leading role in Rickard's tournament to pick an opponent for Gene Tunney. Jack Dempsey, now is the only outstanding contender not definitely signed but it is understood Rickard will come to an agreement with the former champion within the next few weeks.

The winner of the Delaney-Maloney bout is likely to be pitted against Jack Sharkey, the conqueror of Harry Wills.

BRISTLING BATTLES of BARE FIST DAYS

(MY LIFE STORY)

by Jack McAuliffe

(Copyright 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

After Bull McCarthy's father walked across the ring and socked me on the head with a chair following my knockout of his son, I felt pretty wobbly for a few days.

I was matched to fight Jack Hopper in New York at the N.Y. A.C. clubhouse.

The first round I came out rather slowly and led with a faint-hearted left. I was too lazy with it and Hopper smacked over a terrific right-hander that caught me on the side of the head. That's all I remember. I do not recall any sensation of pain. Bill Madden says I fought automatically and, when the round was over, walked over to a neutral corner and engaged in a lot of dizzy conversation.

There was no ammonia or anything in my corner because we didn't give Hopper any consideration and didn't bring a thing along in preparedness. That's how soft we thought him till he nailed me with that blow to the head.

I went on like that for four rounds and then I thought I was lying, as in a dream, on my dressing-room table. I heard voices but could not make out where they were coming from. I heard a series of yells as if I were standing outside a ball park and a big game was on. The mental fog lifted a little and I saw a man hardly visible walking down a long road toward me. He kept getting larger and larger. Finally the haze lifted and he loomed right up in front of me. I saw it was Hopper and wondered what he was doing there. Then I looked down at my gloved hands. They were jabbing in and out. I looked at my feet. They were sliding back and forth.

For four rounds I had been doing that and I can't remember a single round after that first opening punch!

I went back to the corner and asked Madden who was winning. He said I had held my own but had better step out if I wanted to win the decision on points. From then on I was O.K. and defeated Hopper handily.

But to this day that fight to me lasted only six rounds, although it went ten I cannot remember four of them!

NOTE: In the next chapter McAuliffe tells how he met Hopper in a return fight one freezing night before a select crowd of New York swells and knocked out the man who almost paralyzed his brain with one punch.

THE SEMINOLES.

This was the tribe that greeted old Ponce de Leon when he reached the glorious Florida coast in search of the fountain of youth. Their descendants still linger in the everglades, primitive still, but the Coast line is one to challenge modern imagination.

Fringed with wonderful resorts, with magnificent hotels, broad, palm-flanked boulevards, glorious motor roads ,the Florida coast attracts its thousansd of vacation seekers each thousands of vacation seekers each winter.

The warm sun is now shining on Florida's silver beaches, and bathing, boating, golf, tarpon fishing and other summer sports are in full swing.

This lovely land of orange groves, and sunshine, is easy of access from Ontario, as modern railway journeys go. Canadian National trains furnish direct connections with lines to Florida.

LEGION NOTES

A special meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion was held at headquarters last night when Comrade Col. Ackerman presided over one of the largest meetings held since the re-organization in October last.

A considerable amount of routine business was transacted, the report of the activities of the social committee for the month of December was submitted by the chairman, Comrade N. E. Crowe, the records as submitted by him showed a record never before equalled in the annals of the branch. The Vice-President, Comrade J. Abraham, submitted his report for the relief activities for the month, showing a distribution of $126.80 given out to needy cases.

The chairman of the House Committee, R. E. Layfield, submitted his report dealing with the installation of the new steam heating plant and various alterations made to the building, which has made things much more cheery and comfortable for the members, the efforts made in this direction by the chairman and his committee is now being appreciated by the membership as something worth while.

Comrade Father Costello was unanimously elected as a delegate to the National Convention, which will be held at Winnipeg, on Monday, January 24th.

A resolution was passed to be sent to Mrs. Young, the mother of the young Canadian who brought such a signal honor to Canada by defeating the world's long distance swimmers in the Catalina Channel swim.

The membership is steadily increasing, and further efforts will be made to make the branch the strongest in the Province by the time that the Provincial Convention is held here this coming summer.

OLD MAN FOUND DEAD IN HOUSE

Inquiry Ordered Into Death of John York, 70, at Pleona.

LIVED ALONE.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 18. Canadian Press. — T. J. Rigney, Crown Attorney, was notified this afternoon that a man named John York, aged 70 years, had been found dead this forenoon at his home a few miles north of Plevna.

Mr. Rigney has ordered an investigation, although from reports received in the city it is believed that the man died a natural death.

Deceased was a bachelor and lived alone; for many years he was engaged as a school teacher. When he did not put in an appearance around the village this morning the neighbors became alarmed and on breaking into the house found him dead.

IN MEMORIAM.

GRAHAM.—In loving memory of Mrs. Robert M. Graham, who passed away one year ago to-day, Jan. 19th, 1926:

Sad and sudden was the call.
Of one so dearly loved by all,
The blow was hard the shock severe
We little thought her death so near.
Forget her, no we never will,
For in God's care she liveth still.
—Loving Sister and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Vera Maude Manley, who died January 18, 1926.

Quickly and quietly came the call,
Her sudden death surprised us all,
Dearer to memory, no words can tell
The loss of a daughter we loved so well.

Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But there still is left the heartache
That the smile hides all the while.
—Inserted by Mother (Mrs. Delong) and family.

IN MEMORIAM

MANLEY — In loving memory of Maud Delong, beloved wife of Wesley Manley, who died January 18th, 1926.

Rapid and swiftly the moments glide,
It's just a year to-day
since dear Maud died.
She's gone from this world of darkness
To her cloudless home above,
To see her loving father,
Whom she so dearly loved.

Quickly and suddenly came the call,
Her sudden death surprised us all,
But only those who loved her can tell
The sorrow of not saying the last farewell.

—Sadly missed by Husband and daughter.

Colonel Henry Cockshutt Tendered Banquet By Ontario Citizens

Coliseum Thronged At Dinner in Honor Of Retiring Governor

Hon. Henry Cockshutt Proclaims His Faith in the Future of Canada—Notables of Province Speak Glowingly of His Record.

TRIBUTE BY NEW GOVERNOR TO PREDECESSOR IN OFFICE

Recipient Much Touched By Tokens of Affection When Thousands of Citizens Unite To Do Him Honor.

(By Examiner Staff Reporter.)

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—The vast representative gathering of the people of Ontario at the complimentary banquet tendered to the retiring Lieutenant-Governor, Colonel Henry Cockshutt, at the Royal Coliseum here last night will ever remain memorable in the history of the Province.

From all parts of Ontario delegates were present, bringing with them the sentiments of those they represented.

Two thousand guests attended the banquet and by 8.30 p.m. an additional four thousand people had taxed the seating space in the immense building almost to capacity.

Peterborough was officially represented at the function by His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway. Delegates from various organizations in the city and district were present as follows: G. A. Gillespie, President of the Chamber of Commerce; F. D. Kerr, K.C., Honorary Vice-President of the Trent Waterway Development Association; Dr. J. J. Craig, Past President, and the Rev. J. D. Paterson of the Kiwanis Club; Alderman Roland Denne, President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition; Ross L. Dobbin, Peterborough Branch of the Engineer Institute of Canada; Venerable Archdeacon J. C. Davidson; E. A. Peck, M.P.; W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.; Herbert Bradburn; James Dutton, President of the Ontario Bakers' Association; W. P. Plant and W. M. Fowlds, President of the Trent Waterway Development Association, both of Hastings.

His Grace, Archbishop McNeill of Toronto opened the function with prayer, after which a panoramic picture was taken.

In his opening remarks the chairman, Mr. Wilson, paid tribute to the work accomplished by J. M. McIntosh and A. M. Irwin, on whom, he said, the brunt of the work in connection with the banquet had fallen.

As the guests filed in to the head table, preceded by the Lieutenant-Governor and his aide, the entire assembly rose as one man, greeting Colonel Cockshutt with an enthusiasm that left nothing to be desired.

Formal Address

Mr. Wilson, the chairman, read the following address which was presented to Colonel Cockshutt,

To Colonel Henry Cockshutt, LL.D.,

Sir.—On behalf of the people of Ontario, I have the honor to convey to you an expression of their appreciation of the manner in which you have discharged your duties as Lieutenant-Governor of this Province.

As the representative of His Majesty, the King, you have faithfully followed his illustrious example in taking a kindly interest in the welfare of all those in the territory over which you have presided, he dignity of the Crown has been well maintained during your tenure of office, and our deep and abiding love for the Royal Family and British connection has been strengthened by your interpretation of the functions of a Lieutenant-Governor.

We are proudly conscious of the fact that you were born in Ontario and that your family were prominent pioneers of this Province.

For you, personaly, the people of Ontario have a deep affection and we are happy in the knowledge that, though we lose you as Lieutenant-Governor, we shall retain you as a fellow citizen and a friend.

This meeting makes history. From all parts of Ontario, these delegates have assembled, in your honor, bringing with them from farm, village, town and city the sentiments of the thousands whom they represent.

In their name, I extend to you

Child Saved From Disaster Left By Mother In Theatre

QUEBEC, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press)—The Laurier Theatre tragedy of Jan. 8 in Montreal did not shake the nerve of at least one mother whose child was there, it was brought out when the representatives of the international Labor bodies of the Province interviewed the Government. Henri Morin of the Carmen's Union, Montreal, told that a woman whose child was saved miraculously immediately took the child to another theatre and left it there alone for two hours.

EMPRESS DIES EARLY TO-DAY

Charlotte of Mexico Had Been Insane Since Assassination of Husband.

SIXTY YEARS AGO.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press)—Charlotte, once empress of Mexico as wife of Emperor Maximilian, died at her chateau near Brussels at seven this morning. Thus ended one of the most tragic careers in European history, for her mind had been clouded ever since she heard of the death of her husband at Queretaro, Mexico, in 1867.

Several times in the last few years her strong constitution enabled Charlotte to withstand serious illness, but when last Saturday she was stricken with a severe attack of influenza the physicians took into account her advanced age (she was 86) and held out little hope of recovery.

At times over the week end she seemed to improve; then on Tuesday morning pneumonia developed. There was a hurried consultation of physicians and Charlotte's nephew, King Albert, and Queen Elizabeth, and the others of the royal family, were summoned to the sick room. They were at the bedside when she died peacefully.

Through the ex-Empress' illness, in fact through the years of her retirement, she had a constant attendant in Baron Auguste Goffinet, who was a close friend of her brother—King Leopold of Belgium. Baron Auguste, knowing that the Empress was soon to die, spoke wistfully last night of his relations with the Belgian royal house, of the beauty and charm of Charlotte as a girl, before she married the Austrian Archduke, Maximilian.

"It is my sad privilege," he said, "to bury the royal family. Leopold was right when he told me years ago "the Empress Charlotte is to bury us all, except yourself."

The Baron, as administrator of Empress Charlotte's property, added that there was no truth in the reports of her great fortune.

THE WEATHER.

For several days the official probs. have promised decidedly cold weather for to-day, but apparently the cold wave has passed eastward to the far north of us, through Northern Ontario. At noon to-day the temperature was up to 37 degrees, with a light rain. A year ago to-day there was rain, and a year ago yesterday there was an especially heavy rain, when almost an inch fell, and many cellars had water in them. Two years ago to-day, the thermometer was down to 26 degrees below zero, the coldest day of that winter. —W. P.

GUEST OF HONOR.

HOSPITAL HAS GROWN STEADILY IN RECENT YEARS

Largest Number of Patients in History of Nicholls Hospital.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Need of Extensions Discussed By Board—Recommended By Inspector.

The annual meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Board was held in the Board rooms of the Dominion Bank, on Monday. Those present were Vincent Eastwood, B. F. Ackerman, H. J. McCannon, Thomas Brown, L. Dobbin, Dr. J. M. McCulloch, Robt. Fair and O. A. Matchett.

Mr. Eastwood was elected chairman and the secretary-treasurer, John Crane, presented his report of the receipts and expenditures, and the balance sheet for the statutory year ending September 30th, 1926, which after discussion, was referred to the city auditor.

The report was as follows:

Receipts.

Balance forward	$10,317.54
Pay patients	53,478.14
City of Peterboro	2,529.67
Income from endowment	12,768.16

Miscellaneous	1,063.05
Salaries and wages	23,030.34
Expenditure re Nurses' home	18,103.40
	$86,292.42
Balance	1,857.85
	$88,150.27

Balance Sheet.

Cash on hand	$ 1,857.85
Accounts due	2,500.00
Inventory, supplies	3,800.00
Endowment	220,000.00
Plant and Equipment	40,286.49
Land and Buildings	114,170.70
	$382,615.04
Revenue and Ex.	$ 1,857.85
Assets	380,757.19
	$382,615.04

In the consideration of the statement as placed before the meeting, Mr. Eastwood referred to the importance of the figures, and the steady growth of the hospital which, in point of patients treated, was the largest in its history. In the recent government inspection of the hospital the Department impressed the fact upon the Board that more adequate provision should be made for the obstetrical department and for children, and it appears that the Hospital authorities will need to adopt a policy of expansion to take care of these requirements.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, resulting as follows:

Richard Hall, Chairman.

W. H. Hill, Honorary Secretary.

Supervision Committee, Robert Fair, chairman, V. Eastwood and Thomas Brown.

Finance Committee, L. G. Dobbin, (chairman), H. J. McCannon, O. A. Matchett.

Property Committee, B. F. Ackerman, (chairman), W. Langford and E. B. Fowler.

The Chairman and Hon. Secretary are ex-officio members of all committees.

Visiting Committees.

January and July: Messrs. E. A. Peck, R. Fair and the Mayor.

February and August: Messrs Thos Brown and R. J. Kidd.

March and September: Messrs H. J. McCannan, V. Eastwood and O. S. Matchett.

April and October: Messrs. W. H. Hill and Dr. J. M. McCulloch.

May and November: Messrs. B. F. Ackerman and W. Langford.

June and December: Messrs. E. B. Fowler and L. Dobbin.

NURSES GATHER FROM DISTRICT FOR CONVENTION

Registered Nurses Hold Annual Meeting and Election of Officers.

FULL PROGRAMME.

Addresses and Demonstrations Given By Doctors and Nurses.

The members of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario in District Number Six held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon and evening in the Nurses' Residence at Nicholls Hospital. Several members were present from out of town, and there was a good representation of city nurses, the attendance totalling between forty and fifty. Prior to the election of new officers for the year, the past president, Miss F. Dixon, presided, announcing as a new policy for the forthcoming year the election of the three principal officers from the same town or city, to facilitate the business of the organization. In the evening, an enjoyable music programme, in charge of Miss Lillian Simons, was rendered, and tea was served by the Alumnae of Nicholls Hospital, at the conclusion of the afternoon session. Addresses by Dr. N. H. Sutton also featured the afternoon and evening meetings.

The afternoon session opened with the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting and the report for the year, by the secretary, Miss M. Tate of Belleville, who recorded the balance in the treasury of $117.75. Miss Dixon, speaking of the youth of the organization, the new district system having been adopted in March last, moved that the expenses of the secretary to the two meetings, in Port Hope and Peterboro, be paid. This motion carried.

Expressions of regret at being unable to be present were read from Miss Ethel E. Reid, superintendent of the Lindsay Hospital.

Miss Dixon, in a brief address, spoke mainly of the necessity of the nurses belonging to the district organizations of the Association, also urging on them the remembrance of annual registration, which has been made compulsory for all graduate nurses. Explanation was also made of the method of attaining membership in the Registered Nurses' Association, annual registration with the Department being a separate matter from membership in this society. Sixty-five members are now enrolled in District Number Six, covering seven counties.

Red Cross Outposts.

A very interesting feature of the afternoon session was a brief summary of her work in one of the Red Cross outpost hospitals, given by Miss E. Knaggs of Wilberforce, who was present at the meeting. Miss Knaggs gave some idea of the Red Cross activities in this line, in the following figures: In the province, the society has 17 outpost hospitals, with 46 nurses. In the past year, 1709 patients were admitted to these hospitals and 2360 visits were made to homes and over 3000 children looked after in schools.

In Wilberforce, which is situated in the County of Haliburton, the nearest doctor to the Red Cross outpost is twenty-two miles away. Periodical visits are made by the medical man, in order to remove diseased tonsils, and the interest in the proceedings manifested by the children is intense. Sometimes the operations cover all the hours between eleven in the morning and nine o'clock at night. In the past year, in this hospital, the nurse had 12 patients, with 18 operations. In 11 schools visited, 155 children were examined, 40 having decayed teeth. 30 with diseased tonsils, and 40 with defective hearing. Children underweight numbered 55 and 8 had hearts needing attention. A visiting dentist comes once a month to look after the children's teeth. In this hospital, 286 treatments were given in the year, and 398 treatments in homes. The nurse travelled about 2,000 miles. The brief and interesting summary of her work given by Miss Knaggs was listened to with careful attention by the members present.

Whiskey Denatured With Washing Soda No Good Says Husband Answering Wife's Petition For Divorce

LONG ISLAND CITY, N.Y., Jan. 19 (United News)—The first time he found that his wife had denatured his whiskey it was a great shock to Edward Svihovec, one of the best tombstone carvers in the country. He has asked the supreme court for a ruling on the question. Mrs. Svihovec has sued for divorce. She alleged that she had put up with his artistic temperament since 1892, which she considers long enough. The husband filed an answer. "I do not think it is her province to denature whiskey which I drank occasionally," he maintained.

His spouse's method of making liquids unfit for beverage purposes, he declared, was to add a generous portion of washing soda.

FREIGHT RATES HEARING BEFORE RAILWAY BOARD

British Firms Undersell Canadian Manufacturers if Rebate Allowed.

AFFECT BUSINESS.

Evidence Given Concerning Shipping of Automobiles By Water Route.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Evidence was submitted at yesterday afternoon's session of the general freight rates hearing before the Board of Railway Commissioners that, by allowing a rebate on goods to Canadian customers in British Columbia, British firms were underselling Canadian manufacturers in Eastern Canada who had to contend with existing transcontinental freight rates. Shippers of steel, oil cloth, and linoleum, cordage, tinware, cotton fabrics and automobiles were examined by the Board on conditions, in their respective lines as affected by the transportation charges.

Geo. Shephard, sales manager for the Dominion Oil Cloth and Linoleum Co., of Montreal, declared that the cancellation of the transcontinental freight rates would seriously affect the business of this firm, their greatest competitors were in Great Britain who allowed a rebate to Canadian customers in Vancouver and Victoria which more than offset the transportation charges. Their business in British Columbia was about a quarter of a million dollars or 4 per cent. of their total output. Witness declared that there was more British floor cloth and linoleum in Victoria and Vancouver than in all the rest of the Dominion.

James Mayor, representing the Macdonald Manufacturing Co., Toronto, testified to the experience of his firm in shipping tinware to British Columbia. The rates were $1.51 1-2 to $1.45 per cwt. as against $1.00 from New York and

MISSION WOMEN LEAVE FOOCHOW

Lack of Discipline Among Troops Causes Departure For Manila.

TROUBLE AT AMOY.

FOOCHOW, China, Jan. 19. —(Canadian Press.)—Although promised protection by the authorities, 59 American missionary women and children have left this port for Manila, owing to the lack of discipline among troops and the circulation of sinister rumors.

At Amoy the tide of anti-Christian feeling is reported to be rising and trouble is brewing. Propagandists are exerting every means to incite the populace to an uprising. The situation is discouraging.

The first submarine used in warfare was the Nautilus, built by Robert Fulton in 1800 and successfully employed by Napoleon.

Woman Dies Smiling Believing Kiddies Saved

KINGSPORT, Tenn., Jan. 19.— (United News.)— Just before she died from burns received when she ran into a flaming house to save her two children, Mrs. J. F. Richards, 26, smiled.

"They will live," she said. "That is enough for me." But James, 3, and Laura Jeanette, 6, were already dead from their injuries. Their father, now the sole survivor of the family, had deceived his wife to ease her last moments.

King Would Popularize Violets For Buttonholes

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(United News.)—King George, who several years ago failed in an attempt to popularize trousers creased down the sides instead of the front and back, is trying to create another fashion. This time it is a violet buttonhole. The flowers are grown, winter and summer, on his country estate at Sandringham, and the King wears a small bunch of them on his coat lapel, held in place by a small strip of elastic sewn on the underside just below the butotnhole. The King does not always wear violets, but switches sometimes to a white carnation.

Liberal Member Given Tight Run in Some Parts of Riding.

1,000 MAJORITY.

ANTIGONISH, N. S., Jan. 19 (Canadian Press)—At 2:40 the election was conceded of William Duff, former Liberal member for Lunenburg-Queens, to succeed the late Hon. J. G. Douglas as Federal member for the constituency of Antigonish-Guysboro. His majority at that time was in the vicinity of 1,000. The two counties, traditionally Liberal, returned Mr. Douglas, the Conservative candidate, in the last general election, with a majority of less than 150 votes. Mr. Duff defeated his opponent, Neil R. McArthur (Conservative) of Glace Bay, in both Antigonish and Guysboro, but Mr. McArthur gave Mr. Duff a close run in Antigonish.

SCHOOL BOARD TO DISCUSS EXTENSION TO COLLEGIATE AT MEETING WITH COUNCIL

Cracked Cylinder Causes Delay On Homeward Trip

Peterborough's delegation to the Cockshutt banquet in Toronto last night arrived in the Canadian Pacific Railway Station at 4.35 this morning after being five hours and 15 minutes on the road.

The train, which was due to arrive at 1.50, stalled near Myrtle, and remained there for a considerable time until the engine belonging to a mixed train that was following was commandeered to bring the wanderers home.

The cause of the delay was said to be a cracked cylinder head in the engine.

CAROL'S RETURN ALMOST SURE

Government of Rumania Convinced of Necessity of Recalling Him.

VICTORY FOR QUEEN.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 19. —(Canadian Press.)— Queen Marie appears to have been victorious in her long struggle for the rehabilitation of her wayward son, Carol. Persistent reports from sources which are far from negligible, together with veiled allusions in newspapers, all tend to show the Government has been convinced that the only way to clear the atmosphere, overcast since Carol renounced his right to the throne, is to recall him.

Premier Averescu and members of the cabinet are understood to have practically decided to consent to a reconciliation with Carol, subject to certain conditions, in order to obtain necessary support to combat the opposition. In this connection the party of the Bratiano Brothers, Ionel and Vintilla, who for years have wielded a powerful influence in Rumania, and the party of Premier Averescu are said to be negotiating for a fusion with the National Peasants' Party, which supports Carol, for the formation of a solid block.

Former Minister of Militia Opens George Young Fund With $5,000.

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—Five thousand dollars was laid out to start a fund for George Young, winner of the San Pedro channel swim, by Sir Edward Kemp, former Minister of Militia, here to-day.

"There seems to be a lot of talk about what George Young should do," Sir Edward said. "We don't know whether Young is to remain here or we are to let the United States have him. But what have we to do with it unless we put up some money?" Sir Edward called on Hon. W. H. Price, member of the Commission, which has offered to "look after" Young, and left his cheque for $5,000 and the suggestion that a home be bought for George and his mother.

Wedding Ring Found In Feather Pillow

KINGSTON, Jan. 19. — While making her bed yesterday, Mrs. D. Cornish, 129 Stephen street, found something hard in one of the pillows, and on investigation found a wedding ring. Mrs. Cornish recalls that the feathers were purchased at the Kingston Fair seven years ago, and it is believed that some lady plucked the fowl, whose feathers are now filling the pillow and in the process her wedding ring slipped off.

Mrs. Cornish is now looking for the owner of the ring.

Matter Considered at Special Meeting—Teachers To Study Plans.

MAY CHANGE FEES.

Committee Appointed To Consider Payments For Non-Resident Pupils.

The City Council will be asked to meet the Board of Education at an informal meeting at the beginning of February in order to discuss the proposed addition to the Collegiate Institute. This was the decision of the board at a special meeting held last night. The plans, as revised, will be submitted to the teachers of the Collegiate Institute for any suggestions they might have.

Two committees were struck at last night's meeting. The whole board, with Trustee E. R. Wilson as chairman, comprises the Building Committee, while Trustees McNabb, Craig, Strickland and McKone form a committee to take up the matter of revising the fees charged non-resident pupils at the public schools.

W. R. Turner introduced the matter of Collegiate extension with a short resume of the activities of the Building Committee appointed by last year's board, in considering the plans submitted and making arrangements with the architects. He suggested getting information from the teaching staff, believing that helpful suggestions might be brought out at a conference between teachers and architect. Dr. Yelland asked if there was any estimate as to the increase in attendance likely if the Adolescent Act were extended to force children under 18 to attend school. It was felt by those present that such a step would not be taken, while a change back to the former limit of 14 would make very little difference, as most parents now want to keep the children in school as long as possible.

125 From County.

Mr. Turner was asked by Mr. McKone what proportion would be collectable from the county. He said that comparisons with the percentage of outside pupils admitted several years ago led to the belief that there would be about 125 if they were admitted freely now. Mr. Turner asked that Mr. Blackwell be definitely engaged as architect in order that he might go to Toronto and get definite information about grants from the Province.

Chairman E. B. Fowler introduced the matter of increasing the fees charged non-resident pupils in the public schools. They now pay six times the fee charged city pupils. The latter pay from five to twenty cents a month, which pays for their supplies, and outside pupils pay from 30 cents to $1.20 a month. It costs the city about $47.65 a year for each pupil. There are at present about 140 pupils from outside the city.

It was asked by Mr. Wilson if there was any regulation fixing the amount chargeable, and Mr. Mowat said that as far as he could find out there was not. He said it had been decided when the fees were fixed that admission should be tentative, and dependent upon the accommodation. There was some overcrowding at the King Edward School, but no saving in teachers would be made by excluding from outside those at present in attendance. There would be, however, fewer pupils per teacher, with resultant higher efficiency.

May Ask Municipalities.

Mr. McKone asked if the municipalities would be liable for the higher fee, which would be burdensome on families with several children. It was thought that nothing could be collected over the school taxes paid by the property of these families in the township, but refusal to admit these children would make it necessary for the townships to increase their facilities, particularly in North Monaghan. A committee was formed to go into the matter, and will, if necessary, interview the township councils. The secretary read letters he had received from several other cities, giving the fees charged non-resident pupils as follows, admission in every case being contingent upon accommodation being available: Kitchener, $1.00 a month, plus text book fees; St. Catharines, $2.50 a month; Brantford, $1.00 a month; and Hamilton, $3.00 a month.

Vaccination of Teachers.

A letter was read from the school health officer, Dr. A. W. MacPherson, advising that the teachers should be vaccinated. He referred to a case of a child who had attended school for a week while suffering from small pox, no rash

Cockshutt Banquet Committee.

Toast of the Evening.

The Right Honorable Sir William Mulock, K.C.M.G.,P.C., Chief Justice of Ontario, in proposing a toast to the honored guests, said:

"When listening to certain of the chairman's observations it occurred to me as doubtless it did to you, that this meeting was being held for the sole purpose of doing honor to one of our foremost citizens and not in order to place a halo around the head of an old judge, now rapidly becoming a century plant.

"As conscience doth make cowards of us all, I would announce for the information of all future chairmen, and future speakers, at gatherings where I may be taking a part, that I no longer preside at criminal trials, and that, therefore, they may feel perfectly safe in treating my shortcomings as they deserve and in withholding from me flowers of commendation.

"Why I should be turned loose upon this audience is for the committee to explain, and all that I can do by way of compensation for their mistake in the choice of a speaker is to be brief, and that I promise you.

"The occasion which has brought together to-night this vast and representative gathering of the people of Ontario will ever remain memorable in the history of our province, for never before in Ontario has there been such a spontaneous and conclusive proof of the people's gratitude towards a public servant because of public services well and faithfully performed.

"Personally I deem it a very high honor to be permitted to join in proposing the toast of Colonel Cockshutt.

"To do justice to it is not a one-man job, and I therefore rejoice to observe from the toast list that the premier of this province is to co-operate with me, and it will be for him to pull the laboring oar.

"The history of a king cannot be wholly separated from that of his kingdom, nor can the career of Col. Cockshutt be dealt with without some reference to the province over whose affairs he has presided for so many years.

"I have observed that Mr. Ferguson, the Premier of this province, avails himself of all possible opportunities to broadcast to the world, in more or less detail, the vast extent of the resources of this province, and were I to follow his example I should proceed to treat the subject statistically, and perhaps make you wish that either you or I had never come to the meeting. But I will depart from the beaten path and merely say, in the language of the youth of our colleges, that Ontario is 'all right,' unless it may be when it comes under government control it should go, as Mr. Mantelini calls it, 'to the demnition bow-wows.' Should that happen it may be, calamity of calamities, that the governors of Ontario and Quebec, will frequently remind each other of that well known historic and suggestive sentiment which is said to have ever promoted most convival relations between the governors of North Carolina and South Carolina. And now having I trust shown proper respect to the Premier's province, I address myself to the occasion of this meeting—the place which Henry Cockshutt enjoys in the hearts of the people of Ontario.

"Whoever truly loves his country, loves those who serve it well, and thus it is that all Ontario loves Henry Cockshutt. Emerging a young man from private life, he had the courage to undertake the duties of a high office—that of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, duties which until then it was considered none but a veteran in the public service could adequately discharge. With his whole soul he threw himself into the work. It is now ended, and this vast meeting to do him honor is the verdict of the people of Ontario that he proved worthy of the great trust reposed in him.

"His kindliness of heart and charm of manner have endeared him to all of us, and his lofty aims and splendid accomplishments in the public interest have exalted and dignified the high office of Lieutenant-Governor.

"His public career has been unique.

"To-day in his ear manhood, because of his splendid public services, he has won those prizes, public confidence, public respect, public affection, public gratitude which come to few, and even to those few only in the evening of their days. Truly it may be said that as Lieutenant Governor he has adorned the office, has done honor to his country, and has crowned himself with unfading laurels.

"The recollection of his career will remain a priceless heritage to his country and an inspiration to those of to-day and of the days to come.

"Verily the country is indeed rich which is entitled to claim him as its citizen, and I have the great honor of asking you to join with me in drinking to the health of Henry Cockshutt."

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson

When the Hon. Mr. Ferguson rose to speak to the toast to the Lieutenant-Governor he was received by repeated cheers and outbursts of applause lasting for several minutes.

"It is indeed a great privilege to be enabled to play a part in this magnificent demonstration," declared the Hon. Mr. Ferguson.

"In speaking to you tonight I speak, not as the Prime Minister of Ontario, nor as the leader of the greatest government the Province has ever had, but as one citizen speaking to his fellow citizens. I feel I can make whatever observations I may, better, without being bound by the shackles of officialdom.

The office of Lieutenant-Governor is of great importance and is one of peculiar relationship to the government, as he is bound to accept the government's advice. I may say that we have not had any difficulties with the retiring Lieutenant-Governor." (Laughter and applause).

"The law provides that if a Lieutenant is absent from the Province, the Chief Justice will act in his stead. He was absent, and I inevitably was thrown into contact with the Chief Justice," he said, indicating Sir William Mulock. He, thinking years meant wisdom, undertook to run the Province. (Cheers and laughter).

"By a little persuasion and tact the Province was saved from a great disaster," the Premier declared; the sally bringing a fresh outburst of laughter from his listeners.

The office of Lieutenant-Governor is one of great dignity and carries with it many responsibilities. It is not a sinecure as some people think, but is a real part of the organization under which we carry on.

"He is the direct representative of the Crown, and it is necessary that he should maintain dignity and educate the public mind to the responsible part he plays in maintaining our institutions. Colonel Cockshutt, he declared, "has performed his duties in a manner unexcelled by any Governor we ever had.

"It has always appealed to me that there is no reason why citizens of this great Province should not have the right to receive fitting honors at the hand of His Majesty, and I venture to say there would be complete unanimity among the citizens if the Lieutenant-Governors of the Province were permitted to receive these honors.

"Other parts of the Empire have always felt that their people are glad to accept the gracious recognition of His Majesty, and why should we continue to occupy the position that causes so much discussion in every other part of the Empire.

"I feel as a Canadian that we should permit the Crown to honor men who have done so much for this great Dominion of ours.

"I have ben honored with a close

"I have been honored with a close lic duties, and I know how widespread his activities have been—no public function has been too small for him to attend.

"He has shown himself a great Canadian, and has erected a monument more lasting than that of human workmanship.

"The Province of Ontario, represented as it is by a sane and sensible government (laughter), feels that the highest honor is none too great for a man that has played the part he has.

"He has taken an active interest in various institutions of learning, and as a mark of appreciation for his work in that respect I have asked him to become a Governor of the University of Toronto. I feel sure that the contribution Colonel Cockshutt will make in this cause will be as great as that he made in the interests of the public service."

The Lieutenant-Governor.

"If my heart could but speak from that fullness of emotion with which it is charged, the sentiments it would utter might constitute a fitting answer to the enthusiasm and spontaniety of the reception you have just accorded me," declared Colonel Cockshutt, replying to the toast. "But my heart can only feel—it cannot speak—and the throng of impulses within it now clamoring for expression are destined to find poor service, I am afraid, in lips that sadly falter.

"Frankly, I find myself subdued by the immensity of this gathering. The magnificence of its staging impresses me. And being but human, I admit to being almost completely overcome by that warmth of feeling towards me that is so unmistakably demonstrated by your words and actions here this evening.

"And you will credit me with sincerity, I hope, when I say that I fail to understand wherein I have deserved from you so striking a tribute of appreciation. Rather, from my point of view, is the balance of obligation all the other way. In the high office it has been my privilege to occupy, I have been most signally honored at your hands. Coming from my native city of Brantford with my family to Government House, almost as complete strangers, everywhere the good people of Ontario promptly opened their homes and hearts to us, and made us their friends. Speaking for Mrs. Cockshutt and my daughters, as well as for myself, I can truthfully say that we all count ourselves rich beyond computation in the many new and lasting friendships that residence in Government House has enabled us to form, and in the host of delightful recollections associated therewith that will be a joy and a comfort to us as long as we live.

"For the many privileges thus enjoyed, and for countless kindnesses received, I shall always consider myself very deeply in debt to you and to the public you represent. True, in my own maladroit manner, and within the limitations prescribed by tradition, I have tried to discharge some small portion of my obligation to you for these favors. In accepting the honors of an office usually associated in the public mind with duties of a purely formal character, I permitted myself to indulge a desire to be useful, knowing that I must fail in any attempt to be ornamental. All of us, as we outgrow the acquisitiveness of youth, find our greatest happiness in being of service to others, and with me the particular bent which that zeal for service has taken has been the fostering of a better feeling, based upon clearer mutual understandings, among the people of divers classes, divers occupations, divers races and divers religions, who comprise this glorious Province, and in a broader sense this mighty Dominion. It is not for me to say whether my feeble efforts in that direction have been productive of good, but in the fact that they have at least been appreciated I find myself abundantly rewarded for any expenditure of time or of thought that they have cost me.

"You have alluded to the friendly interest which has been manifested between the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario. The movement to draw them closer has many admirable points, and it is well that we should mutually foster good-will and friendly relations.

"The St. Lawrence route is the basic line of communication for both Provinces, and to the north of this we have our mineral and timber wealth besides many great water powers, the early development of which can best be achieved by a co-operative friendly effort. Beyond all this lie the great waters of Hudson Bay with all its tributaries, and whose future wealth and development will be best worked out by provincial co-operation for the general good of all.

"There is something else also that lies near the hearts of all of us which needs constant and careful cultivation. It is the heritage of race—whether we be French or British, let our hearts reflect the pride we have in our own Dominion and do all we can to promote the welfare, education and general upbuilding of our national life.

"For, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I love this country of ours. The welfare and happiness of its people always has been and always will be very dear to me. You who know me will agree that ordinarily I am not one who is given either to boasting of patriotism or to parading of tenderer feelings. Yet there are occasions when it befits us all publicly to state our mind, and there in matters mundane you have mine. I am proud to be a citizen of Canada. I am proud of her record and achievement, proud of her institutions, proud of her resources, and prouder still of her manhood and womanhood. And especially am I thrilled with pride when I reflect upon such matters in terms of this beloved Province — the very heart and centre of Canada's being, the keystone of her arch that stretches from ocean to ocean.

"Your reception of these sentiments indicates very clearly that at heart you are no different from myself, that my faith in Canada is your faith, that the ambitions I cherish for Ontario are the same ambitions that you cherish for her. If I might make bold to hazard a surmise, I would say that in homes from end to end of this Province, thanks to the miracle of radio, there is a vaster audience whose 'Amen' we may also safely take for granted. And therein lies our hope for bigger and better things to come.

"For ours is truly a marvellous heritage. With an area only slightly less than all of France and Germany combined, with a navigable fresh water shoreline of 1,100 miles, of a salt water shoreline of 650 miles more, with a soil and a climate admirably adapted to agricultural pursuits, with forest resources that are the envy of our biggest industrial competitors, with a treasure house of mineral wealth whose proving is already beginning to stagger the imagination, with water powers developed and undeveloped that provide a perpetual bulwark for manufacturing, yet with a population little more than one-fortieth that of the less richly endowed portion of Europe I have just referred to, Ontario surely has within herself the potentialities of a veritable Empire.

"And I am optimistic enough to believe that our children, or at least our children's children, will live to see the day when Ontario will achieve a destiny entitling her to rank as an Empire within an Empire. The foundation for such a development has been well and truly laid by Nature. In the industry, the enterprise and the integrity of her people we all have abiding faith. It only remains for us, who have received this heritage with values enhanced by the labors and sacrifices of our fathers, to consecrate ourselves to the task of seeing that when we pass it on to posterity it will be still further enriched by the contributions we will have made to its development.

"I take it as a happy augury to be able to give voice to these sentiments within the walls of a building that has witnessed some of our most signal triumphs in industry and in art. Here, from year to year, we celebrate our progress in manufacture by an exhibition of specimen products whose high quality and remarkable diversity have made this city and this Province famous. America has seen no finer displays of the products of field and animal husbandry than those that have been staged beneath this roof. And the whole world has heard no choral music that for interpretation, technique and volume has equalled the performances given in this magnificent Coliseum by our own Exhibition chorus.

"The evidence of what we have done is the best assurance of what we are still capable of doing. The heights we have climbed can be made the stepping-stones to heights

Daily, Crowds Desert Drab British Divorce Trails As Emotional Pleas Cease Under the New Press Ban

LONDON, Jan. 19 (A.P.).—British divorce courts are not putting up the melodramatic shows they once did.

The English "sob sisters" and their reportorial "sob brothers" are finding a dreary waste in the 600-odd cases that are scheduled for hearing within the next six months, all because of the new law forbidding the publication of testimony at divorce trials.

The divorce courts are now becoming "dry-as-dust" places. The barristers no longer make impassioned appeals with an eye to the gallery and the crowds of giggling spectators have fallen off appreciably.

There is so much uncertainty about how far the newspapers may go in discussing divorce cases that only the barest mention is made of them in advance of the trial. Consequently, the old court habitues cannot keep track of the cases which are most likely to contain sensational revelations.

The divorce courts, as a result, have a newly acquired drab and serious air. The bewigged judges do not have to control boisterous crowds and the old-time melodrama has become real tragedy, for there is no comic relief.

OLD MASTERS

Oft in the stilly night
Ere slumber's chain has bound me,
Fond memory brings the light
Of other days around me:
The smiles, the tears
Of boyhood's years,
The words of love then spoken,
The eyes that shone
Now dimm'd and gone,
The cheerful hearts now broken!
Thus in the stilly night
Ere slumber's chain has bound me
Sad memory brings the light
Of other days around me.

When I remember all
The friends so link'd together
I've seen around me fall
Like leaves in wintry weather,
I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!
Thus in the stilly night
Ere slumber's chain has bound me,
Sad memory brings the light
Of other days around me.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

A SERIOUS CASE

His pipe is on the mantel-piece,
An old familiar friend
That always brought him sweet release
When day was at an end.
He used to sit beside the fire
When sunset turned to gray
And pull upon his faithful briar
And blow his cares away.

Companion of his fishing trips,
His comrade on the trail,
His mate upon the sailing ships,
His comfort in the gale,
I never thought the day I'd know
His pipe he would decline—
And that is why I'm worried so
About this man of mine.

That's, Doctor, why I'm calling you.
He often doesn't eat,
But always in a day or two

ART MAGAZINES ARE ATTACKED

Woman Declares United States Flooded With Filthy Literature.

DEMANDS CLEAN-UP.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (By Universal Service).—A new onslaught against the nude "Art" magazine was started here to-day by Mrs. William Harrison Cade, chairman of the Law Enforcement Committee of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

She described the magazine photos as "filth," not "art," and urged the city authorities to take some action.

"Why should the city and State expend huge sums of money to build minds and bodies of its individuals and at the same time allow a grave demoralizing influence, such as that wielded by some thirty fake nude 'Art' publications, to flaunt itself before the public?" she asked.

"With these magazines before them, we cannot expect decency on the part of our youth. The ordinary mind cannot defend itself against an onslaught of filth, such as is portrayed in these photographic publications."

NATIVES ABUSED BY DEFENDERS

Soldiers Used Cruel Tactics Against Civilians of North.

BANDIT RAIDS.

FOOCHOW, January 19. Canadian Press. — The Cantonese war machine that rolled over Fukien province in the southerners' campaign to control all China, caused suffering to the civilians, who are still counting their losses.

From the district south of Foo-Chow, which saw the heaviest fighting as Sun Chuan's-Fang's troops resisted the invaders, accounts were received of the virtual depopulation of nearly 100 villages which had contained about 70,000 inhabitants. There the northern troops were billeted while they awaited the southern onslaught and their domineering and cruel tactics caused nearly the whole population to take refuge in neighboring hills or in the city of Foo Chow. The refugees told stories of many summary executions and mutilations of civilians.

In one village the townspeople rose against their northern defenders and joined with bandit groups of the district to attack the soldiers; 60 villagers were killed in a battle in which twenty soldiers also died.

Civilians also suffered heavily in the actual clashes of the rival armies. Men, women and children were killed by the combatants' bullets, many houses were fired and wrecked, and crops were ruined by soldier vandals, when supplies were not readily forth coming.

being visible on exposed parts of his body. Mr. Turner asked what legal right the board had to compel vaccination of either pupils or teachers. He was told that only the City M.O.H. had the power to order such a step.

Dr. Yelland said he thought the board had power to exclude unvaccinated pupils, and that any teacher not vaccinated who contracted the disease should not receive any sick pay, because precautions had not been taken. He also said that teachers not vaccinated should not be allowed to question the advisability of having pupils vaccinated, that being a matter on which they were not sufficiently informed to make comment.

A resolution was passed congratulating Dr. MacPherson, Miss Jory, and Mr. Mowat on the large proportion of the pupils who had been vaccinated, while a letter will be sent to the teachers recommending that they be vaccinated.

Cobham Predicts Flights Around World In One Day

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 18. — Sir Alan Cobham, the famous British aviator, thrilled the members of the Canadian and Rotary Clubs of London yesterday when, in a brilliant address, he visioned the time when aeroplanes will cross the Atlantic overnight, and sky cruisers carrying passengers will ply the air courses at a thousand miles an hour.

He explained that the use of air charges will make possible the operation of aircraft at unprecedented altitudes and at speeds never dreamed of a few years ago. The time is coming, said he, when it will be possible to go across the Atlantic in three hours and around the globe in a day. He claimed that from a defence of the British Empire standpoint aviation should never have been attempted, because when the first plane crossed the English Channel the insularity of England ended.

Three Sailors Buried On Shore Of Lake Point To Three Shiploads Full of Spanish Doubloons

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (By Mayrice Lazar, Universal Service Staff Correspondent).—Three shiploads full of Spanish doubloons lie buried on the shore of Lake Pontchartrain, La., where they were interred in 1800 by Jean Lafitte, buccaneer. The news is embodied in clues advanced by S. S. Flot, a Chicagoan, as to the exact location of the fabulous treasure.

The clues rest on a dirty map, picked up by the grandfather of Flot's wife, Antoine Surle, a fisherman. On the map is the notation: "Where three sailors lie buried in the form of a cross, on the shore of Lake Ponchartrain, rests the richest treasure of Spanish doubloons man ever saw."

"Old Surle," according to Flot's story, "was a fisherman on the lake in the early 1800's, when the waters were surrounded by a wilderness. When Antoine found that map, he took five trusted friends with him to search for the treasure.

"On a little hump in the short of the lagoon the hunters found a jar containing $12,000 in gold. The six men divided it equally. They kept on digging until they found the bodies of the three sailors, wrapped in canvas and buried in the form of a cross.

"Under the bodies of the sailors, they dug into a vault, four feet deep and fourteen feet square, and there they came upon the treasure."

Having imbibed freely during the operations, Flot concludes his story. The men decided to postpone removal of the bullions to another day, and went home to sleep. But they never went back, he says.

ASKS ADJOURNMENT OVER COKE HEARING

Opposition Wish Time To Prepare Briefs For Increased Rates Case.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—A proposal that the Customs duties be increased on coke and coal for coking purposes occupied the Dominion Tariff Advisory Board yesterday. Argument, which was expected to take up at least a whole day, was cut short at lunch adjournment, when witnesses opposed to the increased asked for a long adjournment in which to prepare their briefs. Failure of two coal companies in Nova Scotia, who presented the case for increased duties, to file their briefs when the application was made, was advanced as a reason why adjournment should be granted. The Board ruled that this argument was reasonable and that there will have to be a further hearing before the case can be considered complete. The date of this further hearing was not fixed, but it was intimated that it will not be until after the February siting of the Board.

Incidentally the protest against the lite filing of the brief of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company and the Dominion Coal Company prompted a ruling from the chairman of the Board, Senator the Rt. Hon. George P. Graham, that hereafter applications will not be accepted by the Board unless they are accompanied by a supporting brief. This is to permit all concerned to become acquainted with any argument for revision of the Customs tariff in plenty of time before the hearing of the case. Chairman Graham also ruled that briefs in rebuttal must be filed in good time as well, to prevent a repetition of yesterday's situation, when most of the witnesses stated they were unable to go on with their cases.

Practically no argument in rebuttal of the application of the Nova Scotia coal companies was presented yesterday, but about eight witnesses formally registered opposition. They represented steel companies.

SAYS COMMISSIONS ARE TOO EXPENSIVE

Quebec Premier's Reply To Labor Congress on Theatre Probe.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 19 (Canadian Press) — Premier Taschereau asked the International Labor delegates who interviewed the government yesterday what they thought of a royal commission to investigate the Laurier theatre tragedy in Montreal as had been suggested. He remarked that royal commissions were apt to be expensive, as for example the $75,000 spent in the Blanche Garneau case, but if there was a public demand to that effect the government would not hesitate at the expense.

Alphetus Mathieu said that royal commissions served generally for recriminations Hon. J. L. Perron called attention to the fact that the Montreal City Council had decided to investigate the disaster. The premier said that most of the facts of the disaster seemed clear, mainly that there were children present who should not have been there. The premier also pointed out that the owners and managers of the theatre were now facing charges before the courts, and a royal commission might have the effect of creating prejudice.

J. T. Foster said that the Montreal Trades and Labor Council intended to deal with the matter next Thursday, but did not think a royal commission would be asked for. He did not see the utility of a royal commission.

United States' Government Makes Claim For Alleged Unpaid Taxes.

TAKES PRECEDENCE.

(By Universal Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19. — Income tax lien suits totalling $1,037,721.47, have been filed against Charlie Chaplin through the office of Internal Revenue Collector Welch.

The lien suits, six in number, cover a period of six years, and are based on alleged incorrect tax returns.

According to the information filed by Collector Welch in the United States district court, the separate amounts alleged to be due the government are $134,622.49, for 1918; $31,501.21 for 1919; $576,969.49, for 1921; $71,208.73 for 1922; $89,371.83 for 1923, and $170,048.12 for 1924.

Notices of the lien suits were served at Chaplin's studio, on the two receivers appointed by the Superior Court pending Mrs. Chaplin's divorce action, and at his Beverly Hills residence. No services on Chaplin personally will be necessary, Welch stated.

Federal officials stated that the tax liens made by the government take precedence over all Chaplin's personal and business debts.

NURSES GATHER

followed immediately, resulted as follows: President, Miss M. Tate of Belleville, superintendent of the General Hospital there; Vice-President, Miss R. E. Coulter of Belleville; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss F. A. Fitzgerald of Belleville. These were elected unanimously by the meeting on the recommendation of the convenor of the Nominating Committee, Mrs. E. M. Leeson, superintendent of Nicholls Hospital.

Councillors were elected from the floor, in the following: Miss F. Dixon of Peterborough, Miss Margaret Walsh, superintendent of the Cobourg Hospital; Miss Ethel E. Reid, superintendent of the Lindsay Hospital; Miss E. M. Elliott, superintendent of the Port Hope Hospital; Miss E. Knaggs of Wilberforce, and Miss Helen McGrath of Peterborough.

The representative for the Committee on Nursing Education will be Mrs. E. M. Leeson, Miss M. M. Cox of Belleville will represent the private duty section, and Miss Lillian Simons the section devoted to public health.

Convenors of the Membership and Programme Committee will be appointed by the executive, and members of the Nominating Committee were appointed in Miss M. Walsh of Cobourg (convenor), Mrs. F. Smythe of Bowmanville and Miss R. Bell of Port Hope.

It was decided to re-affirm the former members of the Provincial Executive, as the choice of District Number Six.

Demonstration Given.

Following election of officers, Miss Elleda Walsh, assistant superintendent of Nicholls Hosital, gave an interesting demonstration of hospital work, in a description of the methods used in making butter soup and lactic acid milk and in the use of barley flour, also describing the manner of making various laboratory tests and of giving intraveneous injections.

In the unavoidable absence of Dr. G. S. Cameron, who was scheduled for an address an "Nursing Education," Dr. N. H. Sutton supplied a brief, interesting talk along the same lines. "Like all education, and plans of education," he said, "it is liable to get into a rut wherein the means are emphasized more than the end to be attained."

Answering his own question, "What is a nurse?" Dr. Sutton said: "A nurse is primarily one who has gone through all the trials of the training school, has met certain standards, and is now entitled to write 'R.N.' after her name. But this is not all. Solomon's admonition, 'With all your getting, get wisdom,' applies in a great degree to the nurse and her education. A real nurse is one who has become as proficient as possible in the practical side of her profession and still has the wisdom to acquire knowledge which will stand her in good stead in an emergency, so that she will never have to face a doctor who either says or looks, 'I wish to God I had been called some hours ago.'"

Speaking of the advantage of all training schools being equipped with knowledge of the Provincial Health Acts, along the lines of vaccination and with regard to regulations affecting disinfection, Dr. Sutton went on to say that he regarded with satisfaction the changing attitude on the part of the nurse, who was not so prone in latter days to regard herself as a professional person in the house who required a certain amount of attention, and looked on herself more now as an agent in the benefaction of humanity, to help in saving lives and in lessening suffering and discomfort. "I wonder sometimes if the training school has a grasp of that idea. Many of the young nurses go into the profession with the sole idea of making a living, but, if that were the main object of nursing, then it would be a trade instead of a profession, because a profession recognizes the existence of an ideal higher than mere money-making in the carrying out of work."

"I like a nurse who asks questions and is eager to gain knowledge as to just why certain things are done," said the doctor, "because simply to do things without knowledge as to why they are so done is almost certain to lead to the wrong application of methods at another time. The true inwardness of anything, even to the proper placing of a bandage, is a requisite of the best trained nurse."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Sutton by Miss Dixon and responded to by the meeting in a standing vote.

In the evening, when Miss Tate presided, the musical programme included two pianoforte duetts played by Mrs. F. A. Hodgson and Miss M. McCabe, and a vocal solo by Miss Geraldine Collins, with accompaniment by Miss L. Letellier.

Preventive Medicine.

Dr. Sutton, the scheduled speaker of the evening, gave an outline of the use of "Preventive Medicines," taking as the subject of his discourse the beneficial effects in preventing disease of modern methods carried out in public health work. He advocated the combination of the training school and the public health nurse, with certain time given in the former to active participation in the work of the latter, in order to give the student nurse a thorough knowledge of methods of preventing disease, as carried out in public health work. He also referred to the use of anti-toxin and active immunization against such diseases as scarlet fever, and spoke of the follow-up work done by industrial nurses, in investigating home and hygienic conditions of life among the sick employees in factories, in order to determine the best methods to pursue in treating the patients.

An appreciation of the assistance afforded by all who had taken part in the programme of the sessions was voiced at the conclusion of the meeting.

LONDON UNEASY OVER ACTIONS OF GOVERNMENT

Regarding Attitude Taken Towards British Troubles in China.

GUARD INTERESTS.

Uneasiness Increased By Announcement That Marines To Sail For China.

LONDON, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—Public perplexity over the seeming discrepancy of the extensive naval preparations with the Government's announced policy of conciliation towards China has been increased by the announcement that a thousand marines will sail for China in two Union Castle liners toward the end of January from Southampton.

Official quarters have offered assurances that there is nothing warlike in these movements; that the marines will be used only for purposes of defence, should the necessity unfortunately arise; that the Government is still hopeful of a solution, as the Cantonese Foreign Minister, Eugene Chen, at Hankow is anxious for resumption of business and that the British Government is only doing an elementary duty in being fully prepared.

The Government's view is that prudent care for the protection of its nationals is quite distinct from its political policy regarding China. Were Parliament sitting, doubtless the Ministers would be bombarded with questions; as it is, the reticence of the Ministers only adds to the general apprehension.

Adding to the feeling of uneasiness was the revelation yesterday that press despatches from Hankow during the recent troubles were severely censored; some were suppressed, others changed to conceal the extent of the disorders.

Another Cabinet Council will be held to-day to consider the situation further. The Church Missionary Society received despatches yesterday of a more reassuring character concerning the safety of the missionaries.

Latest advices from Peking represent the Northern forces as still holding out against the Cantonese and are possessing a better military machine, superior to the Cantonese in number, munitions and equipment.

KURDISTAN EMIR AGAIN IN JAIL

Riviera Just as Unkind as America, England and Switzerland.

LONDON, Jan. 19.(By Universal Service, Special Cable Dispatch.)—Alack and alas for the poor Emir of Kurdistan.

Deported from America, England and Switzerland, he has re-appeared on the French Riviera and, as usual, fate has thrown him into prison.

This information was received in London recently in a special dispatch to the Universal and Daily News from Nice.

For six weeks Nice has been intrigued with the startling figure of a Turkish officer carrying a number of medals, including the Legion of Honor, and wearing a fez, which made him a conspicuous figure on the Promenade des Anglais, on the racecourse and the other fashionable places in Nice. He called himself the Emir of Kurdistan and "His Royal Highness Prince Mohammed de Chinoff."

He made himself conspicuous recently by appearing at the races mounted on a horse. The police investigated. Searching Emir's room, officials found a forged passport, and stamps and dies which were evidently used in the forgery. The investigation resulted in the Emir's arrest and imprisonment.

The police also found 250 letters from women of all nationalities.

In spite of his luxurious appearance, the Emir had only fifty francs—two dollars—when he was arrested.

CAVAZZI CLAIMS SECRET OF YOUTH

Discoverer of Gland Treatment For Rejuvenation Hailed By Europe.

ROME, Jan. 19 (By John T. Burke, Universal Service Staff Correspondent, Special Cable Dispatch).—Prof. Francesco Cavazzi of Bologna, discoverer of a new gland treatment for rejuvenation and prolongation of life is being deluged by thousands of letters from all parts of the world, it became known to-day. Scientists, laymen and hundreds of women have written him begging for the renewal of their youth. The professor is not accepting any women patients but is confining his treatment to males and meeting with phenomenal success.

Professor Veronoff, who is intensely interested, has invited Professor Cavazzi to visit him and inspect his monkey farm at Chateau Grimaldi near Mentone. Professor Emile Gley, of the Academy of Medicine, France, has hailed the Bologne professor's discovery as one of the marvels of the century.

While Prof. Veronoff utilizes only monkey glands, Prof. Cavazzi says to-day: "I inject vital fluid from various sound animals, which effect rejuvenation without any operation by revitalizing the entire glandular system.

"The success attained," added the professor, "justified the declaration to a certainty of the rejuvenation of aged men who are otherwise healthy, victims of physical weakness or outworn from work."

MURDER WARRANT WITHOUT HEARING

Chicago Judge Orders Squad To Shoot To Kill Culprit.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (By Fred Van Devender, Universal Staff Correspondent).—Without trial or hearing, a murder warrant was issued by Judge Francis Allegretti recently, with orders to all policemen to shoot to kill and bring the culprit into the court dead or alive.

The culprit in this case happens to be a mammoth chicken hawk that descends without warning on helpless pigeons, grabs one in his talons and then disappears to his lair, where he feasts on nice fresh squab.

The murder warrant was demanded by the business men of the city and the students at the Chicago Art Institute. The pigeons are a great sanitary asset to the office buildings, and they are friends of all of the students.

U. J. Herrmann, arctic explorer, asked and received permission to organize the Lincoln Park Trap Club, and start a regular campaign against the marauder.

Police and citizens recently armed themselves and waited in vain for the appearance of the phantom of the air, and later, thousands of hours of working time were lost by office workers looking for the bird.

Reports were also received that the machine-gun artists of Chicago's rum district were banding together to use their skill to bring down the bird.

Two newspapers in the city have offered rewards for the bird, dead or alive.

KIWANIS BIRTHDAY

Kiwanis International this week celebrates the anniversary of its organization, and is looking forward to a New Year of opportunity for service.

The Peterborough Club, in the forward look, is taking cognizance of all the past, with its lessons of success and failure.

The following tributes from leaders in community work, tell what prominent outsiders think, and the appreciation of what it has already accomplished inspires the Peterborough Club to still greater efforts.

E. A. Peck, M.P.:

"The 'Kiwanis' Organization exists for no selfish purpose on the part of its members. It desires to serve—to do its bit to relieve the needy and suffering ones of our community. Kiwanis, with other social service clubs, has before it a large field for its work, and every one with human impulses will unite in wishing unity and good feeling amongst its members and great success in its undertakings."

* * *

Peterborough Health Association:

Peterborough Health Association,—through its President, W. R. Breyfogle, expresses its appreciation by saying:

"The Peterborough Health Association can speak with very definite appreciation of the activity of the Kiwanians in connection with our work. On many occasions the members of the Kiwanis have shown their sympathies and desire to help, by their devotion to various plans undertaken by the Health Association in financing its work. We must not forget the wonderful help the Kiwanians gave to the Summer Camp work in Jackson Park, where, through the erection of several buildings and the construction of the swimming pool, they have added so much to the enjoyment of the hundreds of children who pass through the Camp each year."

The Y. W. C. A.:

Miss Lita H. Brownscombe, General Secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, says:

"The Young Women's Christian Association express appreciation to the Kiwanis Club for their generous help to the Association and girls of Peterborough.

"The Kiwanians have always stood ready to enthusiastically support any projects of the Y.W.C.A., especially in helping with the ticket sale for pageants, concerts and lectures, entertaining the "Y" Junior Clubs and providing gymnasium shoes for them, loaning their cars for club picnics and taking an interest in the various swimming and life saving programs of the Y.W.C.A.

"The Association wishes to express very best wishes to the Kiwanis Club for a New Year of service to Peterborough."

* * *

The Y. M. C. A.:

Geo. H. Roper sums up his impressions by stating:

"The Kiwanis Club since its organization in Peterborough has been a decidedly valuable factor in the promotion of civic and community welfare. The buildings in Jackson Park, built by the members of the Club themselves, are useful monuments to the spirit of enterprise and the interest taken by the Kiwanis Club in the greatest assets of the community, its boys and girls.

"The Club has been fortunate in its leadership, and the members have shown a fine spirit of enthusiasm and optimism which is refreshing.

"In its Kiwanis Club as well as the "Brother" Club, Rotary, Peterborough has two fine and appreciated service organizations."

Rev. J. W. Gordon.

Rev. J. W. Gordon, President of the Ministerial Association, says:

"What is a Kiwanian? How could one find an answer to this question?

"One should go, I suppose, where Kiwanians are—observe them, their actions and words, say at a Friday luncheon—much tomfoolery, banter and practical jokes, the latter sometimes carried far. Then when mouths have been partly stopped by the corner off a roll or other condiment the piano strikes up "I'm a Little Prairie Flower," or "Old McDonald" smites the ceiling and echoes through the corridors. So goes the luncheon hour until the speaker of the day is introduced. Very wonderful is the patience of these Kiwanians and wonderfully do they listen with evident interest and appreciation. No one likes a good story better; no quicker response to the finest idealism is found in [illegible] than that which rises from them.

"Back to business they hurry, there to work out the implications of these numerous luncheon addresses; colleagues, office staff and all who come closely in touch with them, feeling unconsciously that this particular Kiwanian is trying to play the game. Courtesy, thoughtfulness, an obvious desire to be more than fair, clothe him like a garment. This, at least, is his ideal.

"And then, too, those wonderful minstrel shows, when these men destroy their natural beauty, temporarily, and cover up the infirmities of age with paint and lamp black and burnt cork, and weird and barbaric attire. They sing—this time without assistance of the piece of roll in their cheeks—sing funny songs and crack real jokes on each other and on the public too, charging, mind you for admission, one dollar a ticket to hear and see all this; well worth the dollar too. Some folks say it is for them the best show of the year. Always it is wholesome, and it's great fun to see real folk with whom you are quite familiar, who speak to you on the street, bring down the curtain in a blaze of glory and fame. Some local talent is hard to beat. For example—but [illegible], it is safer not to mention names.

"That little house on the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte, where you can buy a paper or a magazine or a chocolate bar is a monument to something deeper in Kiwanis than these other things mentioned above. Citizens, one hot day in summer, saw men of dignity, mighty in position and influence—and at least in one case, mighty too, in avoirdupois—glorious in bib-overalls; shovelling gravel or sawing boards or more likely drinking buttermilk in the hot sun. And I think all who looked on and understood wished that day that they might have had a share in an act so gracious and [illegible]

"[illegible]rsonally, I have the best reason for believing that luncheons and fine speeches and concerts do not exhaust the significance of Kiwanis. Men who are anxious to serve, to be useful in all community ways as Ki[illegible]

Bishop O'Brien:

His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien says:

"While I am not familiar with all the activities of Kiwanis, I heartily commend the splendid work it is doing on behalf of underprivileged children.

"Whoever assists the little child to become healthier, happier and better is doing a beautiful work of Charity, and is building up the citizenship of this country."

* * *

G. A. Gillespie:

G. A. Gillespie, President of the Chamber of Commerce, says:

"It is with great pleasure I write to say I have watched the work of the Kiwanis Club in Peterborough for a number of years and am quite free to say they have done remarkably good work, especially among the undernourished children, by assisting the Health Association in giving the children an outing in the park during the summer holiday season."

PENITENT CAROL MAY RETURN HOME

Love Changeable Ex-Crown Prince of Roumania to Better His Ways.

By CARL H. von WIEGAND
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
(Special Cable Dispatch. Copyright, 1927, by Universal Service.)

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Carol von Hohenzollern, the erratic and love changeable ex-Crown Prince of Roumania who, just twelve months ago, left his wife and child, threw over the throne and the crown, quarreled with his mother, Queen Marie and forsook his country for the love of Madame Lupescu, the lovely Bucharest Jewess, wife of a major in the Roumanian Army, is penitent. He pleads that he be permitted to return and have the ten-year exile ban against him lifted.

Roumania's prodigal son, whose elopement to Odessa with Zizi Lambrine, the daughter of another Roumanian major and whose other love escapades, together with his declaration at one time that he is a Socialist, who has furnished dramatic material for several operettas and novels, has written his mother and Premier Averescu, begging forgiveness.

Carol says he sees the errors of his ways and promises to be a good boy henceforth.

According to advices from Bucharest the Princess Helen is joyful over the reported penitence of her husband, as is also the five-year-old Michael, who had been named the legal heir in place of his father.

There is a great suspense in inner political circles over this meeting of Helen and Carol in the romantic love atmosphere of Florence on which will depend the next act of the dramatic Balkan tragic-comedy, that of the return of the royal prodigal to the dying father, weeping mother, to the open arms of the army and amid the acclaim of the people.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB NEVER TO BE FREE

Darrow, Who Defended Them, Says No One Wants Them Out.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 19.(By Universal Service.)—Nathan Leopold and Richard Loes will never win their freedom from the Joliet prison. In the opinion of Clarence Darrow, who defended them in their famous trial for the brutal murder of Bobby Franks.

Loeb will die before the twenty years are up, when he can legally ask for a parole, Mr. Darrow declared, and he also added that he does not think Leopold will live that long either.

"And no governor will pardon them," Mr. Darrow added. "But who wants them out? I don't think anybody does.

"Every man in prison hopes to win his freedom and every sick man hopes to get well."

PRIESTS ESCAPE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19 (By Universal Service). — Fathers Cabellero, Cruz and Rosado, Catholic priests, arrived aboard the steamship "Wimic" from Vera Cruz, after narrowly escaping a firing squad. They were accused of conducting masses in violation of the Mexican law. On the morning they were to have been executed, last Thursday, their sentence was commuted to deportation and permanent exile. Cabellero claims to be a citizen of the United States.

Varsity Letter Awarded Author Of College Play

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 19. United Press. — Ohio State University has awarded an honorary Varsity "O" to Elliott Nugent author and star of "The Poor Nut," for service to the University.

For 500 night and many matinees the young Ohio graduate has sped around a stage "cinderpath" carrying the scarlet and grey of his alma mater to victory, his play opening in Columbus last night after a long run on Broadway, is a comedy farce of college life.

The first sheet of paper is said to have been made from the bark of a mulberry tree in the year 75.

SEE CONSPIRACY IN TRAIN WRECK

Railway Officials Offer Reward Following Second Accident.

SWITCH ALTERED

ROME, Ga., Jan. 18.—(Universal Service).—Charging that a carefully planned and deliberately executed plot resulted in the wrecking of the Ponce de Leon northbound train, the crack Southern Railway flyer between Florida and the north, a reward of $2,000 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of the crime. A switch near Lindale was thrown open and the lights disarranged. The fast train plunged into the siding and the engine, express car and a coach left the rails. Engineer J. G. Waitt, of Atlanta, died today from injuries sustained in the wreck.

Southern Railway officials offered $1,000 reward, and the Massachusetts Cotton Mills, with a large plant at Lindale, offered another thousand. The wreck took place Friday night, and it was several hours before the way was cleared for traffic.

Engineer Waitts, in a dying statement, said he saw the danger too late, but jammed on the emergency brakes. The engine and two cars passed the switch, but the other coaches held the track. The engineer was fatally scalded.

About three weeks ago the same train was wrecked near Rockmart, just 16 miles south of the disaster of Friday night, when 22 persons were killed and more than a hundred injured.

"THE WORLD DO MOVE."

The courage and stamina and speed of George Young were not the only things that made the Catalina swim remarkable.

There were other features about the race that passed almost unnoticed, features that a few years ago would have been regarded as miraculous.

One, now becoming a matter of course, was the radio report of the contest.

In the early hours of Sunday morning people in all parts of the continent listened eagerly to bulletins of the race.

There is something almost uncanny in the thought that as stout-hearted George Young fought his way through the icy waters to victory thousands sat snugly at home and heard a voice coming from many miles away telling of the progress of the swimmers.

And then the speed with which actual pictures of the race appeared in papers published 2,000 miles away from the Pacific Coast—within a few hours of the finish.

Carried by aeroplane from Catalina Island to the mainland, these pictures were telegraphed to Cleveland, and hundreds of thousands of newspaper readers in the East were able to view them in their favourite paper.

WINTER RESORTS.

The contributor to the "Voice of the People" column who complained that The Examiner was praising the advantages of the Muskoka district as a winter resort and neglecting our own neighborhood's claims for consideration in that respect, surely did not read very carefully what has been said in these columns in regard to the matter.

The Muskoka Beach resort was mentioned merely because it is about the first attempt to cash in upon the many advantages the Canadian winter offers the seekers of new thrills and recreation.

The enterprise of the promoters was eulogized simply because they are blazing the trail toward a new and profitable source of revenue for this Province.

Muskoka, of course, can offer nothing to winter tourists that Peterboro County cannot supply equally as well, but that is not the point.

The thing that is important is that in one section of Ontario the attempt has at last been made to sell the Canadian winter to a class of people who are eager for fresh sensations, and that the example should be followed by other parts of the Province—including Peterboro.

In this matter, as in all others, The Examiner is faithful to its slogan, "If it will help Peterboro The Examiner is for it."

SALE BY THE GLASS.

From present indications the people of Manitoba are to have an early opportunity of voting upon the sale of beer by the glass.

It will be remembered that shortly after the Province had adopted Government control a proposal to authorize sale of beer by the glass was rejected by a large majority.

However, public opinion in Manitoba seems to have undergone a sufficient change to justify the Government in submitting the question again.

Apparently Manitoba's system of Government control has fallen down in so far as its ability to check the bootlegging of beer by the glass is concerned.

The reason is not far to seek; it is to be found in the Control Act itself, which permits the delivery of beer direct from the brewery to the consumer.

Such a system could not fail to produce illicit sale by the glass, particularly as the breweries are charged with not playing the game.

Ontario is avoiding the direct-delivery pitfall.

There will be no transaction between brewery and consumer.

The customer who wants beer will buy it from the Government through the vendour—and he will not be required to buy a case if he only wants a bottle or two.

The advantages of such a plan over the Manitoba system from a control standpoint are manifest; the Ontario method will start out with a much greater chance of success.

IF JULES VERNE WERE ALIVE TODAY!

It is remarkable what a gift of imagination that man Jules Verne must have possessed to have written the fiction stories of flying through the air and travelling under the sea so far in advance of the actual realization of these developments. But if Jules Verne were alive today, a witness to actualities, what could he possibly write to impose on the credulity of the ignorant? asks The St. Catharines Standard.

Today he would find Ottawa talking to England on the long distance.

He would find Englishmen flying to Australia and a man and his wife flying from England to India, the woman powdering her nose en route.

He would find Yankees exchanging radio messages with Australia, people hopping over the North Pole, singers warbling to whole continents, a millionaire planning a palatial air yacht, a Zeppelin builder planning a non-stop flight around the world. Shades of Phineas Fogg!

Then again we hear of a scientist studying a ray that can shoot through six feet of lead, battleships photographed through fog, and professors getting ready to take photos of the Planet Venus, of movie pictures which will talk and of telephones through which the speakers can see each other.

All that need be said on the subject is that if Jules Verne came back out of the ethereal, he would have to go some to do any dreaming which would outstrip the progress of modern science.

THE COCKSHUTT BANQUET.

The complimentary banquet tendered to Colonel Henry Cockshutt last night will rank as one of the greatest demonstration of this nature in the history of Ontario.

Such a tribute to any public man would be a remarkable affair, but when it is remembered that this honour was paid to the late holder of an office that only a few years ago was being attacked from every side, the banquet may well be described as a history-making affair.

What is the explanation?

Why should the people of Ontario, many of whom before the advent of Colonel Cockshutt into office were complaining of the expense of maintaining Government House, arrange a huge demonstration in honour of a former Lieutenant-Governor?

The answer is to be found in Colonel Cockshutt's speech of last night.

As he points out, the general impression of the office had been that its duties were of a purely formal nature.

That did not suit the late incumbent of the position, who explains that when he took office he hoped he would be able to "indulge in a desire to be useful, knowing that I must fail in any attempt to be ornamental."

Referring to the desire to serve that animated most people as they grew older, Colonel Cockshutt explained the secret of his success and the raison d'etre of last night's banquet in the following terms:

> "The particular bent that zeal for service, as taken in my case, has been the fostering of a better feeling, based upon clearer understanding among the people of divers classes, divers occupation, divers races and divers religions who comprise this glorious Province."

INDUSTRIAL CANADA.

Building in Canada in 1926 reached a value of $372,947,900, as compared with $297,973,000 in 1925 and $240,133,000 in 1921. Another very significant fact is that a still greater proportionate advance was made in industrial buildings. These were valued at $79,690,000 in 1926, nearly double the $40,007,000 recorded in 1925. Warehouse buildings accounted for $6,522,000 in 1925 and $22,519,000 in 1926. Mr. H. A. Holman, assistant manager MacLean Building Reports, says: "The significance of these figures is unmistakable. They indicate confidence on the part of businessmen in the future of Canada and the recognition of our resources and potentialities for cheap manufacturing." In The Mail and Empire Mr. J. H. Gundy, of Wood, Gundy and Co., says:

> "Canadian security issues during the year have aggregated over $590,000,000, as against over $498,000,000 in 1925 and $563,000,000 in 1924. While in former years the larger percentage of the money borrowed was for Government and municipal purposes, in 1926 for the first time, the larger percentage of the issues was on behalf of public utility and industrial companies."

Canada has now taken the lead in the production of newsprint, passing the United States. The history of the pulp and paper industry is a history of industrial progress. Exports of newsprint paper in the first eleven months of 1926 were valued at $103,745,021. This is a fully manufactured product. It is untrue that in regard to forest products Canada is stripping herself of natural resources ,to be manufactured in other countries. The export of pulpwood is small in comparison with that of pulp and paper. In 1924-25 the total export of products of the forest was $253,610,024, divided as follows: Wood, unmanufactured and partially manufactured, $109,903,950; wood, manufactured, $43,543,234; paper, $99,941,910; books and printed matter, $1,080,930. In view of the rapid growth of the paper manufacturing industry, it is altogether likely that the export of manufactured products is increasing proportionately. The statement that Canadians are acting as hewers of wood and drawers of water is contradicted by the trade returns. The exports of Canada, in the main, are products of skilled labor on the farm, in the forest, in the mines and in the factories.

It is probably true that we still export raw materials which might be manufactured in Canada. So does the United States. So even does Great Britain. New industries are likely to spring up here, especially those based upon minerals. There would be no objection to advocating encouragement of these, but advocacy ought not to be founded on gross exaggerations and misrepresentation of Canada's position.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The fact that Peterboro curlers were defeated by Lindsay in the tankard competition leads to the impression that after all this is a normal winter.

The member of the Board of Health who allowed himself to be vaccinated at a meeting of the board will hardly be on the Anti-Vaccination League slate if he ever happens to be a candidate for public office.

Among the things that George Young may expect as a result of his victory is plenty of advice as to how to spend his money.

Mayor Foster of Toronto has a reputation for wearing a fitting garb for every occasion. At that, however, he is not likely to select a coating of grease as the proper toggery for the George Young reception.

It is to be hoped there is no truth in the rumour that Premier Ferguson intends to increase the size of the Ontario Cabinet. There are too many Ministers now, both at Ottawa and at Toronto.

THE LIBERTY TO FIND FAULT

By Dr. Frank Crane.

The thing that makes the world bearable is our freedom to find fault.

As long as we cannot remould the world nearer to our heart's desire, there is some consolation in telling it what is the matter with it.

What "freedom of speech" really means is "freedom to find fault." And for it men will gladly die.

There never has been much objection to anyone's speaking until he begins to find fault.

If a man were prevented from finding fault with his meals, his preacher and his newspaper, he would feel that his personality had been squeezed down to an infinitesimal part of the hole in the doughnut.

We don't mind if the politicians negate our vote, but when anyone tries to muzzle our innate right to tell people what's wrong, we rise up to do battle in the cause of freedom.

A motion picture producer in Los Angeles once told the writer of the joy with which people welcome the chance to find fault at "previews."

It is the custom among the studios to send out films to nearby towns for a showing before a final revision for distribution is made. Such showings are called "previews," and post cards are distributed to the audience for them to send in criticisms and suggestions for improving the picture.

Almost without exception they avail themselves of the opportunity to find fault.

One doesn't like the hero's haircut, another thinks the heroine looks too old for the part, another thinks a "close-up" should have been a "long shot," etc., etc., ad infinitum and to the joy of the postcarders.

All writers whose work appears regularly discover the enjoyment people get out of finding fault.

An error in grammar brings a flood of letters; a misquoted line a deluge.

In this latter there is another element. Finding a mistake where no mistake is supposed to be, adds a puzzle-solving thrill. It is like finding a face hidden among the leaves of a tree or in the lines of a cloud.

All in all, the chief back-slapper of the world's ego is the ability to find fault.

REPORTING CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

Editor Examiner:

Dear sir:

I am directed by the Local Board of Health to call the attention of residents to the necessity for reporting to the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. T. W. H. Young, or to the Secretary of the Board, any cases of contagious disease which may occur in their homes. This is required by the law, and the law will be enforced.

Special attention is called to the requirement for reporting chickenpox. Some cases have not been reported, as they were mild cases and a physician was not called in, but this is a violation of the law, and hereafter the penalties provided by the law will be imposed. There is no expense to the families connected with reporting contagious diseases, and the reports must be made, as they are required in the interest of the health of the community as well as by the law. If the services of a physician are required, and the family is not able to pay for such services, upon reporting the circumstances the City Physician will give the needed attention.

Yours truly,
W. J. HANCOCK,
Chairman.

A Thought For To-day

THE SUCCESSFUL SON.

I have just spent an evening with a mother, a father, and their only son. The son is a successful business man.

Mother works, father works, and son, he calls every Sunday and enjoys a good home-cooked dinner on the old folks.

But does this successful son contribute any cash for the further comforts of his mother and father? He does not.

And while there, the conversation drifted to an aged mother who is supported by her working daughter, but her successful son has not contributed a cent for mother's support during the past ten years.

You are acquainted with many situation like this.

As soon as puppies or kittens are weaned, the mother looks at them with cuffing contempt, which is the brute nature in animals.

Human nature works the other way round.

Courts insist on alimony, but society should sentence a successful son who will not help his poor parents—sentence him to—let me see—to the place where the son should go, if the devil will accept him.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

HEBREW, JEW ISRAELITE

An inquirer wishes to know which is correct, Jew, Hebrew, or Israelite, and whether there is any difference in meaning among the three names for the people to whom they refer.

It may be said that while the three terms differ in origin, they are now used interchangeably save, perhaps, by scholars. Webster defines "Hebrew" as "a member of one of a group of tribes of the northern branch of the Semites, which group includes the Israelites, Ammonites, Moabites and Edomites; generally, specifically, an Israelite." An "Israelite" is said by the same authority to be "a descendent of Israel, or Jacob; a Hebrew; a Jew, while "Jew" is defined as follows:

"Originally, one belonging to the kingdom of the tribe of Judah; after the return from the Babylonish captivity, any member of the new Hebrew state; hence, any member of the Hebrew race or people or anyone whose religion is Judaism."

FEVERS—OUR FRIENDS

How often you hear the expression, "This fever must be broken up at once, or it will wear you out." What a ridiculous statement to make. How else are you going to get rid of a fever except by allowing it to burn out? Fever consumes the surplus carbon, which is the chief cause of disease. By this burning up of carbon, heat is generated, respiration is increased and the breath comes in short pants. Why is this heavy breathing necessary? Solely to obtain that surplus oxygen which is necessary to burn up the carbon that is clogging up and drippling all of the functions.

Nature must unload this carbon or you will succumb to it, and it cannot always be detected, because it is all through the tissues; therefore, the body must take in extra oxygen to burn it out.

Fevers only burn up the waste and poisonous material of the system and clean out the toxins of physical corruption. If these poisons could be taken out of the body and burned up, it would, of course, be easier on the patient. But nature finds it necessary to burn up the poisons where they are, that is, in the tissues of the body. Temperature is increased, the breathing becomes fast, and copious perspiration breaks out on the body. These indications are only signs of steps toward a cure.

Never attempt to break a fever—always try to encourage it, and as soon as the poisons are burned up the fever will disappear. Drink plenty of water, if you are thirsty, as this only assists in furnishing the body with more liquid with which to wash out the toxins. There is no reason why lemon or orange juice cannot be put into the water which you drink; in fact, it seems that these citrus fruit juices really encourage elimination by their action in stimulating the flow of bile.

If your fever is accompanied by a chill, it is a good plan to use artificial warmth packing hot water bottles around the body and allowing only woolen bed clothing to touch the skin, so that when perspiration is produced it will be taken up by the wool and the bed clothes will not become clammy, as when cotton sheets are used. Do not take any remedy to cure your headache, as this will only interfere with the natural eliminative processes going on.

Do not be afraid of becoming exhausted, for the more relaxed your body becomes, the more you will perspire and the quicker your fever will disappear, as the poisons are more easily thrown out through the eliminative organs when the body is relaxed.

Inorganic quinine, such as given in pills, should never be used for a fever, as long as the organic quinine is available through the use of the peeling of the grapefruit. To get this quinine from the grapefruit skins, cut the entire grapefruit into small pieces, place in a granite pan and pour boiling water over it. Allow this mixture to stand at least thirty minutes and drink the tea from it. This contains organic quinine and often assists in eliminating the toxins which produce the fever.

You must always remember that in case of a fever, you should go to bed and not try to fight the fever. If pain exists in any part of the body and you feel that you are developing a fever, take your temperature, and if it is at all above normal, jump into bed between woolenblankets and start sweating as soon as possible. If your bowels did not move well the last day or two, take a good enema before you start sweating, and allow this sweating to continue every hour of the day and night until your temperature has been reduced to the normal.

There is very little danger of fatal termination of a fever, if you will follow these simple methods, but beware of any method which will interfere with the throwing out of the toxins, which were responsible in the first place for the development o the fever.

BOGUS SERVANTS

LONDON, Jan. 19.— Scotland Yard and other detectives in Greater London are concentrating their efforts on a gang of bogus servants who are victimizing housewives. Small sums of money are asked from the residents to cover alleged traveling expenses when the fakers "seek situations."

Are you overlooking this real economy?

AT ten o'clock, on about five days a week, Jones of Kitchener says to Long Distance, "I want to speak to R. H. White, Peterboro." White looks forward to Jones' calls, and is always at his desk ready for them.

"Why do you always ask for Mr. White?" a telephone salesman asked Mr. Jones. "Because he is the man I want — no one else will do." "But Mr. White is always at his desk. If you said to the operator, 'Please get me anyone at 2624 Peterboro,' you would get Mr. White, and the Station-to-Station rate would be about twenty per cent cheaper."

Jones now uses Station-to-Station exclusively. He finds it answers every requirement and saves money.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

SYNOPSIS

Ranny Forbes, star polo player and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismates. Joan wants a divorce. Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her, but secretly knows that she loves Abner Gratman. Lacking proof that Joan is faithless, he plans to trap her and Abner while they are all on a week-end trip on the yacht of Stivner, a billionaire lumber king. The complications now are fast and furious. Joan is jealous when Ranny flirts with Clare, a widow. Stivner loves Clare, and resents Ranny's interest. Joan encourages Abner's advances.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

The conversation meanwhile had tended toward informality as it became more general.

Thus aided by the at least seeming disconcentration of interest from them, Abner was making bold to talk to Joan with less restraint. Still in subdued tones, of course, inaudible except to eavesdroppers. And since eavesdropping is an art that cannot best be practiced in public, even by the scandal attuned ears of the elite, the lovers felt rather immune.

Joan, a slight flush on her satiny cheeks that was not alone of the fresh wind's making, was listening with downcast eyes to Abner's unflagging talk. The ardor in Abner's eyes, the honeyed drip of his words, were as plain and as potent to Ranny as red flannel shirts to pasture bulls.

To this flaunting of illicit bliss, Ranny's poignant reaction, following the normal way of all male flesh, divided itself into two spasms.

The first, a madness to bury his fingers in Abner's throat and presently gloat over a subsiding circle on the water, marking the spot where Abner's body went down. The only sign of that spasm was a nervous clinching and opening of his powerful hands.

The second impulse, in due course, was a cynical searching of his mind and soul as to whether or not he really cared.

After all, there were other flowers in the social garden. Joan was a chrysanthemum. He had always loved to think of her as a strong, straight, supple chrysanthemum, a great white flower, decking the glories of autumn conservatories.

But here at hand was an orchid, a pale, aesthetic, fragile flower. Mrs. Clare Clemoneau, in all her blonde bloom. Truly, her cheeks were petals, her arms soft tendrils, he noted, feasting his eyes upon her.

Clare grew conscious suddenly of his intensely personalized gaze, his intimate, interested inspection.

Surprised, delighted, she flushed with inner satisfaction—a faint tint diffused over her creamy cheeks and shoulders.

"You are very beautiful," Ranny whispered.

He folded a coppery hand over her slender fingers. He noticed that these were warm, vibrant. A living vibration that trembled preciously upon her lips, her nostrils, and glinted in her eyes.

He had never suspected so deep a passion in so frail a flower.

Livingstone Stivner, turning impatiently from a desultory chat with an arid dowager, fumed inwardly at the spectacle of his especially marked fair prey breaking ardent lances in an eye-joust with another champion.

Stivner was a man given to quick and effective decisions. He decided after an indignant glance at Clare and Ranny and a quizzical inspection of Abner and Joan that a cool sea bath would be a most effective damper to certain hot bloods.

"Before the sun goes down let's heave to and take a swim!" he proposed.

"It's too cold!" said Joan positively.

"Nonsense! The water temperature in October hasn't changed a whit from the summer mean. It will be invigorating. Just what—we all need."

"But none of us brought bathing suits, Livingstone," curtly objected a fattish man.

"Livingstone, you old dear, that's a ducky suggestion—no pun intended! As for suits—poof! Away out here, who's o censor—" Clare paused and raised her brows in an arch, daring smirk.

"You immoral little vixen," giggled a matron, "I never heard anything so wild. You wouldn't dare think of suggesting it except that you know you've got the best figure in our set!"

Clare smiled faintly, gratified at the mock horror she had stirred up amongst the women, the genuine shock she had caused the men. But gratified most by the black look she felt Joan casting upon her.

Ah, life was sweet! And she had not really said a thing!

Stivner stressed that.

"Clare means, of course," he grinned, "that style gives way to utility upon the briny deep. I've an ample supply of the very latest cut swimming suits—mostly cut! If you'll all go to your rooms I'll have the steward pass out the suits—and no questions asked. It will be a bully lark. Let's go! The last one in is old sea cow!" he chanted exuberantly, thus demonstrating that the richer and reuhmier some men get the closer they return under the skin to first boyish principles.

"Livingstone, be yourself!" chided Clare, moving off so languidly that her warning seemed to arise naturally from a foreboding that she would win the nomination with which Stivner had playfully threatened the slothful.

A gift for giving misleading impressions, however, was but another of the qualities of Clare's art. As a matter of fact, she was the first to reappear upon deck, though her manner was no less languid than before and gave no suggestion—by quickened breath, or color, or otherwise—that she had hastened her actions one iota.

"Guess she didn't have much to take off," giggled Mrs. Teffen under her breath, to Joan.

"Certainly she has very little on!" rejoined Joan. "How is it her suit is so much more extreme than those of the rest of us? I thought Mr. Stivner had provided a standard lot—"

Livingstone Stivner himself was wondering just that as, coming on deck with Ranny and Clay, his astonished eyes fell upon what was at that mon nt the common object of the stares of guests and crew alike.

"Clare," ejaculated Stivner, glaring at where a ragged remnant of swimming suit leg, like a scalloped necklace, demurely clung to the zenith of a creamy thigh, "you hussy, who ripped your suit?"

"Oh, Livingstone, it isn't ripped. You know how I just hate to look like everyone else. So I merely took some scissors and did a little trimming. The legs were too long anyhow—and the neck too high!"

"Scandalous!" thought Dowager Teffen audibly.

A general laugh followed. The men admired, the women envied, Clare's daring.

She turned a babishly reproachful and hurt look upon Mrs. Teffen, then appealed to Ranny from under the golden curtains of her lash-veiled eyes: "Ranny, you think it's perfectly nice and proper, don't you?"

Ranny's head had been swimming with the eye-filling picture Clare made standing there on the forward deck, her slender, yet rounded and firmly fashioned limbs—like some fine old turnings of lathe masters' art—looking pathetically inadequate to withstand the searching breeze.

All the other women—and men, too—wore heavy sweaters draped carelessly over their shoulders. Not so Clare. Her only protection against the autumnal nipping of the Sound winds was the curtailed red jersey swimming suit.

Ranny, more than anything else in the world at that moment, felt a yearning impulse in his fundamental masculine protectivity—a crying, aching urge to clasp that soft little body up in his bronzed, hairy arms, to shield those tiny, delicate bare feet from contact with the gross boards of the deck.

However, catching Joan's eyes upon him, as she belligerently awaited his answer to Clare's plaintive inquiry, Ranny decided with great self-sacrifice that it might not be wise to publicly humor his manly impulses.

But he wet his lips, gritted his teeth and summoned enough independence to assert emphatically:

"I think it's just ador-abbble—er-r-r very sensible, Mrs. Clemoneau. You know, one's limbs should be—ah, unimpeded for the best results in athletic diversions."

"Dear man!" lisped Clare, twisting up to Ranny with slinky, tigerishly graceful undulations of her hips.

A public benefactor is one who helps people to be happy. Such a man was Dr. R. V. Pierce.

It is impossible to be happy if you are suffering—in pain or distress—ill. To restore health and strength to ailing people was Dr. Pierce's mission. During his lifetime, he gave to the world a priceless herbal remedy in his Favorite Prescription, for restoring the health of weak, nervous, over-worked women, and thereby increasing happiness in the home.

As a skilled physician, an honored citizen, Dr. Pierce was known far and near for integrity and fair dealing. His phenomenal success was due to the unquestioned purity of his medicines.

Women in every walk of life today use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has relieved them of nervousness, weakness and kindred ills. It is a reliable medicine made from roots and herbs, sold by druggists, in both fluid and tablets. Send 10c for trial pkg. tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory, Bridgeburg, Ont.

Cancellation Of Treaties Is Demanded By Chen

LONDON, Jan. 19. — The Daily Express has received a special cablegram from the Cantonese Foreign Minister at Hankow, Eugene Chen, in which he says:

"Chinese nationalism demands back the lost independence of China. Our terms are cancellation of the unequal treaties on which the regime of foreign Imperialism in China is based."

The Minister rejects "the moral technique of European diplomacy, with its jungle of finesse and obliquities," and traces briefly the incidents leading to the British abandonment of the concession at Hankow. He reiterates the statement that the British on January 3 bayoneted several Chinese.

Anyone Can Live To Be 100 Avoiding Jazz, Says Doctor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (Copyright, Jan. 1927, by United News).—It is possible for anyone to live to be a hundred if he sidesteps the blaring rhythm of the jazz age, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, world famous surgeon told the United News Monday. Dr. Mayo, attending a two-day conference of American College of Surgeons, took a serious attitude toward the "pace of modern civilization."

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

BEERY AND HATTON BEAT THE "ROAR RECORDS" THEY SET IN "BEHIND THE FRONT."

Haunting memories of 1917—long columns of stern faced marching men—flags waving—cheering crowds—newspaper headlines—khaki and blue side by side—

Into this seething whirlpool are cast the fortunes of Wallace Beery, and Raymond Hatton, prize fighter and manager, in their latest Paramount comedy effort, "We're in the Navy Now"

While the crushing impact of great armies reverberated around the world a second battle brooded in the dimly lighted arena of an eastern seaport However the clang of a gong merely served as an introduction to the comedy and drama which engulfed the prize ring belligerents as they plunged into the thick of the war. For, before they were consciously aware of their destination, Beery and Hatton had been hurried through a naval camp—pausing only long enough to accumulate such accoutrements as vaccinations, throat swabs, trousers, middies and haircuts — before finding themselves on their way to France

Thus are we introduced to Beery and Hatton, the greenest gobs afloat, to Chester Conklin, pompous naval captain; Tom Kennedy, bullying chief petty officer, Lorraine Eason, mysterious, charming and flirtatious; and Donald Keith, handsome radio operator. All six are members of the superb comedy cast of "We're in the Navy Now," which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

To call Beery and Hatton befuddled rookies would be putting it mildly. Their dogged disregard and ignorance of regulations immerses them in round after round of difficulties. Both exceed their successful characterizations as to the dumb doughboy buddies in "Behind the Front," and help make 'Were in the Navy Now" one of the current season's most phenomenal screen successes.

So far as the story goes "We're in the Navy Now" is not a sequel to 'Behind the Front" but it does utilize the laugh-provoking ability of this hilarious team in a comedy of uniforms.

Imagine Beery and Hatton adrift in an open rowboat. Mines and submarines lurk on all sides. Here's a situation that is richer than seeing them poised on the brink of Niagara Falls.

"We're in the Navy Now" is colorful and full of action. It scintillates with unexpected laugh situations. The scenes are real, carrying a genuine high seas' atmosphere. All the navy's fighting units, submarines, airplanes, destroyers and battleships, swing into action during the battle. The effect of course is realism personified but in addition the picture retains a fast comedy pick!

Klansman Is Governor But Parade Forbidden

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 19. — (Universal Service). — "What's the use of having a Klan Governor if we can't parade?" wailed a Ku Klux Klansman here today.

He wailed when it was announced that despite the fact that Bibb Graves, who is to be inaugurated Governor Monday, is reported to be a Klansman, Montgomery City authorities will not tolerate any masked parade.

Hiram Evans, Imperial Wizard of the Klan, is expected to attend the inauguration.

BISHOPS DENY INSPIRING ACTS OF REBELLION

Say a Few Priests May be Assisting in Revolutionary Movements.

ASK FOR PROOF

Government Says Prisoners Tell of Encouragement by Church.

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, Jr.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19.—(Special Cable Dispatch).—A challenge to the Mexican President to produce a single document of a public or private nature wherein all the bishops in general or the major part in particular have inspired the revolution, was made by the Catholic Episcopate answering the accusation of General Alvarez, Calles' Chief of Staff, that the Church group had provoked the present rebellion.

The Episcopate added that Alvarez has no proof backing his charge and is merely contenting himself with attributing to the whole body the works of a certain few Catholics and the other discontented elements which are rebelling against the Calles government.

The Catholic Committee asserted that while 155 priests participated in the independence movement of 1810 it was never said that the clergy made up the 7,000 who were involved. Accordingly, they said, it is just as unfair to say that the 3,000 clergy now in Mexico are responsible because a negligible few have here and there participated in local insurrections.

COLISEUM THRONGED AT DINNER, ETC.

still higher. In various branches of agriculture and of dairying we have solved the problem of quality production, so that it only remains for us to combine quantity production with systematic and orderly marketing to lay for ourselves the foundation of an abounding prosperity. Our great North Country, that less than forty years ago was valued only for its forests, has been yielding to the pick of the prospector and the drill of the miner such secret hoards of gold, silver and other precious metals that already we are justified in rating it among the very foremost of our assets, even though its surface has been no more than scratched. In the development and distribution of electrical energy we have made phenomenal progress, yet there again the achievements to date are as nothing compared with the ultimate potentialities of our numerous and strategically located water powers.

"Meanwhile, with the onward march in these and other basic industries our manufacturers are keeping pace, in many instances overcoming the handicaps of a limited domestic market by assiduously cultivating the export field. In the matter of channels of communication, including railways, waterways, highways, yes and airways, we possess an equipment and enjoy a service that no state of similarly sparse population can surpass, and that few states with far greater density of population can equal.

"Nor have we lagged behind in things less material. Our colleges and our universities rank among the foremost on this Continent. Among our hospitals we have several that are acknowledged to be the last word in efficiency. In medical research we have attracted the attention of the whole world. In literature, in art, in music, in architecture, and in engineering we have achieved real distinction. For social service work of every kind we are well organized and our contributions have been generous. And underlying it all we have never neglected to nurture those religious beliefs and to practice those moral precepts that are the guiding star to all real greatness.

"In this connection I desire to offer a tribute of sincere appreciation to the women of Ontario. During my incumbency of office I have been afforded opportunities such as I never had before for learning about and for observing their manifold activities in works of charity and mercy, and I wish to say that it was little short of a revelation to me to find them engaged in such numbers, with such zeal, and to such good purpose in practically every form of social betterment. When I first glimped this activity in its true perspective in Toronto I almost committed the unpardonable 'faux pas' of citing the Toronto women as leaders whose example the women in other places might well follow. But I was not long in discovering that what appealed to me as so splendid in the women of Toronto was characteristic of the women in all parts of this Province. Everywhere they are assuming the duty of ministering to the poor and needy, to the sick and suffering, with glad hearts and smiling faces, and saying so little about it as to leave most of us men in ignorance of the fact that we are entertaining angels unawares. I can only say, from the fullness of a heart that has been deeply touched, that I honor them for it, and pray that in the daughters who will succeed them, Ontario will be equally blessed.

"Mr. Chairman, once more let me most sincerely thank you, and through you all the committees and everyone ipdividually who has borne a part in the carrying out of this magnificent banquet. From the bottom of my heart I thank them one and all, and as a last word to them, and to the people of Ontario, let me give you this message: Fellow-Canadians, respect the franchise, love God, and honor the King."

Expressions of Regret

The following telegrams expressing regret at not being able to be present were read by the Chairman.

"Regret exceedingly but as the House will be sitting on the 18th, and we are now debating the address, it is impossible for me to be away. I would have been delighted to pay a tribute to Colonel Cockshutt whom I respect and admire and who has done so much to promote a good feeling between both provinces. Please express to him my very keen regrets.

L. A. Taschereau, Prince Minister of the Province of Quebec."

"British Columbia joins in heartiest greetings and best wishes for Colonel and Mrs. Cockshutt."

From the Honorable George P. Graham:

"Allow me to express my deepest regrets at being unable to be with you tonight.

"No man has brought greater ability and discerning judgment to the exalted position of Lieutenant Governor than has our mutual friend now Honorable Mr. Cockshutt.

"He is an honor to the citizenship of Canada and a credit to the old Province of Ontario.

"Please convey to him my deepest regrets and kindest regards."

From E. W. Beattie, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"I regret exceedingly that it was necessary for me to return from Toronto last night, owing to the visit of the Governor General to Montreal, and this has prevented my accepting the deeply appreciated invitation to attend the banquet in honor of Colonel Cockshutt."

The Head Table

Capt. Haldenby, Hon. Joseph Thompson, Hon. J. S. Martin, Hon. W. E. Raney, Mr. A. W. Austin, Hon. W. H. Price, Sir Robert Falconer, Mayor Foster, Mr. Frank Cockshutt, Sir Edward Kemp, General Sir Wm. Otter, The Archbishop of Huron, Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Col. Cockshutt, LL.D., Mr. George Wilson, His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, Archbishop McNeil, Sir Wm. Mulock, K.C.M.G., P.C., Hon. Vincent Massey, Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, Sir John Aird, Rev. S. D. Chown, Mr. E. L. Cockshutt, Hon. G. S. Henry, Mr. Grant Hall, Col. Fraser, Brig.-Gen. Bell, Mr. Peleg Howland, Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Hon. Wm. Finlayson.

The Music

OBITUARY.

MRS. J. C. SMITH.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 19.—The funeral of Clarice Leighton, wife of Dr. J. Cameron Smith, was held on Monday afternoon from the family residence, Queen Street, and was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances.

The service was in charge of Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's Church, Peterboro, assisted by Rev. J. B. Skene of Toronto, cousin of Dr. Smith. Mr. Allan gave a brief address during the service, as he knew that the deceased lady would say if she could speak, "Say a word for my Lord." She was a devoted Christian, and deeply interested in the work of Christ in this country and in foreign lands. She was a devoted wife and mother and loving and considerate daughter and sister and her sudden passing was a shock to all who knew her.

"Death seems like a great black serving maid who opens the door into the Father's house, and to-day, while we see the black shadow, she sees the Father's face," he said. "Death must come to us all, for on every one there is a mortgage which one day will be foreclosed in the form of a funeral procession, when our eyes will be sightless and our lips dumb. Why is it? Is it the work of the God of Love to cut us off in this way? The answer is simple: by man's sin death came into the world as man's heritage, but the death of our Lord Jesus Christ on the Cross brought the glorious hope of the resurrection and the life to come. It is this great hope which is the comfort of those who mourn on occasions of this sort, for the dead shall be raised again in the likeness of God, glorious and incorruptible."

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Alex. Spence and O. M. Steer of Peterboro, Grant Smith of Toronto, and C. S. Tanner, J. W. Ridpath, and W. G. Morrison of Lakefield.

There were many beautiful floral tributes from friends who expressed thereby the words of sympathy in their hearts.

Clarice Leighton Smith, the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Leighton, and wife of Dr. J. Cameron Smith, had resided nearly eleven years in the village, and was well-known and highly esteemed. She was a graduate of Queen's University, and was also a fine musician. She was a genuine homemaker, and her home bears many evidences of the "touch of the vanished hand." Intensely social by nature, she had a wide circle of friends, and her home was the centre for many social gatherings in the village, her winning personality always proving attractive.

She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and was secretary of the W.M.S. until about a month ago, when she resigned and was appointed home helpers' secretary. She was intensely interested in missions and in all work of the church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by three children, Lulu, Douglas and Donald; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Leighton, of Lindsay; one brother, Mr. James Leighton, of Winnipeg, and one sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Leddingham, of Harriston.

An especially sad feature of the funeral was the fact that her husband is lying very seriously ill in the house under medical care.

The deepest sympathy of the community is felt for all those who mourn the loss of this bright young life.

Great Britain's agricultural wealth of Canada at the end of 1925 was $7,832,924,000, an increase of $324,685,000 over that of 1924, according to a bulletin of the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics.

FREIGHT RATES

75c. from Great Britain and 55c. cwt. from Antwerp, from all of which points they had a certain amount of compctition. Their output into B. C. was steadily decreasing and any increase in transportation rates would wipe it out altogether.

A. E. Williams, of the Cotton Imperial Mills, Hamilton, Ont., and Yarmouth, N.S., testified that the mills had a trade in B.C., for cotton duck and other fabrics. The rate was $3.69 1-2 cwt. from Yarmouth or $2.05 in car lots and $3.27 and $1.77 1-4 from Hamilton. The principal item in this trade was for sail material and mostly used for manufacturing. Their B. C. trade was about 6 per cent of their total output.

The great automobile industry was represented by A. W. Bell, of Oshawa, who apeared for the General Motors, Durant, Dodge, Studebaker and Chrysler Companies. The commodity rate was $4.80 cwt. car load lots of 20,000 lbs.; the ordinary rate would be $5.92 1-2. The rate from Detroit to Vancouver was $4.65. Asked whether the business could not be handled by water, witness said the water route was all right for export but for inland trade the delays would be too great. Any increase in rates would give an advantage to the American dealers and probably would lead the the companies he represented to ship their coast orders from their California centres instead of from the Canadian centres.

There still remains about ten witnesses to be examined and the indications are that these will be disposed of this week when the railway will have the right of way to submit their side to the Board.

PAST PRECEPTOR RECEIVES CANE

W. I. Stillman Honored on Completion of Term in Chairmanship.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19.—A gold headed cane was presented to W. I. Stillman, Past Preceptor of Golgotha Preceptory 381 R.H.P., Campbellford, on Monday evening. The following address was read:

Dear Sir Knight:

Another year has rolled around, and we recall with pleasure and satisfaction the period of your leadership of this chapter, which has just been brought to a close. Your zeal for the promotion of the principles of our order, and your untiring interest in the work of our local preceptory, the efficient manner in which you have presided over our deliberations, have won for you a warm place in our affections. As a small token of appreciation of your efforts, we ask you to accept this walking stick, which we trust will in years to come, serve to remind you of the pleasant associations in Golgotha Preceptory. Our hope is that you may enjoy many years of service in the noble cause for which we are banded together.

J. A. Jeffs, Preceptor; J. I. Adams, Registrar, and R. J. Bibby, P.P.

At the meeting the Grand Master of Ontario East, S. T. Kerr of Belleville, paid his official visit. After the close of the meeting the Sir Knights went to Elliotts restaurant were a splendid banquet was served, after which Sir Knight J. A. Jeffs acted as Toastmaster, and the following toasts were duly proposed and honored,

The King and The Empire.

Grand Lodge, proposed by Past Preceptor J. I. Adams and responded to by Grand Master S. T. Kerr, who told of its functions and activities in an interesting and instructive address.

Golgotha Preceptor was proposed by Past Preceptor W. I. Stillman, who emphasized the progress made by the local branch during the past year. This was responded to by Sir Knight H. Spencer, who prophesized a banner year for the preceptory, after the amalgamation of the two Orange Lodges, as there would be a number of candidate for the order.

BISHOPS TRYING TO HEAL SPLIT

But London Paper Says Their Decisions Will Not Succeed.

CHANGES IN BOOK

By ROBERT J. PREW,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(Special Cable to Universal Service).—The split in the Church of England will not be healed by the decisions reached regarding the revision of the prayer book, according to the Sunday Express. The conference of bishops which has been sitting in London under the Archbishop of Canterbury has been secret, and no communication has been given to the press, but it is declared the bishops have decided to allow:

1.—Prayers for the dead.

2.—Reservation of sacrament.

3.—Changes in the consecration prayer in the communion service.

4.—A slight alteration in the Black Rubric making the anti-transubstantiation phrases less offensive to Anglo-Catholics.

5.—Deletion of "offensive phrases" from the baptismal and marriage services.

Provision is also made for the omission of the service "denouncing God's anger and judgment against sinners." The sacrament will be allowed to be reserved but it must not be exhibited or placed in the church so that it can be worshipped. The reserved sacrament will be placed in a pyx and service of adoration will be forbidden.

All the proposed changes and additions to the prayerbook are permissive and not obligatory. Parliament will have to approve the new prayerbook after the church leaders have agreed upon the changes.

Women's Simpler Hygiene

More Absorbent—
Discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

ALL the problems of old-time hygienic ways have recently been ended, largely because of a new way called KOTEX.

Kotex discards as easily as tissue. Thus no laundry, no embarrassment of disposal.

Being 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads," you wear lightest gowns and frocks without slightest fear. Deodorizes, too, thus ending all fear of offense.

Obtain at any store without embarrassment simply by saying "KOTEX." Many stores have it already wrapped on counters, ready for you to pick up and take along without even asking for it.

Try today and you'll never again risk the uncertainty of old ways. Box of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

CAVAN DISTRICT L.O.L. MEETING

Officers Elected by Other Bodies at Millbrook During Week.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, Jan. 19.—The annual meeting of Cavan District L.O.L. was held on Tuesday afternoon, with a representative number of delegates in attendance.

Reports were received from the various Lodges and these were of an encouraging character, financially and otherwise.

P.D.M.—Bro. Chas. Dunn.
D.M.—Bro. William Lynn.
D.D.M.—Bro. Wesley Fallis.
Chaplain—Bro. J. L. Byam.
Secretary—Bro. Jas. Roddy.
Treasurer—Bro. M. Todd.
D. of C.—Bro. A. V. Thorne.
Lecturemen—Bro. W. Williamson and W. Francey.

The County L.O.L. meets here in February for its annual gathering.

The Men's Adult Bible Class of the United Church Sunday School held its annual meeting after the Sunday session, and elected its officers for the ensuing year as follows:

President—Mr. L. W. Smith.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. A. J. Henderson.
Secretary—Mr. F. McMahon.
Treasurer—Mr. G. E. Burnham.

Mrs. (Dr.) Rea is the teacher of the class, taking the place of her sister, Mrs. A. Hampton, who held this position for several years until ill health compelled her resignation. There were over twenty members present on Sunday.

Sleighing Party.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church held a sleighing party as a feature of its last regular meeting, over thirty being in attendance.

Those who could not be accomodated in the sleighs remained at the parish hall and enjoyed music, games, etc., and had the hot supper ready when the others returned. Baked beans, brown bread and butter, tomato sauce, pie, tea and coffee comprised the bill of fare.

Rev. P. C. and Mrs. Howard were in charge for the evening, and were signally successful in planning the affair and seeing that all details were happily carried out.

Mr. H. Jordan is president of the A.Y.P.A. and Mrs. W. Hilton secretary.

The "Wide Awakes" C.G.I.T. group held its annual meeting on Sunday afternoon, following the school session, and received encouraging reports of the year's work.

The group has at present 18 members, though some are going away to school, and taking business positions, and new members must be recruited. The attendance at the meetings during the year was gratifying, and the interest shown active and sustained.

Two members were sent to the C.G.I.T. training camp at Beausoleil Island, Georgian Bay, in August, and the group contributed to the repair fund of the Ladies' Aid when the church was renovated; to the church thankoffering; sent a child from Toronto to the Fresh Air camp at Whitby; and provided programmes in the senior league once a month through the season, besides assisting in other ways with the church activites during the year.

At Christmas time the group presented its leader with a case of toilet articles, the gift being highly valued and appreciated. The regular meeting night will be changed to Tuesday instead of Wednesday, leaving the latter free for "Church Night" which has been recently introduced as a congregational gathering.

The officers for 1927 are:

President—Hazel McMahon.
Vice-Pres.—Elinor Fallis.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Elsie Spence.
Secretary—Wilma Fallis.
Treasurer—Elvira Davis.
Herald—Jean Stinson.
Pianist—Annie McMahon.

The group is making a quilt, as one of its missionary activities, to send to Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary teacher at the boarding-school for Ruthenian children, Wahstao, Alberta.

The thermometer reached its lowest point, locally, for this winter, on Saturday morning when it registered thirty degrees below zero; the mercury hovered round ten below all day, and touched twenty-two below by Sunday morning. However during the day the weather moderated considerably, and by evening it was quite pleasant to be out of doors.

Mrs. J. Perrin, of Peterboro, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Dawson last week. The many friends of Mrs. James Dawson will be glad to learn that she is able to be about again after her recent illness.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—Possibilities that Argentina will buy 37,000,000 bushels of wheat in order to aid Argentine farmers give an upward tilt to wheat prices yesterday. Wheat closed strong 3-4c to 1 1-4c net higher; corn at 3-8c to 5-8c gain; oats showing 3-8 and 1-2 to 3-4c advance, and provisions varying 5c decline to a rise of 50c.

Unfavorable weather and higher prices for competitive feed stuffs, especially cotton seed and cotton seed meal, helped to lift both corn and oats.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 10,000; best heavies and yearlings $12.00; most short feed $9.00 to $10.00; best stockers and feeders $7.00 to $8.00; bulls, strong; vealers $1.00 higher; packers paying $12.00 to $13.25; outsiders $14.00 to $15.00.

Hogs 36,000; top $12.25; medium strong weight butchers largely $12.05 to $12.10; few sales $12.00 and slightly under; bulk packing sows $11.00 to $11.25; few downward to $10.75 or below; pig demand narrow. Most sales $12.00 to $12.15.

Sheep 23,000; top fed westerns to shippers $13.25; packer top $13.00; choice heavyweights $12.75; extreme weights around $11.50; fat ewes $6.00 to $7.50.

Two Complete Heads On Calf In Tennessee

KINGSPORT, Tenn., Jan. 18.—(Universal Service).—A live calf with two heads, four eyes and four ears is being exhibited here by a Hawkins County farmer. It will probably live. The freak weighs about 40 pounds.

A MATTER OF DAYS, NOT MONTHS.

White flannels, tennis, golf, the joy of a headlong plunge into tepid ocean waters, the lazy luxury of basking on sunlit silver sands, and all the delights of the open road are days away—not months. Canada's Pacific Coast and California are revelling in summer pleasures. Flowers are blooming, birds are singing, the cry of "Fore' wafts o'er the breeze.

Go to the coast and shed your overcoat and chilblains. Nature is always gentle to this, her favorite daughter, and those who woo her share in gentleness. Lush green grass, roses, orange blossoms, palms; just think of it!

Many Unique Trades Found In Royal Warrant List

LONDOO, Jan. 19. (United Press). — King George and Queen Mary lead an ideally happy married life, but they can't agree on a single chiropodist. A list of royal warrant-holders — trades people and others who sell goods to or serve the royal family in various ways — reveals that the King's chiropodist is Mary Kelly, while the Queen's is a man, Ernest C. V. Runting.

Warrant holders, besides hundreds of ordinary trades people, include kilt makers, taxidermists, tombstone carvers, book and eye manufacturers, invalid furniture makers, pie makers, peppermint stick candy makers, and manufacturers of wine corks.

The Best Laxative He Ever Tried

Mr. W. J. Davies, New York, writes: "Sick headache, indigestion and constipation have troubled me for years. I tried everything but I can truthfully say your CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS is the best laxative I have ever used. I find that they are small, easy to take and their action does not pain me. They keep me regular and I want to tell you how I appreciate this purely vegetable medicine, knowing, due to my experience in laboratory work that laxatives, containing Mercury, Calomel and other poisonous drugs are injurious."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are sugar coated, small, easy to swallow, and everyone in the family can take them in perfect confidence as they are a doctor's own formula.

THREATEN LIVES OF AMERICANS

Anonymous Letters Warn Them of Danger if Calles Stays in Office.

U. S. BLAMED

(By GEORGE W. HINMAN, Jr., Universal Service Staff Correspondent. Special Cable Dispatch.)

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—Threatening letters warning them that if the Calles regime is in power at the end of January their lives and properties will pay the penalty, have been received by various American business houses in Mexico City.

The letters assert that Calles was placed in power by the United States—apparently referring to the support given to Obregon and Calles by Washington during the DeLa-Huerta revolution three years ago—and intimate that if Calles remains in office for the next fifteen days, the United States is responsible.

The threats are typewritten on plain white stationery and were mailed in plain sealed envelopes within the capital. The letters are signed ironically, C.R.O.M.—the initial of the local labor organization which supports Calles.

The warnings assert that dynamite will be used against the Americans.

ter wheat grades of flour was again of a limited character, but valdes were well maintained.

The undertone to the market for all lines of millfeed was firm under a continued good demand. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was only fair and prices ruled steady.

The egg market was without any special feature to note, the trade being inactive and prices steady. The receipts were 894 cases.

A moderate amount of business was done in potatoes and prices were unchanged. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.85 to $1.90 per bag, and Quebec White stock at $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The butter trade was quiet but firm. The receipts were 43 packages.

Extreme dullness marked the cheese trade and values were steady.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

A spasm of fear, not only of the automatic, but of the man he was about to betray, twitched the ill-assorted, greasy features of Pete's face.

"How do you expect a guy to think with a gun liable to go off in his stummick any minute?"

Bob took his finger off the trigger and removed it a careful inch from contact with the frayed old red sweater. "Now, spill it! You've wasted time enough. Expecting your boss to arrive any minute to help you out of a tight fix, eh?"

"Naw," growled Pete. "He ain't showin' his mug around this dump. Got too much sense; might get cocker-burrs in his golf panties," he grinned evilly, casting a blinking glance around the desolate, weed-grown vacant lots that edged the road. "Alex Cluny gimme this job, and Lola's workin' for him, too. Now laff that off! He's your cousin, ain't he?"

"Alexander Cluny!" Bob Hathaway ejaculated, the gun almost dropping from his suddenly relaxed hand. "Pete, if you're lying I'll string you up to that oak tree there by your toes."

Cherry tore open the door of the car and sprang to Bob's side. "It's the truth, Bob! I've suspected it all along. Say, Pete, how did Lola get in on this party?" she demanded flippantly.

"She was sore on you, see?" he spoke to Cherry. "Jealous. She was Chris Wiley's sweetie before he took up with you an' give her the sir, an' then you horned in with old man Cluny, who'd fired her because he seen his son, Alex Cluny, kissin' her. She was jes' workin' up a pretty little side graft with Alex, but you come along an' copped off a sparkler from the old guy. Can't expect her to be crazy over you, can you?"

Cherry tossed up her head and laughed. Bob frowned at her, and Faith clenched her hands in helpless embarrassment and anger.

"N then, after you'd got the old boy roped in, you butted in with Chris Wiley again, jes' as him an' Lola was whoopin' it up again, lovin' as you please. Chris didn't give her the gate, like you made him promise he would, but he kep' on seein' her on the sly, and when he'd get drunk enough he'd tell her the low-down on him an' you, see?"

"I see!" Cherry's eyes blazed like molten balls of gold. "Swell sister you've got, Pete. But clever, I'll tell the palpitating world. Now, how did she make this tie-up with Alexander Cluny?"

Oddly enough, Pete Gonzales did not seem to resent Cherry's angry summing up of his precious sister.

Bob Hathaway saw and understood that upleaping of evil desire and turned almost roughly to Cherry. "Get back in the car. I'll do the talking."

Cherry whisked away, to cuddle down in the seat beside Faith, who was innocently bewildered by Bob's and Cherry's behaviour.

"Now, Pete," Bob began sharply. "Tell me how you happened to go to work for Alexander Cluny."

"Him an' Lola was seein' each other now and again—he was sure sweet on her—an' she told him some of the dirt Chris had been spillin' about Cherry—"

"Miss Lane!" Bob corrected sharply, his blue eyes snapping dangerously.

"About Miss Lane," Pete amended sullenly, "an' he let it out to Lola how sore him an' the rest o' the Clunys was about the old guy's gettin' engaged to Ch—Miss Lane. He had the hunch to put a detective on Miss Lane's trail, so's he could pick up a lot o' dirt to pop under the old boy's nose.

"But Lola, she was wise! She told him it was a bum steer, an' that he'd better give me the job, 'cause a real detective might squeal later an' make it hot for him, seein' as how he's messin' around in politics. An' then she eased out on her own scheme, to write them poison pen letters, as you call 'em, to Miss Lane, an' scare the liver outa her.

"I guess Alex Cluny ain't none too crazy about you, Mr. Hathaway, 'cause it was his idee to have her write them letters in your office, on your paper, so's they could be traced to you in case Miss Lane was smart enough to trace 'em at all. Lola was to swear you dictated 'em to her an' she had to write 'em or lose her job."

"I see!" Bob spoke through clenched teeth.

"The old snake in the grass!" Cherry hissed like a character in a melodrama.

"Alex Cluny gimme twenty bucks a day for my work, an' Lola pulled down a grand for writing them letters, lessen she's lyin' to me, an' it was more. Dirt cheap for a thousand, I says."

"All right, Pete. I'm taking you to town with me, and we'll call on my esteemed cousin, Mr. Alexander Cluny."

"No, sir, not me! I ain't ready to commit suicide!" Pete Gonzales ducked as though to run away.

"Come back here, Pete, or I'll shoot your feet off! Cherry, you'll have to drive. Faith, I'm sorry, but you'll have to sit in the little seat that pulls out in the rear. And Pete, you will sit between Miss Lane and me, and if you make a false move, I'll shoot."

(To be continued.)

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Here is the Persian bonnet worn in the evening by a well-dressed woman. It is embroidered with spangles and beads.

* * *

Writers on fashion matters in Paris speak of the new evening toques as a matter of course. There no longer seems to be the slightest question as to the fact that hats are again worn in the evening, though in this country they are still rather rare. The sphinx toque, the Persian bonnet and the Oriental turban run a close race for popularity—and of course where the most eager followers of fashion foregather in this country these various evening head coverings are to be found.

One really wonders whether some women do not wear them—or at least did not begin to wear them—for much the same reason that bald men sometimes wear little silk skull caps indoors. With the very close-cut shingle one cannot help but feel draughts that circulate round the theaters and restaurants. Through long custom of wearing short hair men can stand it apparently unless they are actually bald—but the woman who for years was accustomed to long hair and then for a few years to bobbed hair sometimes feels the need of more protection at the back of her head than is provided by the sort of close-cut head that hairdressers now bestow upon us.

These evening hats are also a blessing to that apparently numerous proportion of the feminine population who are letting their hair grow. There are always women of this sort even in Paris, though the chances are that after they have gone through the annoyance of letting it grow they will have it off again. But while it is betwixt and between they find comfort in these evening hats. Then there are occasions when no matter what the length of one's hair may be it simply does not look right. There is not time enough to get it back into good shape again—but there is an evening toque or bonnet on a closet shelf that will cover all but the tips of the earlocks. For this reason these little evening hats have been called the busy woman's best friend.

The evening caps or toques as we now see them seem to be eminently a winter fashion. But already the milliners are making evening caps that are well suited to warmer weather. There are little caps of light-weight gold lace and some of them have narrow brims.

PLEBES PLAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Plebes play when the cadets are away. That was the rule during the Christmas holidays at the United States Military Academy when 700 cadets left for the annual Christmas vacation which ended January 2. The first-year men are not allowed to leave, so they had the house to themselves.

REGULAR MEETING CHILDREN'S AID

Resignations Are Accepted For Mr. and Mrs. David Rogers.

At the regular meeting of the Children's Aid Society yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. David Rogers tendered their resignations as caretaker and matron respectively of the children's shelter, the resignation to take place the first of April. These were accepted and the society expressed their hearty appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Rogers for the high services which they have rendered in the past. It was decided to advertise for a new caretaker and matron.

There was considerable discussion about the manner of bookkeeping used and many of the members thought it was very poor financing to borrow from one account to put the money in another and they recommended that this procedure be stopped.

The firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry notified the secretary that in the estate of G. Walter Greene was $500 for the Society.

At present in the Shelter there are 16 children and during the month there were 15 applications. For the month 8 children were admitted as not wards and four returned being not wards, with 2 being made wards.

The society has $112.83 in their Christmas cheer fund, and it was passed that the same be held in that fund until next year.

The following accounts were passed and ordered paid:

Women of Canada Pay Striking Tribute to Aluminum — —the Modern Metal

FROM Windsor, Ontario, to Hudson's Bay, from Halifax to the Rockies, RED ROSE TEA within the last few weeks has scored an extraordinary increase in sales.

It is because we have stopped using paper packages, and are again packing this finest of teas in the old, familiar Aluminum package of years ago.

The reception it has been given demonstrates beyond all doubt that housewives of Canada recognize Aluminum as the perfect container.

For more than thirty years we have been experimenting with packages — trying lead, paper and Aluminum—seeking always a material that would protect and be worthy of Red Rose quality.

But it was only after Red Rose had been offered to the public in all these packages—first lead, then Aluminum, then paper—that the great advantages of Aluminum were proven.

Aluminum keeps out moisture, preserves the flavor and protects the quality. Paper packages, on the contrary, absorb moisture which occasionally impairs the quality.

So now and in the future RED ROSE TEA will be packed in the Aluminum package, as it was in years gone by.

The Last Laugh

Costume Recital

(By Jeanette)

An exceptionally interesting programme was presented in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, filled to capacity for the Costume Recital given by the pupils of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park. This was a very attractive recital, and was arranged with an eye to effectiveness, in such a way as to make the somewhat lengthy programme entertaining from start to finish. The stage setting followed out the scheme of the late Jacobite Recital, with dark hangings, a living room interior, and lighted candles as illumination. With a darkened hall, a spotlight on the performers, whose dainty frocks added much to the decorative effect, both in the first portion of the recital and in the costumed second section, and a variety of songs that were appropriate, in every instance, to the vocal abilities and temperament of the singers, the general impression of the recital was pleasing in the extreme.

Accompaniments for the evening were played by Mrs. Park and Miss Agnes Logan, both of whom received floral tributes, as did several of the soloists. The pupils sang with ease and assurance, demonstrating the excellent training in tone placing and articulation imparted to them by their teacher. They were "made up" for the costume portion of the recital by Mr. H. Lush and Mr. R. Flitton operated the spotlight machine.

The programme opened with two quartette numbers: "Soft Music" and "An Indian Lullaby," sung by Mrs. H. Doig, Mrs. I. Clark, Miss M. Dickson of Campbellford, and Miss B. Hill. Solos were then given as follows: Miss Margaret Wolstenholme, "Soul of Mine"; Miss Mary Jory, "I Heard You Singing"; Miss Daisy Davidson, "The Piper of Love"; Mrs. Ida Clark, "Evening Boat Song"; Mrs. Fred Free of Campbellford, "Sink, Red Sun"; Miss Freda Allison, "Tiptoe"; Miss Addie Batten, "Be Still, Blackbird"; Miss Jean Padgett "Elf and Fairy"; Miss Kathleen Conner of Campbellford, "Sleep Song"; Miss Helen Lytle, "The Answer"; Miss Helen Lamb, "Vissi d'Arte," from "La Tosca"; Miss Bertha Hill, "If There Were Dreams to Sell"; Miss Daisy Murray "Elsa's Dream" from "Lohengrin"; Miss Geraldine Collins, "Robert! toi que j'aime," from "Robert le Diable"; Miss Emma Meiklejohn of Campbellford, "My Heart is Weary"; Mrs. H. F. Doig, "Ah! mon fils," from "Le Prophete"; and Miss M. Dickson, "Waltz Song" from "Romeo et Juliette."

The applause which followed each of the solo numbers was also accorded the very attractive Costume Recital of songs which followed, each singer wearing a dress appropriate to the selection rendered. "May Day at Islington," a song of Old London, was a pleasing introduction, sung in excellent voice by Miss Addie Batten, wearing a soft blue frock with white fichu. A Welsh Folk Song, "All Through the Night," was given very effectively by Miss May Jory, who wore a quaint Welsh costume, with green, red and black striped skirt, tight bodice and tall black hat over a frilled white cap. In emerald green and white, with shamrock-sprigged apron, Miss Margaret Wolstenholme made a bright Irish colleen, singing the old favorite, "Kitty of Coleraine" and "Loch Lomond" was a softly sung selection by Miss Helen Lamb, with a Scotch plaid over her long white dress and huge cairngorm buckle on her shoulder. Miss Freda Allison was a picturesque mid-Victorian lady in a shell-pink gown with wide lace frill and poke bonnet with black velvet strings. She sang "Fairings," a song of the country fairs, and Mrs. Ida Clark, who followed her, was another picture-book damsel, singing "Vanity Fair," in a rose pink ruffled crinoline gown, with feathered bonnet and old-fashioned nosegay with paper frill.

Miss Jean Padgett made a fetching small girl, in a short pink costume, with big hair bow, singing "Fairyland," and Miss Bertha Hill was one of the hits of the evening, in a jaunty "Jackie Coogan" outfit, with overalls, white shirt, lop-sided cap and red handkerchief, singing in comic fashion, a juvenile number, "The Three Foxes."a A dainty figure was that of Miss Daisy Davidson, in a Watteau shepherdess outfit, complete with flat "pancake" hat and tall crook, singing "The Little Damozel," and two colorful Geisha ladies, with bright-hued kimonas and obis, their hair garnished with huge 'munis, were Mrs. H. F. Doig and Miss Kathleen Conner of Campbellford, singing "A Small Japanese," and "A Japanese Farewell."

In lovely Early Victorian costume, with flounced voluminous skirts of pale rose pink, black lace bodice and a rose in her hair, Miss Helen Lytle sang "In 1892," and Mrs. Fred Free of Campbellford, gowned in peasant style in black, with a blue sash and hair kerchief, holding a sickle, gave, in splendid, full voice, the song of the soil, "Reaping." Miss Geraldine Collins' attractive voice was heard to much advantage in "The Gypsy Love Song," the singer wearing a gay Romany costume of red and white, with black velvet jacket and red head scarf. The interesting voice of Miss Margaret Dickson was displayed in "The Second Minuet," gowned in a court-lady costume, with brown silk panniers over a green skirt, a tight bodice and powdered wig.

A very interesting recital was brought to a close with a beautifully-sung rendition of the Fisher Song, "The Keel Row," by Miss Daisy Murray and Miss Emma Meiklejohn of Campbellford, the two fine voices blending perfectly in the robust, full-voiced measures. The two singers were attired in fisher-girl outfits, with kilted skirts, white blouses and bandana scarfs.

Her Little Boy Caught Cold While Out Playing

Mrs. F. Cade, Elmwood, Man., writes:—"My little boy caught cold while out playing in the snow. He coughed incessantly all that night and the next day, and nothing I gave him seemed to relieve him. When my husband came home he brought a bottle of with him. After the second dose my boy was greatly relieved and after the third dose he went to sleep and slept the whole night through without any coughing. I am never without it in the house, and whenever any of the children get the slightest cold it's the first thing I give them."

Remedy For Lame Back And Poor Circulation

So Says Winslow Hughson of Dodd's Kidney Pills

New Brunswick Veteran Speaks Highly of Canada's Premier Kidney Remedy.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 19.—(Special).—"I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills for several years to keep me well," writes Winslow Hughson, of 180 Adelaide St., St. John, N.B. "About three years ago I had a lame back and poor circulation of blood in my feet and legs. I began taking your Dodd's Kidney Pills and they relieved me and have kept me well ever since. I have also taken your Diamond Dinner Pills for constipation and they cannot be beaten for what they are recommended.

Dodd's Kidney Pills simply strengthen and heal the kidneys. The work of the kidneys is to strain all the waste matter out of the blood. If the kidneys are out of order they fail to do their work, and the waste matter remains in the blood, causing serious diseases.

UNITED DOMINION URGED BY KIWANIAN

Development of National Sentiment Great Need of Canada.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—The development of a united Dominion and the fostering of Canadian national sentiment, as the one great need of Canada at the present time, was urged by Arthur B. Ford, of London, Ontario, former Lieutenant-Governor of Kiwanis International, at the celebration by Toronto Kiwanis Club to-day of the twelfth anniversary of the founding of the organization.

Mr. Ford pointed out that good citizenship was the first objective of the organization for 1926-27. It was very fitting from the Canadian standpoint, he said, that this objective should stand out prominently, in this sixtieth year of the anniversary of Confederation. The Kiwanis committee on public affairs has recommended that the organization should assist in celebrating Confederation and in emphasizing what Canadian citizenship stands for.

LABOR RECEIVES CONFIDENCE U.F.A.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—At last night's session of the United Farmers of Alberta Convention here, the gathering re-affirmed its friendship toward organized Labor, and a resolution carried by an unanimous vote expressing the hope that the two bodies would continue to co-operate politically in both the Federal and Provincial field.

Another resolution was adopted recommending that the U.F.A. members at Ottawa, preserve their identity as a distinct U.F.A. unit in the next House of Commons.

THE MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA REPORT.

The largest net earnings in its history is the proud record of The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada for 1926, as shown by its Fifty-seventh Annual Statement, published today.

The year was also rendered distinctive by the writing of the largest volume of new business in the Company's history, totalling slightly over fifty million dollars, and by the reduction in the ratio of expense to income to the lowest point in the Company's history, namely, 15.11%.

The net earnings of the Company in 1926 amounted to $4,141,375.70, an increase over the preceding year of $344,393.29. This amount is the most important item in the entire statement, inasmuch as in it all the transactions of the year are involved. The surplus or net earnings constitute the final result of the year's business and the Policyholders who constitute the Company will benefit exclusively.

"Although The Mutual Life of Canada has long had a reputation as an economically-managed Company, the management succeeded in bettering all previous records in this respect in 1926, when the ration of expense to income decreased from 15.23% to 15.11%. This showing is all the more remarkable when it is considered in conjunction with the fact that no less than $50,039,348 of new assurance was issued during 1926, an increase of $4,465,771 over the preceding year and constituting the largest volume of new business written in the Company's history.

The writing of such a volume of new business necessarily meant a large outlay and the reduction of the expense ration, in the light of this showing, is all the more gratifying.

The net increase in business in force of $31,540,437 was also the largest in the Company's history, leaving the total of policies in force at $354,069,722, after allowing for terminations amounting to $24,334,256.

Altogether, the Policyholders of The Mutual Life of Canada have reason to look back upon 1926 as a crowning year and may reasonably look forward to 1927 as likely to equal, if not surpass, its predecessor, as all signs point to marked prosperity during the year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee, in which the Company completes its fifty-seventh year.

Wheat Takes Setback Liverpool Quotations Lower

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—Indications that no definite steps have been taken to prevent low prices in Argentine exports gave wheat an early setback today. Liverpool quotations lower than due added to the downward trend here. Starting at 1-4 cents off to 1-4 cents up, Chicago wheat underwent a general decline.

Corn and oats were easy, provisions firm; Corn opening unchanged to 1-8 cent higher, but then receding.

Toronto Market Strong Brazilian Being Featured

TORONTO, Jan. 19.— (Canadian Press.)— Brazilian Traction held the limelight on the Toronto stock exchange to-day, the Traction issuing being the leader in activity and gaining 1 1-2 at 107 3-4. The market generally was strong and gains were recorded in the majority of stocks. Canadian Canners preferred was up 3-8 at 79 3-8, and Canadian Pacific Railway 1-2 higher at 168, while Massey Harris common gained a full point at 69 1-2. Among the weaker issues, International Nickle dropped 3-8 to 40 1-2 in fairly heavy dealing, while Abitibi was 1-2 lower at 85 3-4. On the unlisted side, Gooderham and Worts declined 1-8 at 43 7-8. Seagram was down 1-4 at 16 1-2, while Hiram Walker gained 1-8 at 32 1-8 and International Petroleum was also up 1-8 at 23 1-2. A gain of four points in Bank of Commerce featured the bank stocks, the issue closing the morning session at 248. Dominion Bank was 1-2 up at 225 1-2.

Mining Market Slackens With Most Shares Weak

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (Canadian Press).—While more than half a million shares changed hand, business was not so brisk on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day as it has been for some time. There were 552,622 shares dealt in, compared with an average of 700,000 for the past week.

The market to-day was weak, losses outnumbering gains. Area Mines declined 2½ at 62. Barry Hollinger was one lower at 92, and Cons. W. D. Lake was 1 3-4 lower at 14¼. Duprat also shared the decline, being two lower at 23. Lake Shore down four at 1785, Laval-Quebec two at 36, and Wright Hargraves down 15 cents at 985, were among the weaker stocks. Tough Oakes was up 1½ at 62. Noranda on the unlisted market dropped 50 cents at 21.45, and Amulet was down three at 167.

BOB-SPEAKER CRISIS FORCED BY COMMISSIONER

Calls Johnson and Other American League Owners Before Him Jan. 24.

SIFTS NEWS STORY.

Report That Former Leaders Were Forever Banned Prompts Move.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—K. M. Landis challenged the American League tonight to tell the public why Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker have been forced out of organized baseball.

The $65,000 a year ruler of baseball couches his challenge in a request to Ban Johnson, veteran President of the league, and the eight club owners to meet him on Jan. 24. The meeting place is to be the Congress Hotel and the time is to be 11 o'clock.

Landis announces that the purpose of the meeting will be to bare all the facts connected with the American League's expulsion of Cobb and Speaker. He admits that he has nothing on the case save the Dutch Leonard letters, the testimony of Cobb, Speaker, Joe Wood and Fred C. West, and a statement by Leonard. All this has been published.

Landis Breaks Silence.

Judge Landis' call to the American League club owners is his first public comment on the Cobb and Speaker case. When he released the testimony he refused to discuss it, and since that time he has continued his reticence.

Landis' statement follows:

"Judge J. O. Murfin, representing Tyrus R. Cobb, and also acting in behalf of W. M. Boyd, representing Tris Speaker, called to see me today concerning a newspaper article of Jan. 13, 1927."

The article to which Landis refers was published in The Chicago Tribune. The excerpt to which Landis refers follows:

"The Cobb and Speaker case was put up to one of organized baseball's leaders. And yesterday he made the first statement that has been made of the American League's attitude toward its two ex-managers. He refuses to allow his name to be used at this time.

Said They Could Never Play.

" 'Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb never again will play ball or manage an American League club,' he said. 'They were given positions of trust and they failed to keep that trust. No matter what Landis rules, the American League won't have them. Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker have been offered public hearings. Each of them declined. In view of that, the public itself can answer the question whether the legal fight Cobb's and Speaker's attorneys have been talking about will materialize.'

"And this much more was learned: 'The American League's investigation of the conduct of the two managers began two years ago. The result of the investigation has not been published. The testimony, the two letters turned over to Frank Navin, President of the Detroit Tigers, by Hubert Leonard, and the statements which Leonard made to Landis, form only a small part of the data held by organized baseball in the Cobb and Speaker cases. And organized ball is said to be hoping that it will not be forced to publish all that data. Only court action, it is said, may force the publication.' "

O. H. A. BULLETIN

Lindsay Juniors have defaulted their remaining game in Group No. 2, section B. Peterboro Juniors are section winners, and will play off with Lakefield or Lakefield School for the group championship.

Bowmanville Intermediates have dropped out of Group No. 2 with three more games to play, two with Peterboro and one with Picton. Port Hope and Oshawa are undefeated in this group.

COULDN'T EXPLAIN.

Oscar Stanage, veteran catcher of the Detroit club, and who was with the Leafs several seasons ago, who, when he was asked how it was that the Chicago club stole twenty-four bases on him in the memorable series in 1917, answered that he couldn't explain it, but that it had been done before.

BRISTLING BATTLES of BARE FIST DAYS

(MY LIFE STORY)

by Jack McAuliffe

(Copyright 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

Fighters were treated like dogs in those days.

I was matched to fight Jack Hopper, the man who hit me a terrible blow above my cheek bone in our first fight and paralyzed my mind so I could not remember a single thing that happened for four rounds. We were to meet in back of the Cedarhurst country club. It was February 27 (I believe) in 1886, late at night.

My, how the cold, raw wind blew. Our teeth were chattering, our fares blue. Twenty of New York's biggest swells, all great men from Wall Street, were in the clubhouse eating and drinking before a warm fire when we reached the building.

We tried to get in the clubhouse to get warm.

"No fighters in here," said the bull at the door. "Stay out and freeze for all I care. And you don't get nothing to eat either."

We went over to the grandstand in the darkness and huddled together until one by one taking their sweet time, the swells came out to see us.

We stripped our clothes off and it's a wonder we didn't catch pneumonia! A thin layer of ice coated the water bucket held by my brother Con.

Hopper and I started off at a fast pace to keep warm. Every time we drew a quick deep breath it seemed like a million needles were piercing our lungs. The swells sat in their seats and, protected by heavy blankets, watched us maul each other while the wind cut to the bone. Hopper and I each put up $250 side bet and all fights then were on a winner-take-all basis.

I can remember one of the swells yelling "300 Hopper doesn't last three more rounds."

I gritted my teeth, angered at the whole affair. Angered at the terrible treatment given us when we applied for food and warmth early in the night and angered at the foppish swells whom we were amusing.

I purposely laid back for three rounds and the swell lost his bet. There was a well-known scion of a wealthy and prominent New York family there. He was born without arms or legs and two servants set him on top of a barrel and between rounds they'd carry him over near a fire and then back again.

Then after the gruelling pace and all the hardships we had just put our clothes on and were sitting down, half famished, to eat when the cry of "Police" echoed across the frosty air!

NOTE: In the next chapter McAuliffe tells of his exciting experiences in Boston and how an opponent gave him $5 so he wouldn't run out on a match and how he spent the whole $5 on steaks to keep from starving to death.

MILL DEFEATED BY CLERKS IN CAMPBELLFORD TOWN LEAGUE

Are Shoved Into Bottom Place of League By Loss.

OVERTIME PLAY.

Midgets Play Ten Minutes' Overtime Without Reaching Decision.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19—The Clerks and Mill battled through one hour and 20 minutes of exciting hockey at Covert's Arena Monday night, before the Red, White and Blue finally shoved the Mill into the cellar position of the Town Hockey league. The midget game also went ten minutes overtime without a decision and the fans had a real night of it.

The senior game was the most exciting of the Town league season and was featured by end to end rushes by both teams, but the attacks were either wrecked on the goalers' pads or by something going wrong at the critical moment and they battled through the first period without a score.

The Mill were using a nice combination to carry the puck to the Clerk end while the Clerks relied on their good stickhandling and speed to get within shooting distance and each team had about equal opportunities to score with the Clerks doing the harder shooting.

The second period was three quarters gone when Brown came down alone and shot from outside the defence to beat Fox and the way the teams were going, that one goal lead looked big enough to earn the decision for the Mill, but three minutes after the third period got under way, Wood slipped down the south board, and drilled one past Stewart for the equalizer, and the teams battled on for the goal that would keep them out of the cellar but the checking was close and both goalers were performing in fine style and the winning goal failed to materialize in the regulation playing time.

When the teams came back for the overtime they cut out a faster clip than ever and the puck travelled from end to end amid wild cheers from the fans. Near the end of the first five minutes Ayrhart batted the puck into the Clerk net from a scramble, and after they changed over Brown came down on a fast rush and shot. Fox stopped the shot with his body but it fell to the ice and rolled into the net to make it 3 to one for the Mill and two minutes to go. Some of the crowd started for home believing it all over, but they didn't reckon on the fighting spirit of the Clerks or the part lady luck was to play.

The Clerks sent every man up on the attack, and from the face off the puck went to the Mill end; McArthur chased Brown into the corner, secured possession of the rubber, and passed out to McMullen in front. McMullen's shot caromed off Cochrane's stick, into the net and at the next face off, Atkinson grabbed the puck, sailed down the south boards, and rifled the disc in the upper corner of the net to tie up the game again, and the remaining spectators were dumbfounded.

The Mill boys were tiring fast and the Clerks had the better of the final ten minutes. Wood put the Merchandise gang in the lead for the first time during the game, when he grabbed the puck from a face off near the Mill goal and beat Stewart. Then Atkinson put them two up on an end to end rush that was partly halted at the Mill goal, but he regained possession behind the net and brought the puck around to shove it in between Stewart and the goal post. With the two goal lead the Clerks played a smart defensive game and the fast fading Mill boys were held off for the final five minutes. McArthur in checking Brown knocked the Mill defence man's stick out of his hands and Brown resorted to his fist to get even. McArthur dropped his stick and started after Brown but Saunders stepped in between, before any damage had been done. Both drew major penalties.

Ayrhart was a sick boy and unable to display his usual effective game and the Mill were further handicapped when Lambert was hit on the knee with the puck. He was carried off the ice and although he came back later he wasn't the same.

The Clerks payed particular attention to Brown and he wasn't as effective as usual. Wood, McArthur and Labrash were best for the Clerks; Wood in particular playing spectacular hockey.

The Midget game wasn't as good as some the youngsters have played. They were inclined to bunch too much and refused to play their positions as instructed. "Doug" Runions scored for the Bear Cats and Lambert for the Elks.

BOXING NEWS

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Preparing to bring the world middleweight championship back to Europe, an English boxing promoter has sailed for New York to arrange a match with Mickey Walker, holder of the title.

An agreement has been signed at Pontypridd for Frank Moody, Welsh middleweight, well known in America, to meet Roland Todd in London, Feb. 16. It is understood that the winner may meet Tommy Milligan of Scotland, and it is proposed that the winner of this match shall oppose Walker.

Manager John J. McGraw is of the opinion that the Giants' pitching staff next season will be the best the team has had in many years.

GROVE WINS FROM WARSAW

Moore, Hudson and Griffiths Star in Play For Lakefield.

SCORE 10 TO 3.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 19 — Good combination combined with the snappy playing of Moore, Hudson and Griffiths resulted in a 10-3 victory for the local team over Warsaw at Lakefield rink last night. Warsaw lacked team play and but for the work of Bowen would have gone down to greater defeat.

In the first period, Hudson scored for "Grove," closely followed by tallies from Hunt and Northey with the second goal scored by Hudson as the fourth marker Bowen sinks solitary goal for Warsaw.

Second period — Hudson scores after 14 minutes of play and one minute after puts in second tally on the face-off.

Griffiths scores one minute after starter of third period and again one on the face-off. Hudson scored twice and Russaw sank two for Warsaw.

The line-up:

Warsaw—Goal, McLean; defence, Morgan and Bowen; centre, Raffle; right wing, Russaw; left wing, Bell; subs, Ferguson and Darling.

Referee—John Sabatino.

AT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19—The local Curling club will be represented with two rinks in the Ontario Tankard now in progress in Peterborough. They are: J. I. Adams, lead, Geo. O'Sullivan, second, Matt. Mulhearn, vice, and D. E. Tait, skip. Geo. Richardson, lead, R. C. Harold, second, oJhn Gay, vice, and F. J. Smith, skip. Both rinks are likely to give a good account of themselves.

AT MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, Jan. 19 — Four rinks of local curlers went to Peterborough on Monday and took part in the competition for the Neill trophy. The rinks were:

V. R. Hunter, J. A. Vance, R. H. Edmunds, W. E. Ball, played against a rink skipped by Moore, of Peterborough, the score being 7—12, favor of the latter.

G. Raper, G. E. Burnham, W. G. Hetherington, J. Steele, played against Widdess, of Peterborough, score 6—11, favor of the latter:

L. H. Winslow, T. H. Collins, Geo. Hetherington, Ross Edmunds, played gainst Fletcher, of Keene; score 9—8, favor of Millbrook.

The rink skipped by Ross Edmunds played its second game against Chenhall of Peterborough, and lost by a score of 1—20.

W. West, A. Vance, J. E. Allen, G. W. Sayles, played against Alex Kay, of Peterborough, losing in a score of 17—6.

One or two of the local rinks will go in to play in the district cup games, and the local club will also be represented when the annual bonspiel takes place.

HOCKEY NOTES

The final meeting of the Midget City and District League will be held Thursday night at 8 p.m. at St. Peter's H.N.S. rooms, Simcoe street. All teams wishing to enter the league must be represented. Schedule to be drawn up at final meeting.

SKATER BREAKS RECORD OF 1897

Gus Weitzel Sets Mark For Broad Jump on Ice.

22 FEET, 9 INCHES.

DETROIT, Jan. 19.—Gus Weitzel, Michigan running broad jump champion on ice skates, broke a world record at Belle Isle Sunday that has stood since 1897.

Weitzel's leap of 22 feet, 9 inches, was 14 inches better than the old mark established 29 years ago by F. McDaniels, of Minneapolis. It was the first time Weitzel passed the 21 foot mark.

Another state record fell by the wayside, Sunday, when Lloyd Guenther erased the half-mile mark. Guenther's time was 1 minute, 25 seconds, breaking Ray Fritz' 1924 record of 1 minute, 27 2-5 seconds. Leo Bissen was second in this event.

Guenther also took first place in the three-mile, three-quarter mile, the two-mile and was third in the one-mile race.

Eddie Gloster shared honors with Guenther. Gloster won the three sprint events, 100-yard, 200-yard and 440-yard dashes. Charles Delphier was a close second in each event.

OTTAWA BEATEN RIGHT AT HOME BY PITTSBURGH

League Leaders Lose For Third Time This Season—Score 6-1.

MAROONS WIN.

Canadiens and Boston Win From Detroit and Rangers.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 19.—With a terrific attack which started with the opening gong and did not let up until the final whistle the Pittsburg Pirates defeated the Senators of Ottawa 6 goals to 1 here last night. The pace-setters of the National Hockey League had never a chance against the fast skating and neat combination play of the Buccaneer Band. It was only the third time the locals have been trimmed this season.

Pittsburg—Goal, Worters; defence, McKinnon and Langlois; centre, Milks; wings, Darragh and Arbour; subs, Drury, White, McCurry, McGuire, Cotton, R. Smith.

Referees—R. Hewitson, Toronto; W. Bell, Montreal.

Maroons, 2; Americans, 1

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 19.—The Montreal Maroons defeated the New York Americans 2 to 1 last night in a hockey battle which necessitated eight minutes of overtime. Russell Oatman scored the winning counter on a pass out from Reg. Noble, veteran defence man. The game produced an even, gruelling battle with the Americans taking a one-goal lead in the first period only to have the Maroons tie it up in the third and then win out in the extra session.

The usually rough Maroons paid more attention to hockey last night, penalties being few and far between. Each team drew five minors, the Maroons scoring the tieing counter when Alex. McKinnon was in the coop.

BOSTON 7; RANGERS 3.

BOSTON, January 19. — The Boston Bruins went into second place in the National Hockey League race last night by routing the New York Rangers, 7 to 3. Frederickson, centre, recently acquired by Boston from the Detroit Cougars, scored four goals, equalling the record set by Oliver of Boston, early this season. The ten goals scored by both teams made a new league record for a single game. Winkler, formerly goal tender for the Rangers, made his first appearance for Boston against his former team mates and played a brilliant game. The teams:

Boston: Goal, Winkler; defence, Hitchman and Shore; centre, Frederickson; wings, Galbraith and Herberts; subs, Stuart, Meeking, Oliver, W. Boucher, Coutu and Cleghorn.

Rangers: Goal, Chabot; defence, Brown and Abel; centre, F. Boucher, wings, Bun Cook and Bill Cook; subs., Boyd, Rocco, Thompson, Mackay and Murdock.

Referees: Dr. W. J. Laflamme, Toronto, and E. Enwright, Boston.

CANADIENS 5; DETROIT 3.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19. — After coming from behind in the second period to deadlock the score, Detroit Cougars faded before a dazzling Canadian attack in the final session, and were beaten in an intersectional National Hockey League game here last night, 5-3.

The visitors made a gallant bid against the speedy Canadiens, Art Duncan leading the Cougars in the defensive and offensive play. But the Canadien defence was too strong. Detroit's guard faltered, occasionally missing the services of Clem Loughlin, who is out with an injured back.

The United States figure skating championships, originally awarded to New Haven, will probably be transferred to New York because of delay in completing the New Haven Arena.

WOULD NOT TAKE ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

"HERB JUICE is the only medicine for indigestion gas pains, sleeplessness and a general rundown condition," said Mr. S. G. Seager, 218 Bruce Ave., Windsor, Ont. "I was overseas and ever since the Great War I suffered from these complaints. I was losing weight at the rate of three pounds per month. After taking two bottles of HERB JUICE imagine my surprise when my condition began to improve. I continued taking it and gained fifteen pounds in weight. I feel in perfect condition. I would strongly recommend HERB JUICE to anyone suffering from indigestion, constipation, gas pains, stomach or liver trouble. I would not take one hundred dollars for the good HERB JUICE has done me."

PARKDALE LOSES SEE-SAW MATCH

Comes From Behind To Take Two Gaol Lead, Then Loses Out.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—To overcome a two-goal lead, and to be in front, 4—3, with twelve minutes to go in the third period, and then lose out, 5 to 4, was the fate of Parkdale in their Senior O.H.A. game with Galt Terriers at the Arena Gardens last night.

With a two-goal margin in their favor, Parkdale's first victory of the O.H.A. Senior season appeared to be assured, and when it was snatched from their grasp the small crowd in attendance at the game was stunned. It was Parkdale's sixth straight defeat.

The Paddlers were unlucky. As a matter of fact they have not run into a single favorable break during the campaign. Injuries and illness have played havoc with the Watson-coached team.

And it was injuries that took an important part in last night's defeat. The Paddlers were forced to play fifty minutes of the sixty with but one substitute, and for twelve minutes of the second period they did not have that one.

SONS OF ENGLAND HOLD INSTALLATION

District Deputy Conducts Ceremony In Instructive Manner.

The installation of the officers of Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England took place on Monday, Jan. 17. District Deputy Supreme Lodge Officer Bro. B. Lemmon installed the members elected to the different offices in an exceedingly efficient and thorough manner, which brought forth much commendation from the members present.

The officers installed for 1927 are:

Worthy Past President—Bro. S. M. Ward.
Worthy President — Bro. F. J. Parsons.
Worthy Vice-President — Bro. H. Sowden.
Worthy Chaplain—Bro. W. Gray.
Worthy Financial Secretary—Bro. W. G. Shiner.
Worthy Recording Secretary — Bro. P. G. S. Webb.
Worthy Treasurer—Bro. C. Wood.
Worthy First Committee Chair—Bro. H. Wilford.
Worthy Second Committee Chair—Bro. A. F. Harris.
Worthy Third Committee Chair—Bro. J. Barnes.
Worthy Fourth Committee Chair—Bro. F. Jefferson.
Worthy Fifth Committee Chair—Bro. R. Wright.
Worthy Sixth Committee Chair—Bro. G. Temple.
Worthy Inner Guard — Bro. J. Townsend.
Worthy Outside Guard—Bro. G. Farrance.

After the installation a presentation of an engraved signet ring was made to Bro. Chris. Wood, who has completed 25 years in office as Lodge treasurer. Bro. E. A. Peck, M.P., made the presentation, and in well-chosen words extolled the faithfulness and loyalty of Bro. Wood for the past 25 years as custodian of the Lodge funds. Bro. Wood, in responding to the applause which greeted this presentation, expressed his deep appreciation of the gift, also stating that it was on January 17, 1898, 29 years ago, that he joined the Lodge.

A presentation of a long service medal to Bro. Dr. T. W. H. Young was deferred on account of the unavoidable absence of Dr. Young.

During the general business of the Lodge the report of the financial secretary for the year showed a large increase in the funds of the Lodge during the year, with a slight decrease in membership.

After the closing of the Lodge the members gathered around the banquet table and enjoyed the fellowship that only comes to those who have been associated together for years in the Lodge room.

The toastmaster, Bro. F. J. Parsons, the newly elected president, called for the toasts, which were honored in the usual enthusiastic manner.

"The King," followed by the singing of the National Anthem.

"The Supreme Lodge," moved by Bro. W. G. Shiner and responded to by Bro. B. Lemmon, the District Deputy.

"The Homeland," proposed by Bro. W. H. Wilford, responded to by Bro. W. Gray.

"The Land of Our Adoption, Canada," proposed by Bro. S. M. Ward, and responded to by Bro. E. A. Peck, M.P.

A vote of thanks to the caterer, Bro. Coleman, was proposed by Bro. G. Collis, with a reply by Bro. Coleman, and a vote of thanks to the retiring officers, moved by Bro. W. G. Shiner, and responded to by Bro. S. M. Ward, brought a very successful evening to a close.

LINE GANG LOSES TO METER TEAM

Score of Game Between the Utilities Employees is 6-1.

Due to a challenge from the Line Gang thrown at the Meter Department for a game of hockey it happened at Mark St. rink. We hear a lot of noise from the Line Gang when on poles but when it comes to hockey the Meter Department has it all over them to the tune of 6—1.

Jim Johnson the genial captain of the Line gang spent most of his time looking for the puck. Sparkplug Spargo seemed to be defence but was on the fence most of the time and his partner, Jimmie Preston, did all the work. Teddy Drum tried to make his way through to the Meter department's net but was too light. Gordon Nicholls and Paddy Cook locked horns often and the referee had to put them in the cook house to cool down. Gordon Seabrook, Jack Trotter and Frank Worsencroft on the forward line of the Meter department spun around like dials on a meter and were very accurate like them. Bruce Aikins had all the work to do. Carl Dinsdale in goal for Meter department had not much to do but when called on was there all the time, while Stewart Hubble in goal for the Line gang was as busy as if there were no team on the ice to support him.

Line Gang—Goal, Stewart Hubble defence, Harry Spargo and Jimmy Preston; forwards, Teddy Drum, Paddy Cook, James Johnson.

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet — colds of all sorts.

SCOUT EXECUTIVE HOLDS MEETING

Report on Activities During Past Two Months Is Submitted.

A meeting of the Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association was held in the board room of the City Hall yesterday.

There were present: Rev. Father Paul Costello in the chair, Commissioner J. J. Turner, J. Joan, J. A. McKone, Dr. G. Murray Fraser, and F. Taylor.

A letter from Provincial Headquarters, calling a Provincial Scout Leaders' Conference in Hamilton on February 10 and 11 was read, and it was decided to send a representative from Peterborough to attend the conference.

Commissioner Turner is attending a conference of Commissioners on February 9.

A letter from Adjutant Ham of the Salvation Army was received, thanking the Boy Scouts for the toys donated to the Army at Christmas time, and commenting on the splendid condition in which the toys were found.

Father Costello expressed the thanks of St. Vincent's Orphanage for the toys donated to them.

A report on Scout activities for the past two months was received from Dr. Fraser, and the secretary was instructed to write and thank all those who contributed time and materials to assist in the work of the toy shop. In his report, Dr. Fraser states that approximately 500 toys were received and repaired during the time the toy shop was open. He calls attention to the generous assistance rendered by the Peterborough Fire Department in painting all the toys as they were repaired.

Father Costello reports that the Knights of Columbus are trying to organize a Troop under Mr. Clancy but have not as yet been able to arrange Mr. Clancy's time to allow him to take on a Troop. Something will be done in the near future and a Troop under Mr. Clancy's leadership started.

W. R. Morris, chairman of the Finance Committee, sent in his report on the membership campaign. He reported having received cheques from 24 persons, admitting them into membership in the Association.

The following accounts were passed for payment:

Evening Examiner, $41.21; Cooney and Jopling $1; Peterboro Hardware Co., $6.85; Grand and Thorpe $2.40; Peterboro Utilities Commission, $1.13; J. J. Tutner & Sons, $4; Dr. G. Murray Fraser (stamps), $7.

AROUND THE CITY.

The C.G.I.T. group of George street church entertained the C.G.I.T. girls of St. Andrew's church at their meeting held in the Y.W.C.A. last evening. Miss Mary Squire gave an interesting talk on her trip to the coast. Miss Mildred Fife presided over the meeting, which concluded with the service of refreshments.

OBITUARY.

MRS. THOMAS BRIDGEWATER

Anne Pharaoh, the relic of the late Thomas Bridgewater, who died yesterday, was born in Oxford, England, on January 30th, 1840. There remain of a family of five children only one son, Harry, of this city; also one brother in England. Mr. and Mrs. Bridgewater came to this city in 1870, and resided here ever since, for the last 50 years at 177 Hazlett Street. The funeral will be held from the family residence tomorrow at 2 p.m., proceeding to St. Luke's Church, of which the deceased was a member, thence to Little Lake Cemetery.

MARTIN H. DONOHUE.

LONDON, Jan. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—Martin H. Donohue, noted war correspondent, died to-day after several weeks' illness.

He was born in Galway, Ireland, 57 years ago and after an education which included study of the Oriental languages, embarked on his journalistic career in Sydney, N.S.W., in 1892.

In the Great War he was an officer in the British Intelligence Corps, serving in Greece, Rumania and Russia.

REV. CHARLES CREVIER.

HOLYOKE, Mass., Jan. 19. — (Canadian Press.)— Rev. Charles E. Crevier, 88, pastor of the Church of the Precious Blood, and believed to be the dean of Roman Catholic priests in New England, is dead here to-day.

Father Crevier was ordained in Montreal.

O'Byrne Will Not Accept Prize Money

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 19—George Young will receive the full $25,000 prize offered by Wm. Wrigley, Jr., his trainer and manager, Henry O'Byrne said last night. Although Young's contract with O'Byrne calls for the trainer getting 40 per cent. of the prize, O'Byrne will not accept the money, he said.

"It was my intention all along to give the boy the entire $25,000 if he won, but I had the contract drawn up to prevent any others from getting the best of him," explained O'Byrne.

On the balance of the youth's earnings this year, however, the 40 per cent. share with O'Byrne stands.

TEN SENTENCED FOR BEATING ABBE

Members of Fanatical Order Will Be Sent To Jail.

MELUN, France, Jan. 19.—(Canadian Press.)— Ten members of the fanatical "Order of Our Lady of Tears," were sentenced by default to-day for flogging the Abbe Des Noyers, parish priest at Bombon, a year ago and maltreating his servants.

Two men were given eight months' imprisonment and eight women were sentenced to six months each. A fine of 100 francs was also levied in each case. The Abbe was awarded 5,000 francs damages and servants 1,000 francs each.

IN MEMORIAM.

GRAHAM: In loving memory of Mrs Robert M Graham, who passed away one year ago to-day, Jan. 19, 1926.

Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all;
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
We little thought her death so near.
Forget her, no, we never will,
For in God's care she liveth still.
—Loving Sister and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM

GRAHAM.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Robert Graham, who died Jan. 19, 1926.

Yes, dear mother, how we miss you;
But you're gone to happy rest
Where the angels throng around you,
And they'll crown you with the blest.
You have gone to be with loved ones
Who have gone on long before;
They are waiting, watching for you,
Over on that golden shore.
Though your place on earth is vacant
And you'll come to us no more,
Yet we hope again to meet you
When our time on earth is o'er.
And in that land of song and beauty,
Parting hands are clasped no more.
When we meet again, dear mother,
'Twill be when parting all is o'er.
All your days of pain and sorrow,
All your weary nights are past,
All earth's trials for you are ended,
You are safe in Heaven at last.
—Inserted by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Graham, Reid Street.
